BRIEF TENURE

The startling announcement ended a brief tenure of just one year and 11 months in the premiership for the pudgy Malenkov. He took the helm of the Soviet Union on March 6, 1953, less than 24 hours after the death of Stalin.

The joint session of the Soviet legislature which accepted the resignation sat for only seven minutes. After voting to accept the resignation, it adjourned.

There was no public hint before the meeting of the bombshell that was coming. The parliament had been scheduled to discuss foreign affairs today, and it had been expected that either Malenkov or Foreign Minister Molotov would make the main speech.

In a forthright reversal of the emphasis on consumer-goods production which he had championed earlier, Malenkov's statement said he was convinced that the development of heavy industry was the prime need of the Soviet Union.

The campaign to stress heavy industry again has been led by Khrushchev.

Shortly after the return to this stress on heavy industry was touched off by a Pravda article two weeks ago, the resignation of A. I. Mikoyan as trade minister was announced. Malenkov and Mikoyan were the two figures most prominently identified with the campaign to produce more consumer goods for the Soviet people.

Malenkov touched off that drive with a speech in August, 1953, in which he said Russia's economic position was such that it could afford to put extra stress in production of consumer goods.

Reactors Had to Be Demolished Due to Radioactive Hazards

By FRANK E. CAREY

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the hoped-for age of industrial power, a new kind of repairman will be thankful for the memory of "Clementine," an American atomic furnace that broke down.

He will be guided, too, by lessons learned from "NRX," a Canadian reactor that also ran into hard luck.

Both reactors had to be completely dismantled because they developed dangerous radioactive hazards. Only the Canadian reactor was put back into operation, but valuable lessons were learned from both tear-down jobs.

These were ticklish, risky undertakings, requiring the development and application of ingenious techniques, some remotely controlled, to prevent death or injury to the men working on them.

NEW DETAILS RELEASED

The story of "Clementine's" mishap has only recently been released by the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission. And, while a part of the Canadian story has previously been told, scientists have recently been supplying new details. Both mishaps occurred in 1952.

The Canadian project included disposing of approximately 1,000,000 gallons of water containing more radioactivity than is present in the world's entire known supply of radium.

"Clementine" was an experimental research reactor completed in 1949 at the AEC's Los Aamos, New Mexico, weapons development laboratory. She got her name from the song of the gold-digging '49ers of a century earlier.

Trouble first developed in 1950. Temporary repairs were made a couple of times, but on Christmas Eve, 1952, the reactor had to be condemned.

One of the plutonium fuel rods had ruptured, releasing radio-active material into the mercury which was used to carry heat away from the fuel pot. Also, a blanket of uranium placed around the fuel pot as a reflector of neutrons was behaving abnormally.

BEAT DOUBLE HAZARD

The scientists were faced with two hazards in dismantling the structure — one from external exposure to radioactive rays, the other from inhaling or swallowing dustlike particles of plutonium. They spent months in devising and practising on techniques to minimize these hazards.

Here are some of the things they worked out and successfully used:

1. "Dry boxes" which could be attached to some structural part, such as a pipe, requiring manipulation. Pressure inside the box was kept at a lower level than atmospheric pressure so that any radiation leakage would be inward. Thus, a worker, inserting his hands into rubber gloves sealed to the boxes could do such things as cut pipe with good assurance of avoiding exposure.

2. A "plastic bag" technique, employed to transfer radiation-contaminated objects from a "dry box" to a shielded container for disposal.

A long vinyl bag was sealed to both containers and the contaminated object shoved through it. After the transfer, the bag was twisted into a tight "rope" and cut; then the cut ends were quickly sealed with tape.

DIFFERENT TYPE MISHAPS

While the woes of Clementine piled up gradually—and no significant radiation was ever released in the building housing the reactor—the mishap to the Canadian reactor was sudden in onset. Radiation was released throughout the entire housing building and some of the project area, although no one was hurt.

The powerl level of the reactor accidentally surged upward, melting and otherwise affecting some of the uranium fuel.

Canada's reactor—called "NRX" for "National research experimental"—employed ordinary water as a cooling material. Large amounts of radioactive products got into this water and were carried to the basement beneath the pile.

To get rid of this deadly stuff—about 1,000,000 gallons — Canadian scientists built a 1¼-mile pipeline leading from the reactor to a disposal area.

In the 14 months it took to decontaminate the project area, dismantle and repair the reactor, workers dressed in highly-protective clothing and wore special masks. They were allowed to work only for certain periods of time lest they get over-exposed.

One of the ironic twists of the historic Canadian venture: While no one was injured by radiation, a construction worker fell from an icy girder during the wintertime job and was killed.

MARMORA

Public Library Board Holds Annual Meet

MARMORA. — The annual meeting of Marmora Public Library Board was held in the Public Library on Monday evening, under the presidency of the chairman Charles Nicholson. He extended a welcome to the assembly which included Reeve Ritchie Wells.

In the unavoidable absence of the treasurer, Miss M. Savage, the financial report was given by Mrs. A. M. Jones. It showed that almost $300 remained on hand at the end of the year, but this will be much absorbed by forthcoming expenditures.

The librarian's report was presented by Mrs. Annie Deans.

The circulation was as follows: adult non-fiction 3,348 or an increase of 1,194 over 1953; adult fiction 5,923 with an increaseof 885. Juvenile circulation on the other hand was down from 8,120 to 6,790, a decrease of 1,330.

Readers were: adult 82; tourist 17; juvenile 422.

Five hundred and twenty books were discarded.

The retirement of Mrs. Bruce Robson as librarian, after ten years of valued service, was touched upon in words. She has been succeeded in office by Mrs. T. J. Bateman.

The election of officers was deferred until a meeting called for at 5 p.m. in the library on Thursday, February 10, when it is hoped a good representation of members will be present to elect an executive for another year of progress.

Hobby Club Arranges For Hobby Fair

DESERONTO — The Deseronto Hobby Club held its regular weekly meeting at the home of Mrs. Harry Bender with 20 members and one visitor present.

The president, Mrs. R. K. Jackson, presided for the business part of the meeting, when the minutes and financial report were read and approved.

The main topic of discussion was the annual Hobby Fair and many interesting and original ideas were submitted for consideration by the members.

The Fair is the club's chief project and the members are making an early start with plans to ensure this year will be as successful as their previous ones have been.

Mrs. Sid Brown and Mrs. D. F. Weber were in charge of Hobbies for the evening.

Mrs. Brown exhibited several beautiful oil paintings and also several articls in handicraft. Mrs. Weber demonstrated book binding—how to assemble a year's issue of your favorite magazine and cover and bind this to produce a handy reference book, and also how to repair broken bindings on books.

Next week's meeting will be held at Mrs. Newton Thomas' with Miss B. Rixen and Mrs. H. Bender in charge of the program.

LADIES' EUCHRE

DESERONTO—Mrs. C. M. Luffman entertained the Ladies' Euchre Club at their regular meeting. Prizes for high scores were won by Mrs. John Gartland, and Mrs. Vera Ryan. Consolation by Mrs. Sid Brown, and travelling by Mrs. Harry Fraser.

Refreshments were served by the hostess at the close of the evening.

DESERONTO — Mrs. Charles Beyette attended the funeral of the late Mr. George Bois on Friday in Kingston.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Burley visited in Ottawa over the weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Stewart and family, also Miss Phyllis Burley, of Toronto, were week-end guests with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Burley.

C.W.L.

The regular monthly meeting of the Catholic Women's League was held on Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. J. F. McNeill, in the form of a hard time party with the president, Mrs. Gregory Gordon in the chair.

There were 25 members and four visitors present.

The minutes of the January meeting and the correspondence were read by Mrs. James Gaulin, and Mrs. Joe Roach gave the treasurer's report.

Father Martin spoke briefly to the members.

Mrs. Tyrrel offered her home for the March meeting.

The Hard Time costume prizes were won by Mrs. Jack Therrien and Mrs. Charles Doran. After the meeting closed refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Miss Nora Fox and Mrs. Ed. Roach.

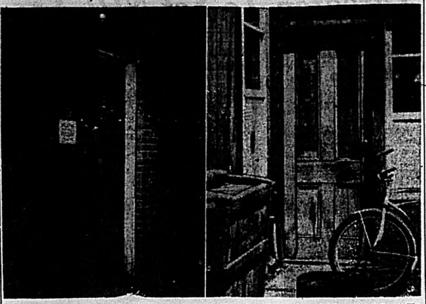
PROTECT YOUR VALUABLES



A 20-page booklet planned in an effort to reduce petty crime in Canada illustrates some dos and don'ts about ordinary protection measures. At left is what RCMP cite as the proper way to provide good protection for a store — night light, steel door and barred windows. The rear door of the store at right seems to invite the burglar—there's no night light, the door is wooden and old and the windows are unbarred. (CP Photo).

Mounted Police Launch Drive To Try to Prevent Petty Crime

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Most police forces in the world are concerned with the mounting crime rate.

The RCMP is no exception. In an attempt to get at the root of the problem, it has launched a campaign to try to prevent petty crime.

Records kept by the Mounties show that car thefts in the last five years have increased by 57.1 per cent; breaking, entering and theft by 37 per cent and cases of cheques by 15 per cent.

DISCOURAGING THEFT

The RCMP has started distribution of 50,000 booklets entitled "crime in your community." They show, by word and picture, how business men, storekeepers and householders can help prevent petty crime by making offices and homes more secure.

The 20-page booklets are being distributed through divisions, subdivisions and detachments of the RCMP in the eight provinces—all except Ontario and Quebec—and some 70 municipalities policed by the force. Most of them will go to storekeepers visited regularly by the Mounties.

The booklet is intended only as the first step in a drive to reduce the incidence of petty crime, mostly by removing temptation such as open cash drawers, rings forgotten in washrooms, and unlocked doors.

We hope the booklet will help people to exercise some care with their belongings," says assistant commissioner C. W. Harvison, the RCMP's director of operations and criminal investigations.

START OF CAMPAIGN

"If this is successful we plan to follow it up with more publicity and then set up a branch in the force to concentrate on crime prevention.

"Every police force is exploring every possibility of reducing crime. One answer is to get more men. This is another way. We are very hopeful of success because police forces in England have had surprising success with their crime prevention campaigns."

Figures bear him out.

The first major effort in crime prevention in England was made in Sussex in 1943. It started with a "mind your bike" campaign and after three months bicycle thefts had dropped 40 per cent and detections were up 50 per cent.

SMALL COST

The Sussex police force found that, with fewer crimes committed, there was more time to investigate crimes which did occur with the result that the percentage of convictions increased. The entire campaign cost about $12.

Similar campaigns in England have been equally successful. Cases of breaking and entering shops and homes dropped as much as 26 per cent. After a campaign in Brighton, the number of burglaries, house and shop breakings and attempted breakins dropped from 495 in 1947 to 150 in 1951. In the city of London, the number fell from 2,506 to 1,969 between 1951 and 1953.

Assit. Comm. Harvison said the RCMP hopes to receive enough reaction from business men, storekeepers and householders within a month to plan its next move in crime prevention.

CANADIANS GUESTS

BOMBAY (Reuters)—Officers of the Canadian destroyers Huron and Iroquois were mess guests Monday night of officers of the Indian navy. Commodore A. K. Chatterji, in charge of the Indian navy in Bombay, offered a toast of welcome to the Canadian ships, here on a goodwill cruise. A dance followed, attended by high ranking army and air force officers.

Rawdon

RAWDON — Mrs. Alice Berry, Australia, president Associated Country Women of the World, has been visiting in Scandinavia, Netherlands, England, Ireland, Finland, Sweden, Denmark, Norway and other points.

In her presidential address published in "The Countrywoman" she wished to express deep appreciation of the kindness shown to her everywhere on her travels and for flowers and gifts she had received. She said in part, "As we stand on the threshold of a new year, my thoughts fly to my homeland and my dear family, but I am made happy by the thought that although 12,000 miles divide us, we look forward to our re-union and find satisfaction in the fact that my travelling is perhaps helping to cement friendships which bind us together as members of A.C.W.W. Mathew Arnold wrote: "If women ever learn to work together, they will be a power for good such as the world has never seen."

LEARNING CO-OPERATION

"In our membership of A.C.W.W. we are learning to work together, to foster international understanding, and to give consideration and thought to the problems of women throughout the whole world." May the power for good which our friendship engenders help us to a better world.

"Twenty-five years have passed since A.C.W.W. was inaugurated, twenty-five years of spreading and growing. Last year five new societies were accepted to membership. We face the new year with hope for a still greater spread of knowledge, understanding and service."

Tweed

TWEED — Mrs. C. R. Maguire returned home on Saturday from the Belleville General Hospital where she had been undergoing medical treatment for the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. George Harron of Toronto, and Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Dales and baby of Belleville, were Sunday visitors at the home of Dr. and Mrs. M. G. Dales. Mrs. J. Markle of Huntsville is also a visitor at the home of her brother, Dr. M. G. Dales and Mrs. Dales.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sager of Ottawa; Mrs. Bruce Leslie of Queensboro and Mr. F. Stark of Peterborough attended St. John's United Church on Sunday morning.

Don Sherry, Joe Mumby and Ron Moon, left on Sunday for a three weeks' visit to the sunny south.

Friends of Don Porritt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Porritt of Tweed will be glad to learn that his condition is much improved after being placed in a cast. He is a patient in the Belleville General Hospital. Don had the misfortune to fall from a steel beam while working at Point Anne.

Away back in 1922, a young man by the name of Arthur Bourke joined our company. Little did he realize that his children—all six of them—would follow in his footsteps to careers at the Bell. Today Mr. Bourke would be more than proud of his handsome family. We know we are!

The Bourkes, like all telephone people, know from their own experience that the Bell is "a good place to work". They have found pleasant associates and interesting work at good wages. They have also found satisfaction and opportunity in serving the public in an essential business.

And this is as it should be, for good telephone service depends upon people who like their jobs, and convey this feeling to our customers. This is the feeling that is largely responsible for "the spirit of service" you find in Bell employees wherever you meet them.

Canadiens Three Flying Frenchmen Threaten To Set NHL Scoring Mark

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

CLOSE ONE!

There was a real old battling Kingston-Belleville hockey tussle in Roddenville last night and over 2800 Goodyear fans saw their favorites emerge triumphant with Coach Les Douglas in the hero role.

The Goodies' playing mentor fired home the odd goal in five with five minutes to go in the final period of a typical inter-city battle and then aided his cohorts in a fine defensive effort. The Goodies deserved their win and would have got the nod by a bigger margin but for the outstanding work of Tony Parisi in the nets. The loss of Bob Wilson who drew a game misconduct, did not help the Memos' chances.

The Memos play hosts to the Brockville Magedomas tonight in what is known as a "four-point" game. The "Maggies" are not out of the playdown woods by any chance and tonight's tilt is a "must" win for both squads.

Last night's result did not affect the standing, but it gave the Goodies a three-point lead over our side. Cornwall tops the pack with 50, Whitby is next with 48, Kingston 47 and the Memos 44. Then comes Brockville with 35, Clinton 33 and the Petes 19.

GRUDGE FIGHT!

District press and radio boys were briefed on Sunday afternoon at an informal press conference held in the south station at Trenton. The confab was all about the coming boxing extravaganza being held under the match-making genius of an old friend, Sergeant Hub Smith, who recently returned from Coral Bay, not too far south of the North Pole, where all he saw for eight or nine months was a few buddies, a priest, and a lot of Eskimos.

Hub has whipped up a card for the boxing show that should prove a spine-tingler. Three five-rounders top the eight-round card and the top trio should be well worth the price of admission.

Heading the card is a welter battle between Don Wallace, well known Barrie welterweight, and Ernie Durelle, brother of Yvon Durelle, well known fighter, who fought out of the Royal School of Artillery, Picton, where, incidentally, brother Ernie is quartered at the moment.

But what caught this corner's eye, and a lot more, is a bout that could easily steal the show. It sees Belleville's Eddie Schamerhorn tangle with Trenton's Roy Deshane in a five-round battle that has all the earmarks of a bloody, bruising fight. The boys are no strangers and the last fight between them staged a couple of years ago ended in a Deshane decision that drew plenty of boos, even from a hometown crowd. Neither Deshane nor Schamerhorn have forgotten that clash and the bout between them on Monday, February 28, should be a dilly.

The third five-rounder sees Kingston's classy featherweight, Corporal Don Spears, who fights in the Newsboys' Tournament on March 11, matched with Paul Kenney, of Barrie, a smart, clever fighter and a hard puncher.

Then there are plenty of other attractions. There will be bands and music and possibly mayhem, figurative that is, when the "Color Event" of the evening is staged. This is a "fight to the finish," it says here, between Belleville's Mayor John Both and Trenton's Chief Magistrate Ross Burtt. Mayor Both was not available for comment today but this Trenton CM is qui'e a cocky fella. He says he is in good shape and can lick . ay mayer in the province. He has been in secret training for a week or so and will be fit and ready for the big night. The "boys" will use twelve-ounce gloves, fifty-ounce pillows fore and aft, with no horseshoes permitted in the gloves, nor pistols on the hip.

It seems Trenton needs $170,000 for the construction of the community centre and from information we gathered at the press-do the citizens of the up-west town will provide $100,000 providing the Centre committee can raise the balance. The proceeds, in their entirety, from the boxing show and other events planned by the committee, will go to the campaign fund.

TIMELY ADVICE

The Ontario Minor Hockey Association in the midst of another highly successful season (despite biased editorial writers) has issued important directives to referees, players, coaches and managers that should be marked, learned and inwardly digested by all concerned.

A few untoward incidents have happened that have resulted in the official foot being clamped down and suspensions issued, but on the whole the OMHA is living up to its reputation of keeping the game clean and on the same high level it has enjoyed for years.

With playoffs and their attending tension and keen rivalry between clubs coming up, the OMHA issues timely warning to its officials and players that no rough play, profanity nor other breaches of the rules will be tolerated. Referees have strict orders to enforce the rules to the limit. The OMHA is solidly behind its officials.

Secretary Jack Christie expresses the appreciation of the OMHA for the co-operation and assistance of all concerned in tario. But the directives will not come amiss and as was said tario. But hte directives will not come amiss and as was said before, they should be read and absorbed by all.

Canuck Skaters Reach Vienna

VIENNA (Reuters)—The Canadian team for the world figure-skating championships arrived here Monday night, tired after their journey of nearly 5,000 miles in two days.

Sheldon Galbraith, one of the two trainers with the team, told Reuters:

"The trip was very pleasant, and we were well treated all the way, but travelling eastwards we lost a lot of sleep.

"The skaters are going to have a really good night's rest tonight and we are going to start training tomorrow morning. Just a very mild session, that is all."

Asked what the team's prospects were, Galbraith said the current world pairs champions, Norris Bowden and Frances Dafoe, are here to defend their title "and they have every hope of success."

"In the other contests we hope to make our mark too."

Rocket, Jean and Boom-Boom Can Finish With 120 Goals; Present Mark Is 110 Tallies

MONTREAL (CP) — The three flying Frenchmen of Montreal Canadiens — Maurice (Rocket) Richard, Jean Beliveau and Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion — are threatening to upset the National Hockey League's high-goal mark for collective production by any leading trio.

The league's official statistics, released today, show the three Montrealers have scored 91 goals in 53 games, with 17 games to go. If they hold to the top positions and maintain the same average they will round out the 70-game schedule with 120 goals.

League records show the high for any season by three scoring leaders was 110, set in 1929-30 and equalled in 1943-44. In 1929-30, Cooney Weiland of Boston netted 43, Frank Boucher of New York 26 and Dit Clapper of Boston 41.

JUST 50 GAMES

Doug Bentley of Chicago scored 38 in 1943-44, followed by Herbie Cain of Boston and Lorne Carr of Toronto with 36 each. They turned the trick in 50 games. No records were kept of how many games were played in 1929-30.

Montreal's big five got together again last week in the total-points parade, Bert Olmstead moving from seventh to fourth place and Ken Mosdell slipping back to fifth.

Beliveau is leading the league with 59 points, on 30 goals and 29 assists, scoring two goals and two assists in three games last week. Richard's outburst with four goals and one assist in New York Sunday gave him the goal-getting leadership with 32 and, now with 24 assists, second place in the standing with 56 points.

NOT GOOD ENOUGH

Geoffrion's one goal and two assists for a 29-25 count wasn't enough to keep him in second place. Olmstead follows with 47 points on eight goals and 39 assists. He is the league leader on assists, getting five last week along with one goal. Mosdell had one of each, running his total to 46 points.

Sid Smith, hustling leftwinger of Toronto Maple Leafs who is far ahead of any of his mates on goal-production, bagged three more last week to run his count to 28, within shooting distance of Montreal's high-flying trio. Smith has 16 assists for a point total of 44.

Gordie Howe of Detroit couldn't get himself a point and with his 43 total unchanged, dropped from fifth to seventh place.

The Montrealers lead the league with 72 points, five more than Detroit Red Wings. Toronto Maple Leafs follow with 58 points.

The up - and - coming Boston Bruins now trail Toronto by only six points and have two games in hand.

Goalie Harry Lumley of Toronto has a goals-against average of 1.89, compared with 1.88 last week. Detroit's Terry Sawchuk has 2.02, against 1.92 a week ago.

Teepees Whip Hamilton 6-3; Take Top Spot

HAMILTON (CP)—St. Catharines TeePees took over first place in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A standings Monday night by defeating Hamilton's fifth place Cubs, 6-3, before 2,454 fans.

Three goals tallied in the last four minutes of play by the TeePees broke up a 3-3 game.

Referee Bill Divorski awarded Cub Bob Robinson a penalty-shot on a trip by Elmer Vasko, in the last five seconds of play but Robinson failed to score on Marv Edwards, in the St. Catharines nets.

TeePees had 40 shots on goal to Cubs' 23.

Penticton Mayor Calls V's to Win And Do It Alone

MONTREAL (CP)—Mayor Oscar Matson of Penticton, B.C., arrived in Montreal Monday and said his hometown Vs will win the world hockey championship and will do it without help of the National Hockey League.

Mayor Matson and his wife are en route to West Germany for the championships.

"I don't see the need for all the hand-wringing whenever the subject of the Vs comes up," said the mayor. "They're fast, have won the championship in their own league with still four games to go in the regular schedule and, to put it briefly, they're the best amateur team in Canada—with an amateur status, that is."

Asked about the suggestion of coach Dick Irvin of Montreal Canadiens that two players from each of the three top NHL teams —Montreal, Detroit and Toronto— be sent to play with the Vs, Mayor Matson said:

"If our boys thought they needed help, they'd grab it. But don't get me wrong. I'm convinced the offer was made graciously, and if there has been any fuss and feathers over the subject the fault doesn't lie with the Penticton organization."

Laufman Leads Roth In Senior Race

TORONTO (CP)—Ken Laufman of Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen and Mickey Roth of Stratford Indians continue their battle for individual scoring honors in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series, with Laufman holding a four-point edge.

Laufman has 71 points with 19 goals and 52 assists and Roth has 67 points with 23 tallies and 44 assists.

George Scholes of the Dutchmen tops the league in goals scored with 28. Laufman leads in assists.

'Quare Times' Favorite For Grand National

Quare Times is one of four O'Brien entries for the world's toughest steeplechase. The bookies made him a 10-1 pick.

O'Brien won the four miles, 856 yards grind over 30 jumps with Early Mist in 1953 and with Royal Tan last year. O'Brien has entered Early Mist and Royal Tan again this year. His fourth entry is seven-year-old Oriental Way.

Minoso Says 'This Year Win Peanut' Then Asks Boss for $20,000 Raise

CHICAGO (AP)—Minnie Minoso, Chicago White Sox star outfielder, and his papa No. 2 are at it again.

"This year we win the peanut. I live and die for Chicago," says Minoso in asking for a $20,000 raise.

Minnie's papa No. 2 — better known as Frank Lane, general manager of the Sox--looked over a letter from Minoso asking for the increase and said he doesn't know whether to laugh or weep.

The hilarious palaver between Minnie and his boss comes up every year about contract time.

Minnie is asking a boost which would bring his pay to an estimated $47,000.

"I talked to Minnie on the phone a couple of weeks ago," said Lane, "and asked if he had received the contract. He told me yes but refused to discuss it until I got his letter.

"Minnie is a great player and we offered him a substantial raise but the White Sox are not going to pay for the cars his friends ride around in."

Lane recalled last year when he went to Havana to talk contract to Minoso and was told he could find Minnie at the ball park.

"I heard talk about a car being given away and I thought Minnie was being honored. Imagine my surprise when I learned it was Minnie who was giving the car away."

"I've told Minnie over and over again never to discuss his finances with anyone," Lane added:

"Then I go to Havana last year to talk contract with him a clubhouse boy tells me Minnie's looking for me and wants a $10,000 raise."

"I'll tell you, though." Lane said, "I wish the guy were twins even if it cost the White Sox a lot of money. He's kind, humble and a colorful individual. He's forever scouting players for us in Cuba and he just can't say no to anyone."

Kid Howard Confident He Can Whip Dupas

NEW ORLEANS (CP)—Canada's lightweight boxing champion can play spoiler here tonight and at the same time advance his own world title hopes.

School boy Ralph Dupas faces Ritchie (Kid) Howard of Halifax in a 10-round match that could prove a stumbling block to the New Orleans lightweight's championship ambitions.

The 19-year-old Dupas, ranked third among contenders for the lightweight crown, defeated Howard in an eight round match here in 1953, but this time it will be a more experienced and vastly more confident Howard.

The winner of the match has been promised a bout with unbeaten Frankie Ryff, whose sensational rise has classed him as a "must" opponent for all challengers although he is ranked behind Dupas.

KEEP PUNCHING

Howard thinks he has corrected the mistakes that led to his 1953 loss to Dupas.

"I figure the way to outpoint Dupas is to keep punching all the time," says the 24-year-old Nova Scotian, whose victory over Orlando Zulueta of Cuba shot him into the division's top 10.

"You never can be sure of hitting him, but maybe a shot you think is wild may be the one that nails him. And if I nail him good, you might see some fun. If I say so myself, I punch pretty good."

Goodyears Come From Behind To Nose Out Memos 3-2 In Typical Battle

Les Douglas Scores Winner In Blistering Third Period; Over 2800 See Rousing Fray

KINGSTON (Special) — Tense feeling, stern duelling and affronts to officiating dignity were among the highlights last night in the community memorial centre when Kingston Goodyears shaded the Belleville Memos by 3 to 2 and tightened their clutch on the third rung in the Ontario Hockey Association senior "B" group race. A goal by coach Les Douglas scored at 15.01 in the final period eleven seconds after goalkeeper "Tony" Parisi had resumed play following an injury.

Bob Wilson of the visitors distinguished himself in reverse by getting three minor penalties and a game misconduct in less than two periods. Johnny Myke of the locals picked up a misconduct, plus a game misconduct when he protested the legality of the opening goal in the first period. The Memos served nine of seventeen sentences. No goal was racked up against them when they were shorthanded.

It was the last meeting between those keen rivals until the playoffs and Goodyears led in points. By a coincidence the Douglasmen have been more effective on Belleville ice than against the Memos here.

SAW EVERYTHING

The crowd of 2,815 in number saw a bit of everything in this vital clash, the result of which has greatly jeopardized Belleville's hope of finishing the regular group race higher than the fourth rung. Their ultimate possible in points is now 60, whereas Cornwall could amass 68; Whitby 64 and Goodyears 63.

"Jake" Wade formerly of the Peterborough Petes amassed two assists and set the points-getting pace, no other attacker on either team manufacturing more than one. The scorers were Pete and Davey Jones of the Memos and Don Murray, Ted Toppazzini and Douglas of the locals. "Hub" Macey, Jim McKeown, Jack Irvine, Jack White and Ted Nicholson each earned an assist.

Goodyears probably would have won decisively if "Tony" Parisi hadn't turned in one of those brilliant goalkeeping exhibitions he seems to hold in reserve for Goodyears. The winning counter scored when he was a bit shaky in no way dimmed his thrilling performance.

It was lightning fast hockey from the start but the defenders held command until at the 5.51 mark Pete Jones aided by Wade and Macey fired the opening counter. A hot dispute followed but it was ruled that the puck had crossed the line before being stopped by Ken Johnson. Johnny Myke spoke not too wisely or too well and referee Walsh ordered him out of combat.

ANYTHING COULD HAPPEN

Les Douglas was banished at 10.22 for crosschecking and Bob Londry joined him at 10.31 but with four men opposing six Don Murray soloed for the tying counter. At 13.53 Johnny Muckler was chased for tripping and he was on the penitents bench when Dave Jones scored at 14.48 after taking a pass from "Jake" Wade. It was that kind of game and anything was likely to happen. The next sentence went to Douglas at 18.50, the charge being interference.

Only nineteen seconds elapsed in the middle session before the two Bobs, Londry and Wilson, were penalized in conjunction. At 6.55 Toppazzini racked up the equalizer after having attacked in alignment with Jim McKeown and Jack Irvine. Penalties followed quickly. Stan Stewart and Ted DeGray went away for roughing at 7.55; Wilson followed forty seconds later; Keith MacDonald drew an interference penalty at 12.27 and Wilson was assessed a minor and then a game misconduct at 18.24.

No breakage of rules occurred in the final session until MacDonald was detected tripping at 12.47. He was back only three seconds when Parisi was injured and taken away for repairs. The plucky fellow resumed action but eleven seconds after his reappearance Douglas fired the shot that sank the Memos. Jack White and Ted Nicholson figured in the fast attack.

Don Senior was penalized at 17.50 but the Belles couldn't break through for the tying counter. They were outshot 20 to 9 in that final round and by 7 to 3 in the middle session.

The teams:

Belleville — goal, Parisi; defence, Macey and Wilson; centre, Ed. Duncan; wings, Erwin Duncan and DeGray; alternates, Wade, Goyer, Dugan, P. Jones, Doran, D. Jones, MacDonald, Day and Muckler.

Kingston — goal, Johnson; defence, Londry and Irvine; centre, Murray; wings, MacGregor and Pawchuk; alternates, Nicholson, Toppazzini, Senior, White, Douglas, Myke, McKeown, Bellringer and Stewart.

Referees — Ted Topping and Maurice Walsh.

Kenora Rink Still Unbeaten

Guy's quartet took its third victory by defeating Dale Henry's Sioux Lookout foursome 11-9.

Fort William, Port Arthur, Terrace Bay and Hornepayne rinks each have two wins and one loss. Red Lake and Atikokan are the only rinks which haven't won a game.

Other third-draw scores Monday night:

Hornepayne 10, Atikokan 8; Port Arthur 16, Terrace Bay 5; Fort William 15, Red Lake 5.

SPOTLIGHT SHINES ON LEAFS' ROOKIE, HAWKS' NEW GOALIE

Two rookies and a pair of veterans share the spotlight in this goal-mouth action at Toronto, where Chicago Black Hawks and Maple Leafs settled for a 2-2 draw. They are: Leaf rookie Brian Cullen (left, nearest camera), who scored two goals against Hawks' new netminder Hank Bassen, right; Leafs' veteran Sid Smith, rear, and Chicago's Allen Stanley, extreme left. Bassen, who appears to have won the Chicago goal-tending job from Al Rollins, has lost only two games in eight starts, including two wins and four ties. (Central Press Canadian.)

Clair Resigns as Argos' Coach, Joins Cincinnati Grid Staff

TORONTO (CP) — Frank Clair resigned today as head coach of the Big Four football league Toronto Argonauts, the team he led to two Grey Cup championships.

Harry Sonshine, Argo team manager, said Clair is joining the University of Cincinnati as end coach.

He said he talked to Clair in a long-distance call from Cincinnati early today. Clair offered his resignation and it was accepted.

"We will begin immediately to look for a new coach," Sonshine said. "There won't be any problem. There are lots of good coaches in the United States and we'll wind up with one."

Clair's decision to leave Argos was reported to have been prompted by uncertainty brought on when Argos balked at giving up U. S. National Football League players they had signed for the coming season.

Sonshine said Cincinnati gave Clair a three-year contract and this played a big part in his decision. He said he understood, though, that Clair would be getting less than the salary Argos had offered.

Sonshine said Argos offered Clair a one-year contract at $15,000 several weeks ago and had known about the Cincinnati offer for some time.

Clair, the "professor" of Canadian football, came to Argos in 1950.

Rumors flew before his resignation was announced and Argo president Bill Ross said:

"I suppose he might have become worried. All these stories about selling the club and what imports we can have. I guess he was just scared about his security."

PLAN NEW SERVICE

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (Reuters)—A regular shipping line run by the Canadian Levant Lines between Montreal and Rijeka, the northern Adriatic port, will be inaugurated at the end of this month, Tanjug, the Yugoslav news agency reported Monday. The line will be operated under an agreement between the Canadian Shipping Corporation and the Transjug Company of Rijeka.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP) — Want to know how important relief pitching has become in big league baseball? Well, we've been browsing through the record of the 1954 season and can tell you that New York Giants won a pennant and a world series without getting more than 46 complete games from what must have been the best mound staff in the National League.

Leo Durocher's champions got 45 all-the-way performances from their starters during the season and one in the four game playoff against Cleveland. Their crack lefty, Johnny Antonelli, registered 18 in the regular campaign and was the only Giant starter to go the distance in the series.

Delving further, we find that Marvin Grissom appeared in 56 games, only three times as a starter, and that Hoyt Wilhelm relieved in 57 contests.

Noting further that Grissom is 37 years of age and Maglie 38, we got to wondering. What if both veterans, who won 24 games between them last year, should fade at once? We took the unpleasant thought to Garry Schumacher, assistant to president Horace Stoneham and a worrier from away back.

"The worst thing that could happen to us," he said tentatively, "is for Sal to go back, not to be able to give us those seven or eight great innings once a week. It would hurt if Grissom fell off, too, but not quite as bad. We'd still have Wilhelm, and they're not going to start doing anything to that knuckler of his any time soon.

"We've got a couple of other pretty good relievers, too, in John McCall and Al Corwin. George Spencer, who was our star reliever when we won in '51, is coming back from Minneapolis with a good sinker. Still another who might develop into a fine relief man is Larry Jansen."

OFFICIALS NAMED

TORONTO (CP)—Canadian National Telegraphs Monday announced the appointment of R. B. Steele as general superintendent of its eastern region and J. H. S. Ford as chief engineer for the eastern region.

Redskins Coach Seeks Guglielmi

Guglielmi, all-America quarterback from Notre Dame, was the No. 1 draft choice of the Redskins last month. He has been offered contracts by Canadian clubs which some sources have characterized as "fabulous."

Kuharich told a luncheon meeting of the Touchdown Club that he was "very hopeful" he could sign up Guglielmi "within the next 48 hours."

TO GET TRYOUT

VALLEYFIELD, Que. (CP) — Forward Jacques Gagnon of the Valleyfield Braves will get a three-game tryout with the National Hockey League New York Rangers, it was learned Monday night.

Gagnon, a native of Chicoutimi, Que., is playing his irst year for the 2 alleyfield Quebec Hockey League entry.

It was not immediately known when Gagnon will be called up. Valleyfield has a working agreement with New York.

Mims Sucker For Old Trick But Gets Nod

NEW YORK (AP)—Staggered in the third round when he fell for one of boxing's oldest sucker tricks favored Holly Mims of Washington rallied to win an unpopular split 10 round decision over Milo Savage of Salt Lake City at St. Nicholas Arena Monday night. Savage weighed 160½, Mims 157½.

Milo gestured with his left hand to Mims right shoe. As Mims looked down, Savage uncorked an overhand right that exploded on Holly's chin and shook him from head to toe. Mims almost fell. He clutched Savage and held on until his head cleared. Then he came back punching.

Blue Butterfly Hurt, To Retire

Alberta Ranches' Blue Butterfly, winner of the $56,500 Santa Margarita Handicap Saturday, suffered a bowed tendon, it was announced and will be retired from the turf.

Mir Clementine, Calumet Farm star and runnerup to Blue Butterfly, was withdrawn from next Saturday's San Antonio Handicap and trainer Jimmy Jones says the hard-luck filly will stay in the barn for the rest of the meeting.

Blue Butterfly, the Irish mare, will be sent to Kentucky and bred to Royal Seerenade, the stallion Alberta Ranches imported earlier from Ireland and winner of the $100,000 Hollywood Gold Cup.

SIGNS WITH B.C. LIONS

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dan Edwards, top pass receiver with Baltimore Colts, has signed with British Columbia Lions of the Western Interprovincial Football Union, the Lions' executive announced Monday.

A product of the University of Georgia, Edwards led the National Football League team last year in number of passes caught and total yardage gained. Lions said that his contract was received a week ago.

Edwards brings to six the number of imports signed by Lions this season.

Doubt Detroit 1960 Olympics Site Due to Heavy European Expenses

By JOE FALLS

DETROIT (AP)—There is growing doubt that Detroit will get the nomination to host the 1960 Olympic Games.

"We'll be in there trying for them," said Fred Matthaei, civic-minded steel executive who is the force behind Detroit's Olympics bid.

"But due to the expense involved the European countries are against going overseas for two consecutive Olympics," Matthaei said. The 1956 Games are in Australia.

The site of the 1960 games will be determined in a meeting of the international Olympic Committee in Paris June 14-17.

"The European countries will have 27 votes at that meeting compared to our three," Matthaei said. "However, that doesn't mean we haven't got a chance to get the Games.

"Remember, it's been 28 years since the people of the United States have had a chance to see the Olympics. We've got that factor on our side."

Last week Detroit was given official approval by the U.S. Olympic committee to represent the U.S. at the Paris meeting.

"In the past there were always several U.S. cities making a bid to get the games," Matthaei said. "That hurt. This time there'll be only one—Detroit."

Racing Stable Draws Suspension

TORONTO (CP)—The stewards of Dufferin Park, scene of winter harness racing, Monday announced the indefinite suspension of Forest Gerry, Jr., of Biddeford, Me.

The stewards said all horses owed or part-owned by the owner-driver and his wife are under the ban and the case has been referred to the Ontario racing commission.

Gerry finished a previous five-day sentence "for insufficient effort" last Saturday.

W. J. Risewick, supervisor of racing for the Ontario commission refused to comment on the second case but said there was no connection between the two.

LOUIS SEEKS LICENCE

CHICAGO (AP)—Joe Louis, former heavyweight champion, said Monday he has applied for a second's licence to work in the corner of his protege, Paul Andrews, at New York Friday night.

Andrews will meet Harold Johnson. Louis wired his application to the New York athletic commission.

Louis said he regarded light-heavyweight Andrews as "one of the most promising fighters now in action and I have been helping condition him out of friendship for his manager, and my old manager, Marshall Miles."

These eight young blade artists hope to walk off with world figure-skating laurels as easily as they walk toward the camera. Pictured in Toronto as they departed for Vienna, Austria, are, from left: Charles Snelling, Canadian senior men's champion; Barbara Wagner and Bob Paul, runners-up for the Canadian pairs title; Lindis and Jeffery Johnston, the brother-sister pair that won the national waltz and dance trophy; Ann Johnston, second in the senior ladies' event; Norris Bowden and Frances Dafoe, winners of the Canadian pairs title for four successive years. The latter are favored to retain the world pairs championship they copped last year. Ninth member of the Canadian team, Carol Jane Pachl, the senior women's champ, left for Montreal and will join the other Canucks in Vienna. The world events run from February 14-19. When hockey's greatest scoring machine, Maurice "Rocket" Richard of the Montreal Canadiens whipped home his 400th League goal, he set a record that may never be equalled.

A little chap named Guy Rousseau, who plays junior hockey for Quebec Frontenacs, came up to Canadiens on a three-game trial. A mere 19-year-old kid who, playing his first game with Canadiens on foreign ice, and his second in the National Hockey League, it was Rousseau who slipped Richard the workmanlike pass off which he scored the big goal with a lightning sweep of his stick in the third period of a game at Chicago on December 18 last.

When the team left Montreal, Chicago-bound, Coach Dick Irvin said to Richard: "I want you to look after this little fellow Rousseau. I'm going to put him in to room with you. He's fast and ambitious, but he's shy, and it will help his complexes if he's with you." Richard put an arm around the little fellow's shoulder and said: "You're with me, kid." Rousseau's eyes fairly popped out at this sudden intimacy with a hockey great. A broad grin of sheer joy split his features. He and Richard palled around together, an oddly-assorted pair of buddies, from that time on.

Irvin started Rousseau on the Richard-Moadel line and kept him there much of the game. And in the third period, he flipped a smooth pass to Richard, who was skating behind him, and like a flash, Richard blasted the puck deep into the Chicago nets.

After the goal was scored, Canadien players hoisted Richard high on their shoulders. They planned to carry him on a complete circuit of the rink. But Richard didn't want that at all, and the players let him down.

"If I had scored that goal in Detroit or Toronto or Montreal, I wouldn't mind the boys carrying me around," said Richard later. "But it didn't mean much, scoring it against the tail-end team, and I didn't like the parade idea at all. It seemed like rubbing it in."

This, we thought, was nice sporting sentiment. But Richard noted as a fierce and fiery competitor, has made similar gestures before and since.

Not long ago, Richard and other Canadiens went to Ste. Anne's Hospital near Montreal to play in a softball game for wounded war veterans. They visited the wards afterwards. Many of the patients asked for Rocket's autograph. One who had his legs in a cast was particularly insistent. He had been badly wounded and his broken leg hadn't healed.

Richard obliged, then asked for his. "I should be asking you who have done so much more than I" said Richard, quietly.

The sporting circle of the 400-goals feat was completed when after the Canadien club presented Richard with $2,000, he promptly turned the complete amount over to two Montreal hospitals.

By WAYNE OLIVER

NEW YORK (AP) —When Charles McGraw plays the title role in the television show adventures of the Falcon, it isn't like a city slicker acting a cowboy part.

While McGraw's personal life doesn't parallel the fictional career of the Falcon, he is a rugged character who has never backed away from a fight and has seen his share of adventure.

At 17, just out of high school, he came from Akron, Ohio, to New York to look for a job when they were scarce, and shipped out on a freighter bound for India as a deck hand. Before he ended his fairly brief career at sea he had circled the globe.

After returning to Akron for a year of college, Charlie tried New York again with hopes of an acting career. He couldn't get enough roles to keep eating and turned to boxing to supplement his income. He had 20 professional fights as a middleweight before he began to make enough from acting days to quit the ring.

During lean days in New York, while he was living in a tough section of the city, McGraw was collared by a rough character who demanded protection money to refrain from beating him up. McGraw beat him to the sidewalk.

While appearing weekly in 60 cities in adventures of the Falcon, distributed directly to TV stations by the NBC film division, McGraw also is being seen in movie houses in the role of Cmdr. Wayne Lee in Paramount's The Bridges at Toko-Ri.

Previous movie roles have included The Killers, T-Men, The Threat, Narrow Margin and Roadblock.

"Television is rugged, and a lot tougher than regular motion picture work," says McGraw who has completed 39 Falcon films.

But unlike some movie actors who still fear TV would hurt their movie box office, he says he has no such apprehension and believes video will help his career.

Former president Harry S. Truman, explaining that he's too busy right now on his memoirs, has postponed his appearance on Edward R. Murrow's Person-to-Person that had been tentatively scheduled March 4. The British Broadcasting Corporation has concluded arrangements with Murrow to telecast a series of film recordings of the show on its TV network.

Red Chinese troops are pictured wading ashore from a landing craft during the Communist invasion of Yichiang, Nationalist island in the Tachen group, which is being evacuated under the protection of U.S. warships. The photo, which originally appeared in a Pieping paper, was received in London from Western sources in Hong Kong. (Central Press Canadian).

Taking Chance on Red Light Expensive for Sask. Motorist

By WILF CHISLETT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

REGINA (CP)—Taking a chance on a red light can be mighty expensive for Saskatchewan's motorist.

Not only does he have a noticeable thinness about the wallet after the law and the province get through with him—he also is "demoted."

Each day Saskatchewan newspapers in their traffic court column carry a list of drivers who are fined for infractions and "ordered to surrender" their operators' permit. The driver must hand over his standard white permit and receive in its place a blue or red permit.

SOCIAL STIGMA

Last year about two per cent of all drivers, nearly 6,700, suffered that social stigma.

They also paid plenty—heavy fines to traffic courts and increased charges by the province's automobile accident insurance fund from which claims under the compulsory car insurance scheme are paid.

The motorist has been howling, mainly at the increased costs. City councils and other organizations have added their voices to his protests.

A year ago a red light conviction cost the motorist a $5 fine.

Now he's paying $21 for the first offence and up to $56 for the second if he's nabbed within 12 months.

A third conviction within 12 months can set the motorist back $122. He also loses his permit for a year.

FATALITIES FEWER

Traffic accidents killed 124 persons in 1953, the worst year ever in Saskatchewan. Last year the toll was down to 72, a record which provincial government officers said was the best showing in accident reduction anywhere in North America.

The penalties follow the government's belief that those who contribute to the cause of accidents should be made to pay for them. They were brought in at the last session of the legislature through amendments to the Vehicles Act which enlarged the scope of the colored permit system and doubled minimum fines for such minor offences as disregarding red lights.

This is how it works:

The driver caught going through a red light or a stop sign pays a $10 minimum fine. In addition, he is demoted to a blue licence and has to pay $1 for it and $10 more into the car insurance fund.

MOUNTING COST

If he's caught again anytime within 12 months the fine is $20. But the red licence next in line costs $25 plus the $1 charge for issuing it. If he obeys the rules for a full 12 months he goes back to a blue licence, another $10, and receives the white permit if his good behaviour continues another year.

The three-time loser pays a $20 fine, $25 for a red licence issued after a year off the road and $10 for the blue licence issued the next year. Altogether, the three offences could cost $122. Court charges and legal fees are extra.

The careful driver pays only $2 into the insurance fund.

A brief to the government by Saskatoon city council protesting "injustices" was endorsed by Yorkton council which said increased penalties "rapidly are curdling disfavor." Other bodies called the new law too drastic.

In answer, the provincial government has indicated it may agree to minor changes in the act. Complaints will be passed on to the legislature's standing committee on highway safety for study when the legislature opens Feb. 10.

EIGHT DIE IN UPSET

FUNCHAL, Madeira Islands (AP)—Eight persons were drowned when a boat carrying 10 passengers from shore to a coastal ship capsized Monday. The two others are still missing.

Olson, Glover Locked for Lead

NEW YORK (AP)—Eddie Olson and Freddie Glover, a pair of veteran Cleveland Baron forwards, are deadlocked for the lead in the American Hockey League individual scoring race.

Both have 63 points. Olson has compiled his total in 42 games on 32 goals and 31 assists, while Glover has 27 goals and 36 assists in 46 games.

A trio of Springfield Indians fill three of the next four places, with rookie Jimmy Anderson holding down third with 58 points. Ross Lowe follows with 55 and Walt Atanas is tied with Kenny Wharram of the Buffalo Bisons with 53 points apiece.

Pittsburgh's Gil Mayer allowed 19 goals in four games last week, but still leads the league with an average of 2.81 on 135 goals permitted in 48 games.

NEGROES TO COMPETE

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Negroes will compete in the national baseball players golf tournament this week for the first time in the tournament's 15-year history.

Big Don Newcombe, pitching star for the Brooklyn Dodgers, already has registered and others of his race may enter.

Tournament director George Jacobus of Ridgewood, N.J., said invitations were sent to Brooklyn's Jackie Robinson and Hank Thompson of the New York Giants.

The tournament is an invitational affair and Jacobus said no Negro ball players had been invited previously because they had not indicated that they would like to compete.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

My bridge teaching policy is to advocate one general rule that will apply to all hands. As long as this general rule fits the hand you are holding, I can see no possible excuse for deviating from it.

With many experts, every other hand seems to need an exception to the standard rule that belongs there. It is deviation based upon personal opinion; a conclusion from a combination of inferences.

Your south partner opened with one spade and his west opponent stuck in a defensive bid of two hearts. You have this north hand:

♠K J 5
♣10 5 2

What is your immediate bid in such a situation? It should be three diamonds; forcing for one round. You can then show support for spades. With four tricks you have enough for that raise.

In his book, one of the great masters of today says you should first assist with a bid of two spades. This, he says, shows a good hand because it is made after an opponent has bid.

If opponent had passed, he adds, your response would have been two diamonds with the intention of assisting spades on the next round. No doubt many agree with this only because he says so.

Standard rule is to show a new suit before assisting. Consider ignoring your new suit if you may be prevented from showing support. But no such emergency is imminent here.

Is it an excuse to say that partner does not need to hear about your diamond suit if you have support for his major? Not even the great seers of bridge could make that one stick.

By holding to standard rule wherever possible there is less to remember; less chance of making a mistake; less chance to puzzle a partner. Its very simplicity recommends it.

One great expert wrote of my system that its simplicity could not be as accurate. If that were so, the wheels of progress would be turning backward.

'DOWN THREE DARK STREETS' HARD-HITTING CRIME STORY

A hard-hitting crime drama which shows how the web-like workings of the vast FBI run down a gang of car thieves, a gangster-killer, and an extortionist, "Down Three Dark Streets," made its local debut yesterday at the McCarthy Theatre through United Artists release.

The picture, a suspense thriller that reveals some heretofore secret crime fighting techniques of the FBI, co-stars Broderick Crawford and Ruth Roman, and features a large supporting cast headed by Martha Hyer, Marissa Pavan, Casey Adams, Gene Reynolds and Jay Adler. It was produced by Arthur Gardner and Jules V. Levy, and directed by Arnold Lavan. It is based on the best-selling novel, "Case File: FBI" by the Gordons.

An FBI agent working on three unrelated cases was shot and killed while tracking down information on one of them. The FBI assigns agent Broderick Crawford to find his killer and his trail leads him through the murky, dangerous paths of the underworld. Crawford believes the only way to find the killer is to solve the cases, and they are, namely: finding the hideout of a desperate gangster; tracking down and breaking up a nation-wide auto-stealing ring; finding an extortionist who threatens to kidnap the child of a Los Angeles dress designer unless paid a large sum of money.

The stories are told in a crisp, unpretentious manner that adds to the suspense of the plot. We sit enthralled and fascinated as we watch the machinery of the FBI go into action and on the scantiest of clues, track down desperate and cunning criminals.

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A handsome 20-year-old named Jody McCrea has a better than average start in his ambition to be an actor. His father is Joel McCrea and his mother Frances Dee.

"The kid's okay," says Joel, in an appraisal as unprejudiced as you could expect from a father. "He has inherited something from each of us. He has his father's curiosity about things. He wants to know how everything on a movie set works and what it's for. He's constantly asking me questions. That's good.

"And he has his mother's capacity for hard work. He is taking a full course at university, including army officer's training, and is appearing every night in "The Rose Tattoo" at a theatre in Hollywood. That's a pretty tough schedule for a kid, but he loves it."

FATHER, SON IN FILM

Joel was on a sound stage where he was recording dialogue for the recently completed "Wichita" for Allied Artists. Jody is also in the film.

"We were going to have him play my brother in the picture," the actor explained. "But we were doing it just at the time when Jody was in final examinations. I told him they were more important; other pictures will come along. So he just did a small role."

Jody showed up, and he impressed me as a prime prospect for the movies. He's a tall lad, with his father's handsomeness and his mother's dark, thoughtful eyes. Has he always wanted to be an actor?

"No," he said. "I always thought I was going to be a rancher. But about three or four years ago I started thinking about acting. It appealed to me, and I thought I would have a better than average chance in it because of my parents."

He has been pursuing it ever since, appearing in school plays and soaking up all the information he can.

Jody already has had the offer of a contract at U-I, but turned it down. He figures he isn't ready for it. Besides, he has another year and a half at university, then a couple of years in the army.

Your Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Wednesday, February 9, 1955

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—You active folks must tone down at times. Don't escape reality today. Face facts sensibly and you need not worry. Intelligent, calm effort will always get farther.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—Stress principles, get started early and don't bypass the little things, they may be just what you should handle first. Good leadership has tolerance, and usually gets big returns.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—Some aspects show a bit of superficiality, irritation that may try your patience, even overshadow good leanings. Be careful in personal, domestic and home affairs, especially after 4 p.m.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Nothing exceptional for outside matters but more important rays for immediate personal affairs, investments, position. Some seclusion will help you find answers quicker. Relax, have fun free time.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo)—No day to go around steam-rollering things through, using just plain force. Cannot expect to do it well thus. Suggest you make speed slowly, and wait for the green light with wisdom.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo)—Mental issues may dominate day and could spoil what should be encouraging. So stand firm, be your own smart self, but don't try to do it all. Each to his own for best results.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Necessary matters, thoughtful planning, research, study highly favored now. We are happiest when doing a good job, helping others, and many hands make load lighter, right?

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Good day to finish the unfinished chore, for hard work. Stay cheerful, don't be sorry for you, switch to thinking about the other fellow: time will fly, work be done well, happiness reign.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Most domestic affairs round family and social matters have top rating. Literary and professional endeavors, building, mining newly sponsored. Look for good news.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) —Get all the kinks out of your day; cover requirements first thing. System, accuracy essential. Hold any excess enthusiasm down to sensible level, calm producing tempo.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)— Should find stimulating rays all about day's activities. Be shrewd, don't strain. Go about things in sensible manner and gains will become happy facts, credits yours.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)— Notations to Aquarius could be profitable to you rightly used. Steadily keep at your important tasks and when all is said and done you can be proud of your results and self.

You born today: Fine memory, humanitarian instincts, dependability, and being a good home provider outstanding Aquarius characteristics. So are the ability to follow tedious work accurately, write succinctly, plan and act concisely. So are wavering (when decision is needed), overindulging daydreaming (you could be accomplishing so much), and not being rightly particular about companionships. Mind these latter, they defeat the tremendous capabilities in your stronger, naturally progressive self. Abe Lincoln, Thos. "Stonewall" Jackson, Robt. Burns, Mozart, Fritz Kreisler, Chas. Lamb, John Ruskin, Jules Verne are from your Sign; note the highly progressive and artistic tendencies. Aim high; pray daily for guidance.

Little Benny's Notebook

Pop was reeding his paper and ma was reeding hers, saying, This is ridiculiss, William.

What's new? pop said, and ma said, According to the latest Crawler Poll, Jack Binyon rates as the best acter in pictures. I have never heard of anything so atrociously wrong. I've got a good half a mind to write a letter to the paper for all to reed, she said.

For Peet sake the man is no relation of yours is he? pop said, and ma said, No, thank goodness, It's just a matter of simple justice. I could name half a duzzen acters who are heads and shoulders better than Jack Binyon. I could mention them with my eyes shut, she said.

Go to it, my dear, if it will relieve the tension, pop said. But hay I remember when you used to drag me out to a Jack Binyon picture at every opportunity, he said, and ma said, That just shows the fallacy of trusting to ferse impressions. I'm aware of his true caracter now, and caracter and acting are inseparable, because good acting must be genuine and from the heart, she said.

What's wrong with his heart? pop said, and ma said, He has none, that's what. I wrote him a personel letter requesting an autograffed picture, and I waited patiently and in good faith, but stony silence has been the anser [illegible] and that was 6 munths ago, [illegible], the man is a brute, a cad and a bounder, and couldn't possibly act like anything elts even under the influence of dope, pop said, and ma said, I'm glad you agree with me, William.

Sounding like somebody feeling better instead of werse.

MARMORA

Tamworth Edges Orfuns 3-2

MARMORA — Tamworth were fortunate in their game with the Orfuns of Marmora in their Hastings-Addington fixture on the latter's rink on Monday evening, getting their third goal with two minutes to go to win by 3-2. Marmora scored the only goal in the first with Brown beating Moffatt on Drummond's assist.

In the second both teams got a goal by players unassisted, Deering getting through at 1800 and Gerow at 1900. Gerow tied it for Tamworth early in the third and Tamworth's winning counter with two minutes to go was credited to T. Brady with McDonald and Gerow being on the assists.

The game was evenly and cleanly waged with both goalies turning in good performances and only five penalties being issued.

Teams:

Orfuns — goal, Williams; defence, P. O'Neill, Darrah; centre, Deering; wings, M. Walker, Sabine; alternates, W. O'Neill, R. Courtney, E. Courtney, W. Drummond, Kouri, Brown, Lynch, Shannon.

Referees: R. Moss, Marmora; J. Brooks, Deloro.

Girl Reporter Stands Chance To Get Reward

VICTORIA (CP)—A young girl reporter, who chased the gunmen who robbed her newspaper of $6,413, stands a good chance of receiving a reward.

Terry French, 20, has been a society reporter for The Times for only six weeks. Monday she was sitting in her car when two masked men held up the cashier and a clerk of Victoria Press, Ltd., outside The Times office.

Miss French drove after the getaway car, saw the men switch to another vehicle and followed that. She lost them later in heavy traffic.

After the young reporter lost the bandit car, she telephone its description to her city desk and police.

SEVEN OVERCOME

HAMILTON (CP) — Seven persons, five of them children, were overcome by gas fumes Saturday when illuminating gas from a broken main seeped into their homes. PREPARED FOR ANOTHER SIEGE

The lesson learned by West Berlin, when only the Allied airlift saved the city from starvation during the Russian blockade of a few years ago, has paid off handsomely. If the Soviets should try it again and restoration of German sovereignty is ratified, West Berlin is ready. Enough food has been stockpiled to take care of the city for six months. Great supplies of peas, beans, rice, flour and canned meat are filling new workhouses. The city still remembers the meatless days of the last blockade and now it has stockpiled enough coal to keep the city warm for a full year. Part of this supply of fuel is seen in the above photo.

Minister Elected After Fist Fights, Two-Year Dispute

Rev. Jacob Forster of the Hungarian Evangelical Assembly of Brantford, Ont., has emerged as the minister of the church after a two-year dispute that involved lawsuits, fist fights and destruction of property. Rev. Forster was voted into the pulpit by a small majority. The dispute centred around his right to preach after a commitment had been made by some of the congregation to support Rev. George Lucas. No Present Plans to Equip Armed Services With A-Arms

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's armed forces plan to stick to conventional weapons, at least for the forseeable future.

In other words, officials say, there are no present plans to equip the services with atomic arms.

This policy might be changed if atomic weapons became plentiful and less expensive and if Canada could buy them from the United States or Britain. But the plan at the moment is to spend less money on arms, even of the conventional types.

ESTIMATES CUT

The estimates tabled recently in the Commons show the services intend to spend $626,300,000 for weapons and equipment in the coming fiscal year, a cut of nearly $166,000,000 from the 1954-55 fiscal year.

One good reason for sticking to conventional weapons, officials said is that Canada's forces are too small to handle atomic arms.

Weapons are related to the size of formations. As an extreme example, an infantry section's equipment does not include a field howitzer.

As far as is known here there are no atomic cannons being supplied for formations as small as a division. And a division is the largest formation in the Canadian Army.

At the moment it appears likely Canada's soldiers would get atomic weapons only if there were a far and a full-fledged army were built up.

All this does not mean the services are ignoring the tactical and strategic uses and effects of atomic weapons.

For example, ever since formation of the 1st Canadian Infantry Division last year, division headquarters has been delving into atomic tactics, trying to figure out the best methods for dispersal, better communications and moving troops quickly.

Other examples:

The 1st Brigade in Europe has exercised under simulated atomic attack.

A few Canadian soldiers have been trained on Nike, the U.S. ground-to-air guided missile which could be equipped with an atomic warhead.

RADAR DEFENCE

The air defence of Canada is predicated on the theory that a Russian attack on this continent would be made by long-range planes carrying atomic or hydrogen bombs. Three radar warning lines have been, are being or will be built.

The navy is studying constantly the movement of convoys and sea-lane defence under conditions of atomic attack.

The defence department plans to issue to the forces a device known as a dosimeter for measuring the amount of atomic radiation.

If war broke out tomorrow, the services would fight only with conventional weapons, in the early stages at least. It would be left to the U.S. and Britain to use atomic weapons, if it were decided to employ them at all.

ENGRAVES POSTAGE STAMP

MADOC

Memorial Library Board Elects Officers

MADOC. — The annual meeting of Madoc Memorial Library Board was held in the board rooms on Thursday evening. Mrs. Ken Nicol, president, was in charge.

Mrs. J. Keller, librarian, gave her report showing that the membership remained about the same as the previous year. The circulation of books for 1954 was 3715 for all classes. A number of adult and children's books had been donated by Mrs. George White.

The treasurer's report was given by Miss Vankleek.

Mrs. Nicol in her address, gave a brief resume of the year; oil furnaces had been installed during the year; donations had been received from various organizations and also from private citizens toward the furnaces.

She thanked the board members for their co-operation during the year and their efforts in raising the funds; also reviewed, briefly, how the library must depend upon grants for its income and quoted the regulations governing legislative grants for assistant libraries.

Tom Burnside took the chair for election of officers: executive: president, Mrs. Ken Nicol; secretary, Mrs. J. Keller; treasurer, Miss Vankleek; Board members: Council rep., Tom Burnside, Mrs. J. Atkinson, Mrs. J. Watson, Miss L. Connor, Mrs. C. Howse, Mrs. R. Dafoe, James Burns, Bruce Neilson; librarians, Mrs. J. Keller, Mrs. J. E. Bird.

On motion of Miss Connor and Mrs. C. Howse, the balance on the furnaces is to be paid.

Halloway

HALLOWAY. — The Kum-Double club met at the church on Wednesday evening for a pot-luck supper. Despite the snowstorm, a large number of couples with their families enjoyed the bounteous repast, as well as the picture, "Mr Christmas" which followed through the compliments of the John Deere Company.

Marie Emerson, 2nd vice-president, took charge of the business part of the program, after which the meeting was adjourned.

Mrs. Kenneth McMullen was hostess to the W.A., and W.M.S., of Halloway United Church, recently. Ten ladies were present. Mrs. Gordon Roth, president of the W.M.S., took charge. The worship service was taken from the Missionary Monthly.

Mrs. Arthur Sine prepared the study book, assisted by Mrs. Fred Wellman, Mrs. John Wilson and Mrs. Roscoe Robson.

Fees were paid.

W.A. MEETING

The president, Mrs. Coleman Townsend took charge.

Fees were paid and business was discussed. Plans were also made for the date at the Scott's Sales barn, on February 8. Refreshments were served by the hostess and her assistant.

CBC Technicians Plan Meeting Before Talks

OTTAWA (CP)—The CBC's technicians union planned an executive meeting here today on the eve of renewed wage-contract negotiations with the publicly-owned corporation.

A delegation from the National Association of Broadcast Employees and Technicians (CCL-CIO) headed here from Montreal Monday night after both sides agreed to make another try at reaching a settlement before a threatened strike.

In a series of moves Monday, including a suggestion from Labor Minister Gregg that the disputants meet today in an effort to settle their differences, the CBC management agreed to the meeting but suggested Wednesday would be more convenient for its officals nvolved. The unon agreed to tha.

ASK WAGE BOOST

Earlier Timothy J. O'Sullivan, NABET's international representative, had said "if management refuses to meet with us, the strike could take place within a few days."

NABET seeks a general wage boost for its 775 members employed in CBC radio and television. The membership has authorized calling of a strike if a settlement is not reached by Feb. 16. The strike would affect the CBC's network of radio and television stations.

There was no immediate indication what new proposals may be placed before the Wednesday meeting.

Three Million Dollar Blaze Cripples Plant

FORT FRANCES (CP)—Flames still licked today at the remains of a $3,000,000 fire that crippled one of Canada's largest pulp and paper mills Monday.

The fire destroyed the new $800,000 grinder room of the Ontario-Minnesota Pulp and Paper Co. Ltd. plant and $2,000,000 worth of machinery.

A volunteer fireman died in hospital after being overcome by smoke. A millwright who attempted a rescue was himself saved from the flames by an unidentified man.

Officials said destruction of the grinder room—described as the heart of the mill—will make about 800 workers idle for about 10 weeks. The mill is the main industry in this northwestern Ontario border town of 8,000, across the Rainy river from International Falls, Minn.

Firemen from Fort Frances and International Falls fought the flames for several hours before deciding it was hopeless to attempt to save the isolated building located only a block from the heart of the downtown area.

DIED IN HOSPITAL

Emile Shine, 25, a membed of the town council and a volunteer fireman, and Lloyd McFayden, 40-year-old millwright, were rescued from the flames by an unidentified man. However Shine died in hospital shortly after being admitted. McFayden was sent home.

About 15 men were in the building when the fire broke out around 3 p.m. EST. It was believed the wooden frame of the structure was ignited during a welding operation. Flames spread rapidly through the building. At the height of the fire the corrugated iron siding of the 500-by-200 feet room glowed a cherry red and flames danced 50 feet in the air.

Late Monday night, as firemen played a solitary hose on the flames, the fire began to subside. However, towards midnight when firemen had left the scene, the blaze broke out again but there apparently was no danger of it spreading. Officials said they expected the ruins to still blaze for another 24 hours.

CHURCHILL IN-LAW DEAD

HUNTINGTON, England (AP)—Mrs. Nellie Margaret Romilly, sister-in-law of Prime Minister Churchill, died Wednesday. She and Lady Churchill were daughters of the late Col. Sir Henry Montague Hozier.

Fish for Sharks

OTTAWA (CP)—Crew members of the Canadian cruiser Ontario have been fishing for shark in Australian waters.

The navy said Monday that the Ontario, on a three-month south seas cruise, anchored four days last week in Platypus bay off Queensland, Australia.

Sharks were common and during off-duty hours several heavy lines with huge hooks baited with pork fat were dropped over the ship's sides. One hook was straightened by a shark and some rope lines were snapped like threads.

CPO. Bert Nelson of Victoria, B.C., hooked an eight-foot shark. He and three others were hauling in the monster as an officer stood by with a rifle when the hook tore free and the shark disappeared.

Wipe Out Fox, Rabbit in Ontario And Hunting Is Over, Says Forester

TORONTO — "If we wipe out the fox and the rabbitt in Ontario, then we may as well hang up our guns, for our hunting days will be over."

Thus, in the defence of much maligned Br'er Fox, speaks Lake Huron District Forester I. C. Marritt, Hespeler, of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests.

"Ever since the fox became numerous in the southern counties of Ontario, hunters have tried to annihilate him because, it is said, he is ruining our hunting. Jack rabbits and pheasants have become less abundant. The reason given by most sportsmen is one word—FOX.

"A few years ago, pheasant, rabbitt and duck hunting were excellent; today the duck hunting on public grounds lasts only a few short hours. Why? Surely we cannot blame the fox for our poor duck population?

"Ducks could be found in most stubble fields a few years ago and many young broods were observed on the numerous ponds in this district. Today, most of these marshes and ponds have been drained to provide more growing land.

"In recent years, jack rabbits were plentiful and jack drives were formed to reduce the population. Reports of jack rabbit damage in orchards were frequent. Jack rabbit hunting in this period was never better. Now their numbers are much reduced, damage reports are only occasional and the hunting is good. The fox is blamed—. It couldn't, perhaps, be the jack rabbit drives which have become so popular?

"Jack rabbit drives are being organized still, on the average of one a day, with anywhere from 30 to 70 men taking part. If a jack rabbit is seen, he seldom escapes. The fox is blamed, too, for the few cottontail rabbits in some areas. If the truth were known, the number of cottontail killed by fox is probably only a fraction of the number killed on the roads by cars. The chief food of the fox is mice and he is given very little credit for the good he does.

"So you think the fox should be exterminated? Do you think that rabbits should be cleaned from the fields by men who herd them into one corner and slaughter them? Or are we so-called sportsmen sporting enough to give our game a chance for survival in return for what they give us? Remember, it is man, not fox, that unbalances nature."

WORKER ACQUITTED

TORONTO (CP)—Postal worker William R. Nimmo, 60, Monday was acquitted of a charge of stealing two letters. Nimmo, with the post office 26 years, said he was taking two torn envelopes to the repair department. There was 50 cents in one and $1 in the other.

Commonwealth's Heads Say A-War Would Ruin World

'Imperative Sanity Prevail' Parley's Communique States

LONDON (AP) — The prime ministers of the Commonwealth have warned that an atomic war would "bring ruin upon the human race" and pledged their countries "never to embark upon aggression."

"The annihilating power of the new weapons renders it imperative that sanity should prevail and that war should be prevented," they said in a communique at the end of the nine - day Commonwealth conference. They also appealed for a peaceful settlement of the explosive Formosa situation and "resolved to do their utmost to ease international strain."

Diplomatic informants said they agreed secretly to support Britain's suggestion that the United States seek to persuade Chiang Kai-shek to evacuate the China off-shore islands, including Quemoy and Matsu.

SHARE CHURCHILL'S VIEW

The premiers were said to share the Churchill government's view that an "unwritten" cease-fire must be arrived at by putting 75 miles of water between Red China's holdings and Chiang's main bastions on Formosa and the Pescadores.

Informants said the premiers shelved thoughts of a Geneva-type conference on Formosa until an "unwritten" cease-fire has been arranged. They were reported to have rejected a Russian suggestion made in secret diplomatic exchanges that such a conference take place without Nationalist China.

Prime Minister Churchill presided over the meeting of Commonwealth leaders who spoke for 575,000,000 people—one-fourth of the world's population.

The premiers in regional defence talks—with neutralist India and Ceylon staying out—began reshaping their global defence strategy in the light of the development of the hydrogen bomb.

SEPARATE COMMMUNIQUE

A separate communique on these defence talks said:

"They agreed that the overwhelming superiority of the western powers in nuclear weapons offers at the present time the most effective and practical assurance that world peace will not be disturbed by any deliberate act of aggression.

"They agreed that their defence policies should be founded on the principle that war can be prevented if the free democracies are resolved to maintain in readiness forces sufficiently strong to deter any potential aggressor.

"The Commonwealth countries concerned also recognized the need for the close association with the United States in all defence matters."

Taylor Granted Letters Patent For Foundation

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto industrialist E. P. Taylor has been granted letters patent from the Ontario government to establish a new charitable foundation.

The foundation is to be known as the E. P. Taylor Foundation. Mr Taylor, his wife, Winnifred Taylor, and accountant Donald Frederick Prowse will be administrators.

Mr. Taylor's application said that money received by the foundation will be distributed to benefit research, publication, education and establishment and maintenance of charitable activities, agencies or institutions.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO. (CP) — Synopsis: A weak disturbance moving east across northern Ontario has caused a fresh outbreak of cold Arctic air to push south over the Prairies. The edge of this cold air reached the Lakehead area this morning and will move southeast to cover the entire province by Thursday afternoon.

Downing Plane Not Considered 'Hostile Act'

By JIM BECKER

WITH U.S. 7TH FLEET (AP)—Communist anti-aircraft fire today shot down a United States navy AD Skyraider, but an American officer said that was not considered a hostile act. He explained that the pilot apparently wandered off course and may have flown over the Red Chinese mainland while on patrol in the Tachens evacuation area.

The pilot and his two crew members were rescued.

An officer aboard the flagship U.S.S. Estes said the navy did not consider the shooting a "hostile act" because "the AD apparently made too wide a turn and was off limits."

The incident occurred about 15 miles southwest of the Tachens.

PLANE MISNAVIGATED

A statement by Vice-Admiral Alfred M. Pride, commander of the U.S. 7th Fleet, said "the aircraft misnavigated southwest of the Tachens and was hit in the engine by anti-aircraft fire and ditched four miles west of the Tachens."

The pilot, Lieut. W. J. O'Heren said that because of low visibility he did not know the source of the gunfire. He said it looked like 20-mm. anti-aircraft fire.

The three men were picked up by a Nationalist minesweeper and transferred to the U.S. destroyer Isabell.

Is Found Dead

LONDON (CP) — Donald McLauchlin of Montreal, recently appointed London business manager of the Canada Weekly Review, was found dead today in his office building. He was 43.

Police said an inquest may be held.

McLauchlin formerly worked for Trans-Canada Air Lines and lived in Vancouver. He served with the Seaforth Highlanders in the Second World War and was wounded in Italy.

South Africa Starts Clearing 60,000 Negroes from Johannesburg

By ARTHUR GAVSHON

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — South Africa's segregationist government today launched its forced evacuation of a condemned Negro section three days early, and scores of Africans fled deeper into the area to evade the order.

The government touched off the midnight flight with an order giving 150 families 12 hours to pack up and move from Johannesburg's Sophiatown district to the new Meadowlands housing project for Negroes 12 miles outside city limits.

Nearly 2,000 armed police and troops surrounded Sophiatown at dawn to carry out the removal of the more than 100 families still left of the first batch of 150 families ordered to pack and move. The police chief in charge said there were no clashes and no arrests.

The uniformed men loaded the Negroes and their belongings onto army trucks in the pouring rain as thousands of sullen neighbors looked on. Police flattened the vacant houses to prevent reoccupancy. The trucks, crammed with ramshackle furniture and people, then trundled away in convoy.

As a prelude to the first evacuation order, originally scheduled for Saturday, all public meetings have been banned in the Johannesburg area for the next 20 days.

Armed police have assembled in nearby stations to swoop down on Negro families who ignore the "get out" notices posted by government bailiffs.

Amid the rain swept darkness, many of those ordered out carried their children, furniture and clothes to join friends and relatives living elsewhere in the area. Volunteers from the African National Congress, South Africa's largest native organization, stripped to the waist and helped in the hurried moving.

Police cars trailed foreign correspondents touring the area. Whenever the reporters stopped to talk with residents the police ordered them to move on.

Prime Minister Johannes Strijdom's Nationalist government plans to move 60,000 Africans from the city. The government calls the program slum clearance. It will segregate the races but will leave the Negroes close enough to the city to provide a labor force.

Backing the ANC opposition to the move are such prominent white South Africans as Alan Paton, author of the novel "Cry the Beloved Country," Patrick Duncan, son of South Africa's first governor-general, and Rev. Tevor Huddleston, Anglican missionary and chairman of the Black-White Western Areas Protest Commission.

RED GUNNERS SHOOT DOWN NAVY PLANE

Pilot 'Misnavigated', Perhaps Over Mainland

By FRED HAMPSON

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—Communist anti-aircraft batteries today shot down a United States navy plane in the first serious incident reported in the Tachen islands evacuation of Chinese Nationalists.

The navy said the carrier based plane had "misnavigated" and possibly had flown over the Red Chinese mainland. The pilot ditched four miles west of the Tachens, and he and two crew members were picked up with only minor cuts and bruises.

Meanwhile, 3,753 Tachen islanders debarked at Keelung, a north Formosan port. They were the first evacuees to reach Formosa from the threatened islands 200 miles north, since the U.S. 7th Fleet moved in to cover the operation.

Although the Reds made no direct move to interfere with the evacuation, it was plain that they were manning their guns around the clock.

SPOT SHIPS

There were no reports of interference with the vessels taking the evacuees to a new life in Formosa.

However, high-flying U.S. Navy jets have spotted considerable shipping activity around Communist islands north of the Tachens, a 7th Fleet briefing officer said.

As the refugees spilled ashore on the Keelung docks their faces mirrored homesickness for the two bleak islands which the Red Chinese covet.

DESTROY DEFENCE WORKS

Behind them the refugees left about 15,000 Nationalist troops and guerrillas who blasted and burned defence works. The Communists will get only scorched earth on the Tachens.

Communist jet planes were sighted Tuesday about 15 miles from the Tachens near the China coast and "going away," fleet dispatches said.

Rear-Admiral Lorenzo Sherwood Sabin Jr. said, "If the Communists are going to hit us—and I do not believe they will—this is the time they would probably pick.

"I did not expect the Communists to hit us while we were evacuating civilians because even the Communists fear the bad world opinion that would result. But they could consider the Nationalist soldiers their sworn enemies and fair game for an attack."

FIGHTS FOR $1,000,000 LEGACY

A battery of lawyers is assisting Mrs. Mary Finnegan of Niagara Falls, N.Y., in her lawsuit to gain possession of land, on the outskirts of St. Catharines, Ont., which is valued at close to $1,000,000. Mrs. Finnegan, an Irish scrub woman, was willed the land by two uncles, but the land was later sold on a court order. Mrs. Finnegan is endeavoring to prove the court order null and void. Kidnapped Welland Girl, 17, Is Rescued by Railway Agent

NORTH BAY (CP)—Paul Valanoff, 31, of Port Colborne, wanted in Welland on a kidnapping charge, was to appear in court here today on charges of having a concealed weapon and illegal possession of liquor.

After trial here, he will be taken to Welland to face charges of kidnapping Grace Gabanyicz, pretty 17-year-old Welland high school student. Welland police issued a warrant for his arrest on the kidnapping charge Tuesday night, shortly after he was arrested in North Bay.

Valanoff was arrested here after the girl scribbled a desperate note with an eyebrow pencil and passed it to a ticket agent at the railway station.

It read: "I have been kidnapped . . . get help . . . he has a gun."

Miss Gabanyicz said the agent, Eric Elson, immediately pulled her into the ticket booth and called police. She was able to write the note when Valanoff left her alone for a moment in the ticket office, she said later.

The slender brunette told police Valanoff drove her the 325 miles from Welland to North Bay after forcing her into his car at gunpoint. She said he lured her from her home with the pretext of having news of her brother Nickie, convicted Monday of theft at Welland. Miss Gabanyicz returned to her home in Welland Tuesday night.

She told police Valanoff kept a gun beside him during most of the nine-hour ride from Welland. Police said they later found a gun and a hunting knife in the car.

"He kept calling me Buddy," Miss Gabanyicz said. "I didn't like him or trust him but I guess because he was a friend of Nickie's he thought I'd be his friend too."

Soviet Shakeup Seen Likely To Make Red Chinese Bolder

James D. White was Peiping correspondent for The Associated Press from 1936 through 1941 and later was in Washington. He's now in San Francisco, where he wrote interpretative columns on the Far East following the Second World War. San Francisco is where news of the Pacific is funnelled into the AP network.

By JAMES D. WHITE

Associated Press Staff Writer

Georgi Malenkov, as Russian premier, stood for a "coexistence" policy which inhibited Red Chinese adventures from the end of the Korean War until recently.

Malenkov had no experience with the Chinese aside from his contacts with them in Moscow. On the other hand, Marshal Nikolai Bulganin, his successor, paid an extended visit to Peiping several months ago. With him was Nikita Khrushchev, the first secretary of the Russian Communist party who now looms as the big man in Russia.

Foreign Minister Molotov also has spent time in Peiping. His Moscow remarks on nuclear warfare Tuesday tended to overshadow another new element in Soviet policy—his unqualified support for Red China's claim to Formosa. Russian support previously had been lukewarm.

Bulganin has a reputation among Asians as the first prominent Soviet figure to display a marked interest in Chinese possibilities since Russia pulled out of China in 1927.

On my desk for the last month has been an unconfirmed report from Asia indicating that under Malenkov's coexistence policy the Russians had developed serious differences with Peiping over Formosa.

The report says that up to last summer the Chinese had been demanding arms and material, including submarines and jet planes, to support a 300,000-man invasion of Formosa before the end of 1954. The Russians disagreed on the timing and on the Chinese strategy which, in Russian opinion, would inevitably involve a fight with the United States 7th Fleet. They hedged, and proposed an invasion for the spring of 1957. The report concludes that by October relations had reached a "new low" with Russia.

It could be that it was the Formosa issue which tippled Malenkov, rather than his somewhat outdated failures in Soviet agriculture.

In any case, the Chinese have every incentive to use this opportunity to move more boldly and thus nail down more Russian support.

Railway Flare Used as Heater Too 'Efficient'

LISBON, Me. (AP) — Fred Chase went shopping for a new car today.

During last week's cold wave he was late to work two mornings in a row because his automobile wouldn't start in the sub-zero weather.

On the third day he got a railroad flare, hooked it up under the hood and lit it before going to bed.

The flare kept the car from freezing all right, but it also:

Burned off the wiring.

Burned up the front dashboard.

Burned out the glove compartment.

Melted the radio, which dropped to the floor.

The flames stopped just short of the front seat.

And Fred was late for work again.

KNOWLES' BILL ON UNION SECURITY LOST IN HOUSE

'Voluntary Revocable' Checkoff Was Issue

OTTAWA (CP) — A CCF member's bid to require what he termed "the minimum of union security" in industries under federal labor jurisdiction has been defeated by the Commons.

A bill by Stanley Knowles, Winnipeg North Centre, to enforce "voluntary revocable" checkoff of union dues in such industries was defeated 133 to 54 Tuesday.

It gained support from CCF, Social Credit and three Quebec independent members, plus 11 Progressive Conservatives and seven Liberals who voted against the majorities in their parties.

It would have required employers, at the request of workers, to deduct union dues from payrolls and turn the money over to the union. Employees could end the checkoff at any time by request.

APPROVE COMMITTEE

The measure was debated briefly during a quiet sitting. Most of the day was spent discussing a government motion, eventually adopted, to set up a committee on estimates.

The spending estimates of four departments—finance, veterans affairs, northern affairs and citizenship and immigration—will be studied in detail by the committee outside the House in an attempt to save the time of the Commons itself.

The only speech opposing Mr. Knowles' measure was made by Labor Minister Gregg. He said union security should be decided by collective bargaining between unions and employers, not enforced by legislation.

The bill, similar to one introduced for several years by the CCF member, would have applied to a potential 392,500 workers under federal labor jurisdiction in such industries as railways, shipping, radio and airlines. Of those, 277,800 now are covered by collective agreements.

Progressive Conservative supporters included John Diefenbaker Prince Albert; John A. Charlton, Brant-Haldimand; Harry O. White, Middlesex East; Michael Starr, Ontario; and Hayden Stanton, Leeds.

The committee on estimates will provide for scrutiny of spending estimates of the four designated departments similar to that made since 1945 by a standing committee on external affairs. Estimates for this department will be examined by that committee as usual.

Finance Minister Harris, government House leader said the committee will not have the power to call for witnesses and documents. Some House committees have that power.

Mr. Harris said the committee is being set up as an experiment with the hope that it will save the Commons time and provide for "more intelligent criticism of government policy based on greater information. . . ."

Leaders of Commonwealth Discover Churchill Is Rewrite Man at Heart

By ALAN HARVEY

Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Pity the poor civil servant who tries to draft a communique when Prime Minister Churchill's on the premises.

After hours of ponderous preparation—a rolling phrase here, a glittering generality there—the drafting clerk sinks back in satisfied exhaustion.

Then the master hand goes into zestful action. A fresh cigar clamped between his teeth, an editor's blue pencil in hand, Churchill sits down to the paper, smoothing the unruly syntax, substituting positive for negative, letting chips—and the cliches—fall where they may.

"Tautology!" he snorts, making a curt correction in his small, neat hand.

Sir Winston Churchill, ex-war correspondent, still a rewrite man at heart, has done it again at the London conference of Commonwealth prime ministers. For days a drafting committee, including as Canadian representative High Commissioner Norman Robertson, has labored over ways of saying, or not saying, what went on at the Commonwealth conference.

The communique was published Tuesday night. It certainly bore the marks of Churchill's work, and it would be fascinating to compare the original with the finished product.

At one point in the drafting, Churchill objected to even so sonorous a word as "association," claiming that in its particular context—a reference to the Commonwealth of nations—it was redundant.

So the drafting officials had to go back to work, laboring until midnight.

"The draft had been prepared and prepared almost ad nauseam," says The Times. "However, when Sir Winston got to work upon it, officials present were evidently left in a state of rapt fascination."

Bulganin Pledges Support to China In Formosa Issue

Will Expand Soviet's Heavy Industry to Build Arms

By RICHARD KASISCHKE

MOSCOW (AP) — Georgi K. Zhukov, top Soviet military hero and a warm wartime acquaintance of President Eisenhower, was appointed the new defence minister of the Soviet union today.

Immediately after the announcement, the Supreme Soviet (parliament) was informed that Georgi M. Malenkov, who resigned Tuesday as premier, has been named a deputy premier and minister of power stations.

Both nominations were made by the new premier, Nikolai A. Bulganin, until Tuesday the defence minister. A marshal of the Soviet union, Bulganin still wore his army uniform at today's meeting of this momentous Supreme Soviet session.

Bulganin, in his first speech as premier, pledged his government to work to expand the Soviet union's heavy industry in order to build up Soviet armed might and raise the country's living standards.

He spoke just before the appointments of Malenkov and Zhukov were announced.

NO OPPOSITION

Both appointments were unanimously approved by a show of hands of the 1,300-member parliament's joint session in the great Kremlin palace.

Bulganin occupied the defence ministry post until this afternoon when he asked the parliament to relieve him of it in view of his assumption of the premiership.

Today's sessions spotlighted another outstanding Soviet war hero, Marshal Ivan S. Konev, who headed the tribunal that condemned secret police chief L. P. Beria to death in December, 1953. In an address to the cheering parliament, he asserted that the U. S. S. R.'s armed forces have "all kinds of weapons for the complete defeat of aggressors."

Zhukov's appointment to the defence ministry is another step in a profound shakeup of the Soviet government which now underscores the powerful influence of Nikita S. Khrushchev, first secretary—and boss—of the Communist party.

WAS FORMER DEPUTY

Zhukov has been a first deputy minister of defence.

As for Malenkov, it was noted that his new ministry is a rather minor post for a man who held such eminence. But the Soviet union is engaged in a vast electrification program which could lend to Malenkov's new ministry more importance than it otherwise might hold.

The changes gave added significance to the words of Foreign Minister Molotov who Tuesday laid down a tough Soviet foreign policy denouncing the United States as an aggressor nation and warning that the Soviet union had made strides in hydrogen bomb production which made the United States look laggard.

Taking a similar line, Marshal Konev in an apparent reference to nuclear warfare, said recent Soviet manoeuvres "have improved the Soviet army's training in ways based on modern Soviet science."

"If the imperialists dare to attack our motherland, the Soviet armed forces have at their disposal all kinds of weapons for the complete defeat of the aggressors," he said.

Eden Shortens His Itinerary On Trip to East

LONDON (Reuters) — Foreign Secretary Eden today cancelled his planned visit to Burma and Ceylon and curtailed those to India and Pakistan owing to the international situation, the foreign office announced.

Eden was due to visit all four countries on his way back from the Bangkok meeting of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization which opens Feb. 23.

Under the new arrangements he will pay only brief visits to Karachi on his outward journey and to New Delhi on his way home.

to Bangkok have not changed, the foreign office spokesman stated, and his three-day visit later to Turkey, starting March 16, also is expected to take place as arranged.

The spokesman said the Formosa crisis—not the resignation of Georgi Malenkov from the Russian premiership—caused the change in Eden's plans.

City and District News

HUGH MURRAY NEW PRESIDENT BUILDERS' EXCHANGE

Hugh Murray, past vice-president of the Belleville and District Builders' Exchange, was elected president for 1955 at a meeting of exchange members in Lattimer's Town Room Tuesday evening.

He succeeds Bev. Quincy as president.

Other officers elected are: Ralph Stewart, vice-president; Bill Townsend, Gerry Low and P. Wills, directors.

The report of the nominating committee was presented by past-president Vern Flindall.

DISHWASHER SPELLS TROUBLE FOR DEPT.

A troublesome dishwasher spelled trouble for city firemen today—a mechanical dishwasher that is.

Shortly before noon today firemen were called to 123 Victoria Avenue, where the electric dishwasher had become short circuited, necessitating a call for the fire department.

Tuesday night firemen were called to 20 Victoria Avenue for a chimney blaze. No damage was reported as result of either incident.

RED CROSS GIVES ICE SAFETY FACTS

Just how thick ice must be for safety is something which all children should know and the Red Cross is doing what it can to get a few ice safety facts before the kiddies.

This morning special pamphlets on ice safety were distributed on behalf of the Red Cross to all city schools.

"Y" GROUPS HOLD "DRESS REHEARSAL"

Ten different YMCA groups had a "dress rehearsal" at the YMCA last night, in preparation for the "dramatized reports" which will be part of the program of the annual meeting of the YMCA on February 10. Mr. N. A. Beach was master of ceremony.

Lively skits and gymnastic exhibitions, portraying each group's specific activities at the Y, will be included in the demonstrations.

Father, Daughter Injured in Crash At Foxboro

A Rawdon township man and his two-year-old daughter suffered head and facial lacerations shortly before noon Tuesday when the car in which they were riding collided with a highway transport in the village of Foxboro. Walter Vanderkooy, 28, and his small daughter Nellie, were taken to Belleville hospital for treatment.

Mr. Vanderkooy and his daughter were riding in a car driven by the former's brother, Teunis Vanderkooy, of Harold. The Vanderkooy car was southbound on No. 14 highway when at the intersection at Ducette's store the brakes failed and the car slammed into the left rear duals of a northbound Smith transport, driven by John Welch of Brighton.

Damage to the transport amounted to about $200 and to the Vanderkooy car about $300. Provincial Constable Doug Sears investigated.

WILLIAM A. WATSON, Belleville architect, was recently elected to the registration board of the Ontario Association of Architects for a three-year term. The registration board is a body established by provincial statute to regulate the profession in the province.

Mr. Watson was born in Belleville of United Empire Loyalist stock. He graduated from the School of Architecture at the University of Toronto in 1927 and joined the association in 1928. He studied in Europe during 1929 and took his Master's degree in Architecture in 1932. The same year he opened his office in Belleville. In 1953 he took into partnership Paul Wiegand and they now practise as the firm of Watson and Wiegand. Mr. Watson is married and has three children.

Scout Jamboree Outlined To Kiwanis Club

This will be the biggest year in the history of the Canadian scout movement, Belleville Kiwanis were told yesterday by Kiwanian Don Allan, prominent figure in the local scout organization.

Some 10,000 scouts from across the free world will assemble at Niagara-on-the-Lake in August to participate in a world jamboree the sixth such international gathering of scouts since 1929 and the first to be held in the western hemisphere.

Mingling with some 1,500 scouts from the U.S., 1,000 from the United Kingdom and troops from the Commonwealth and the free world will be 3,500 Canadian scouts.

By mixing with each other the boys will learn their first lesson in international brotherhood, Mr. Allen pointed out.

"It is a basis on which we can help establish international brotherhood."

The only fly in the ointment is the cost of attending the jamboree to scouts coming from countries within restricted currency areas These are allowed to pay their fares to Canada but can bring no spending money. Cost of attendance at the jamboree will be $50 per scout. "At present, a movement is afoot to subsidize the foreign scouts with spending money," Mr. Allan said.

"We feel we would like to see as many foreign scouts as possible come to Canada," he said. Already in Belleville there are eight foreign scouts being sponsored. "However, the plea for support has not gone unanswered across the nation for many service clubs already are taking this up as a project," he said.

The call for leaders and camp workers at Niagara during the jamboree also has been well answered. "In one instance a company executive will serve as a cook," Mr. Allan said.

He noted that to previous Jamborees Canada had only been able to send a contingent of 32 scouts. Now on their home soil that number will be multiplied over a hundred times.

"We won't see another Jamboree in Canada in our lifetime," Mr. Allan said.

"I think it (jamboree) is bound to show a good reflection on our scouting."

Mr. Allan was introduced by Bill Reilly and thanked by Stu Robb.

Obituary

MRS. THOMAS BAILEY

MADOC — The funeral of Mrs. Thomas Bailey was held at the McKenzie Funeral Parlor, Madoc, on Monday afternoon with a large attendance of relatives and neighbors. Mrs. Bailey had spent her life in the vicinity and was well known. The profusion of flowers was a testimony of the high esteem in which she was held.

The service was conducted by Rev. Mr. Lane, minister of Trinity United Church, Madoc.

Interment took place in Lakeview cemetery.

MRS. ALBERT HARVEY
(Benito, Man.)
(Contributed)

Near the close of the year at Benito Hospital, Manitoba, there passed away one who, till eight years ago was a lifelong resident of Hastings county. Luella May Harvey was born at Eldorado on February 18, 1901, daughter of George Sandford and Elvina Fox. She continued to live there till her marriage to Herbert Hinchliffe in April 1929. It was only eighteen months till he died of an accident and she returned to live with her father at Fox's Corner. In 1933 she married Albert Harvey of Durban, Manitoba. For the next few years they divided their time between Eldorado and Durban till they took up permanent residence in Durban in 1946.

She had a bright and cheery disposition with a lilting laughter all her own. She loved to serve her Church and community. In both Eldorado and Durban she was Sunday School Superintendent and was active in Women's Association and Women's Institute and at Eldorado she was also president of the Women's Missionary Society and church organist for a number of years.

Besides her husband, Albert Harvey, she is survived by one daughter, Freda, in Stirling, Ontario, Mrs. W. G. Fletcher and two other daughters and two sons in Manitoba, and a host of friends. of service, an Electric organ is

As a fitting memorial of her life being installed in Durban United Church by her husband.

Geologist Lived in Tent With Mercury at 47 Below

Cold enough for you last week? How would you have liked living in a tent?

Bruce Robson, Belleville geologist, was one of a party of three which snapped its fingers at the cold snap, while staking claims in northern Ontario.

Temperatures at night ranged downwards to 47 degrees below zero. Wolves howled near the camp at night and followed the men's trails by day. A blizzard hit them on the second last day of their six day stay in the bush.

Water, kept in a pail beside the stove, had two inches of ice over it each morning. Steaks took all day to thaw, and canned fruit juices, frozen solid, were thawed an inch at a time.

Object of the trip was to stake claims in an area reputedly rich in lead, zinc and copper. In summer the area is alive with prospectors. In winter the congestion is somewhat reduced and staking parties can work with singular concentration.

Mr. Robson left Belleville by rail Wednesday, January 26th. His party flew 50 miles into the bush from Nakina on Friday, January 28th. Nakina is on the CNR's mainline about 170 miles northwest of Port Arthur.

The ski-equipped Austin Airways plane left the party, and food for six days, on the shore of a lake with the thermometer registering 40 below zero.

The men cleared away three feet of snow for a campsite, piled spruce boughs into the clearing, pitched their tent and started thawing out next a box stove fed with dry spruce wood.

Days were spent snow shoeing up to eight miles over the surrounding terrain staking likely looking areas.

Sunrise, about 8.45 a.m., and early sunsets cut the working day short.

"Nights were very dark," said Mr. Robson. "The stars hung down until you thought you could reach out and touch them. There was a great quietness. After six days of that silence the sound of an oil furnace coming on made us jump."

"We heard wolves howling at night," he said. "We never saw them, however. They would come within 500 or 600 feet of camp at night. Sometimes we saw their tracks following our trails, when we would double back to camp," he said. "We had no guns, just our axes."

"We saw white owls with wing spans of about 2½ feet," said Mr. Robson. "We also saw Canadian jays, known locally as "whiskey jacks." They were quite tame. They would take crumbs or frozen rolls of bacon grease from our hands."

"After we had been there a few days, moles under our tent started coming out of the ground as it warmed up and crawled over our bedding. On the last day we were wakened by a rapping sound that turned out to be a woodpecker trying to drill a hole in a tree."

Nature's icebox took care of preserving food.

"Steaks took all day to thaw out," said Mr. Robson. "Fruit juice froze solid in the can. We would heat it on the stove, drink off the liquid that would collect on the top, and keep on thawing the rest."

Water for tea was dipped from the nearby lake through a hole chopped through 10 inches of ice.

"That hole would freeze up for the whole ten inches each night", said Mr. Robson. We kept the water in a pail beside the stove and it would have two inches of ice on it in the morning."

How do you keep warm when the mercury heads for the bottom of the thermometer?

Mr. Robson wore long woollen underwear, a heavy woollen shirt, and a felt skull cap, three pairs of woollen socks and leather boots with a felt lining.

"My feet were warm while I was walking," he said.

"We slept in down sleeping bags," he said. "About every two hours it was necessary to put more wood in the stove. We could always tell when it was time to stoke the fire by the way the cold crept up our legs from our feet."

One of the party, wearing lined boots, froze two toes. He threw away the boots in disgust, wrapped towels around his feet, and covered them with a pair of moccasins loaned him by the half-Finn, half-Indian guide.

The party was picked up by the plane on Wednesday, February 2nd, after being pinned down all day Tuesday by a blizzard.

"It was a raging blizzard," said Mr. Robson. "Fine snow was being driven by a high wind. It was bitterly cold. We tried to work a little close to camp but gave up when visibility dropped to 50 feet."

"It gives one a certain amount of satisfaction to know you can survive in conditions like that," said Mr. Robson, who arrived home in Belleville last Friday.

Police Blotter

While the attendant of the Holway Service Station was serving gasoline for a customer a sneak thief yesterday slipped behind the counter and opening the till made off with about $30 in cash.

Later police picked up Clifford Fitzgibbon, 23, of 16½ Turnbull Street, for questioning in connection with the matter. He is being held on a vagrancy charge.

That one should not become too familiar with strangers on the street was learned this morning by George Fairborn, 34, 294 Front St. Police said that about 7.30 this morning Fairborn had followed two nuns on their way to morning mass and had thrown his top coat over one of the nun's head. Police booked Fairborn on a drunk charge.

Two grease guns and a number of tools were reported by provincial police to have been stolen from the Lightfoot Construction Company, north of College St.

Foundry Burns

BRANTFORD (CP) — Brantford's third major fire within three weeks destroyed the Bell City foundry early today, with loss estimated at more than $121,000.

Provincial police discovered the blaze at 3 a. m. but flames had gained such headway nothing could be done to save the building or its contents.

Cause of the blaze is not known. Proprietor of the foundry, which employs 22 persons, is William Kostuk.

FRANK F. HULL, TORONTO, President Ontario Division Red Cross, who will be the speaker at the dinner session which opens the Ontario Division's annual meeting at the Royal York Hotel, Toronto, next month. The meeting on March 23rd and 24th will be attended by several hundred Red Cross delegates from all over Ontario.

'Y' Secretary Tells of Trip To Conference

This week's meeting of the Y's Men was very well attended. In addition to more than forty members the visitors were Messrs. Murray Dixon and Douglas Hammond.

Following a discussion period plans were made for the following coming events. Professor Alan Klein will be guest speaker at the annual YMCA meeting on Feb. 10th. International Director Wilfred Roberts will visit the club Feb. 19th.

Plans were made to attend the chartering of a new club in North Toronto very soon.

The local secretary, Di Dimantides brought honor to himself and the club when he was chosen to head the American delegation attending the International Conference last summer in Paris. It has been some time since a Canadian headed such a delegation. He delivered a talk on this conference.

The objectives of this conference were to enable delegations from all over the world to visit Y's Men's Club in Europe and at the same time to mingle with one another at the Paris Conference. Studies were carried on in four languages. The mingling of so many nationalities in this worldwide fellowship can do much to further world peace.

The talk was followed by a film illustrating the highlights of the conference.

IN MEMORIAM

MACK. — In loving memory of my dear husband, Percy M. Mack, who passed away February 9th, 1950.

Softly the door was opened,
Softly the Master called,
Bidding our dear one enter
To the home that awaits us all.

—Sadly missed by wife Violet. F9

LOGUE. — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, John Logue, who passed away February 9th, 1949.

—Ever remembered by wife and family. F9

MACK. — In loving memory of a dear dad, Percy M. Mack, who passed away February 9th, 1950.

Five years have passed, dear Dad,
Since God laid you to rest.
But your soul will live forever,
For you lived your very best.
You were good and kind to everyone,
And died beloved by all.
The happy days we spent with you,
Are the days we love to recall,
When we are sad and lonely
And sitting all alone,
In our hearts there comes a longing
If he only could come home.
But we know his soul is happy
Over on the Golden Shore
And someday we hope to meet him
Where we will part no more.
So often our thoughts do wander
To the grave, so far away,
Where we laid my precious daddy
Just five years ago today.

—Ever remembered by his daughter Mildred, Bill and family. F9

New "Deep Cleanser" penetrates deeper into pore openings!

Helena Rubinstein's revolutionary Deep Cleanser penetrates deeper into pore openings, removes the dirt and make-up which other creams left behind. And this mild, quick-acting fluid contains super-emollients which counteract dryness.

Helps prevent surface blemishes! Ordinary creams don't destroy bacteria which commonly cause blemishes. Helena Rubinstein has incorporated a sensational new antiseptic in Deep Cleanser. Mild, pure R-51 which penetrates deeper and actually destroys bacteria. And Helena Rubinstein has included two remarkable cleansing agents—"hydrophyllic" to remove grime containing water, "lipoidphyllic" for grime containing oil.

Top Irish Play To Be Presented By Ottawa Group

"The Moon In The Yellow River," by Ireland's Dennis Johnston, will be the third play presented to Drama Festival audiences in Belleville next week.

Entered by the Ottawa Little Theatre Inc., the play will be staged in the Collegiate Auditorium Friday, Feb. 18.

"The Moon In The Yellow River" is set in Johnston's native Ireland, during the civil war, which followed southern Ireland's liberation from British rule.

The plot evolves round the attempts of a gang of rebels to sabotage a government electric power project. In it Johnston combines typical Irish wit and comedy with drama to throw into contrast the struggle between rural simplicity and industrialism represented in the play by an Irish Republican and a German engineer.

First produced in the Abbey Theatre in 1931, the play today is a perennial favorite of audiences in Ireland and Great Britain and probably ranks highest on Johnston's list of achievements in the theatre.

Ottawa Little Theatre Inc., one of Canada's outstanding non-professional theatrical companies for 43 seasons, has been a regional winner on several occasions and a threat for national honors.

Ottawa Little Theatre Workshop will present "The Rehearsal," a one-act spoof on little theatre productions, at the matinee performance of one-act plays on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Brooker, Trenton, Wed for 50 Years

TRENTON (Special) — Mr. and Mrs. George Brooker, of 96 Crown Street, Trenton, were at home yesterday on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary. During the day they received scores of relatives and friends from the Trenton-Belleville district. Gifts and cards of congratulations from friends across the country filled the top of a dining room table.

The snow was as high as the rail fences along the road the day that Lillian Edith Seeley and George Henry Brooker took wedding vows in the bride's home at Ivanhoe. The ceremony was conducted by the Reverend Weatherley, a Methodist Church minister in the community.

The bride's brother, Richard Seeley, who died since, supported the groom, while a close friend of the bride, Minnie MacMullen, now living in the United States, acted as bridesmaid.

The groom recalls that a fire that destroyed his brother's home marred the wedding celebration. Earlier his brother, John Ferguson Brooker married Jennie Seeley, sister of the bride, and they lived on a farm near Ivanhoe.

The golden wedding celebrants made Belleville their home for 30 years before moving to Trenton. Mr. Brooker worked for the C.P.R. in the freight sheds in both Belleville and Trenton. They have lived in Trenton with a son-in-law, Carmen Pacey, for the last eight years.

The Brookers' two children, a son, Clarence Brooker, of Trenton, and a daughter, Mrs. Carmen Pacey of Trenton, assisted their parents at the reception. Among the church friends visiting during the day was the Rev. H. V. Muxworthy of Trenton.

Immediate relatives of the Brookers include eight grandchildren, and two great grandchildren, and Mrs. Brooker's sister, Mrs. Jennie Thompson of Picton.

Legislatures Are Considering Varied Problems

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Unemployment, labor, finance and narcotics came in for discussion in provincial legislatures across Canada Tuesday as two provinces opened 1955 sessions and three others continued sittings.

The throne speech read at the opening of the Ontario session forecast the largest public investment program in the history of that province, stating the unprecedented program "will contribute notably to the alleviation of the unemployment which has been evident in our transition to a peacetime economy."

The Prince Edward Island legislature opened with a prediction of the establishment of a labor department; the CCF criticized the Manitoba government for failing to take action to halt "the drift to mass unemployment;" the British Columbia government announced it will go it alone in the study of narcotics addiction; and, the opposition said the Quebec government has been sinking far into debt monthly since 1945.

In Prince Edward Island, the throne speech said there had been continuing requests for appointment of a labor minister and the government felt formation of a full department under a minister was "the most effective way to handle labor problems which are frequently brought before it."

PUBLIC WORKS SOUGHT

In Manitoba, Donovan Swailes (CCF-Winnipeg Centre) proposed a resolution calling for the government to restore full employment by a program of public works. Progressive Conservative leader Duff Roblin added an amendment urging the province to request a Dominion-provincial conference to "place responsibility" for unemployed who are not covered by unemployment insurance.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner told the B. C. legislature the provincial government wil embark on studies this spring that will lead to "proper plans" to deal with drug addiction.

In Quebec, Liberal leader Georges Lapalme said the Quebec government since 1945 has been sinking into debt at an average rate of $1,439,208 a month despite "a period of economic prosperity such as our country has never known."

CBC Technicians Ready to Talk With Employers

OTTAWA (CP) — Negotiations aimed at settlement of a contract dispute which could disrupt CBC radio-television programs were to open today between the corporation and a union of technical employees.

The CBC and the National Association of Broadcast Employees and Technicians (CIO-CCL) were to resume talks in long-deadlocked discussions over wage increases.

The publicly-owned corporation has refused the increases for about 775 technicians. The CBC was supported by the finding of a federal conciliation board. NABET employees have authorized their national executive to call a strike if a satisfactory settlement is not reached by Feb. 16.

A walkout of these workers who operate switchboards, cameras and other intricate devices of television and broadcasting could hit hard at CBC. However, the corporation has stated that in the event of a strike it can carry on with a modified program in both radio and TV.

The union has asked mainly for wage increases ranging up to $84 a week.

Man Indicted On First Degree Murder Charge

Ward, who first claimed the shooting was a tragic "joke," pleaded innocent when arraigned on the indictment before Justice Carlton E. Fisher. Trial was set for the term opening Feb. 28.

The victim, Mrs. Joan M. Ward, 22, died almost instantly from a 12-gauge shotgun blast fired into her chest at point-blank range.

Police said Ward told them the shooting occurred after Mrs. Ward accused him of having an affair with another woman. The argument grew more heated, Ward said, and he grabbed a shotgun, pointing it at his wife's chest.

"Go ahead and shoot," Mrs. Ward said, according to her husband's statement.

Ward said the gun fired accidentally and that he intended only to frighten his wife, police related.

Given Break By Judge, Now Back in Jail

ST. THOMAS CP)—Joseph W. Parks, 52, was back in police custody Tuesday, less than two weeks after he was released on a five-year suspended sentence as an "experiment" by a Supreme Court justice.

Parks was arrested at gunpoint and charged with car theft after a 90-mile-an-hour police chase near Eden, 18 miles east of here.

Police said the chase started when the auto clipped a telephone pole while careening around a curve at 70 miles an hour. The car had been reported stolen from Basil Neville of Straffordville.

Parks was convicted Jan. 28 of a break-in at a summer home owned by Irma McRae of Toronto. He has spent 20 years in jail since 1929, police said.

In handing down a five-year suspended sentence, Mr. Justice John L. Wilson told Parks:

"You may let me down, but I'm giving you one of the few breaks you've had in your life and I hope it will be beneficial."

Faith Brings New Boilers For Little Sisters of Poor

SCRANTON, Pa. (AP)—A pair of rusty, over-age boilers with more patches than a tramp's coat are producing a type of warmth these days that can't be measured by an earthly thermometer.

The boilers are in the basement of the home the Little Sisters of the Poor operate here for 125 aged men and women. The boilers are no longer capable of properly heating the building, yet indirectly they have been warming hearts with a radiance born of faith, love and charity.

This is the way it happened:

In the recent cold snap, when temperatures were around the zero mark for several days, the old boilers were taxed to their utmost. Even then the 12 Roman Catholic nuns and their elderly charges shivered day and night.

Sister Superior Martin Marie and her colleagues priced a set of boilers and the necessary plumbing. They were told it would cost about $25,000 to install. To a group of nuns who have taken a vow of poverty it seemed an insurmountable barrier.

On the third day of their shivering the sisters decided to rely on faith—faith in their patron saint.

So they went to the basement of the home, put a long plank across the top of the two oil boilers and reverently placed a statue of St. Joseph on the plank, midway between the two wheezing monsters.

With a final look at the statue, they went to their little chapel and addressed special prayers to St. Joseph, beseeching him to help. And then, with infinite faith, the nuns placed an order for the new heating system—the $25,000 one.

The story of the Little Sisters of the Poor and their dying boilers was printed in a diocesan paper, The Catholic Light. A Scranton newspaper editor read it and used a small story in his own publication.

That was Jan. 27. The response was instantaneous. Men and women began visiting the home, leaving donations — some small, some as much as $1,000. Most of the donors refused to give their names.

Each visit of the postman brought more letters containing money until by Tuesday the boiler fund had grown to an impressive $10,796.

Two weeks ago the threat of more cold weather might have cast a pall over the home. Not now, though. The 125 old folk have more faith these days than they know what to do with.

Falconry, 40 Centuries Old, Has Language All Its Own

Beebe, 40-year-old native of Lacombe, Alta., is employed as a wild life illustrator for the provincial museum here. He is one of only a dozen or so British Columbians whose hobby is falconry. His home is in the rolling country back of Swan lake, a few miles from here.

Falconry, along with hawking, is a hunting method perhaps 40 centuries old, and has a language all its own.

In this sport you go out on foot or on a horse with your falcon hooded. If there's game around, you unhood him. Probably he's been "bating" showing signs of wanting to get off and once in a air the falcon is "waiting on" as he circles at an altitude of 1,000 feet.

If he spots a game bird in flight (he never attacks a sitting quarry) the falcon goes into a power dive that has been roughly estimated at 200 miles an hour. He smacks into his quarry with a "whap" that can be heard 100 yards. There is a burst of feathers and the prey tumbles to the ground with the falcon in pursuit.

A bell on the falcon's foot lets you know where he is, and all you have to do is retrieve the game.

With the hawk it is a little different. He is not hooded but is held by the "jesses" (two short leather thongs from each foot) which you grasp in your gloved hand. (Beebe wears a welder's glove while handling his falcon and hawks.)

When you put up a bird, you let the hawk go. With incredible swiftness he overtakes the quarry and "binds to it." That is, he digs in his big talons and bears it to the ground. And he seldom misses.

How does Beebe gets his falcons and hawks? "I trap 'em," he says. "I get them in a wire cage unharmed. This is one sport that can't be commercialized."

Since the birds do not breed in captivity, there is no select prize stock to capitalize on. Each sportsman trains his captive to answer a whistle by feeding him scraps of meat.

Then the bird is taught to come in to a lure, a bundle of feathers tossed high in the air if the bird is in sight. There is always a scrap of meat tied to it to reward obedience. That's all there is to it—the lure and the whistle. And infinite patience.

Few hawkers go after game with their falcons or hawks, says Beebe. They are most content to demonstrate their skill in training by showing off their birds' talents to fellow birdmen.

Hawking is more humane than gunning, claims Beebe. Hawking leaves no injured birds, no cripples limping off with pellets in them, or falling into the brush with broken wings. In this sport the quarry is killed outright, or he gets home free.

Canadian Authors Seek Tightening Of Copyright Law

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian publishing and authors' groups today said Canada's present copyright laws leave them vulnerable to foreign infringement.

In briefs presented to a three-man royal commission studying laws on copyright, trade marks and industrial design, they urged the door be shut against importation of foreign productions of Canadian copyrighted works and requested a general tightening of the Copyright Act.

The parallel submissions were from the Canadian Authors' Association, the Oxford University Press, Toronto, and the Book Publishers' Association of Toronto.

They were made before the commission headed by Chief Justice J. L. Ilsley of Nova Scotia, appointed last year to go into Canada's laws on copyright, patents and other such legislation.

$350 Damage In Collision

A case of one motor not realizing what runs in the other fellow's mind resulted in a motor accident on MacDonald Ave. late last night, which resulted in about $350 damage.

Eugene W. Comeau, 10 Harriett St., was southbound on MacDonald Ave., following another vehicle driven by Bruce P. May, 16 Cherry Gardens. Comeau turned out to pass the May car just as Mr. May attempted to make a left-hand turn and the two vehicles collided. Comeau's car was spun around and slid 150 feet down the centre of the road.

THE FUNCTION OF PROFITS

The leading article in the February issue of "Industry," a pamphlet published monthly by the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, Inc., is an interesting treatise on profits.

"The profits of industry are the savings of industry," says the article, which is entitled "Three Ways to Save." One of the three ways listed is by the individual laying by money against a possible future need. The second is by insurance which "Industry" describes as a method of "a group saving for individual needs." The third type of saving discussed is "saving not so much to offset disaster if it occurs as to prevent it occurring in the first place. It is in this regard that the profits of industry must be considered," declares "Industry."

"Industry" continues: "They (profits) are the savings whereby industry insures against fluctuations in its affairs. From the point of view of the employees, they are the means by which their jobs are made secure. They are an assurance that employment will continue steadily—surely a much more desirable thing than to attempt to alleviate unemployment when that has already arrived. Profits should not be thought of as something taken away from the wage earner. They are as beneficial to him as they are to all the other people engaged in industry. They are industry's insurance for steady progress, an insurance for steady jobs."

All this is true about profits but it is not the whole truth. All profits are not retained by the firms which make them; many are distributed to investors. Only in the former case can the profits be considered the savings of industry; in the latter case they are the rewards which the investors receive for risking their capital.

The profits retained by industry can be said to be industry's insurance for steady progress. But industry would never be able to take out this insurance policy had there not first been a possibility of the distribution of profits to the investor, either through dividends or through higher values for his shares of stock as the result of profits being reinvested in the industry.

A function of profits, the primary function, is to provide an incentive to investment.

A man may desire to save part of his present earnings for his future needs, to postpone saving all his dollars. But, unless he has some expectation of receiving a profit from his investment, there is no reason why he should purchase a stock certificate instead of burying his dollars in a corner of the cellar. In fact, the burial ceremony in the cellar would be conducted in an atmosphere of greater assurance of eventual successful resurrection than would the ceremony of buying a stock certificate. More money is lost by reason of bankruptcies than as the result of robberies.

Furthermore, not only would the failure to pay profits to investors alter the disposition of savings, but it would also actually reduce the amount of these savings. A man may refrain from spending a dollar today if he has reason to hope that, as a result, he will have a dollar and a half to spend tomorrow. But if he knows that his resources tomorrow will certainly not exceed their present amount, he may not save his dollar. Once again, this is only part of the story. For many years now, the trend has been for prices to rise and, therefore, for the purchasing power of money to decline. It is more than likely that the dollar saved today will not buy as much tomorrow as it would have done if spent today. If there were no prospect of obtaining a profit by investment, the wise man would spend every dollar as soon as he got it, buying land or houses, or even cars or refrigerators, any type of real property.

The role played by profits as the savings of industry is desirable; but the role played by profits as the reward of the investor is essential if the system of private enterprise is to function. Without such an incentive, there would be no reason why men would risk their savings, no investment in capital goods, in equipment to produce more goods, more cheaply. If the economy was not to stagnate, governments would be obliged to force men to invest or would have to make this investment themselves, obtaining the necessary funds by taxes or by expropriation.

CANADA'S TRADE RECORD

We frequently hear criticism of the trade policies of the United States. It is alleged that she wants to sell—but declines to buy.

Canada, on the other hand, is represented as a nation which is vitally interested in the promotion of international trade and is willing to make this trade a two-way street.

In 1954 the United States had a better record of buying from Britain than did Canada.

True, the U.S. sold goods worth 283 million pounds to the United Kingdom, while buying goods worth only 149 million pounds. But Canada's sales to Britain were worth only 10 million pounds less than the U.S. sales—and her purchases were 17 million pounds less than the purchases by the U.S.

THE WAY TO SUCCESS

We read it almost every day,
Promoted is a man we know.
And "he began," the papers say,
"An office boy some years ago."
The tale is wired from coast to coast.
Unchanged the record brief appears,
"He climbed from post to higher post."
And that's the way it's been for years.

So runs the history of a man:
They made him president today.
A boy was he when he began
To tread the uphill, rugged way.
With every task, by doing well,
Up to the topmost place he rose.
It seems a simple tale to tell.
Though simple, that's the way it goes.

I've read it time and time again
And wish all boys would read it, too.
Successful men have made it plain
How greater tasks they learned to do.
Promotion followed down the years.
Merit employers promptly see.
As boys they started their careers,
And that's the way it has to be.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

GOING FASTER—BUT WHERE?

Not long ago a U.S. Air Force pilot flying a jet plane established a new world's record for speed in the air: 715.7 miles per hour. This is a speed hardly possible for most of us to imagine—almost 12 miles per minute, or a mile every five seconds.

This is just one more step in the amazing acceleration of travel. We read that in colonial times it took three days to go by coach from New York to Philadelphia, a distance of about ninety miles. At the speed of the new record, a plane would cover the same distance in about seven and a half minutes.

Thanks to science, we can travel faster than our ancestors. But where are we going? And by what road shall we get there? These questions, as they affect the everyday man, science does not answer. The problem of life's goals and ethics and conduct are still the same as always, and the answer is still the same, too. "Blessed is the man that walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly, nor standeth in the way of sinners; nor sitteth in the seat of the scornful. But his delight is in the law of the Lord."

In all human activities the matter of primary importance is goal. Where are you going?—not how fast.

Factory Jobs Make More Jobs

(Utica Observer-Dispatch)

An industrial version of the old saw that nothing succeeds like success comes from a national Chamber of Commerce survey report on effects of new jobs in a community.

For every 100 new industrial workers in nine counties studied, retail sales zoomed $360,000, personal income $590,000 and bank deposits $270,00. The 100 industrial workers created 174 new jobs in other lines, 112 more households and a population increase of 296 to buy all kinds of goods and services.

New industry for a community, it seems, should be everybody's effort.

Some Strange Railway Laws

(Cincinnati Enquirer)

In Gary, Ind., a passenger must wait four hours after eating garlic before he can board a train. Sneezing in a train is unlawful in West Virginia. And in Mississippi a conductor can be fined $500 if he puts a passenger in the wrong compartment of a pullman. We just read about these laws in Railway Progress.

We also found out how the railroads used cunning to get around a law which once prohibited the movement of freight trains on Sunday in many states—unless the trains carried livestock.

The railroads put one mule aboard each Sunday freight!

Red Flannels Were for Men!

(Calgary Herald)

A suggestion has been made that the wearing of red flannel underwear by the pioneers is sufficient justification for the wearing of pastel-colored underwear by the modern male. This is nonsense.

Now the effect of television on society is something that the sociologists will ponder for many years, and it may be reasoned by some that one of the great advances brought about by television will be more colorful clothing worn by males.

According to Lorain Fawcett, New York color consultant, TV types have had to wear pastel-colored shirts because straight white shirts do not show up clearly on television screens.

The performers wore their television shirts of pink, yellow and lavender outside of the studious and according to Miss Fawcett, the man-on-the-street thought they weren't bad. We will not discuss here the probability that the men-on-the-street outside Radio City might not be representative of men on most streets.

That Miss Fawcett regards the clothing world with a different perspective than a man's is perfectly obvious from her comment that "TV did for men what Dior [illegible] Dache do for women". If men react to this the way they have to the news of what Dior's H-line is going to do for women, television will soon be replaced by radio.

But the former Vancouver girl, whose love for color may reflect her upbringing under the grey skies of the coast city, is making a mistake that cannot go uncorrected when she asks "Pioneers wore red flannels so why shouldn't the modern male wear pastel shorts?"

Let it be understood that the man who wore red flannels was a man. The Blizzard Busters of yester-year were worn not to please cameras (and certainly ladies did not discuss them) but to protect the wearer from the rawness of a winter that came in November and stayed until April.

Bachelor types put 'em on in the fall and took 'em off in the spring and in the interim they served as pyjamas, bathrobes, informal shirts, and indoor work clothes. When they were put on with first real frost, they itched, in red, not pastel, shades. Maybe some ladies wore them too, when they were going out in the weather, but the color was not for beauty; the red flannels were strictly a garment for utility.

Pastel shorts may be a sign that men will soon be wearing "vivid colors for suiting material", as Miss Fawcett hopes, but let's have none of this nonsense about the pioneer's underwear being really the same thing.

Red flannels were men's wear and, Miss Fawcett, it took men with red blood to wear them. Maybe the modern pastels are just a pale reflection of the days when men were men, and when color TV becomes general men will insist on solid greys and navy blues.

Meal Tickets Beat Instinct

(Cornwall Standard-Freeholder)

Are man's little feathered friends becoming lazy? A lot of migratory birds haven't been bothering to migrate lately, according to early tabulated results in the U.S. Audubon Society's 55th annual bird count. They're staying up north instead. Many Baltimore orioles, for instance, are reported in the New York-New England area.

Why? Well, the winters are getting milder, but the change amounts to only a few degrees. It is estimated that about 2,000,000 "free lunch counters" or bird feeding stations are now open to birds in the winter. Maybe they are destroying the incentive of their feathered patrons to migrate.

Birds from farther north, however, have been coming into the Midwest in increasing numbers. The snowy owl is one of them; and feeding stations offering seeds, suet, and raisins hardly seem calculated to attract these carnivorous night hunters. The society suspects that there is a shortage of food in their usual haunts.

It has been taken for granted that migration was an instinct in certain birds—that they would migrate when the days got shorter, no matter what. Now it appears that a good winter meal ticket can overside instinct. Evidently the power of social security has been underestimated.

Job Security

(Hamilton Spectator)

A prison inmate in the United States complains he can't get by on the 15 cents a day he's paid. He doesn't mention the security that goes with his job, though.

Greater Crime Is to Flee

(Montreal Gazette)

There have been eight hit-and-run traffic accidents in Montreal since the beginning of this year, eight cases in which motorists have failed to stop after hitting pedestrians. Three of the cases were fatal. This is an alarming figure.

The common excuse, that the motorist didn't know he had hit anyone, seldoms stands up. When the weather is particularly bad and windshields are frosted or snowy it is certainly possible for a motorist to fail to see the pedestrian stepping out in front of his car. But it is most unlikely that he fails to notice the impact of collision. This is particularly true where the impact is great enough to cause death.

The hit-and-run motorist more often knows that collision with a pedestrian has occurred but flees the scene in panic. Panic may be caused by the knowledge that the motorist was at fault, but this is not always the case. Fear of arrest and prosecution, whether guilty or not, is usually the motive. In either case, flight from the scene is both cruel and foolish.

The hit-and-run accident is especially deplorable because, often, there are no witnesses. This means the victim lies where he has fallen, without help. Death often results, not because the accident itself was fatal, but because the victim was not given help in time.

The motorist involved is the logical person to get the victim to hospital. Because he evades this responsibility, often with tragic results, the law is particularly severe on convicted hit-and-run drivers. First result is that the driver, when found and identified, faces a charge for not remaining at the scene of the accident, added to any other charge which may have resulted from it.

If the motorist feels he may escape conviction by fleeing, he might consider the record, even at this early date. In the last month, four of the eight hit-and-run cases have been solved and a fifth is near to being completed.

The police are obviously doing an excellent job of tracking down these most heartless, as well as most foolish, of motorists. The courts must follow through with sentences severe enough to be remembered by every motorist.

Tax System Is Assailed

(The Printed Word)

Since Karl Marx's invention of the graduated income tax as a device to destroy society, there has perhaps been no invention more essentially anti-democratic than the "pay-as-you-go" system of income tax collection. In the beginning it was sold to taxpayers as a convenience to them and only incidentally as a convenience to government. Introduced in wartime, when objection to any form of taxation was regarded as unpatriotic, and criticism of any form of governmental stupidity came close to treason, the device has now become part of national life. Any attempt to do away with it would be resisted by an entrenched bureaucracy, whose members thinks first and last of convenience to themselves and seldom of the rights of the taxpayers, their nominal masters.

The most obvious anti-democratic feature of the system is the underlying assumption that the citizen is the servant of the state. That assumption is necessary, perhaps, in wartime, but it is a negation of freedom in time of peace. The more power a government can arrogate to itself during a national emergency has passed. Between the wars of 1914-18 and 1939-45 Canadians had regained much of their individual freedom. After 1945 it was much more difficult to dislodge government from the positions of control that it had occupied, for the fiction of a continuing national emergency was used to justify continuing wartime controls, many of which had been unnecessary when they were first imposed.

Reluctantly, the government has surrendered some of its powers, but it retains the "pay-as-you-go" system of income taxation, based on the theory that it has first claim on a citizen's earnings. It has made every employer an unpaid tax-collector, subject to legal penalties for errors or omissions. Because the majority of employees think only of "take-home" pay, they are no longer conscious of how much they are taxed. Income tax, for the majority, has become as hidden as the sales and excise taxes. They are more than ever susceptible to bribery of the welfare-state variety, because they do not see that the bribes are extracted from their own pockets.

It is all very convenient for a government of power-loving, practical politicians, but it is not democracy.

NOSEBLEED SELDOM SERIOUS

Dr. Brady

Most frequent cause of nosebleed is a punch on the nose, or if your insurance doesn't cover brawls say collision with a door which some one has carelessly left open or closed without notifying you of the hazard. I've lost more patients by such cracks . . .

Second in frequency is injury of the septum or partition between the nostrils by the fingernail in the practice of picking the nose. Fortunately, when bleeding of this nature cannot be stopped by ordinary efforts the doctor can locate the bleeding spot by using speculum and head light, cauterize it and stop the bleeding until next picking season.

Old household methods of stopping nosebleed are (1) Keeping nostrils closed by gentle pressure of finger and thumb on sides for five minutes, the patient sitting quietly, breathing through mouth. (2) Applying something very cold to the forehead between the eyes or to nape of neck, preferably ice.

Breathe only through the open mouth, and do not blow the nose even gently for an hour or two.

Frequent nosebleed in a child, particularly when the bleeding is obviously from only one nostril, may indicate presence of a foreign body and therefore calls for examination by a physician.

The use of styptics such as alum, adrenalin, tampons or other agents to control nose bleed is safe only in the hands of the physician.

Remember, the loss of a half pint or a pint of blood is of no particular consequence to a blood donor, so the loss of half an ounce or an ounce via nosebleed need cause no alarm.

How much fact or how much fancy there may be in the familiar idea that occasional nosebleeds may be good for a person with plethora, high blood or a tendency to apoplexy (stroke, cerebral hemorrhage), I don't know. All I can say is that it probably does no harm. Perhaps we don't bleed people for such conditions nowadays because we or our medical fathers found it was not effective.

Still, I don't know. One of the best bowlers on our green or in America, for that matter, is well along, an abstemious man, of enviable equanimity even at the critical moment of a tournament final. I have teamed up with him on jaunts to other greens, where we might play all day. At the end of the day he'd be as fresh as ever, while I'd be "wore to a frazzle" (apology to Lum). From time to time the guy has nosebleeds of considerable duration.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

BIG LITTLE THINGS

One does not have to live a long life before he learns the importance of little things. All of them are actually the foundation stones to the big things. And what a revelation of character these little things are!

When I started in business soon after the turn of the century, I believe we were in the Golden Age of great newspaper editors and publishers. I was young and full of ginger. I was out selling my own wares, newspapers being my clients. I made it a point to meet, without fail, the men who owned the newspaper or who dominated it, thus early acquainting myself with a group of men who remained my friends for so long as they lived. And they were stalwart men! One thing I learned and which greatly impressed me was that the bigger the man the kinder and more considerate he was.

I have met and known quite intimately many big men, some of great wealth, but they never made me feel conscious of the fact. They were friends whom I prized, and that has always been the important thing. The little things about these men were pronounced but not shoowy. Most of them rose from humble origins. They learned how to say "Please," "Thank you," and "I'm sorry" in their youth, so that in later life it came easily and still sincerely.

One of the very big things in life is courtesy, and it is just as important on the part of big people as little people. As a matter of fact, it's what has a great deal to do with the making of big people!

Importance is measured too much by money standards. A bootlegger could be important if that were the only standard of measurement. Thank God it is not, and never will be! Little things keep looming in importance throughout life. Never lose your respect for them.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

While sitting in my doctor's office, waiting for him to get through his work and come to a movie with me to see Disney's The Vanishing Prairie, four patients passed into the inner sanctum. One was a young man with his arm in a sling; two were middle-aged ladies with tight lips and far-away expressions; and the last was an elderly man smoking a cigar and rapidly flipping through the tattered pages of the magazines.

When the doctor came out from the last of his patients, he heaved a big sigh.

"Serious?" I enquired.

"No. The two ladies were merely middle-aged. Nothing else wrong with them. Just middle-aged. The boy had broken his arm skiing. Coming along fine. The man with the cigar—well, he's been dead scared of dying for the past ten years. Every time he eats something even a goat shouldn't have, or whenever he has a fight with his wife or family, he comes in to be assured he isn't going to drop dead."

"And you reassure him?"

"I reminded him he's going to be dead someday, but not necessarily right now. I warn him against eating fried moose meat or pickled herrings. I tell him his wife and children are far more agreeable people than he is."

The doctor put his coat and hat on and we headed out the side door to avoid late-comers.

"The boy with the broken arm," he said, "is the happiest of those four. I wish I knew how to persuade people to have some physical interest in life, some activity, some sport, that won't decline with their changing condition as they grow older. Those two women were identical in their symptoms, though perfect strangers. Modern housekeeping has become so simplified, so mechanized, that they sit around most of the day without anything to do, physically. The man is too old to start taking up any sport. You must have an interest, a reaction, that involves the body. It must be a recreation you indulge in all the time."

"Such as?"

"Well," said the doctor, "walking, for instance."

So we walked eleven blocks to the movie.

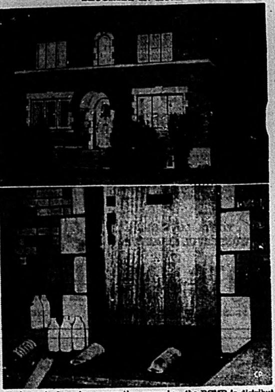
SECURITY IN HOME



As part of a crime-prevention campaign, the RCMP is distributing 50,000 booklets to business men and shopkeepers in eight provinces—Ontario and Quebec being excepted. The booklets illustrate the right and wrong ways to guard against house-breaking, theft and fraud. These photos show the right way (top) and the wrong way to provide security at home against burglars. If going out leave two or three lights burning in the house to discourage prowlers. If going away be sure to stop milk and newspaper deliveries so that a collection on the door-step will not advertise your absence. (CP Photo).

RCMP Hope Booklet Will Lead to Reduction in Crime

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—The RCMP is distributing 50,000 booklets which, it is hoped, will lead to a reduction in petty crime in Canada.

The 20-page booklet is entitled "Crime in Your Community" and is intended as the first step in a campaign to make the public aware of what it can do to help prevent crimes such as house-breaking and petty thefts.

The booklets will be distributed through RCMP divisions, subdivisions and detachments to business men and shopkeepers in the eight provinces—all except Ontario and Quebec—and some 70 municipalities which the Mounties police.

"DOs" AND "DON'Ts"

The pamphlet comprises mainly "dos" and "don'ts" for security in the store, office and home. Summing up, the booklet says "Do not make things easy for the criminal" and lists these points:

1. Do not leave things lying around where a criminal can find them.
2. Do not leave your office, home or car unlocked when it is unoccupied.
3. Do not trust your safe without making sure that it is trustworthy.
4. Do not carry unnecessarily large sums of cash on your person.
5. Do not "flash" any money which you may be carrying.
6. Check the security of your premises the last thing at night.
7. Examine all your locks, bolts and screens now and renew or improve them where necessary.
8. Install a burglar alarm where practical.
9. Vary the route and time of journeys to the bank and send an escort.

GUARD YOUR HOME

For householders, the booklet says:

If you are going out for the evening: make sure all doors and windows are securely locked; leave two or three lights burning in the house to make it appear that someone is at home.

While you are asleep: a night light over your garage doors will discourage prowlers and safeguard your car and implements.

If you are going away on a visit: be sure to stop milk and newspaper deliveries so that a collection of them will not advertise your absence; notify the police so they can check your home during their patrols.

The booklet also tells how to detect counterfeit bills and coins and adds: "Good money looks good—bad money looks bad."

OFFICE SECURITY

In connection with office security, warnings are given against leaving money in unlocked cash boxes and drawers and the placing of wallets or handbags in unguarded spots.

Toilets, storerooms and casements should also be checked for intruders at closing time. Doors, skylights and windows should be securely fastened.

The booklet emphasizes the necessity of keeping careful records of office appliances such as typewriters, adding machines and electric fans.

Storekeepers are advised to make sure that persons presenting cheques are identified and to be present when cheques are endorsed.

Valuable items on tops of counters may be stolen easily, the booklet warns, and small articles attractive to juveniles should not be displayed within their reach. Frequent checking or stocktaking reduces temptation on the part of employees.

Wellington

WELLINGTON. — Miss Marilyn Callow spent the past week in Toronto. While there, she attended the Ice Follies and spent several days with Miss Marion Dales.

Mr. and Mrs. Garrett Harris spent the week-end in Toronto. They also attended the Ice Follies.

Mr. John Palmer, Paris, was the guest af his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Palmer over the week-end.

No wonder Dutch Ainsworth has a great big smile these days. His Midget hockey team has started the play-offs just as they finished their scheduled games with a win. They won over Stirling on Friday night at the Arena here. The Bantams also won their first game in the play-offs.

Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Shannon and Mr. and Mrs. Norman Denard were Thursday evening dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Ross.

Mrs. Clayton Tice, in company with her nephews Jerry and Maurice McCall, Napanee, leave this Saturday by motor for Fort Lauderdale, Florida, where she will be guest of Mrs. Grant Wenkstern.

Mrs Tom Boyle was hostess at an afternoon tea on Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. C. H. Greer spent several days in Kingston and was a guest at the golden wedding celebrations at Joyceville, on Tuesday of her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Donaldson.

The Student Council of the W.C.S. held a moccasin dance in the Arena on Saturday night. A nice crowd attended.

Mrs. William Bowers, Lakeshore Road, is a patient in the Trenton Memorial Hospital, having undergone a serious operation on Saturday evening. Hope she will soon be home again.

Master Donnie Ogilvy spent the week-end in Bloomfield, with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Way.

Mr. Ross Bovay of Ottawa, spent the week-end at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Bovay.

After spending some considable time here and visiting other relatives elsewhere, Mrs. Mathers, sister of Mrs. Tom Boyle, has returned to her home in Winnipeg.

Mrs. Hugh East, and Mrs. Colin Lane recently entertained jointly at six tables of supper bridge at Maple Inn, Bloomfield. The pretty favors were presented to Mrs. Harold Fitzgerald for high score, Mrs. Gair, second high. Mrs. Evans received the lucky prize and Mrs. King the travelling prize.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. James Strong on the birth of their baby son, born in Ottawa, February 4th. Mrs. Strong is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don MacDonald of Wellington.

ST. ANDREW'S GUILD

The regular meeting of St. Andrew's Guild was held at the home of Mrs. Colin Lane with the president, Mrs. S. Tripp, in the chair.

The treasurer gave her report and dues were collected.

Mrs. Fitzgerald was appointed convener for the St. Valentine's tea, February 14. It was decided to have a card party or supper on March 17, definite plans to be made at the next meeting. The meeting was closed by the Rev. C. P. Heaven.

The hosters served tea, assisted by Mrs. Gair and Nancy Lane, after which a social half hour was spent.

MOCCASIN DANCE

On Saturday evening the Students' Council of the W.C.S., held a moccasin dance at the Wellington Arena. This was the first dance of its kind held in Wellington for several years. Mr. McMaster supervised the dance which was kept lively by "Paul Jones," "a multiplication dance," a "Virginia Reel" and "The Bunny Hop."

Mr. Clifford Channel kindly ran the record player.

Everyone went home after having such a good time and thinking that this should be done more often.

Mrs. George Baitley returned home on Sunday after spending the past week in Ottawa with her sister, Mrs. William Hirst, and Mr. Hirst. While there, her nephew, Billy Hirst, after being home from the Civic Hospital for about ten days, was returned once again to the hospital. Billy has spent the most part of the last eight months in the Ottawa Civic Hospital.

REMANDED TWO WEEKS

WHITBY (CP—John Wiebe, 32, of nearby Rosebank, Tuesday was remanded two weeks on a charge of manslaughter. He was charged in connection with the highway death last Saturday of David Hood, 37, also of Rosebank. Hood was struck by a car while walking along the highway, police said.

ALMOST LOST EAR

HAMILTON (CP) — An Italian immigrant, alleged to have almost bitten off the ear of another immigrant, was remanded until Friday when he appeared in court Tuesday on a charge of aggravated assault. The accused, Da Pietroniro, 20, was charged following a street fight between two men Jan. 15 in which Orlando Verticchio, 22, had his ear severely bitten. Doctors used 150 small stitches to sew together Verticchio's ear.

St. Margaret's Guild Marks 5th Anniversary

The members of St. Margaret's Guild gathered at the home of Mrs. F. R. Clarke on Monday evening to observe the fifth anniversary of the organization of the Guild.

The president Mrs. F. E. Moore, opened the meeting and conducted a short business session. Names of the new group leaders, together with their committees and duties were announced by the secretary, Mrs. F. R. Clarke.

The leaders are Mrs. A. Watson, Mrs. D. Angus Mrs. R. Bailey and Mrs. F. Platt.

Mr. Curtis Smout the representative of the Weils organization, who is working in the Parish, spoke briefly of the history of the organization and how they work.

The meeting was then turned over to Mrs. A. Watson and her committee who had arranged games.

Refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. J. Ritchie, who made and served the "birthday cake."

RESCUED TWICE

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Mrs. Kelvin Alezxander had just led her three children to safety from their burning home Tuesday when the youngest, two - year - old Anna, turned and ran back into the house. Mrs. Alexander, noticing the little girl was not with the other children, ran back and rescued her from a smoke-filled room on the second floor.

Bringing Up Baby

Hints Collected by Mrs. Dan Gerber (Mother of 5)

Browsing through some old magazine and newspaper clippings the other day, I came upon this charming, anonymous poem. Am certain I was saving it to show somebody—

When Junior's up to tricks all day
My patience certainly wears thin,
But once he's in his crib, I say
"My, what an angel he has been."

Active "into everything" toddlers need plenty of proteins to further growth, develop sturdy muscles, strong bone and body structures. Gerber's Junior Meats are rich in these basic "body-building" materials. Made from juicy cuts, they have a tender, evenly-minced texture that tots with a few teeth can manage with a maximum of pleasure, a minimum of trouble. 100% meat, they have the natural, true-meat flavors baby enjoyed so much in Gerber's Strained Meats. Beef, Veal, Pork, Liver & Bacon and Lamb to keep your baby's appetite bright.

Feet-loose. Toddler's feet grow so fast, the life-span of socks is pretty short. Economy note: the new nylon stretchable socks that stretch to suit growing feet. Last for inches and inches.

• • •

"Second helping" luncheon suggestion:

SWEET POTATO CUSTARD
1 cup Gerber's Junior Sweet Potatoes
¼ cup orange juice
3 tablespoons sugar
1 egg, slightly beaten . . . salt

Combine ingredients, pour into greased custard cups. Set cups in pan of hot water. Bake at 350°F, 35 minutes. 2 servings . . . both equally lip-smacking.

Stain-less story! This from a column-reading mother: cod-liver oil stains are more easily removed if you rub spots with a bit of baby's talc before washing garments.

So-Ed Club Plans Spring Series

The executive of the Belleville So-Ed Club held a meeting during the past week and all arrangements were completed for the spring series which will commence on February 16.

This will be the first So-Ed Club in Belleville and is being formed under the direction of the Y's Men's Club. The committee members are Jim Pearson, Barb Bennett, Archie Boyd, Bill Campbell, Ron Elmy, Carol Holgate, Fred Kelly John Luscombe, Jean Vickers, Beth Wilbur Bert Hiles and Margaret-Ann Weddell.

'So-Ed', which stands for Social Education, has been most successful in numerous YMCA's across Canada, since it offers young adults a chance to increase their knowledge, share their interests with others, and to make new firends.

The series will run for a period of eight Wednesdays. The evening will be divided into three parts: first, a speaker; then an interest hour, and finally a social period.

The Belleville So-Ed is expected to be successful since they have procured excellent speakers who will give talks on timely and interesting subjects for young adults. "Ball room dancing", under the direction of Mr. Harry Morrison, of Morrison's Dance Studio; "Know Your Car", under the instruction of Mr. Ardell Wilson of BCIVS; "Bridge for Beginners", instructed by Mr. Bob Murphy of the Belleville Bridge club; and "Photography for Beginners", under the direction of the Belleville Camera club, are the activities scheduled for the interest hour. A social period of dancing and refreshments will wind up the evening.

The first meeting on Wednesday, February 16, will be an open meeting to all young adults who feel they may be interested in So-Ed. The guest speaker will be Mr. Arnold Ward, adult program secretary of the YMCA National Council. Mr. Ward's topic will be "What So-Ed Means to You."

Ghee: What It Is

Probably most Americans know ghee only as India's staple shortening, into which the government plans to convert some of its vast surplus of butter now held in storage.

Ghee is obtained by boiling butter to evaporate the water and by discarding the solid residue, says the New York Times. This process is perhaps made clearer when one understands that butter is 80 per cent fat and 20 per cent such non-fat materials as water, protein.

Ghee is the all-fat (80 per cent) portion of butter. It is valued by French chefs, who call it clarified butter, because once the moisture is removed from the shortening it does not spatter in the frying pan.

Fresh ghee has a sweet, nutty savor, a spokesman for the Indian Consulate General here asserted. But, he said, an unfavorable opinion of the butter product might be obtained by anyone who had purchased it at an Indian bazaar where it has been kept too long. Normally, it may be stored without refrigeration for some weeks High temperatures necessary in processing render ghee semi-sterile.

Usually flavoring agents are not added to ghee, although in some localities the product may be salted or seasoned with the leaves of the betel vine, relative to betel palms, the nut of which is chewed by East Indians as a stimulant.

When ghee cools, it solidifies into a granulated mixture. Liquid or solid, it is used not only as a shortening but also as a spread for an Indian version of cornbread and in many other ways.

Usually ghee is used fairly soon after processing, but on rare occasions it may be kept for a considerable period of time — there is mention even of ghee that is 100 years old. At that venerable age, the ghee has a reddish hue because of a mold that forms on it, and it is said to have almost no taste.

DIES IN CRASH

BRANTFORD (CP) — Anthony Zebroski, 62, was killed Tuesday in a two-car collision at the junction of highways 2 and 52 near here. His car collided with an auto driven by Edward Gooding.

Large Audience Enjoys Scottish Concert

The Scottish concert presented by the Rednersville United church choir members under the leadership of Mrs. T. F. Townsend (R.M.T.) was enjoyed by a large audience.

The first half of the program opened with the choir singing "The Welcome", all joining in "Auld Lang Syne" and part singing of "Afton Waters". The male voices were heard in two numbers "John Peel", and "Awa Lads Awa", followed by the solo, "My Ain Folk" by Mrs. T. F. Townsend. A fine piano duet was given by Mr. and Mrs. E. MacKay. Mr. L. Fraser contributed two solos in Scottish dialect. Mrs. Townsend was heard in two readings, "To a Louse", from Robert Burns, and "He Was Scotch and so was She." Mr. C. Hillman sang "The Toorie on His Bonnet", also a solo part in "Loch Lomond". This was followed by the round "Scotland's Burning". Again the men of the choir were heard in three numbers "Only Not Today"; "Three Little Kittens"; and "Annie Laurie".

In part two a treble clef chorus gave "Robin Adair," and Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Townsend sang "The Crookit Baubea". A piano solo, "Medley of Scottish Melodies", by Mrs. W. Howell was much enjoyed.

Mrs. T. F. Townsend sang "My Ain Wee House", giving an introduction in Scottish dialect. The bagpipe selections and the pictures of Bonnie Scotland were a delight to all present.

The entire audience attempted the Scottish slogan "If ye can say 'It's a braw bricht moonlicht nicht, Yer all richt, ye ken'."

The Rev. T. F. Townsend acting as chairman, thanked all taking part in a successful event. A special vote of thanks was tendered to the Mitchell Brothers of Rossmore for several bagpipe selections and to Miss Barbara Redner for the pictures of Bonnie Scotland.

Front Road United W.A. Formulates Plans

The regular meeting of the Front Road United church W.A. was held at the home of Mrs. G. Clazie and Mrs. Roy Clazie. The president opened the meeting, reading a Scripture poem, "God's Family," and important dates of February. Business period was conducted.

The secretary-treasurer gave her report and read letters of thanks. The ladies decided to hold a "White Elephant" table at the next meeting. All members are asked to please bring an article for the table.

At this point, members exchanged Valentines.

Mrs. Clinton Brown collected the flower fund.

Mrs. T. J. Brown led a splendid devotional and used as her topic, "The Friend". The Scripture from St. Luke was read by Mrs. W. C. Mitchell. A reading "Definition of a Friend", was given by Mrs. Geddes Bradshaw.

Mrs. G. Clazie read from the folder. "God is Our Friend" was read by Mrs. Clinton Brown.

Mrs. Clifford Reid gave a talk on her trip, and showed pictures of the trip.

The next meeting is to be held at Mrs. Clifford Reid's.

The lunch committee for next month includes, Mrs. T. Brown, Mrs. C. Grass, Mrs. Noble Brown and Miss L. Bradshaw.

The president closed the meeting. The hostess and her committee served refreshments.

WANTS NAME BACK

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Liberace's mother wants the name back.

Mrs. Frances Casadonte, 62, mother of pianist Wladziu Liberace told Superior Court Tuesday she married Alexander Casadonte following a divorce from Samuel Liberace. Casadonte died several years ago. She said she wants to be lowing a divorce from Samuel Liberace because the difference in last names often causes confusion.

Club Activities

UNITED CHURCH M.B.

The Frankford United church Sunbeam Mission Band met in Rose Lowery Hall, with a new leader, Mrs. Fred Conley.

The first meeting of 1955 was opened with lighting of the candles by Mrs. Conley. Colleen Chase read the call to worship. Caroline Carlisle read the Scripture. Eleanor Beach led in prayer and a poem was read by Bonnie Rowe.

A business period followed. There were 18 members and two visitors present.

Election of officers was then held and the following girls were elected: president, Caroline Carlisle; secretary, Bonnie Rowe; treasurer, Donna Chase; pianist, Judy Whitmore and Eleanor Beach secretary for the "World Friends.

The Mission Band will meet every second Wednesday of the month. The program committee for the next meeting includes Caroline Carlisle and Bonnie Rowe.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

MADDENING QUESTION . . . "WHAT NUMBER IS THIS?"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My brother says that when you are making a telephone call and think you have a wrong number, it's quite all right to say "What number is this?" I think this sounds rude, and silly too, because if you have a wrong number why ask what wrong number you have. (Do I make myself clear, Mrs. Beeckman?) I maintain that it's more polite, and more sensible too, to say, "Is this Main 1-2345?" Then, if it isn't, simply say "I'm sorry." Who is right about this? — A.H.

You are right . . . completely right. And I'm so glad you asked this excellent question, for it's devastatingly boring to answer the telephone and hear someone say, maddeningly, "What number is this?" (The voice always seems to have an accusing tone, as if to insist that the person answering had no right to answer that number!) Usually of course the mistake is made because the person has dialed the wrong number, and therefore he or she should be extra polite and considerate in asking for pardon . . . "I'm so sorry" or "Please excuse me. . . . I have the wrong number" or when the hour is quite early or quite late, "I'm so sorry. . . . I apparently have the wrong number, and I do apologize for having disturbed you."

CUPS AT LUNCHEON

Dear Mrs. Breeckman:

Please tell me: When a thick soup is served at luncheon, is it a 'must' that it is served in a soup bowl or a soup plate? In other words, is it correct for me to serve a thick soup in a soup cup at luncheon? — Isabelle M.

It is correct to use soup cups at luncheon, no matter what the soup to be served, whether a thick soup or a clear soup.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

WANTS TO GIVE UP EVERYTHING FOR A "BASEMENT BARGAIN"

"If your answer is what I am thinking, we will be Mr. and Mrs. by June."

This sentence is the postscript to a letter I have received from a woman who has practically made up her mind to marry a man whom her friends call "a basement bargain," and is willing to give up family friends and anything else her marriage to him would require her to give up.

She tells me that she has "a fair education and other things in life that make a nice home and good living, while this person I love only went as far as the third grade and has nothing . . It makes no difference to me if he can't read or write, and I am willing to buy him some of the things he needs, because I feel he will go to work once he sees that he has someone to love. My having a better education, or a new car, has nothing to do with our happiness.

"This man also loves me, but he feels out of place in my world because we are so far apart in education, home background and so forth.

"We see each other a lot, but not with my friends, because they won't accept him. I have had to break off several meetings with my friends because of him, and I realize it's not good business to run out on friends I've known for years, but they openly refuse to remain in his presence. I know they can't understand, but I am in love with this 'bum,' and think the world of him and I need him.

"I am willing to do anything to keep my love. Even if it means living in a one-room house, or not having a car, it's okay by me. I know he can never get any place in this world, but I am willing to accept life as he offers it.

"I know my family would not approve, but I am not asking them to run my life or to judge my happiness for me. All I want is to be happy, even if it means losing everything, including my friends and maybe my family, too.

"My friends say I would be getting a basement bargain if I married this man, but basement bargain or not, what would you take—love, or pass it up in the hope of another chance later, which may or may not come?"

Then comes the postscript I have quoted at the beginning, which obviously suggests that this woman assumes I will tell her to go ahead and marry her "basement bargain." Oddly enough, however, elsewhere in her letter she says she wants to know what I think about the matter "because your answer, and your answer alone, will tell how things go." Could this mean that, in spite of the bold front she is putting up, she actually has her secret doubts? I believe so.

However that may be, she is quite, quite wrong if she thinks I am going to tell her to go ahead and marry the man. On the contrary, what I am going to say is that she will make the biggest mistake of her life if she marries him, and that, if she does, it will be a very short time indeed before she realizes it. How lonely she will be then, if she has cut herself off from family and friends!

How old she and the man are, she doesn't say. But I feel certain he is plenty old enough to have begun to make something of his life by now, if he is ever going to do it. She, herself, does not believe he ever will, for, having read her letter, you will remember that she says in so many words: "I know he can never get anywhere in this world." I can assure her that, if she became the wife of a man she already is willing to call a "bum", she would get very, very tired of taking entire responsibility of their life together.

In a part of her letter which I did not quote she tells me that she is in show business; that she came to the city where she now is about six months ago and "decided to settle down for a spell." My advice to her is that, if she can find an opportunity to pursue her career in show business anywhere in the United States, she had better get up and go there immediately, leaving this chap behind and letting her departure mean the end of any relationship between them. Unless she wants to ruin not only her career, but her entire life as well, she had better move fast.

Beauty

LEMONS FOR THE BEAUTY SHELF

Your diet should include citrus fruits. They are rich in vitamin C.

For the preservation of good looks, and for overcoming some minor beauty difficulties, you should keep lemons in your refrigerator. They have wonderful cosmetic value.

Lemon juice has a mild bleaching effect, is a friend to the girl who has freckles on her nose. Three tablespoonfuls of juice should be added to one tablespoonful of peroxide. Apply with a pledget of cotton, let it dry.

No external application has any effect on the sallow complexion that must be treated from within. Here, again lemons are a help. Before breakfast, take unsweetened lemonade. It works like a charm in many cases.

The noble housewife, fighting dirt day in and day out, should plunge her fingers in the pulp of a lemon. It will remove stains left after preparing vegetables and fruit.

For the girl with oily hair, a lemon rinse is a blessing. After a shampoo, she should half fill the washbowl with warm water, add three tablespoonfuls of lemon juice, pour the water over her hair, distributing it thoroughly.

Her hair will have lustre, every shaft will be fluffy. With the hair scrupulously clean, the wave set will endure from one shampoo to the next, ringlets will stay curled.

Pot Roast and Apple Dumplings

By Mary Moore

There's something extra soul- and stomach-satisfying about this type of meal.

You start at 9 o'clock in the morning doing the preliminaries for a meal to be served at 6 p.m.

POT ROASTED CHUCK

I had bought a boned and rolled chuck roast at 45c per lb. weighing a little over 4 lbs. and costing $2.03. Here was a really tough cut on which to test the efficacy of that tenderizer powder. On the hour every hour during the morning I sprinkled the surfaces of the meat with it, poking with a 2-tined fork to let the papaya enzyme penetrate (the tenderizing activating agent is vegetable enzyme from tropical papaya melon).

At 2.30 p.m., I started searing the meat using my large pressure cooker as the pot (without using pressure at any time), having dredged the meat with seasoned flour and adding about 2 tablespoons dripping to the pot. This searing on all sides required 1-2 hour. Then I added 3 tablespoons boiling water, laid on the cover, turned the heat to simmer. After that every hour for three hours I turned the meat over or around.

By six o'clock the meat was lovely and tender. I made rich brown gravy from the juices that had been extracted from it, by stirring in flour and water paste. No extra salt or pepper was needed.

This sliced satisfactorily and was tender enough for the finickiest tender-steak addicts. I have two minor complaints: (1) chuck roast normally does not have enough fat on the surface to suit me, (2) when this meat was sliced cold it lacked the lovely pink moistness of rare-done roast beef, although I must add that the tenderizer gave it a pretty rosy hue.

All in all it was satisfactory and would be completely so for those of you who don't eat fat and who prefer their meat well done at all times.

OLD-FASHIONED APPLE DUMPLINGS

Here is a recipe for your permanent file. Marianne turned here eyes full on me when she had taken a couple of spoonfuls and quietly said "I guess it's another cock-eyed knock-out isn't it Mum?" This emphatic slangy talk is quoting Pete as you may have guessed, but it sounds so strange in her gentle voice.

Make good pie pastry. For 6 dumplings 2 cups stirred flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 2-3 cup shortening, 4 1-2 to 5 tablespoons water; for 4 dumplings 1 1-2 cups stirred flour, 3-4 teaspoon salt, 1-2 cup shortening, 3 1-2 to 4 tablespoons water. Roll pastry out in oblong (or square for 4 dumplings) to 1-8 inch thickness and cut into six 7-inch squares or four squares for four. Pare and core 6 or 4 medium-sized apples (apples I used were Spies which I strongly recommend and be sure they are on the small side). Be sure to remove all little seed bundles. Place one apple on each square and fill cavity with nearly 1 tablespoon sugar and sprinkling of cinnamon and 1-2 teaspoon butter each. Bring opposite points of pastry up over apple, overlap, moisten and seal. Lift to baking dish carefully, placing about 1 inch apart. Pour around syrup: (for 6) boil together 1 cup sugar, 2 cups water, 3 tablespoons butter, 1-4 teaspoon cinnamon. (For 4) 2-3 cup sugar, 1 1-2 cups water, 2 tablespoons butter, 1-4 teaspoon cinnamon. Bake at 425 deg. Fahr. 40 to 45 minutes. Serve warm with syrup from dish spooned over and pass pouring cream. I hope you love me for this.

Wife Preservers

If you like your lemon pie tart, add more grated lemon rind instead of more juice to the filling.

Clean, Freshen Refrigerator with SODA

Just sprinkle soda on a damp cloth and wipe inner surfaces. Wash ice trays in soda solution—3 tablespoons to a quart of warm water. Leaves no soapy odour. Recommended by leading refrigerator manufacturers.

wherever they go second to none

Tough, skilled, alert, the men of Canada's Infantry are a proud lot. Wherever they have gone they have earned the reputation of being second to none among the fighting men of the world.

Service in the Infantry is action-packed. Young men who are looking for adventure, who are tough enough to meet the challenge, will find a splendid future in the Infantry. They will receive thorough training in a wide variety of trades and skills. They will find that in the Infantry there is every opportunity for advancement for the man who really wants to get ahead.

In Europe, Canada's Infantry soldiers are on guard with the soldiers of other free nations in the great job of preserving peace. They are doing an outstanding job . . . a job of which Canadians can be justly proud.

In the Northlands of our own country, Infantry soldiers are training under extreme conditions . . . learning the problems of winter warfare. Here, as wherever they go, Canada's Infantry soldiers are showing their superiority.

In Korea, Infantry soldiers have fought and now stand on guard under a completely different set of conditions . . . further indication of how they are trained to be ready . . . wherever . . . whenever they are needed.

Thorough training, under highly qualified instructors, in the use of all types of weapons . . . rifles, pistols, bazookas, grenades, flame throwers, machine guns and mortars, is given every Infantryman.

England, Germany, across Canada, Korea and Japan. Wherever he goes the Canadian Soldier is making new friends and renewing old ties. He is adding to his reputation and Canada's.

To be eligible you must be 17 to 40 years of age, skilled tradesmen to 45. When applying bring birth certificate or other proof of age.

MADOC

G. Conductress Visits Order Of Eastern Star

MADOC — Mrs. Lillias Turriff, Associate Grand Conductress of the Order of the Eastern Star of Ontario, was guest Inspection Officer at Madoc Chapter on Thursday evening.

Mrs. Turriff, who has been Grand Secretary of the O.E.S. for 19 years, is well known throughout Ontario and the hearty applause following her welcome by the Worthy Matron was a good indication that all present were delighted to have her with them.

VISITORS PRESENT

Other Grand Officers who were presented and welcomed were: Mrs. Edna Dobbs, Grand Martha; Mrs. Ruby Fleming, secretary-treasurer of the Grand Benevolent Committee; and Mrs. Ida Broad, District Deputy Grand Matron of District No. 12.

Among the many other visitors were five Past District Deputy Grand Matrons and 15 presiding Matrons and Patrons from other Chapters in the district. A bus load of 29 members from Peterborough as well as others from Bancroft, Port Hope, Trenton, Belleville, Wellington, Tweed, Havelock and Marmora received a welcome that was warm in every sense of the word.

The Worthy Matron, Mrs. E. T. Naylor, was most gracious and sincere in her greetings to all who were presented and was heartily seconded by the Worthy Patron, Mr. Naylor.

In her remarks following the regular Chapter meeting, Mrs. Turriff gave a kindly criticism of the work exemplified and of the Chapter in general, and complimented both officers and members for their efficiency and apparent spirit of co-operation.

CORSAGES PRESENTED

Corsages of roses and carnations were presented to the Grand Officers and to the Chapter Officers. On behalf of the Chapter, Mrs. Jack Baker, Associate Matron, presented Mrs. Turriff with a beautiful Belgian crystal vase.

The social hour and refreshments following the meeting provided a happy ending to an interesting and successful inspection.

Wallbridge

WALLBRIDGE. — Service on Sunday evening was not well attended. Rev. W. E. Dovey gave an inspiring message on "War and Peace." Next Sunday's service will be at 11.15 a.m.

W.A. held its pot-luck dinner in the dining hall on Wednesday. In the afternoon instead of the usual W.A. and W.M.S. meeting the time was taken up discussing the new oil furnace which is to be installed as the furnace they bought is not large enough to provide sufficient heat for the church.

Mr. Gordon Carr and Miss Isabel Galbraith, of Trenton, spent Sunday evening with Mrs. Dorothy Wannemaker and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Pound and son, Dale were Friday evening tea guests with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harris.

At the time of writing' the weatherman has brought some quite mild weather which is appreciated by all. Wallbridge was in the news last week where 20 below zero registered. (plenty cold). Guess old Bruin saw his shadow so there will still be six more weeks of winter, but one consolation spring is not far off.

Mr. and Mrs. Coleman Townsend and sons, Ralph and Douglas of Halloway, were tea hour guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Garrison.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Maloney nee Jane Ketcheson, of Guelph, on the arrival of a bouncing baby boy, Peter Laurence. Her mother, Mrs. Laurence Ketcheson spent a few days at their home

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Garrison called on Mr. Samuel Kelley, and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Best, of Halloway, on Sunday afternoon.

Madoc Junction

MADOC JUNCTION — Mr. and Mrs. William McMullen spent a couple of days last week in Toronto and visited with the latter's aunt, Mrs. F. Hoard, who is a patient in the Toronto General Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Forde Stapley, Beverley and Glenn called on Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Ashley on Sunday afternoon.

Wayne and Keith McMullen spent Thursday and Friday of last week, with their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McMullen.

Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Ashley and Sandra of Batawa, were Sunday supper guests at the home of the former's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Ashley.

Friends here were sorry to learn that Mr. Frank Sarles suffered a heart attack and was taken to the Belleville General Hospital on Sunday morning.

Mr. Clarence Fitchette and Master Lloyd Clancy called on Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Ashley, on Wednesday afternoon.

Master Keith McMullen spent Thursday with his little friend, Master Lin Stapley.

Mr. and Mrs. William McMullen also Mr. James McDonnell spent a day this week in Toronto visiting the latter's sister, Mrs. F. Hoard.

Master Wayne McMullen spent Thursday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Nelson.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Stapley: Mr. Maurice Clancy; Mr. and Mrs. William McMullen; Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McMullen spent Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Nelson.

EGGLETON Y.P.U.

On Friday evening the Eggleton Y.P.U. held a successful skating party at the Stirling Arena, with members from the Stirling, Mount Pleasant - Bethel and Wellman's Young People's groups in attendance.

After a couple of hours of skating same 50 members of more journeyed out to the Eggleton school house.

All took part in a round of singing with Miss Gladys Clarke, as leader and Miss Joanne Reide as pianist.

Miss Clarke contributed several musical numbers on her accordion which were greatly enjoyed.

Valentine cards cut in two were then matched for partners for refreshment time consisting of various kinds of dainty sandwiches, cakes, pickles, cheese and hot coffee.

Mr. Ralph Johnson, on behalf of the visiting groups, thanked the Eggleton Y.P.U. for the happy evening and refreshments. The meeting was closed by Rev. W. G. Fletcher of Rawdon Circuit.

Miss Joyce Cranston and Mr. Keith Clancy visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Clancy Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Fitchett visited Mr. and Mrs. Ramsay Cooney, Frankford Road, on Sunday afternoon.

Misses Audrey Stapley and Sharon Reide were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Harlow on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Clancy and Lloyd were Sunday supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Clancy of Wellman's.

RELIEF PROMISED
For Arthritic and Rheumatic Pain
New relief without pills by greaseless, odourless, stainless cream.

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—Discovery of an entirely new method of relieving pain has been announced here. Science has now developed a cream that acts in a new way to bring relief from arthritic, rheumatic and muscular aches and pains. Sold under the brand name "InfraRUB," this new odourless and greaseless cream relieves these pains without the need of pills and other internal medicines.

InfraRUB does not merely set up a surface irritation but penetrates the "skin barrier"—goes to work to relieve pain deep down in muscles and joints. The bloodstream carries the soothing medication right to the seat of trouble where it actually helps drive away pain—causing congestion and pressure.

Another feature of InfraRUB that appeals to so many people is its ease of application. No long and painful rubbing is necessary as InfraRUB penetrates in a few seconds and vanishes with a moment's light massage.

InfraRUB leaves no oily film or pungent objectionable odour on the skin. Users find they are able to put on clothing in complete safety immediately after application.

Written medical reports on the success of this new help for patients suffering from rheumatic and arthritic pains and general muscular aches and pains have been prepared, based on hundreds of cases in British and French hospitals. InfraRUB users claim almost immediate relief from rheumatic and arthritic pains, sore muscles and joints.

Now for the first time, InfraRUB can be obtained without a prescription from your local drug store for only $1.39. InfraRUB is guaranteed to give hours of comforting relief from arthritic, rheumatic and muscular aches and pains or your money refunded in full.

Kremlin Decides to Return To Stalin's Foreign Policy

By DON DALLAS
Former Moscow Correspondent

LONDON (Reuters) —"Back to Stalin in foreign policy" is the new note sounded by the Kremlin now that Premier Malenkov has been thrown overboard. It follows a reversion to the economic policies of the Stalin era.

Foreign Minister Molotov sounded the new-old note in foreign affairs during the course of his 15,000-word keynote policy declaration before the Supreme Soviet Tuesday.

Molotov, only member of the triumvirate which took over on Stalin's death to remain two years later a top policy director, served for many years under Stalin as foreign minister, then under Malenkov. He retains the post as Marshal Nikolai Bulganin takes over as prime minister.

HONEYED TONES GONE

In Molotov's speech Tuesday, gone were the honeyed tones toward the West which marked the "peaceful coexistence" era of Malnkov. In their place was the sharp bark of the Stalinist era.

"There is a deep gulf between us, the partisans of a lasting peace, and our opponents," he asserted. He made no new major effort to bridge it.

Russia, said Molotov, will answer the projected rearmament of western Germany by helping to rearm the Communist states of Europe.

And with ratification of the Paris agreements, he added, Britain and France will themselves have repudiated and annulled their wartime friendship and mutual assistance pacts with the Soviet union. In this case, he warned, the threat of a new war would become "much graver."

The solution for Formosa?

"The United States must withdraw from Taiwan (Formosa) and from the Taiwan straits all its armed forces, including air and naval forces. Then hostilities will cease in the Far East and peace will prevail."

Significantly, Molotov restored to the "imperialist" category Sir Winston Churchill.

Said Molotov: "The speeches of Churchill are full of hankering after the past. . . . He represents the same longings as all other imperialists who want only one thing —to rule over the world."

In continuing press comment, the London Daily Herald, a Labor party newspaper, describes Nikita Khrushchev, Communist party secretary who seems emerging in a dominating role, as "the man who puts steel before butter and ammunition before the Russian people's appetites."

Western Europe's non-Communist press takes the view that the new regime presages more hardships for the Soviet people, and several West German newspapers see Malenkov's departure from power as a blow to western hopes of negotiating an end to the cold war.

However, Chancellor Konrad Adenauer said Malenkov's fall had blighted the hopes of West German rearmament's foes that the Soviet union would come to terms on German reunification.

London's Liberal paper, the News Chronicle, says Malenkov's downfall may speed the retirement of Churchill, who has described a lasting peace as "this last great prize I seek to win." The News Chronicle says the old man—now 80—may "now decide that the ride of world events is running too fiercely against him and be reconciled to retirement in the immediate future."

U.S. Officials Expect Malenkov Will Lose Life

By WARREN ROGERS, Jr.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some American officials who study the ways of the Kremlin believe that Soviet Premier Malenkov, who lost his job Tuesday, is destined also to lose his life.

They hold to this view despite surface indications from Moscow that the resigned premier remains on good terms with Soviet rulers and plans to take on another government post.

These officials see it as only a question of time until Malenkov is done away with. This would be in the tradition of Joseph Stalin, whose way of doing things apparently is back in vogue in the Kremlin.

The struggle for Stalin's mantle goes on just the same, as American sources see it. They figure Nikita S. Khrushchev, the tough Ukrainian Bolshevik, is the No. 1 man in the Kremlin. Nikolai Bulganin, named to succeed Malenkov as premier, is regarded as a figurehead.

Khrushchev, who teamed with Malenkov to purge police chief Lavrenty P. Beria in June, 1953, is conceded now to have the upper hand.

Malenkov is expected to disappear but no repetition is expected of the bulldozing way in which Beria was liquidated.

Stalin's way was more subtle: Hang a trap on him—in Malenkov's case it was confessed "inexperience" leading to failure to cope with the farm problem—put him to work at odd jobs until the heat cools, then erase him.

That was the way Stalin got rid of a prime rival some 20 years ago.

He was Alexei I. Rykov, chairman of the Soviet Council of People's Commissars from 1924, when Lenin died and the struggle for his mantle began, until 1930. Deposed and succeeded by Stalin, Rykov floated about until March, 1938.

Then he was executed, after being accused of sabotaging industry and agriculture.

Meanwhile, diplomatic officials here look for an intensification of the cold war between the Communist bloc and the free world as a result of the Moscow shakeup.

A major objective of Soviet foreign policy in the next few weeks is expected to be the blocking of West German rearmament under agreements nearing final approval stages.

Canada's Only Executioner May Give Evidence

OTTAWA (CP)—The parliamentary committee on capital punishment soon will debate whether to ask Canada's only executioner to appear as a witness.

Some members of the 27-member Commons-Senate committee have indicated they feel the hangman should be called to testify. Others have taken an opposite view.

The steering sub-committee was asked Tuesday to fix a date for the debate. It is not known yet whether this will be a public meeting.

The question was raised at the first public meeting this session of the committee, which is studying whether the Criminal Code's sections on capital and corporal punishment and lotteries should be amended.

A similar group last session did not complete its work before prorogation and asked Parliament to appoint another committee this session.

HANGMAN WILLING

The first committee received a letter from the hangman—whose identity is secret—saying he was willing to appear before it as a witness.

The executioner is Quebec's official hangman. Other provinces pay for his services when a death sentence must be carried out.

Harold Winch (CCF—Vancouver East) said the question of bringing the hangman might sound objectionable to some committee members but it was important that the executioner be heard on the matter of capital punishment.

The committee also decided to hear evidence from prisoners who have undergone corporal punishment but set no machinery to obtain the evidence.

Mr. Winch said he interviewed 11 prisoners who had undergone corporal punishment at the British Columbia penitentiary in New Westminster and was told they did not regard whipping as a deterrent to crime.

He said it is vital the committee hear evidence from persons who have undergone corporal punishment.

National Gallery Director Named

TORONTO (CP — Allan Hepburn Jarvis, a 39-year-old native of Brantford, has been appointed director of the National Gallery of Canada.

Mr. Jarvis, whose appointment was announced here Tuesday night by Charles P. Fell, chairman of the National Gallery's board of trustees, will take up his post in Ottawa May 1 after 14 years in Britain.

He will succeed Dr. H. O. McCurry, who reached retirement age last August but agreed to remain in office until a new director was chosen.

Routine Matters Scheduled In Ont. Legislature

TORONTO (CP)—Routine matters were scheduled today as the Ontario legislature settled down to consideration of the province's business.

A resume of what the government proposes to do during the session was given Tuesday in the speech from the throne read by Lieutenant-Governor Louis Breithaupt.

It was expected committees would be convened to allow members time for study and review of matters set out in the speech.

An "unprecedented program of construction of highways and public works" is included. The speech forecast the largest public investment in the history of the province, based on public works, highways, the St. Lawrence seaway and other projects.

The moving and seconding of the reply to the speech from the throne is expected Thursday. This will precede debate on the speech.

TRIBUTE PAID

Government and opposition leaders paid tribute Tuesday to the late lands and forests minister Gemmell who died last June, and to Robert H. Saunders, chairman of the Ontario hydro electric power commission who died last month from injuries suffered in a plane crash near London, Ont.

Mr. Frost said both men were boundless and untiring in devotion to their positions. Liberal leader Farquhar Oliver, W. J. Grummett, CCF member for Cochrane South, and J. B. Salsberg, Labor-Progressive member for Toronto-St. Andrew joined Mr. Frost in extending sympathy to the families of Mr. Gemmell and Mr. Saunders.

They also congratulated and extended best wishes to Harry Nixon, Liberal member for Brant, who recently celebrated the 35th anniversary of his election to the House.

One bill was given its first reading at the opening session. Introduced by Attorney-General Porter it is intended to repeal the Telgraph Act of 187 which dals with telegraph companies under the province's jurisdiction, of which there are none at present.

SAAR PACT IN JEOPARDY

BONN (Reuters)—The West German Refugee party, third largest of the four government coalition parties, Tuesday confirmed its intention of rejecting "under any circumstances" of the West German French Sarr agreement in its present form. The Free Democrats, second largest of the government parties, also voted recently to reject the agreement. With the 150-strong opposition Social Democrats these parties now make up a solid block of 225 votes against the Saar treaty in the 487-member house.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

TOUGH TO LOSE!

Our side lost a toughie last night, bowing to the desperate point-seeking Brockville Magedomas 3-2 in a hard-fought senior "B" battle. The Brockies crept two points closer to the Memos and thereby instituted themselves as a distinct threat for a playoff berth.

Magedomas probably never played better hockey this season than they did last night. They were inspired, could do nothing wrong and hit the hemp for three well-earned goals that stunned the 700 watchers in the pews. Howinell that team is not farther up in the standing is a mystery, if their performance last night is a criterion of their playing potential. Mr. Rodden, the Kingston statistician and crystal-gazing seer, had better take another look in that misty spheroid he favors.

The Memos battled desperately in the second and third heats but their plays were not clicking. Besides Mr. Charron, like Mr. Parisi, the respective goalies, turned in sensational efforts and thereby hangs the tale.

OLDTIMERS!

This department has had practically no co-operation with its appeal for oldtime hockey players to send in their names and addresses and as time is "awastin'" the best we can hope for is the relaying via press and radio of the fact that the Oldtimers' Hockey Association is holding a special meeting at the Engineers' Hall, Pine Street, on Sunday afternoon starting at two o'clock. We have dug up some names and have forwarded them to Sam Curry at Tweed, who will send out cards.

And just to clear up a misunderstanding that is apparent in some quarters, the Oldtimers' Association is not composed of those players who played three and four decades ago. It was decided at the meeting held a couple of weeks ago that any hockey player not now actively engaged in play is eligible. That takes in players like Cy Barriage, Don Lee, Jimmy Ethier and fellows of their age. So remember, you're welcome whether you're ninety or less as long as you have worn a Belleville uniform and are not now playing the game.

The Oldtimers' Association is anxious to reorganize its forces and all eligible are urgently requested to be present at the Sunday afternoon get-together.

FUN, EH-

New York baseball writers had a field day recently at the 32nd annual dinner, burlesquing major league expansion and lampooning big names connected with the sport. Popular tunes were parodied throughout the show to highlight baseball events of the past year.

There was a tug at the heart when a trio sang "This Ole House," a narration of the fall of Philadelphia's Connie Mack dynasty. It reached a climax with this final verse:

"This ole house knew lots of memories, this ole house knew no rebukes,
"But its old and golden memories are a-haunting us like spooks.
"This ole house once rang with laughter as we counted up the cash,
"Now it's weak from ground to rafter and we're ready for the crash.
"Ain't gonna need this house no longer, ain't gonna need this house no more.
"'Ain't got scouts to find a Bishop, Boley, Haas or Dykes, Earnshaw.
"Just can't find a Mickey Cochrane, Miller, Simmons, Grove or Foxx,
"Ain't gonna need this house no longer, sold our barrel, lock and stocks."

Leo LaBine, Boston Bruins' high scoring and colorful right-winger, rates as the No. 1 comedian around the N.H.L. circuit these days. Everywhere you go you hear the latest LaBine wisecrack or comedy situation.

Linesman Sammy Babcock tells about the night he was knocked clear over the boards and out of sight. His tumble drew considerable laughter and interest from the spectators. LaBine, who always kibitzes with officials on the ice, skated by Sammy and said: "Stop getting into the act. The people paid their way in to see the players, not the officials."

Habs' Coach Says Goals Cost $1400 Each Last Season; Sets Objective for Players

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Calculating Dick Irvin estimates it cost his Montreal Canadiens $1,400 a goal last season in the National Hockey League — but there's hope that higher production will cut the expense this season.

Irvin arrived at this figure by comparing the 195 goals Canadiens scored during the 70-game National Hockey League 1953-54 schedule with the over-all cost of Habs' hockey operation.

The current Canadien edition of almost a goal a game ahead of last season's production — 176 in 53 games thus far—and this will cut the cost per goal considerably if Habs keep up the pace.

And Irvin expects them to. At a meet-the-opposition press dinner in Toronto Tuesday, the Montreal coach said he has set an objective for each of his players this year and wants a team total of 252 goals, 16 more than the record set by the 1950-51 Detroit Red Wings.

RANGERS MEET HAWKS

Irvin's boys get a chance to add to their totals tonight, when Canadiens meet the third-place Toronto Maple Leafs at Toronto in one of two league games.

In the other at New York, the fifth-place Rangers battle the Chicago Black Hawk jinx which has a large bearing on their playoff chances.

Rangers, with 17 games to go in the current schedule, need 13 points to catch the fourth-place Boston Bruins, who now occupy the last playoff berth. And Rangers' home record against Hawks is none too good.

New York has won three out of five in Chicago, but in New York they've managed but two ties in five starts, even though they have an over-all .500 record at home.

Hank Bassen, a 22-year-old goaltender from Calgary who now is filling in for injured Al Rollins, has lost only two of his seven starts with the last-place Hawks so far.

Hawk general manager Tommy Ivan is so high on Bassen that he says Rollins, when he is fit again, will have to win back his job from the sensational rookie.

Remember When

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Joe Louis defeated Arturo Godoy of Chile in his ninth successful defence of the world heavyweight championship 15 years ago tonight at New York. He scored 16 more victories before retiring in 1948 but his attempted comeback was stopped by Ezzard Charles in 1950.

Windsor Bulldogs in Second Spot As Stratford Scalps Mercurys 4-0

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Windsor Bulldogs climbed into second place in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League for the first time this season as they dumped Chatham Maroons 7-4 Tuesday night.

Windsor took over from the falling Owen Sound Mercurys who were blanked 4-0 by the fourth-place Stratford Indians before 2,000 Owen Sound fans. In the other game Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen defeated Niagara Falls Cataracts 4-2 in Niagara Falls.

The win left Dutchies well in front of the league with 50 points. Windsor, with 53, is one ahead of the Mercs and the Indians are close behind with 50. Chatham and Niagara Falls trail with 31 and 26 points.

Rightwinger Jim Peters led the Bulldog attack with three goals for the hometown win. Bob Brown tallied twice and Ted O'Connor and Andy McCallum scored singles for the other Windsor goals. McCallum counted his marker on an empty Maroon goal in the final minute of play.

Frank Bonello, Paul Oliver, Ed Busch and George Edwards were the Maroon marksmen.

Tommy Walker made it 1-0 for Indians in the first period. Dinny Flanagan and Ron Ingram scored in the second and Flanagan tallied again in the third to end the scoring.

Kitchener held their lead over the Cataracts from the start. They jumped off to a 2-0 lead in the first period on goals by Mike Delich and Jim Logan before Eric Unger netted the Niagara Falls opener in the second session.

Bud Kemp scored for Dutchies early in the third but Bill Kodatsky got it back less than five minutes later. Ken Laufman then tallied the clincher for Kitchener while Cataracts were short-handed.

Dupas Wins Bloody Verdict Over Howard

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Flashy Ralph Dupas of New Orleans, third-ranked lightweight contender added international luster to his title ambitions Tuesday night with a bloody 10-round decision over Ritchie (Kid) Howard of Halifax. Dupas weighed 138, Howard 139½.

The speedy Dupas, a 19-year-old high school student, turned a close fight into a rout from the fifth round on. He scored almost at will in the late rounds.

After they fought on fairly even terms in the early rounds, Dupas split Howard's right eyebrow and the 24-year-old Canadian's attack was slowed by the flow of blood.

Howard, Canadian lightweight champion was unable to cope with Dupas' rapier-like left in the sixth and seventh. The New Orleans stylist scored repeatedly with left hooks and right crosses.

Judge Pete Giaruso voted seven rounds for Dupas and three for Howard, judge Phil Gaffney saw it 9-1 for Dupas and referee Eddie (Kid) Wolfe tabbed it 8-1 for Dupas with one even.

The Associated Press card had Dupas in front 7-2 with one round even.

Baseball Suit Is Dismissed

CHICAGO (AP) — A $12,000,000 anti-trust suit against 13 major league baseball clubs was formally dismissed Tuesday by U.S. district Judge Julius J. Hoffman.

A compromise settlement of $200,000 is to be paid in Dallas, Tex., to William J. Rochelle Jr., trustee for the now-defunct Liberty Broadcasting System which launched the suit Feb. 21, 1952.

The suit was filed against every major league club except Chicago White Sox, Brooklyn Dodgers and Cincinnati Redlegs.

It contended the defendants controlled and suppressed competition in the interstate broadcast of professional baseball games.

Will Harridge, president of the American League, said the case primarily involved the former major league rule which barred broadcasts of major league games in minor league cities while the minor league teams were playing at home.

The rule was rescinded in October 1951 and there has been no broadcasting rule since.

BRAVES SIGN PAFKO

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A night-time train ride from Toledo, O., landed another Milwaukee Brave veteran under contract Tuesday.

Andy Pafko, aging outfielder expected to spend considerable time in the dugout this summer, agreed to terms with general manager John Quinn en route to Milwaukee from a dinner Monday night at Toledo. Quinn declined to disclose terms, but it was believed Pafko will get $18,000, a cut from his estimated 1954 income.

Hamilton Tiger-Cat Goalie Is Hero In Team's Upset VictoryOver Teeps

By THE ANADIAN PRESS

Remember the name Dennis Riggin. Then stick Hamilton Tiger-Cubs in the back of your mind as the dark horse for the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A championship.

Riggin, the Tiger-Cub goaltender who won the title of the best netminder in the OHA Junior A last year, may be just the spark the Tiger-Cubs need to pull a few upsets in the coming playoffs—even if they don't finish any higher than their current fifth-place position.

Riggin was in top form Tuesday night as the Tiger-Cubs performed the almost unheard-of feat of defeating the defending Memorial Cup champions, St. Catharines TeePees, in St. Catharines. He held the league-leading TeePees off for two periods to inspire a 3-1 Hamilton victory—the first for the Cubs this season over the TeePees.

In Toronto, the sixth-place Galt Black Hawks pulled another upset as they walloped the favored Toronto Marlboros 5-1. Marlboros, who usually look good on Toronto ice, are fourth in the standings.

In the league's only other game, at Kitchener, the two bottom teams who have no chance of making the playoffs, met and Barrie Flyers came out on top over Kitchener-Waterloo Canucks 8-5.

A crowd of 2,336 at St. Catharines saw Riggin, aided by a bit of luck, turn back their TeePees time and again. Ken Stenlund, Gary Sharpe and Billy McNeil provided the goals. Mitch Plata broke Riggin's shutout midway through the third period.

Only 364 fans saw the Galt-Marlboro tilt in Toronto. Ron asey gave the Dukes a 1-0 lead in the first period but the Hawks, led by Duncan Brodie's two markers, surged back with five goals. Floyd Smith, Len Ronson and Bob Beckett were the other Galt snipers.

Arnold Smith scored two goals and chalked up three assists to lead Barrie's victory over the last-place Canucks, who have won only seven of their 41 games this season.

George Ranieri and Hugh Ball also notched a pair for the Flyers, with singles going to George Loveday and Jack Kane. Howie Young, Stan Baliuk, Nick Rintche and Bob White shared the Kitchener scoring.

Sun Life Pays $26 Million In Policyholder Dividends

Cost of insurance reduced. Nearly $700 million of new business sold last year, largest amount of any Canadian company.

For the sixth consecutive year, the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada is adopting new dividend scales which will substantially reduce the cost of insurance to the holders of its participating policies, according to an announcement by George W. Bourke, President, in his Annual Review of the Company's business for 1954. With this latest increase of policyholder dividends, the company will pay out in the year ahead a total of approximately $26 million — an increase of more than $2 million over the previous year. New life insurance sold last year amounted to nearly $700 million, an increase of $120 million over 1953 and again the largest figure reported by any Canadian life company. Included in this new business figure is $239 million of group insurance, representing an increase of $68 million over the previous year. Benefits paid by Sun Life during the year amounted to $134 million, and total benefits paid by the Company since its organization in 1865 now stand at $2,866 million.

$6 BILLION IN FORCE

Other highlights of the Report include a total of life insurance in force amounting to more than $6,000,000,000 during 1948 the Company passed the $4 billion mark and, during 1952 topped $5 billion. The company has now passed another mile-stone and the two-year period taken to accumulate the last billion dollars contrasts sharply with the 54 years required for the first billion. Group insurance included in the 1954 figure amounts to $1,996 million, an increase during the year of 13.9%. The proportion of insurance and annuities in force in the various countries where the company operates is now as follows: Canada, 47%; United States, 36%; Great Britain and other Commonwealth countries, 14%; elsewhere throughout the world 3%.

MORTGAGE LOANS UP

Assets of the Company now stand at $1,876 million, an increase of $48 million over 1953. Mortgage loans increased by more than any other type of investment, in keeping with Sun Life's policy of striving to further the economic and social interests of the community consistent with sound investment principles. During the year, new mortgage loans made by the Company totalled $83,000,000. Mortgage investments now total $323 million, mostly in individual homes.

In commenting on the general economic situation, Mr. Bourke remarked that a year ago there was uncertainty in some quarters regarding the outlook for 1954. Despite the keen competition that existed among the various companies, however, 1954 was a year of expansion for life insurance and particularly for Sun Life. Mr. Bourke declared that the main reason the life insurance industry continued to forge ahead, was because a life insurance policy functions like a good investment. It increases in value, it provides a return on the investment and it has a market value which can be used to provide cash for emergencies and a retirement fund for old age. Moreover it does what no other investment can do — it creates an immediate estate for the protection of home and family.

Mr. Bourke stressed the recent improvements in medical science with the ensuing rapid and continuous decline in death rates. He pointed out that accidents now account for a substantial proportion of death from all causes, especially in the younger age groups, and that Sun Life experience shows that approximately one-half of all death claims under age thirty are the results of accidents, while accidents are now the third most frequent cause of death at all ages, following heart disease and cancer. In particular he mentioned automobile accidents which account for about one-half of all accidental deaths. The hazard from this source will become greater unless accompanied by a steady improvement in the safety habits of the motoring public. Death claim records are full of tragic accidents which elementary safety precautions could have avoided.

In his concluding remarks, Mr. Bourke said that Canada's national resources should continue to support thriving industries which may well set new standards of prosperity in 1955. There should be no abatement of the national confidence, for a steady progress beneficial to everyone is to be expected. "Canada's future depends not only on its economic heritage, but on the use to which that heritage is put," he concluded. "The tasks ahead may be different. We may have to adjust to new patterns and new demands, but I am confident we will meet the challenge."

A copy of Sun Life's complete 1954 Annual Report to Policyholders, including the President's review of the year, is being sent to each policyholder, or may be obtained from K. C. Dalrymple, Branch Manager, 402 Water Street, Peterborough.

Brockville Takes 'Four-Pointer' With Well-Earned 3-2 Win Over Memos

Score Three in First Period And Never Look Behind; Memos Too Little, Too Late

By GEORGE H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

The Brockville Magedomas flashing brilliant desperation hockey grabbed a first period 3-0 lead here last night and went on to stave off a driving Belleville Memos squad to earn a well-deserved 3-2 victory.

The game was an important one for both teams and the Magedomas crept to within seven points of the fourth-place Memos.

It was fast, hard-driving hockey with the speedy Magedomas clicking both on offence and defence and disorganizing the Memos both fore and aft.

Equally desperate, the Memos drove back in the second and third periods, scoring two goals to come within striking distance, but with Paul Charron, the Brockville goalie starring, they missed several chances to make the score even. By the same token Tony Parisi in the Memos' net, was sensational at times and his sterling work kept the score to a one-goal margin.

With both teams out for victory Referees "Moon" Flanagan and Jim Crombie had an easy time. They handed out but eight penalties, all minors, with five going to the Magedomas.

The Magedomas, by the fury of their attack, caught the Memos off-stride in the first period. Their passes were clicking. Their air-tight defence in front of Charron paid off. They gave definite notice that they are a force to be reckoned with. They earned their victory.

The first period's sizzling offensive of Brockville caught the Memos offstride and the visitors kept up their offensive with Gibson scoring from M. Legris' pass at 2.05. The Magedomas kept up the pressure and four minutes later M. Legris scored in an open net. The Magedomas put on a terrific defensive effort as the Memos drove in, but Charron kicked out everything.

Clarke and Macy got the gate within minutes of each other at the 12-minute mark. Parisi was the only defence the Memos had as Brockville drove in for the kill. They were well worth the money and they made it 3-0 at 18.32 from Rockburn, M. Legris and Gibson, when the puck skidded over the line.

Hec Legris' penalty opening the second period gave the Memos a chance, but a stubborn Brockville defence kept the score intact. The Memos appeared more organized this period and they finally broke the duck egg at 13.23 when Red Doran scored on a power-play with Peter Jones and Bob Wilson.

Gibson drew a tripping penalty at 14 minutes, but the victory-hungry Magedomas held off the goal-driving Memos.

The tempo was high opening the third period and Magedomas got a break when Peter Jones got the gate. It was fast, furious hockey and finally Erwin Duncan cut the margin when he scored from brother Edwin's pass at 4.27 on a fine backhand shot.

Wade got the gate at 5.40 but Jones, Doran, Macy, and Wade put on a fine penalty killing job to keep the Maggies off the score board.

The Magedomas drove hard to protect the one-goal lead while the Memos struck hard for the equalizer. It was nip-and-tuck hockey.

Rockburn got the gate at 16.46 for charging. The desperate Magedomas blasted back every attack the Memos threw at them.

A puck hit the Brockville net and at 18.49 Thomson drew a penalty for falling on the puck. The Memos argued the puck was in the net. Parisi was pulled out with 72 seconds left as the Memos put six attackers inside the Brockville blue line. Prevost missed the open Memos' net and play was called in the Brockville zone with 39 seconds left.

It was fast and furious and the stubborn Magedoma defence held until time ran out.

Brockville — Goal, Charron; defence, Thomson, H. Legris; centre, Dagenois; wings, Gibson, M. Legris; subs, Davidson, Richardson, Clarke, Prevost, Scott, Hunt, Rockburn, Trainor.

Referees—Jim Crombie, Moon Flanagan.

Toronto Scribes Eat Hab Steaks

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto sportswriters and sportcasters sat down to choice steak dinners with Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League Tuesday in a meet-the-opposition gathering.

The get-together — the second since Canadiens started it in Montreal last Wednesday—are designed to give newspaper men a chance to talk to members of opposing NHL teams in pleasant surroundings.

The dinner was put on by Toronto Maple Leafs. Leaf and Canadien officials hope to make it a regular affair. In the words of Montreal coach Dick Irvin:

"These are fine gatherings, particularly for young sports reporters who often meet players only in the dressing room. They are covering the greatest hockey games in the world so it is only right that they become familiar with the greatest players in the world."

The league - leading Canadiens and third-place Leafs meet here tonight.

British Golf Stars Training In Sunny South

By MURRAY SINCLAIR

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Canadian and British golfers are using the winter tournament circuit as a post-graduate school of golf.

They are more interested in knowledge and experience than money. Most agree they are getting something money couldn't buy.

British golfers here for the first time are impressed with two aspects of the U.S. game, the hard work put in by the pros and their superiority from within 150 yards of the hole.

The group of five Englishmen will play through the Houston, Tex., tournament and then head for home.

The young English players have been surprised and a bit disappointed that they are called upon to play an 18-hole qualifying round before being admitted to the Tucson Open proper, which starts Thursday. John Pritchett and John Jacob qualified Tuesday with three-under-par 69s. Tony Harmon made it easily with 70. Peter Allis and Herman Hunt were exempt from qualifying as Ryder Cup players.

EIGHT QUALIFY

Pritchett, 23, said: "The trip has definitely been worth while. We couldn't have obtained the experience hitting a ball in London. It would be quite proper to say we have been attending a post-graduate school.

"Frankly we didn't know about this 18-hole qualifying business when we came over. At home everyone who enters cracks off for the first 36 holes. The leading 50 players go into the next two rounds."

Balding led the Canadians with a five-under-par 67 over the Randolph course.

"Certainly we want to make as much money as we can, but the big thing is experience," he said. "You might call it a school.

"Not many of your U.S. players come out for just a few tournaments in the winter and make much money. The same applies to us, only we are primarily after experience."

Confusion Reigns in Football Who Knows Whom, and What?

By JIM PEACOCK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—Anytime now the west is going to predict Grey Cup victory next November. And with apparent good reason.

On the surface at least, the eastern football picture is so confused it is difficult for Mr. Average Fan to see how any of the Big Four Football League clubs could muster up a Grey Cup champion by next fall.

The latest shocker was Ottawa Rough Riders' report Tuesday night that the Big Four has rescinded a decision to honor player options held this year by U.S. National Football League clubs.

The situation developed this way:

Toronto Argonauts, one of the eastern playoffs for two years, announced they would not invite back for 1955 any of their 1954 American imports, but instead would get a whole new set out of the NFL. (This decision now is being reconsidered).

Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Ottawa, fearful that the rich—Montreal and Toronto — might force them to spend so much money for playing talent that they would be forced out of business, lined together to cut down on importing.

At its annual meeting in mid-January, the Big Four, with Argos yelping foul, voted 3-1 to declare ineligible for Big Four play any player under option or contract to an NFL club. Argos objected that the ruling was retroactive and that they already had signed several players.

The league governors studied problem, then gave it back to the annual meeting, which reconvened in Montreal last Saturday.

This meeting announced the league had decided Argos will retain four of the seven players they say they have signed and the league will take over the other three for disposition.

Between meetings, the Big Four met NFL commissioner Bert Bell in Philadelphia to attempt to work out a no-raiding pact. Nothing was signed or sealed.

Then came the revelation at Ottawa that the league had decided last Saturday to rescind its earlier decision to honor options. Contracts, however, will be honored.

Meanwhile, Frank Clair, who coached Argos to two Grey Cups during his five-year tenure, negotiated with the University of Cincinnati, then Tuesday announced he has signed there as a line coach.

RIDERS GOING AHEAD

At Ottawa, J. P. McCaffrey, Rider general manager, Riders, who finished last in the Big Four last year, are going ahead immediately to sign NFL players who are not under contract for 1955 in the U.S.

Hamilton president Jake Gaudaur said: "At this time we don't contemplate signing any NFL players."

Leo Dandurand, Alouette president, said: "Als have waived their rights to NFL players."

And in Toronto, where new Argo team director Harry Sonshine set the fuse to the fireworks with his announcement regarding 1954 imports, Argonaut president Bill Ross commented:

"It looks like we'll have to reconsider. Things haven't worked out the way we figured."

Ross wouldn't name any of the 1954 players who now might be invited back and it hasn't been made clear how Argos intend to make up for other lost imports.

Rather Fight Than Referee, Says Whitton

BELLEVILLE, (CP)— Mayor Charlotte Whitton of Ottawa, Tuesday refused to referee a boxing match at nearby Trenton. She implied that she would rather fight.

George Carver, sports editor of the Ontario Intelligencer, said he asked Mayor Whitton if she would referee the Feb. 28 bout between Mayor John Both of Belleville and Ross Burtt, mayor of Trenton.

The match will be held at the RCAF station in aid of the Trenton community centre drive for $170,000. The gladiators will wear 15-ounce gloves for the no-holds-barred match.

Mayor Whitton sent Mr. Carver a telegram declining the offer. "Regrets," it said. "Though my great grandfather Whitton, one of Northumberland-Hastings' first settlers, true enough held the wrestling belt for Yorkshire, neither he nor I ever engage in the sport on other, than participant basis."

Hopman Still Aussie Skipper

MELBOURNE (AP) — Harry Hopman, the stern tennis taskmaster who has been criticized widely for his so-called "tyrannical" methods, was reappointed Tuesday captain-manager of Australia's Davis Cup forces.

He will chaperone the Australian team on its world tour and then for the sixth straight year will captain the Davis Cup squad which will try to recover the international trophy lost to the United States last December.

Hopman had been under fire since the defeat of the Australians by the Americans at Sydney but he received a vote of confidence from the Lawn Tennis Association of Australia council.

("It was a wise choice," Talbert said. "The Australians could have picked no better man. Harry has had a very successful Davis Cup record and it would have been grossly unfair to fire him for one failure.")

Senator Asks Probe Into 'Fixed' Fights

By EDWIN B. HAAKINSON

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Warren Magnuson said today he has asked U.S. Senate investigators to assemble data "on reports of fixed fights and other complaints from captive audiences of televised sports events."

"We may have to hold some hearings later on this," the Washington Democrat said in an interview. He is chairman of the Senate commerce committee.

"If we do," he added, "it will not be an investigation of boxing or other sports as such, but rather a look at the radio-TV programs that go into our homes."

Magnuson said he had asked for the preliminary staff study before the recent Supreme Court decision that professional boxing—unlike organized baseball—lies within the field of interstate commerce and so is subject to federal anti-trust laws.

ALL BUT BASEBALL

"That puts it squarely within the jurisdiction of our committee," said Magnuson. "We apparently have jurisdiction over all sports except baseball."

Magnuson said he recently had discussed the possibility of a Senate inquiry into televised boxing with Gene Tunney, former world heavyweight champion. He said he "told Gene we might ask him to come down informally some time and talk this over."

Democratic Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee, who headed the now-defunct Senate crime investigating committee, has been pushing for a congressional probe of "reports that racketeers are entering the fields of both amateur and professional sports."

"Now that television has greatly multiplied audiences for most sports events, there is a nationwide demand that boxing and other sports be kept clean," Kefauver said in a separate interview.

Jockey Feted By Mates

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP)—Jockey Ray York, who won the 1954 Kentucky Derby riding Determine, was honored Tuesday by his fellow riders, turf writers and fans at Santa Anita Park.

The 21-year-old rider was presented with the George Woolf Memorial Award, voted by Southern California writers for "outstanding contributions to his profession."

Four past winners of the award, Willie Shoemaker, Johnny Longden, Gordon Glisson and Ralph Neves, formed an escort of honor a the presentation ceremonies at the paddock preceding the day's racing.

York commented:

"I feel like a baseball player getting in the Hall of Fame."

Falls Fatten Quebec Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Although there were no changes in the Quebec Hockey League standings as a result of the two games played Tuesday, the Shawinigan Falls Cataracts fattened their lead while Valleyfield Braves found themselves more firmly ensconced in the league cellar.

The Cataracts overwhelmed Valleyfield 9-2 and Chicoutimi Sagueneens tripped Quebec Aces 3-1.

Shawinigan leads the league with 57 points. Quebec and Montreal Royals trail with 50 and 48 points respectively. The Sagueneens have 41 while Valleyfield rounds out the five-team loop with 35 points.

The Cataracts have played 44 games and Montreal, 48. The three other clubs have each played 45.

Barlow Comes To Hornets

TORONTO (CP)—Hugh Barlow, ex-St. Catharines junior has been transferred from Vancouver Canucks of the Western Hockey League to Pittsburgh Hornets of the American Hockey League, Toronto Maple Leafs said Tuesday night.

Hap Day, general manager of the National Hockey League Toronto club which holds Barlow's contract, said the leftwinger is being moved to Pittsburgh, Leafs' farm club, to strengthen the front lines of Hornets, currently tied with Springfield in first place.

MERRIMAN SIGNED

CHIAGO (AP) — Outfielder Lloyd Merriman was obtained Tuesday from Cincinnati Redlegs by Chicago White Sox for cash and two minor league players to be named later.

Merriman, 30 - year - old left-handed batter, hit .268 in 73 games for Redlegs last season.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

Where a standard rule could be applied to certain hands, you may wonder why some teachers break away from it. The answer is that they must protect the unsoundness of their foundation bids.

Some will start an opening one bid without enough sure tricks or high cards. They will respond with one-over-one or assist to two without the true basic needs in the hand of replier.

They do just the opposite with an immediate takeout to the two level. This they will refrain from doing unless the responding hand has more than needed in honor tricks or high card points.

Consequently, each new hand presents a separate problem. In an attempt to throw in a stabilizer they must inject deviations from a standard rule. It is using two wrongs to make a right.

Your south partner opened with a spade when you have this north hand:

♠Q 8 6 5 2
♣A 10 8 4 3

With a biddable club suit the standard rule is to takeout to a bid of two clubs and later show game assist in spades. If your south partner is a sound opener you have no fear of following this path.

In his book, one of the great masters tells you to jump at once to four spades. Has it ever occurred to you why he must deviate from the standard order of preference that asks for a takeout first?

In his system a takeout to the level of two clubs promises more high card strength than this hand shows? Therefore, he must abandon the thought of showing the club suit. Hence the deviation.

An expert attempt to justify this would say partner does not need to hear of the club suit in this case. My comeback could be "How do you know?" But this is not the point here.

With a reliable foundation you can stick to standard rules in cooperation. No weaknesses to protect with a wall of judgment bids. With sound basics, rules are predigested judgment.

British Soccer Losing Money

LONDON (CP)—British soccer's financial crisis, by-product of a sharp drop in attendance, appears ti be becoming more acute as hardship reports pour in from small-time English and Scottish clubs.

In the English third division, 37 of 48 clubs say they're losing money and only four claim to make a profit. The others say they break even.

In Scotland, the story is much the same. A recent spell of icy weather made things worse by stopping many games. The problem of a relatively small population, supporting a large number of Scottish clubs, is a big distress factor.

Other difficulties are entertainment tax, nibbling away a third of the take, television and meagre fan accommodation.

Most losing clubs claim they paid more in taxes to the government last year than they lost on the whole.

NO EXCUSE

MONTREAL (CP)—Two Italian immigrants told Judge E. J. McManamy Tuesday they didn't know it was illegal to visit a brothel. Adano Rossi and Semione Alexandro pleaded guilty but said their visit wouldn't have transgressed any laws in Italy. Judge McManamy listened sympathetically and fined them $40 and costs each.

Mayor Whitton Opens Ottawa Dog Derby

By ART WILKES
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Ottawa goes to the dogs today in distinguished company.

Mayor Charlotte Whitton will wield the opening gun to send the first musher down the trail and open the 66-mile international dog derby. Among those on hand for the start of the two-day race will be United States Ambassador R. Douglas Stuart and Gen. Paul Eugene Magloire, president of Haiti, and his wife.

Twenty-nine drivers, the most ever to enter the derby, will match their skill and the training and stamina of their dogs for a share of the $4,200 in cash and merchandise prizes waiting for the winners at the end of the Rideau canal trail.

The course, which will be covered twice, a lap today and another Thursday, snakes through the capital on the bed of the canal, drained of its water for the winter and now packed with snow.

The first-place finisher will receive $2,000, half in cash, the rest in merchandise, and two trophies. Second prize is $1,000 divided the same way.

The race shapes up to be a contest of former winners. Emile Martel of Loretteville, Que., and Wilf Lepine if Quebec City hold the favorites' spot. Martel won last year and in 1951. Lepine was the winner in 1950 and 1952.

The women's class will be headed by Mrs. Bunty Dunlop of Burlington. She will have to beat four other women mushers.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—Nashua, the swift colt that was voted last year's champion juvenile and is widely regarded as most likely to succeed in the coming summer's great three-year-old classics, was scheduled to stretch his legs as a full-grown hunk of horseflesh for the first time today in an undistinguished little race at Hialeah Park.

The purpose was not mainly to make more money for owner William Woodward, but just to make sure that the talented colt still knows his way out of a starting gate and will be ready to lay them down in the $100,000 added Flamingo Stakes two weeks from this Saturday. That is the one in which he will be asked to slap down an upstart colt named Boston Doge, a task at which he conceivably could find himself engaged right through next apple time.

VALUE NOW $100,000

It seems only a handful of New Englanders knew Boston Doge was alive and running until he showed up in Florida this winter and continued to work on a victory string which now has reached eight straight.

The story is that at one stage last summer Boston Doge's unproud owner, Paul Andolino, offered to dispose of him for $7,500. He found no takers. Recently he was offered $100,000 cash for the same animal and didn't bother to answer. You don't sell a potential Kentucky Derby winner.

Although a record of 8-0 would appear to speak for itself, the experts can't make up their minds whether the Beantowner really poses an authentic threat to such as Nashua, Summer Tan and Royal Coinage in the triple crown events or merely has made the best of ordinary opposition up to this point.

Jeanmaire Not Only Good Looking But She Can Act

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "You've got to see Jeanmaire," said Edith Head, the ace designer. "Not only has she the most elegant chassis I have seen. She's also intelligent."

After such a buildup, I had to see the delicious French pastry. So I repaired to the dance rehearsal hall at Paramount where she was rehearsing for "Anything Goes," in which she'll star with Bing Crosby, Donald O'Connor and Mitzi Gaynor.

I asked her if Bing's recuperation from his operation would delay her work. No, she replied. Her ballet will be filmed while the company is waiting for Bing to return. The dance is being directed by Roland Petit, who introduced her to America in "Le Ballet de Paris." They were married a month ago.

How long had she known him? "Twenty years," she said. "Since we were nine years old. We have always been in love."

Then why did they take so long to get married?

Her Gallic temper flashed. "Always such questions!" she exploded. She made it clear she wasn't going to answer such nonsense.

Jeanmaire (real name: Renee Jeanmarie) knocked the critics for a loop last year with her theatrics in "the Girl in Pink Tights." She said the show had a nice six-month run, but didn't have the pulling power to get through the summer lull. now she is hoping to do another Broadway show.

By WAYNE OLIVER

NEW YORK (AP)—A youngster by the name of Jack Benny who takes television in a breeze must confound some of the older comics who are in and out of hospitals with video fatigue.

Nearly 23 years after he first took to the air, Jack continues a weekly radio show that currently is No. 1 in the ratings and takes a turn on TV every second week.

While many comics are considering a cutback in the frequency of their appearances, Benny is pondering the possibility of stepping his viedo visits up to one a week next season. His contemporaries must wonder if he isn't serious after all about being only 39.

Even on his occasional filmed TV shows, such as last Sunday night, Benny's performances seem as relaxed and spontaneous as a first rehearsal, although his superb timing must require plenty of practice and polish. Benny and his writers also have the knack of mixing the believable and the ridiculous to get a blend of pure fun.

Benny was already a show business veteran when he made his first radio broadcast in March, 1932, as a guest on a CBS program. He became master of ceremonies on a weekly NBC radio show in May, 1932, and in October the same year started his comedy routine.

Benny switched from NBC to CBS radio Jan. 2, 1949 as a result of a famous capital gains deal reported to involve $2,260,000.

For the record, Benny will be 61 next Monday, Valentine Day.

VALDES INJURED

COLUMBIA, N.J. (AP) — Nino Valdes, number one contender for the heavyweight title, suffered an ear injury during a workout here Tuesday. The Cuban heavy will have to take things easy for three or four days because of a perforated ear drum. Dr. Joseph Viglione said the injury would in no way effect Valdes' hoped-for shot at champion Rocky Marciano.

Yanks Worried About Games

NEW YORK (AP)—All is not well south of the border, it developed today, and United States officials trying to get things organized for the Pan-American Games are worried.

The opening of the big carnival is just a month and three days away and the Americans don't yet know how they're going to get into Mexico City, site of the event.

"We've received two different sets of instructions from Mexico," said J. Lyman Bingham, executive director of the United States Olympic committee—the fellow who has the unenviable task of organizing the safari.

"I put forth two queries concerning visas for our team and received two answers from people in authority that contradicted each other," he said. "We've just about ironed everything out from this end."

Canada has named 20 athletes to its first Pan-American Games team, five female and 15 male. So far there have been no reports of similar difficulties.

FIND IRON IN THAILAND

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Bangkok radio Tuesday night said Thai government geilogists have found extensive deposits of high grade iron ore in northern Thailand. The government radio station said foreign investment would be welcomed to finance a smelter to be constructed nearby.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars, for

THURSDAY, FEB. 10, 1955

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Bring out all your good theories and methods — today promises benefit to you who strive rightly to achieve. Personal interests should move forward with individuality

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — You Taurus folks are blessed with fine minds, study, educate yourself and there is no height you cannot reach. Watch sensibly financial and business investments these days.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — It matters little what you plan or intend to do if you don't put it into proper action. The desire to fight win and live for that which is e imable is inborn.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Hold back some of your enthusiasm until you have thoroughly analyzed propositions before you. Intelligent forethought and management needed today to profit well from effort.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — Progress may not be as flourishing as expected but your natural ability and enthusiastic cheerfulness will have others aiding you in unexpected places, instances. Be sincerely grateful, too.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo) — Be steady, open minded. Many hidden favors waiting for the deserving. You are keen, farseeing when you really stop to think and analyze. Today calls for such attitude.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Be seriously interested in all that is going on around you; study successful competitor's methods; improve and if honorable use them when you reasonably can. Avoid moods, mistrust.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Some pitfalls, circumstances that may disturb, even retard progress in places. Honor your chief, your superiors; without authoritative head, true success won't live.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — Live more in the immediate than in the past. Forget errors except where they warn against such repitition. You have the brain stuff that can go well in muddy or smooth footing.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — Impelling influences for both business and personal matters; some changes evident now. Increased efficiency, mental alertness necessary to achieve desired goals rightly.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — Action on high level okay if you are prudent. In all transactions involving finances, building scientific work, sound investment, understand. Point for future security; save some.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces) — The following suggested today: Remain silent rather than stir up hornet's nest speaking out of turn. A truly big soul often stands rebuff, unjust criticism without retort.

YOU BORN TODAY: Aquarius can be a leader of constructive force, accomplish great deeds, attain desired heights in business, profession, anywhere or can or will drift idly in the opposite direction. Adhere to good training, and hold to your religion, be honest and aboveboard with self and those around you and you will be happy and achieve. Avoid excessive fondness of the good things in life. Don't follow, always be a leader, you will be respected. You have many talents, use them sagaciously. Birthdate of Wm. Congreve, Eng. dramatist; Charles Lamb, Eng. essayest, critic; Allan Hale, actor; Capt. Thomas Rossie, U.S. Air Force, W.W. II.

Little Benny's Notebook

I was wishing pop would hurry up and come home for dinner, and I went back to the kitchin, saying, Hay, ma, I feel like eating.

I should hope so, after I've prepared such a nice dinner, ma said. I only hope your father will feel the same way, she said, and I said, But heck, I'm hungry.

That's the correct helthy way to be, just at meel time, ma said, and I said, But gosh, ma, pop's not even home.

That explains why we're not eating yet, ma said, and I said, Well jimminy roozalem, ma, I'm starving. How about an apple? I said.

What? And ruin your appetite just on the verge of sitting down? Here's a nice slice or carrot. It'll be a little appetizer without filling you up, she said, and I said, Heck, ma, good night, it's raw.

So is an apple, isn't it? ma said, and I said, No mam, it's just naturel the way it grows on a tree.

A carrot is just as naturel the way it grows in the ground, ma said. I thought you were starving, she said, and I said, I am, ma, but I'm not that starving. I meen I'm not a starving rabbit, I said.

Oh, I'll give you a small slice of bread to nibble on, ma said. You cant say that's raw, she said, and I said, No mam, it's werse.

Would you prefer it spred with butter and heeped with sugar? ma said, and I said, Oh boy, you bet.

Then that's the way you'll get it, after dinner for dizzert, ma said. And now here's your father, she said.

Which he was.

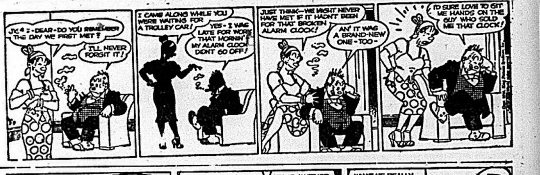
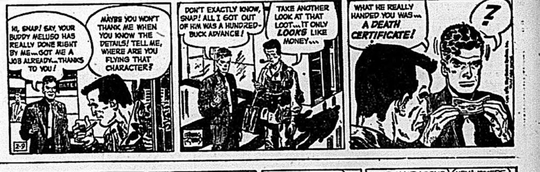
BRINGING UP FATHER



JIGGS–DEAR–DO YOU REMEMBER THE DAY WE FIRST MET?
I'LL NEVER FORGIT IT!
I CAME ALONG WHILE YOU WERE WAITING FOR A TROLLEY CAR!
YES–I WAS LATE FOR WORK THAT MORNIN'–MY ALARM CLOCK DIDN'T GO OFF!
JUST THINK–WE MIGHT NEVER HAVE MET IF IT HADN'T BEEN FOR THAT BROKEN ALARM CLOCK!
AN' IT WAS A BRAND-NEW ONE–TOO–
I'D SURE LOVE TO GIT ME HANDS ON THE GUY WHO SOLD ME THAT CLOCK!

JOHNNY HAZARD



HI, SNAP! SAY, YOUR BUDDY MELUSO HAS REALLY DONE RIGHT BY ME...GOT ME A JOB ALREADY...THANKS TO YOU!
MAYBE YOU WON'T THANK ME WHEN YOU KNOW THE DETAILS! TELL ME, WHERE ARE YOU FLYING THAT CHARACTER?
DON'T EXACTLY KNOW, SNAP! ALL I GOT OUT OF HIM WAS A HUNDRED-BUCK ADVANCE!
TAKE ANOTHER LOOK AT THAT LOOT...IT ONLY LOOKS LIKE MONEY...
WHAT HE REALLY HANDED YOU WAS... A DEATH CERTIFICATE!

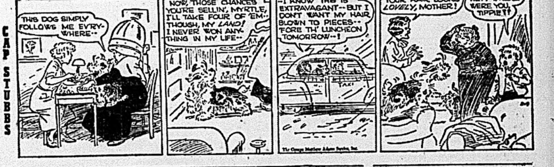
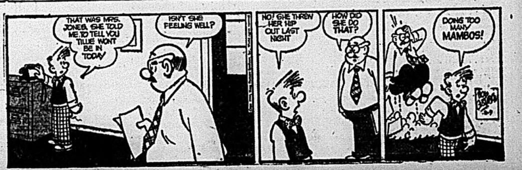
TIPPIE AND CAP STUBBS



THIS DOG SIMPLY FOLLOWS ME EV'RY-WHERE--
NOW, THOSE CHANCES YOU'RE SELLIN', MYRTLE, I'LL TAKE FOUR OF 'EM--THOUGH, MY LAND! I NEVER WON ANYTHING IN MY LIFE--
--I KNOW THIS IS EXTRAVAGANT--BUT I DON'T WANT MY HAIR BLOWN TO PIECES--'FORE TH' LUNCHEON TOMORROW--!
TAXI
YOUR HAIR LOOKS LOVELY, MOTHER!
HEY! WHERE WERE YOU, TIPPIE?!
The George Matthew Adams Service, Inc.

TILLIETOILER



THAT WAS MRS. JONES. SHE TOLD ME TO TELL YOU TILLIE WON'T BE IN TODAY
ISN'T SHE FEELING WELL?
NO! SHE THREW HER HIP OUT LAST NIGHT
HOW DID SHE DO THAT?

OPPORTUNITIES FOR MEN AND WOMEN

TELEVISION FACTS

WANT MORE MONEY? Tired of humdrum work? Let us show you how to be a TELEVISION, RADIO, ELECTRONIC expert, and you'll make good money all year.

Television and Radio service men often get $10 for a few minutes work. It's the know-how and diploma that counts. We help you get well-paid employment.

1. You can learn quickly how to do profitable service work on week-ends and evenings, and so make extra cash.

2. In a short time you will build connections to start a business of your own—be your own boss—run things to suit yourself—gain permanent security.

3. Or be an expert in Electronics; Communications, radar & microwave systems; Radio Operating for ships, land stations.

Our day, night or correspondence plans SPECIALIZE in PREPARING YOU for industry, government, R.C.M.P., airlines etc.

TAKE a short approved training easily mastered AT HOME in spare time. Let us prove it to you—no obligation. Please write today, give age and last grade of high school and get 40 page TV Booklet by return.

Habs Invite Leafs To European Tour

TORONTO (CP) — Montreal Canadiens Tuesday invited Toronto Maple Leafs to join them in a playing tour of Europe after the National Hockey League playoffs next spring.

The invitation was extended by coach Dick Irvin of Canadiens to general manager Hap Day of Leafs at a press dinner here.

Irvin said Canadiens were planning the trip, with or without another NHL team.

Day said the invitation is a policy matter for Maple Leaf Gardens president Conn Smythe, who is in Florida.

Smythe, in a telephone interview with The Globe and Mail, said he had discussed such an excursion with Montreal managing director Frank Selke, but there wasn't enough money involved.

"We'd be glad to tour Europe with any team under proper conditions," Smythe said.

WILL STAY IN U.S.

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Canadian professional teams apparently have lost in their efforts to sign contracts with two Rice Institute all-America football stars.

Dicky Moegle, all-America halfback last season, said Tuesday he probably will sign with the San Francisco '49ers in about a month.

Bill Howton, once an all-America end at Rice, said he has decided not to accept an attractive Canadian offer.

Moegle, the '49ers No. 1 draft choice, said he has received offers from three Canadian teams, including Montreal Alouettes and British Columbia Lions.

Kinsmen Club Holds Annual Ladies' Night

CAMPBELLFORD—The Kinsmen Club of Campbellford held its annual Ladies' Night at Edgewater Park, this week, when guests from Trenton, Peterborough and Tweed were on hand for an evening of entertainment.

The event was one of the most successful of such nights the club has yet sponsored, and the program featured slight-of-hand demonstrations by Jerry Masswinkel, a Dutch immigrant who now makes his home in Peterborough. Francis DeCarrol of Campbellford contributed two solos. Jack Cowing of Campbellford, who is well known locally for his wit and humor, acted as MC for the evening. Guitarist Jim Macke pleased the audience with a couple of solos.

President Cyril Johnson presided at the head table. Present were officers of other local service clubs and the district convener, Andy Anderson of Tweed.

Kinsman B. Collins of the Campbellford club proposed a toast to the ladies, to which Mrs. Graydon Bell, president of the local Kinette organization, responded.

Past President Ray Hall expressed the club's appreciation to the ladies.

More than 100 persons enjoyed the fowl dinner.

Following a film, a dance was held in the pavillion.

FOX OUTFOXED HOUNDS

NEWTON ABBOT, England (AP) The South Devon foxhounds chased a fox through a backyard—then failed to look before they leaped a five-foot wall.

The hounds cleared the wall all right but landed smack in the River Leman. The fox, meanwhile, was foxy in a bramble patch beneath the wall.

Every one of the 16 hounds might have drowned in the swift flowing river except for some girls who helped pull them out. The master of the hunt had to buy new nylon stockings for the rescuers, who tore theirs fishing the hounds from the drink.

LOW TB RATE

KITCHENER (CP) — Waterloo county has one of the lowest tuberculosis mortality rates in Canada, Dr. R. T. Towson of the Freeport sanitorium said Tuesday. The rate for 1953 was 2.2 per 100,000 population.

Announce New Way To Shrink Painful Piles

Science Finds Healing Substance That Does Both— Relieves Pain—Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special) — For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain. Thousands have been relieved—without resort to surgery.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was relieved promptly. And, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne*)—the discovery of a famous scientific institute. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

Now this new healing substance is offered in ointment form for hemorrhoids under the name *Preparation H. The price is only $1.19 a tube including an applicator. The name to ask for is Preparation H—at all drug stores. And remember — if not entirely satisfied — your money will be refunded promptly.

HISTORY IN STAMPS

Since the first Canadian postage stamp was issued in 1851 Canada's post office has been telling the country's story through its stamps. The little bits of paper which pay the way for mail across a city or across the world have chronicled the paths of the early explorers and traced Canada's growth from colonial status to nationhood. Girls are shown feeding into a perforator at Ottawa some of the hundreds of millions of stamps issued annually. (CP from National Film Board.)

Post Office Telling Country's Story for More Than 100 Years

By H. L. JONES
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's post office has been telling the country's story for more than 100 years.

Since Sir Sandford Fleming, Toronto architect, designed Canada's first postage stamp in 1851, Canadian stamps have borne the portraits of three kings and five queens. They have told of Canada's turbulent history, her industries, farmlands and scenic beauty and of achievements by citizens.

The bits of paper which pay the way for mail across a city or the world have chronicled the paths of the explorers and traced Canada's growth from colonial status to nationhood.

IN WIDE VARIETY

In varied colors there have bee stamps depicting totem poles ar tanks, buildings and bridges, flow ers and birds and commemoratin men like Sir Alexander Grahan Bell, inventor of the telephone.

Canada's stamps fall into two types—ordinary issues and commemoratives. The ordinary issue which carry the bulk of the mai traditionally bear portraits of the sovereign on lower denominations.

The largest number of ordinary-issue portraits accorded a sovereign was the eight to Queen Victoria. There were six of George VI, four of George V, one of Edward VII and so far two of the reigning Queen Elizabeth. Edward VIII appeared on two Canadian stamps as Prince of Wales but never as king.

The higher-denomination issues usually carry subjects associated with Canadiana—the Nova Scotia fishing schooner Bluenose in full sail, the Prince Edward Island ferry, cargo-laden ships in Vancouver harbor, a seaplane flying over a river boat in the Northwest Territories.

Commemorative issues are issued to mark events of national or historic importance.

An issue of 1908 commemorates the 300th anniversary of the founding of Quebec City by Champlain. One stamp bears portraits of Champlain and Jacques Cartier, who set out in 1534 to find a route to China and instead found a new land for France.

Canadian stamps have borne portraits of Wolfe and Montcalm, generals who figured in the surrender of New France to England in 1763.

Other issues commemorate Confederation in 1867 and another, issued in 1949, marks Newfoundland's entry into Confederation that year as Canada's 10th province.

CORONATION STAMP

A four-cent commemorative issued in 1953 marks the Coronation of the Queen.

Postal officials say sales of ordinary five-cent stamps, which are in continuous production, run to about 580,000,000 annually. Sales of seven-cent airmail stamps are about 19,000,000, but sales of both are dropping due to increasing use of postage meters.

Commemorative issues are ordered in quantities of between 25,000,000 and 100,000,000 and usually are not reordered when sold out.

Production costs vary from about 20 cents per 1,000 for small-size stamps to 33 cents per 1,000 for larger sizes.

In 1952-53 revenue from stamp sales was $67,000,000 in total postal department revenue of $129,000,000. Returns from postage meters that year rose to $42,00,000 from $39,000,000 in 1951-52.

Canadian Army Plans Biggest Manoeuvres

OTTAWA (CP)—The army will hold its biggest peacetime manoeuvres this summer at Camp Gagetown, N.B.

It announced today that more than 10,000 soldiers from all parts of Canada will concentrate in Gagetown for six weeks of intensive training. Eight of the army's 15 battalions will participate.

The troops, most of them from units of the 1st Canadian Infantry Division, will start moving into the new 427-square-mile camp about mid-June. Manoeuvres will start the first week of July.

Soldiers will live in the field under canvas for the entire training period. Permanent installations now under construction will not be used by the training force.

Maj. - Gen. John Rockingham, commander of the 1st Division, and his staff will move to Gagetown from Camp Petawawa at the same time as advance elements of other units.

Western Experts Amazed Malenkov Given Major Job

Supreme Soviet Suggests 'Exchange' of Legislators

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Georgi Malenkov, who resigned two days ago as prime minister, is seen assuming a major role in developing Russia's electric power resources in line with the new program to build up heavy industry.

Western observers saw the appointment of Malenkov to a key job as minister in charge of the big program for expanding power stations and hydro-electric stations as one of the biggest surprises in the Russian government's switch in leadership.

Such a thing, they said, could never have happened in Stalin's day. It would have been inconceivable for a man to continue in the government after making a public admission of guilt such as Malenkov made before the Supreme Soviet session which ended Wednesday.

NEW SUGGESTION

The parliamentary session which left the Western world wondering about the switch of Nikolai Bulganin to the premier's post from the defence ministry where he was succeeded by Marshal Georgi Zhukov, ended with a call for a free exchange of legislators throughout the countries of the world.

The new regime suggested that legislators make personal appearances and even speeches in each other's parliaments as a way of easing international tension.

In the leadership shakeup, Malenkov also becomes one of the deputy premiers. His status has surprised Western observers particularly in view of the apparently fundamental discussion in the Communist party over the issue of heavy industry as opposed to the consumer goods drive with which his name was so closely associated.

The Supreme Soviet session left little doubt about the emphasis to be placed on developing heavy industry from now on.

Easy Starting

WESTOVER AIR FORCE BASE, Mass. (AP)—A kitchen push-button gives Capt. Kenneth R. Kurtzman a warm car on cold mornings.

Kurtzman has rigged 40 feet of television antenna wire from the kitchen of his home to the garage. The wire carries current which trips the ignition and starts the car motor while the captain eats his breakfast.

Chiang's Forces Scorch Earth On Tachen Isles

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—Chiang Kai-shek's forces blasted and burned a maze of underground defence works and shuttled tons of ammunition and supplies to rocky beaches today in the high-speed final phase of the Tachen islands evacuation.

Warships of the United States 7th Fleet churned the East China sea around the island and American jets swept overhead protecting the critical military withdrawal.

Civilians already have been removed, and most are already on the Nationalist bastion of Formosa 200 miles to the south.

Nationalist sources said the withdrawal has been completed on three outlying islands, the Yu Shan group 35 miles northeast, and Pishan, 32 miles southwest of the Tachens.

TO ESTABLISH SHIELD

The government also announced a decision to pull out the 1,765 civilians on Nacchishan, 80 miles south of the Tachens. But official quarters said the military garrison will remain there and probably will be strengthened to maintain the island as a northern shield for Formosa.

"The Tachen withdrawal reels our front back 80 miles—and that's enough," a Nationalist officer said.

AP correspondent Jim Becker reported from the Tachens that Nationalist troops today were "blasting into uselessness a labyrinth of caves and tunnels."

Chinese reports quote the Nationalist commander of the Tachens, Gen. Liu Lien-yi, as regretting that his forces were not permitted to make a stand against the Reds. Liu said they had been powerful, confident, well equipped, strongly dug in and capable of repelling any Red invasion.

Speaker Praises Ontario Hydro In Throne Speech

TORONTO (CP) — Lloyd Letherby, Progressive Conservative member for Simcoe East in the Ontario legislature, said today no service ranks higher than Ontario Hydro in importance to the farm community.

Mr. Letherby, in moving the adoption of the speech from the throne, told the legislature the province's economic development would have been "strangled" long ago if it were not for expansion of Hydro.

"It is important to note that the task of supplying electric energy to rural Ontario is now about 90 per cent completed," said Mr. Letherby.

He congratulated the provincial cabinet for its selection of Dr. R. L. Hearn as chairman of the Ontario hydro electric power commission.

The growth of hydro was "fantastic and phenomenal," said Mr. Letherby.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO. (CP) — Synopsis: Temperatures in southwestern Ontario remained in the high 30s during the night as the cold air approaching from the west slowed down considerably over Lake Huron. The cold air is not expected to cover the lower Great Lakes until tonight.

City of Montreal Will End Grants To 90 Charities

MONTREAL (CP)—The city of Montreal, contending it is not a social agency, intends to cut off city aid to approximately 90 charitable, social and cultural agencies.

Grants to the groups totalled $634,635 in 1954-55.

In announcing the decision to dispense with the grants in 1955-56, Pierre Desmarais, chairman of the city executive committee, said Wednesday that the city will meet obligations already incurred through subscriptions, some lasting until 1972, and some $685,221 promised for the fiscal year ending April 1, 1956.

Mr. Desmarais said Montrealers pay taxes for essential municipal services and if they "wish to make donations . . . they should do it themselves."

Three Paratroopers Narrowly Escape Death in Airborne Exercise

ST. LAMBERT DE LEVIS, Que. (CP) — Three paratroopers narrowly escaped death in the opening stages of the army's airborne Exercise Breakey Wednesday in eastern Quebec.

One was severely injured when his 'chute only partially opened and he plunged 1,000 feet into a snowbank. Two others whose parachutes became fouled came down safely with both clinging to a single 'chute. All are from the famed Royal 22nd Regiment.

The first man, L-Cpl. Gerard Gagnon, 23, of Chicoutimi, Que., suffered possible fractures of both legs and other as-yet unannounced injuries. He was flown to Quebec military hospital where army authorities early today described his condition as "satisfactory."

Gagnon told buddies when he saw his 'chute developing into a "streamer" he tried to get at his reserve 'chute but did not have time to get it to open.

In the other near-tragedy Col. Arthur Nelson of Quebec became tangled in the cords of Pte. D. Baker's 'chute. His own parachute became fouled, but Baker's billowed open.

Nelson grabbed the Campbellton, N.B. soldier and they rode down together.

The three were taking part in the army Arctic warfare exercise in which 300 paratroopers from the 1st Battalion of the Van Doos were dropped near this little village 30 miles south of Quebec to dislodge an "enemy" force lodged in a frozen swamp. "Enemy" forces too were made up of a company of the regiment.

The counter-attacking airborne force, who were flown in from Quebec's Ancienne Lorette airport in three flights Wednesday, today plans to move to a stronger base near the fringe of the swamp preparatory to launching an all-out attack to flush out the lodgement.

BELIEVED POWDER HELD IN VAULT MIGHT BE RADIUM

Former Cpl. Says Vial Brought from Germany

PORT ARTHUR (CP)—A two-ounce vial of highly-radioactive powder has set police investigating the strange story of a former army provost corporal who says it was taken from the laboratory of a group of German scientists early in 1944.

It is believed the powder might be radium which could be worth about $10,000,000, an official said.

The vial was turned over to Ontario Provincial Police about three weeks ago by Angus MacDonald of Beardmore. It was placed in the thickly-leaded radium vault of the General Hospital.

Another suggestion was that the vial, about three-quarters full, might contain uranium. George E. Pye, resident provincial geologist, said if it is uranium, it will be worth considerably less than a similar quantity of radium.

CAME FROM GERMANY

MacDonald said in an interview he and a member of the Dutch underground took the vial from a German laboratory shortly after the battle of Arnhem in 1944. He said the German scientists were trying to produce fissionable material from heavy water.

Pierre Pflimlin Asked to Form Govt. by Coty

PARIS (CP) — President Rene Coty tonight asked Pierre Pflimlin, a leader of the Catholic Mouvement Republicain Populaire, to try to form a government.

Pflimlin is the second politician called upon by the president to try to rally support for a cabinet succeeding the government of Pierre Mendes-France which was overthrown last Saturday.

Businessman Antoine Pinay today gave up his attempts to set up France's 21st government.

The decision followed an announcement Wednesday by the MRP not to back conservative Pinay.

Pflimlin, just past his 48th birthday, has been a member of 13 post-war cabinets.

There were varying opinions about Pflimlin's chances for success. Many believed he would be thwarted almost immediately by conservative elements of the National Assembly, who are irked because the MRP refused to fall in behind Pinay's leadership.

Others feel that Pflimlin might be able to succeed if he gives important places in the cabinet to Pinay and Rene Mayer, a leader of the conservative wing of the Radical Socialist party.

SAVED FROM FIRE

MARKHAM (CP) — A farm worker crawled into a burning car Tuesday night to pull an unconscious motorist to safety. William Cook rushed from his farmhouse to save James Stewart, about 35, of Toronto, whose car overturned on a highway near this town 30 miles northeast of Toronto. Stewart is in hospital with undetermined injuries.

TACHEN EVACUEES ARRIVE IN FORMOSA

A young mother clutches her baby after a fearful trip from the Tachen islands to Formosa on a Nationalist Chinese ship. The evacuation of the Tachens is proceeding without interference from the Chinese Communists, but to the evacuees the trip is an ordeal as they know that at any moment Communist ships and planes may attack. Lower Taxes Urged on Govt. By Canadian C of C Council

OTTAWA (CP) — Low etraxes were urged upon the government today by the executive council of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce in a submission to Finance Minister Harris and Revenue Minister McCann.

The council commended the government for application of budgetary surpluses since the end of the war to reduction of national debt, but added that it did not believe the current economic considerations warrant "a conscious decision" to achieve a surplus of revenues over expenditures in the fiscal year 1955-56.

Council urged the government to ease taxation in those areas where it would be most conducive to personal and corporate incentives.

Although there were certain commodities which by long usage and public acceptance had been subject to excise taxation, the government could no longer justify continuance "of these discriminatory imports" on certain consumer industries.

This matter said the brief should be the first priority in budgetary financing for 1955-56.

The corporate tax rate, their submission continued, removed almost half the fruits of enterprise and initiative for many companies so that the ability of industry to maintain a level of high and expanding activity was impaired.

Text of the submission was contained in a copy issued to the press in advance of delivery.

The delegation was headed by W. S. Kirkpatrick, of Montreal, council chairman.

The council believed "that the Canadian people are entitled to a more complete review of our defence program than that which has been forthcoming."

Council recommended that, within limitations of national security, a detailed public review be made of the purpose, progress and proposed changes in defence planning.

In the field of social welfare council said the fiscal policy should be further shaped to stimulate productivity "from which all social benefits must come and to maintain the already impressive contribution by Canadian business to the security and welfare of its employees."

Council re-affirmed its support of the principles of conduct in the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

"Unfortunately," it added, "there has not been a willingness on the part of some signatory powers to translate these principles into administrative practices."

If certain countries wished not only to obtain all the benefits of GATT but also to retain reservations which served their narrow national interests, the government should re-examine Canadian trade policy.

In particular, council expressed concern "over measures of restriction adopted by the United States government which are inconsistent with GATT."

$933,013 Provincial Surplus Considerably Over Forecast

TORONTO (CP)—The moving of the adoption of the speech from the throne was to come up today before the Ontario legislature at the fifth session of the 24th parliament.

Adoption was to be moved by Lloyd Letherby, Progressive Conservative member for Simcoe East, and to be seconded by G. L. Lavergne, Progressive Conservative member for Russell.

The selection of members to serve on 17 standing committees of the legislature was the task of an 11-man striking committee which was to meet before the house session and report to it Friday.

The legislature learned Wednesday that the province had a net surplus of $933,013 for the fiscal year April 1, 1953, to March 31, 1954.

The annual report of Provincial Auditor H. A. Cotnam showed the surplus was $748,013 more than the $185,000 forecast in the budget by Premier Frost who is also provincial treasurer.

The net ordnary revenue was $379,973,315 and the net ordinary expenditure was $342,095,302. All figures were above estimates. A total of $29,945,000 was added to the sinking fund.

Mr. Cotnam's report showed the largest net ordinary expenditures were $95,805,860 by the highways department and nearly $82,000,000 on education. The highways department spent $14,805,859 more than the budget figure.

Three new members—all Progressive Conservatives—were introduced by Premier Frost. They were Mr. Lavergne, J. A. C. Auld, member for Leeds, and J. M. Chaput, member for Nipissing.

Bryan L. Cathcart, Progressive Conservative member for Lambton West, was chosen chairman of the committee of the whole house. Mr. Cathcart was elected to his seat in June, 1945.

DIRECT FEDERAL AID TO EDUCATION SEEN IMPRACTICAL

Govt. Against Motion Introduced by CCF

OTTAWA (CP) — Direct federal assistance to help equalize educational opportunities across the country is considered impractical by the government.

Citizenship Minister Pickersgill said Wednesday in the Commons such aid to the provinces would encroach on their exclusive rights over education.

R. R. Knight (CCF—Saskatoon) argued that it would not. He was supported by A. J. Brooks (PC—Royal), Fred Shaw (SC—Red Deer) John Blackmore (SC—Lethbridge) and Fred Zaplitny (CCF—Dauphin). All except the latter have been school teachers or inspectors.

ASKS EXPANSION

The views were expressed as the Commons debated Mr. Knight's resolution for "financial assistance to the various provinces for the expansion and equalization of educational opportunity across Canada." He has proposed similar resolutions for many years.

The resolution was killed, in effect, when debate was adjourned at the end of the half-day Wednesday sitting. It now goes to the end of the list of private members' resolutions and is unlikely to come up for debate again this session.

Mr. Pickersgill said that if the government contributed financially to education it would have to control somewhat the provincial spending of federal money. That would interfere with the right of the provinces to spend federal grants in whatever way they want.

EQUAL CHANCE

Mr. Knight said his proposal would provide equal opportunity for education to all Canadians regardless of income or standard of living. The fear that federal assistance would interfere with provincial rights was promoted by political parties for their own personal ends.

Schools now were in financial difficulties. There was a lack of classrooms and qualified teachers. The traditional source of revenue for education—property taxes—had been "milked dry."

Mr. Shaw, noting rising costs of textbooks and equipment and the overcrowding of schools, said government immigration policy is partly responsible in that the influx of immigrant children has overcrowded schools.

Hon. Earl Rowe, acting opposition leader, said education costs are rising to colossal levels. The government should revamp distribution of tax revenue so municipalities and provinces could meet their own needs from their resources.

Globe and Mail Bids Close Today

TORONTO (CP)—Offers to purchase The Globe and Mail, Toronto's only morning newspaper, close at 3 p. m. EST today.

Offers were invited Jan. 10 on either all issued shares of capital stock of the Globe Printing Company or the assets and undertaking of that company through the Chartered Trust Company.

When the company, which publishes The Globe and Mail, was put up for sale, the executors said that if no satisfactory offer were received, the company need not be sold. It was also announced that results of the offering would be known by Feb. 17.

Churchill Wants To See Bulganin After Reich Armed

Paris Pacts Ratification Seen as Necessary Prelude

By TOM OCHILTREE

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill said today he will seek talks with the new Soviet premier, Nikolai Bulganin, but only after final ratification of the plan to rearm the West Germans.

He told the House of Commons a favorable time for Big Four talks with Bulganin, President Eisenhower and the French premier is unlikely to occur before the final ratification of the London - Paris agreements. Those agreements restore sovereignty to West Germany and provide for a West German military contribution to Western defence.

Churchill showed that the swift changes in Moscow this week have not lessened his desire for talks at the top level aimed at easing East-Wst tensions.

He told a laborite questioner in the House of Commons:

"The policy of the government is to seek a four-power conference at a time when it seems likely to yield genuine results but that occasion is not likely to occur until after the ratification of the London-Paris agreements."

Churchill made it clear he still favors talks with the Russians—a proposal he first enunciated in May 1953. The change in Kremlin leadership this week has not changed his mind.

The prime minister has always maintained that timing is the all important consideration to such talks and that he, President Eisenhower and the French premier should not sit down with the Russians until there is some prospect of successfully easing East-West tensions.

Eden Sidesteps Question About Formosa Parley

LONDON (AP)—Foreign Secretary Eden sidestepped a Labor demand today that he immediately arrange a Geneva-type conference to obtain a Formosa case-fire.

Opposition member James Hudson asked Eden in the House of Commons: "In view of the refusal of (Red China Premier) Chou En-lai to meet the United Nations, will you take immediate steps to summon an international conference . . . to which both China and the United States will be invited, with a view to obtaining a cease-fire in the Formosa strait?"

The foreign secretary replied: "The consequences of the Chinese refusal are being studied by Her Majesty's government in close consultation with the Commonwealth and other friendly governments."

Meanwhile, India's Prime Minister Nehru told a press conference here Wednesday night that the Western powers, Russia and India are secretly canvassing all possible moves to end the China fighting. Nehru said this included a suggestion for a conference outside the United Nations, but he refused to elaborate further.

Eisenhower May Invite Zhukov To Visit Him But Experts Disagree

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower may invite Russia's Marshal Georgi K. Zhukov to visit him some day, but the experts are not betting on it.

There are too many problems, hostilities and suspicions between Moscow and Washington to make such an invitation possible now.

One of the president's associates said he does not see "a chance in a million" for such an invitation.

Yet diplomats say that in some special future circumstances the friendship which developed between Eisenhower and Zhukov when they were allied military leaders in Berlin at the end of the Second World War might prove useful to both countries.

Now, however, the two men could not meet just as one-time comrades-in-arms. World attention would focus on any meeting now because both have become figures of world political significance.

Zhukov moved into the spotlight Wednesday when he was appointed defence minister of the Soviet Union. A few years ago under the late Joseph Stalin he had apparently been banished from Moscow.

Eisenhower was reminded of Zhukov's new eminence at his press conference Wednesday and was told Zhukov had said recently he still held the dream of visiting the United States some day.

Eisenhower paid warm tribute to Zhukov as a military leader and confirmed that each of them had told the other he was sure his country would not attack the other's.

The president said he had, at the direction of Washington, invited Zhukov to visit the U.S. in 1945. Zhukov accepted, but later called off the visit, giving illness as the reason.

Pact With Chiang Wins Approval Of U.S. Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the second time in two weeks the United States Senate in effect has told Communist China to keep hands off Formosa.

By a lopsided vote of 64 to 6, the Senate Wednesday night approved a mutual security treaty with Nationalist China pledging American military might in defence of Formosa and its nearby Pescadores islands.

A strong favorable vote had been expected in the light of approval given Jan. 28 to President Eisenhower's request for congressional approval of his use of American troops in the Far East as necessary, but the final action on the treaty came with surprising speed.

The Senate decisively rejected attempts to amend the treaty, and approved it after less than six hours of debate.

The favorable vote was far larger than the two-thirds needed for approval.

WILL HELP FORMOSA

The treaty pledges that the U.S., in accordance with its constitutional processes, will help Formosa, the Pescadores and "such other territories as may be determined by mutual agreement."

Communist China and Russia have bitterly denounced the treaty as proof of American "aggression" on Chinese soil.

Senator Wayne Morse (Ind. Ore.) led the small but stubborn opposition to the pact and sought unsuccessfully to amend it. He argued that it bolsters Nationalist claims to sovereignty over the islands and increases the danger of a third world war.

"This is not a treaty at all but a military alliance with a Chinese leader involved in civil war," he said.

HELMET LOST ON FIRE RUN

The city fire department is minus a fireman's helmet.

Fire Chief Gerald Vance reports that a helmet was lost from one of the fire trucks, while on a run to a recent fire. The return of the helmet or a telephone call from the finder would be much appreciated.

ACKNOWLEDGES GREETING

Mrs. T. McMullen, 94 Donald Street, was pleasantly surprised a few days ago on receiving a 'thank-you' note from 10 Downing Street, Whitehall, stating: "I am much obliged to you for your very kind token of good will on my birthday." Signed: Winston Churchill.

Mrs. McMullen's daughter, unknowingly to her mother, had sent the Prime Minister a birthday note of good wishes, mentioning the fact that both her mother's and her grandmother's natal day were the same as Sir Winston's.

Police Blotter

Activities remained quiet on the police front during the past 24 hours with nothing but routine matters coming to the attention of officers.

Three local residents who had imbibed a bit too freely were rounded up and given shelter at the police station for the night.

A West Hill resident reported he heard prowlers in his basement and would officers investigate. Investigation revealed there had been no prowler.

A local builder complained that small boys were destroying lumber at his building site on East Dundas Street. The parents were asked to keep the boys away from the lot.

Save by Suggestions

OTTAWA (CP)—Suggestions by civil servants of ways to improve efficiency in government departments have brought estimated savings of $71,600 in the last two years.

In a return tabled Wednesday in the Commons for Ross Thatcher (CCF—Moose Jaw-Lake Centre) the government said 5,800 employee proposals have been received since the civil service commission adopted a "suggestion award plan" in November, 1952. Of this number, 243 were implemented and an unspecified number still are being investigated.

Romantic Satire To Be Presented By Hull Players

The next best thing to Paris in the spring is a rollicking French play with spring in its step.

Such a play is "Malbrough S'en-Va-T'En Guerre," Marcel Achard's romantic satire on the way to wage war from the basis of palace entanglements.

Malbrough, the warrior, forces his wife to borrow money from her father so that he can ask the Queen to lead her armies and thereby win fame and fortune. Malbrough tells his trifling wife that unless she provided the money he will take her paramour to war and have him killed.

The Queen, enraged at the domestic rift, orders Malbrough to lead the army and have his rival killed.

Malbrough's inability to command perils the army in battle and only the skill of his rival saves the day. Malbrough dies fighting and when his rival informs Malbrough's wife of the glorious way he died, she decides she loved him after all.

Working out a happy ending to this delightful piece of froth proves to be a happy circumstance for the audience.

The play is being presented in French by Le Theatre du Pont Neuf, of Hull, the outstanding French language company in the Ottawa Valley.

The company will also present "L'Imbecile," Montreal - born Lomar Gouin's one-act fable of the marriage difficulties of a rug seller's daughter, a gambling sailor, and a rich widow's son.

"Malbrough" will be presented Saturday, Feb. 19th, in the Belleville Collegiate Auditorium as the final three-act play of the Eastern Ontario Regional Drama Festival. Following the play Andre Van Gyseghem, adjudicator, will pronounce final judgment on all entries and make the awards to the winning players.

English synopsis of the stories of both French plays will be provided.

Tickets can be purchased from Belleville Theatre Guild members, downtown ticket outlets, or by writing Box 161, Belleville.

Sir Winston Answers Letter Of School Girl

A nine-year-old Belleville school girl today is the excited possessor of a letter from Sir Winston Churchill.

Moira McLaughlin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John McLaughlin, 285 Bleecker, is a grade five pupil of the new Sir Winston Churchill public school.

Following the school's opening early last December Moira was selected to write to the British prime minister.

"I told him we had a new school named after him and sent him best wishes for his 80th birthday," Moira said.

Tuesday she received a reply from 10 Downing Street.

Yesterday at school assembly she proudly read the letter to the entire school.

Replied Sir Winston: "I am so much obliged for your very kind token of best wishes on my birthday.

Winston S. Churchill.

Says Moira, who now has the letter off by heart: "I am going to have it framed and hung in my bedroom."

Colorful Stage Show to Assist Toronto's Variety Village

A colorful stage and screen extravaganza sponsored by the Bay of Quinte Theatre Managers' Association will be given at the Capitol Theatre, Sunday, February 20 in aid of the Variety Village of Toronto.

The show will offer the best vaudeville Toronto can produce and will be emceed by none other than Monty Hall, well-known radio personality. In addition an outstanding motion picture will be shown. The entire proceeds of the variety show will go to Variety Village. It will begin at nine o'clock. Details of the attraction will be published later.

Variety Club, Tent No. 28, Toronto, is responsible for the building, equipping and maintaining of Variety Village, a residential vocational training school for physically handicapped children of the Province of Ontario. The school is unique in Canada and is operated under the direction of the Ontario Society for Crippled Children.

Variety Club of Toronto is part of an international organization with "Tents" as the Clubs are called, in United States, England, Mexico and Canada. The Toronto Tent is Canada's only representative of Variety.

STARTED IT

Back in 1928 in the Sheridan Theatre, Pittsburgh, an infant girl was abandoned by her mother who left a note pinned to the baby's dress saying that she had heard of the generosity of show folks and begged those finding the baby Catharine to take care of her.

There was a group of 11 Pittsburgh showmen who met socially in a restaurant after their theatres closed. They called themselves the Variety Club because their members were drawn from a variety of branches of the entertainment business. The showmen decided to adopt the youngster and subscribed the money necessary to place her in a home. They named her Catharine Variety Sheridan.

The heart of show business was touched by the incident and soon other Variety Clubs were formed in other cities — all pledged to help baby Catharine and other under-privileged children.

Aided by the Pittsburgh showmen, little Catharine was given a home with foster-parents and today she is a young woman, unconscious of the far-reaching effect she has had for even now she does not know her true identity.

Yet today, because of that one little girl, there are 38 Variety Clubs throughout the world. Last year Variety Clubs International raised and spent more than $2,000,000 for work among underprivileged children.

Membership of Variety Club is made up exclusively of men in the entertainment and professional sport field. Members of the Toronto Club include motion picture theatre men, film distributors and allied industries; hockey and baseball representatives; radio station executives and stars, the press, leading musicians, union officers, night club and legitimate theatre operators, outdoor show owners and a host of others who form part of the entertainment business.

There are more than 200 members of Variety Club in Toronto and they have pledged themselves to build and finance Variety Village. In less than two years the members of Variety raised nearly $250,000 toward the building of Variety Village through baseball, hockey, theatre nights, and other special events.

Though Variety Club has an investment of more than $200,000 in Variety Village, the project is valued at nearly $400,000 and Variety Club acknowledges with deep appreciation the many generous contributions which have made the opening of Variety Village possible.

MAIN OBJECTIVE

The objective of Variety Village is to provide technical education for the young lads who, because of their physical disability, cannot participate fully in a regular educational program. The school's objective is to keep ever before the youngsters their education and their eventual placement.

In 1949 24 boys from 16 to 18 years of age from various parts of Ontario have been enrolled without regard to race, color or creed. These lads are able, despite the severity of their handicaps, to profit from the courses of study most suited to their individual needs.

When increase dormitory accommodation can be arranged more boys will be selected for the school and later Variety Village will be expanded to take care of physically handicapped girls.

The pupils of Variety Village will be boys who are likely to benefit from the vocational training available. They should be of average or better intelligence and 15 to 18 years of age. High School entrance standing is desirable but not essential.

Applications may also be made be made on a regular form available for this purpose and should be made to the Principal of the school, William R. Bennett, Variety Village, 3701 Danforth Avenue, Toronto 13.

Applications may also be made through any nurse or officer, district office or headquarters of the Ontario Society for Crippled Children, 112 College Street, Toronto.

Variety's work in Toronto is not confined to crippled children. Contributions are made to other charities but what the public most appreciates to date of its other works is the free movies for shut-ins. A salaried operator drives a truck donated by General Motors of Canada, uses equipment donated by Associated Screen News and film provided gratis by the various film distributors. His work is to show movies to those who, through physical handicaps or bodily ills, are unable to go to theatres. This service has brought a new spirit into the lives of the shut-ins in Toronto and district and Variety's white truck is in operation every night in the week often presenting a talking picture to an audience of only one person.

Donations toward the maintenance of Variety Village may be made at any time. They may be left with the Principal of the school. Contributions may be sent to the Variety Club of Toronto, Prince George Hotel, Toronto. Cheques should be made payable to Variety Club of Toronto.

Panel Discussion Follows Skit

What happens at home when a student presents a report card that shows failures in two subjects, formed the basis of a skit for a demonstration Home and School Association meeting on Monday evening at Quinte Secondary school.

The skit was acted out by Mr. Roy Sills, chairman of the Bay of Quinte High School Area Board, Mrs. Sills and their son, Robert. The program was produced by Mr. Donald Graham, director of education for Forest Hill Village school, Toronto. About 250 parents, teachers, students and friends attended the meeting.

A panel discussion on the proper handling of a similar situation was held following the skit. Panelists were Mrs. Donald Bateman, psychologist; P. Gwyn Thomas, social worker; James Musgrove, parent; Sandra Stocks and Larry Langlois students, and Norman Sheffe, teacher.

Twenty-five questions pertaining to the skit, similar situations, and parent-student relationships in general were asked by members of the audience. Mr. Graham selected the questions and guided the discussion.

Mr. Graham was introduced by Leslie Reid, principal of Quinte Secondary school and was thanked by Mrs. J. Pugh.

Refreshments were served in the school cafeteria following the meeting.

Three Youths Given Terms For Burglaries

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Three youths were sentenced Wednesday to definite terms of one year less a day in reformatory in connection with a series of 46 burglaries that started last October.

Arthur Sider, 25, pleaded guilty to all 46 charges. He was also sentenced to an indefinite term of two years less a day.

Albert Horton, 17, pleaded guilty to 39 charges. He received an extra nine months indefinite. Orville Sider, 21, pleaded guilty to 17 charges and received no indefinite term.

The youths were arrested in a Grantham township home Jan. 12. The other charges were laid by St. Catharines, Grantham, Louth, Clinton, Niagara, Merritton, East Glamboro, Beamsville, Grimsby and Hamilton.

Loot amounting to thousands of dollars was found at their homes in Jordan, police said. All money stolen was divided and spent.

Obituary

ARTHUR CHARLES FISHER

The funeral of Arthur Charles Fisher was held Wednesday, February 9, from the chapel of the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home. The Rev. L. Arthur Page conducted the service.

Bearers were George Little, Robert Little, Clifford LaRue, Martin LaRue, George Hammett Jr., and Lyle LaBrash.

Interment took place in Belleville cemetery.

Driver Suffers Fractured Jaw, Lacerations

Morris Lord, 52, R.R. 7, Belleville, suffered a broken jaw and lacerations to the throat early this morning, when his car was in head-on collision with another vehicle on the Bay Bridge Road causeway.

According to Provincial Constable Harry Mackenzie slippery road conditions were the cause of the accident. An overnight rain had put a slippery coating of ice on the pavement and drivers were unable to control their cars.

Amos Wannamaker, 36, of Bloomfield, was south-bound following a truck the driver of which was having difficulty in keeping his vehicle under control. The truck skidded slightly sideways, then straightened up, and when Wannamaker touched his brakes his car skidded directly into the path of Lord's car.

Wannamaker's new auto was a complete wreck with damage estimated at $2,000 while Lord's car had about $600 damage.

Constable Mackenzie said the roadway was in a very slippery condition with drivers having to proceed very slowly to keep their vehicles under control.

One-Pound Baby Girl in Grim Battle for Life

MONTREAL (CP)—A one-pound baby girl defied heavy odds today in a battle for life while doctors expressed amazement that the infant has survived so far.

The baby entered its seventh day of life in an incubator at the Children's Memorial Hospital with its chances for life improving with each passing hour. Doctors said, however, that the infant was still far from being out of danger.

Nurses saw reason for hope Wednesday night when the baby cried audibly before feeding time. It was the first sound heard from the incubator since she was brought there last Friday.

The infant was born three months prematurely to Mrs. Yvon Gohier in her suburban Cote St. Luc home. Dr. Pierre A. Perrin, the 71-year-old attending doctor, had the child rushed to hospital, where it was placed in an incubator 45 minutes after birth.

ALAN JARVIS

Charles P. Fell, chairman of the Board of Trustees of the National Gallery of Canada, today announced the appointment of Mr. Alan Jarvis to the post of director of the National Gallery of Canada. Appointed to succeed the retiring director, Dr. H. O. McCurry, Mr. Jarvis is a Canadian now living in London, England. A graduate of the University of Toronto and a former Rhodes scholar, he is actively engaged in many cultural activities including the post of editor of the current series of design booklets, "The Things We See," published by Penguin Books in England. In 1945 he was private secretary to the late Sir Stafford Cripps. He will take up his new post on May 1st.

Wild Auto Chase Ends in Death For Man, Girl

JERSEY CITY, N. J. (AP)—A wild auto chase ended in flaming death early today for a man pursued by police and a terrorized teen-aged girl he had forced to drive him in a getaway attempt.

The innocent victim of the tragedy was identified as 17-year-old Constance Cobb. Police identified the man tentatively as Leonard Pasco, 23.

The car, driven by the girl while Pasco held a gun at her neck, bumped into a police car which was set up as a roadblock.

The vehicle skidded, flipped over and burst into flames. The girl and Pasco were trapped inside and perished despite police efforts to get them out.

Pasco fled late Wednesday night after being picked up by a policeman because he looked suspicious.

In his flight, Pasco came upon a car parked in a deserted spot with two young couples. He ordered all but Miss Cobb out of the car, then forced her to drive him away.

IN MEMORIAM

RUSHLOW. — In loving memory of William Rushlow, who passed away February 10th, 1949.

Six years have passed, dear Father,
Since you were called away;
How well do I remember
That sad and weary day.
You suffered much, you murmured not,
We watched you day by day;
We cried and prayed that your dear life
Would not be taken away.

—Remembered by wife Snolley and family. F10

MACK. — In loving memory of dear Dad, Percy M. Mack, who entered into rest February 9th, 1950.

Memories in my heart today
Mean more to me than words can say.
Although I smile and seem carefree,
Nobody misses you more than me.
Day by day he bore the pain,
Hoping for cure, but all in vain.
In a beautiful spot he is now at rest.
It is true God gave him eternal rest.

—Always remembered by his daughter Bertha, son-in-law Roy and his grandchildren. F10

Three Killed In Auto Crash

PORT HURON, Mich. (AP) — Three persons—a couple and their grandson—were killed Wednesday night in the crash of their automobile and a loaded salt truck.

Bodies of the victims were mangled almost beyond recognition and the car was demolished.

The victims were Elias A. Fadell, 56, his wife, Rose, 55, and Christopher Fadell, 7, all of Port Huron. The truck driver, Ruben T. Carpenter, 37, of Milwaukee, suffered shock but was not injured.

Carpenter told police the Fadell car skidded broadside into the front of his truck on highway 25, six miles south of Port Huron. He said he had just met another car when the Fadell car, with its lights out, appeared suddenly before him.

Rail Unions Win Final Round In Contract Battle

OTTAWA (CP)—Rail unions have won the final round in their long contract battle with the railways that came to the verge of a strike last August.

Chief Justice Gordon Sloan of British Columbia, cabinet - appointed arbitrator in the dispute, has ruled in favor of the unions in the last point at issue between the disputants.

His ruling, it was learned Wednesday, gives five paid statutory holidays a year to sleeping and dining car employees and express messengers.

"With this matter settled, the way now is cleared for the signing of a master agreement dating for a year from Jan. 1 last between the railways and the 15 international and national unions engaged in the contract negotiations.

DIVORCE GRANTED

CAERNARVON, Wales (Reuters) Viscount Amberley, son of Earl Russell—philosopher Bertrand Russell—was granted a divorce decree here Wednesday because of the adultery of his wife, Susan, daughter of the late American poet Rachel Lindsay. They were married in Washington in 1946.

Young Mother Finds No Trace Of Missing Spouse

TORONTO (CP) — A nine-week search by a young mother throughout Ontario has turned up no trace of her missing husband.

Mrs. William Molaski of nearby Pickering township said Wednesday she has travelled hundreds of miles and talked to hundreds of persons who might have seen her husband. So far she has drawn a blank.

Her 32-year-old husband was last seen Nov. 29 after he cashed a pay cheque at a bank near the east Toronto CNR yards where he worked as a yardman.

She said in an interview her husband told her he was hit by a moving train and knocked to the ground Nov 19, and had complained of headaches afterwards.

Mrs. Molaski said she is convinced her husband is suffering from amnesia.

She said she and her husband had just bought a house last year and now she is unable to keep up the mortgage payments. She cannot work because she is expecting her second child in June.

Since her husband disappeared, Mrs. Molaski has scoured the province, visiting relatives and friends in North Bay, Whitby, Belleville, Hespeler, Galt, Guelph and Bruce county.

She has been living with relatives because she has no money. She cannot sell the house because it is in her husband's name. She said she may have to sell the furniture to carry on.

St. Laurent Favors Meeting Of Chinese Foes

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent has indicated he favors a private meeting of Chinese Communists and Nationalists with other powers in any attempt to solve the Formosan crisis.

He said Wednesday that a reported Russian proposal for an international conference on the Far East, with Nationalist China excluded, would not resolve the problem.

Mr. St. Laurent expressed his views in brief newspaper, radio and television interviews on his arrival by air from the Commonwealth prime ministers conference at London.

He may deal with the Formosa question in a report to the Commons on the Commonwealth conference, expected today.

WOULDN'T BAR CHIANG

Referring to the reported Russian proposal, he said:

"I do not believe it would be possible to resolve difficulties without the presence of the two (Nationalist and Communist) parties."

Talks behind the scenes could accomplish more than an open conference.

"Secret diplomacy would do more than an international conference. I do not think that public statements will help solve the issue."

Canada had received no invitation to participate in the Russian-proposed international conference regarding Formosa.

Mr. St. Laurent declined to comment on the sudden switch of soviet leaders.

Mr. St. Laurent said the Commonwealth conference helped clarify the views of member countries on the Far Eastern situation. The prime ministers were hopeful tension could be eased but there was no immediate expectation that the conference would end the crisis.

FOILED DEATH ONCE

EL MONTE, Calif. (AP)—Harry Apperson Jones, 62, was in a hearse en route to a mortuary last Sept. 1 when he revived and persuaded the driver to take him to a hospital. A chronic sufferer from a heart condition, Jones had been pronounced dead. Wednesday night he suffered another heart attack, and this time he did not revive during the trip to the same mortuary.

NOBODY WANTS A WAR

Monday, as the evacuation of the Tachen Islands was commenced under the guardianship of the U.S. 7th Fleet, reports circulated that the Fleet had been fired upon by the Chinese Communists. These reports were erroneous. People who believed them should learn that newspapers are invariably the most reliable source of accurate news.

Probably these erroneous reports originated from an incident in which Chinese Communist anti-aircraft guns fired on U.S. carrier-based jet planes. The difference between this action and firing at units of the 7th Fleet ought to be obvious. If U.S. planes are flying where Communist-manned anti-aircraft guns can hit them, they are flying where they have no necessity to be. Still, in years past an incident of this nature could easily have led to a full-fledged war.

Just as failure to attack the U.S. 7th Fleet is the best proof any person could ask that the Chinese Communists are not so foolhardy as to desire a war with the U.S., so the best proof of the desire of the U.S. to avoid war is provided by a couple of paragraphs hidden in an Associated Press story from Washington on Tuesday.

The paragraphs follow:

"Communist guns on Yikiangshan island early today fired at but missed a U.S. plane flying protective cover over the evacuation.

"U.S. naval officers said the plane had strayed 'out of bounds' and Red anti-aircraft batteries opened up. The plane was immediately ordered out of the area."

The plane was "out of bounds" and was ordered by the U.S. to get out of the area! Could anything be more impressive proof of the falsity of Peiping's claims that the U.S. is trying to provoke full-fledged war? The obvious answer is in the negative, but in this instance the obvious was proven wrong. Wednesday the better proof was provided. Chinese gunners shot down a U.S. Navy plane, but the Navy announced that it did not consider this a "hostile act" because the plane had "misnavigated" and had probably flown over the Chinese mainland.

Some may argue that the action of the Chinese gunners in opening fire does not suggest that the Communists, too, want to prevent the war from spreading. However, it is quite possible, indeed highly probable, that the Communists felt they could not afford to "lose face" by permitting U.S. planes to fly over Communist-held territory without vigorous counter-action. At the same time, when they opened fire those Chinese gunners, and the men who command them, must either have been shaking in their shoes or else they must possess explicit faith in the falsity of their own propaganda!

Playing catch with a hydrogen bomb is not a pastime recommended as healthy exercise in the pamphlets issued by life insurance companies!

THE MEANING OF MALENKOV'S RESIGNATION

"The resignation of Georgi Malenkov as premier of the Soviet Union signals the end of the post-Stalin 'collective leadership'."—William L. Ryan, Associated Press news analyst.

"The manner of Bulganin's election, nominated by Krushchev and presumably with prior agreement within the central committee of the party, may indicate that collective leadership still is in vogue in Russia."—Bill Boss, Canadian Press staff writer.

Well, you pays your money and you takes your choice. If you pay it to Bill Ryan the tab will probably be considerably higher than if you pay it to Bill Boss, but the difference between the salaries drawn by the two men is the result of the accident of birth and is no reliable yardstick to the scope of their respective knowledge of Russia or the comparative value of their prophecies.

That is one thing which is so intriguing and comforting about political developments in the land of the Hammer and Sickle. An editorial writer can discourse at any given length on the meaning of these developments without any danger of ever being proven wrong. Proven, we say.

Stalin was all-powerful. Stalin was the prisoner of the Kremlin. Stalin died a natural death. Stalin was murdered. Beria as head of the secret police controlled Russia. Beria was just a figurehead. Beria was mousetrapped by Malenkov and the Army. Beria was made a scapegoat for the Communist Party.

So it went in the past.

And now—Krushchev is the power behind the throne; Krushchev is just the spokesman for the central committee of the Communist Party. The ousting of Malenkov means a return to a Stalin-type dictatorship. Malenkov's resignation is an indication that collective leadership is the pattern. Bulganin was the Communist Party's political policeman in the Red Army. Bulganin's selection as premier "places the Red Army in a commanding position;" (Boss again.) The ousting of Malenkov means a tougher Soviet foreign policy. "If Bulganin's former post of defence minister is taken over by his erstwhile deputy, Marshal Gregory Zhukov, discreet admirer of both President Eisenhower and Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery, the world may be entering an era of quasi-reasonable relations with the Soviet Union;"—Boss for the third time. Wednesday it was announced that Zhukov had been named to succeed Bulganin as defence minister.

And so, as we said before, you pays your money and you takes your choice. When it comes to the meaning of Russian political developments, the experts of the West are as far from unanimity as a stageful of chorus girls attempting to decide who will lunch with the producer.

HOME INSECURITY

When a four-year-old is near,
 Everything you say is heard,
To be told when friends appear
 As you said it, word for word.
Every happy little tot
 To be tactful never tries.
Boy or girl, it matters not;
 On the grownups both are spies.

No security can be
 With a little child about.
If you whisper, he or she
 Later on will blurt it out.

You are harboring a spy
 In that lovely four-year-old.
Have you secrets? By and by
 To the parson they'll be told.

Did the father stay out late?
 Were you cross with him for that?
Did he very bluntly state
 That he doesn't like your hat?
Do you think your home secure
 And you guard it very well?
What goes on you can be sure
 Any four-year-old will tell.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

FEBRUARY 10, 1935

The newly acquired city snow plow is to be mounted on the city oiler. It is expected that the truck with the plow will be ready for action for the next storm if it does not come before the end of this week. The officials of the public works department say that this arrangement will relieve them of much worry about drifting snow and snow banks during the rest of the winter.

The officials at the government fish hatchery here state that they have had a very successful season. They are now busy on the culture of a large quantity of white fish and a smaller quantity of lake trout. It is expected that an early distribution of the spawn will be made this spring for restocking purposes.

Mr. Ferd Hubbs, Bloomfield, was elected one of the vice-presidents and also a director at the annual meeting of the Holstein Friesian Association which was held in Toronto recently.

Mr. Clarence G. Rutter has been appointed by the Picton town council to the office of town treasurer at a salary of $550 per year. He succeeds Mr. James Gillespie who retired from office recently after fifty years of continuous and efficient service.

Chief of Police Thomas Portland of Picton, has accepted the position of chief of the Collingwood police department.

In a bowling match at the YMCA, last evening, the "Rinky Dinks" defeated the Ritchie Store team by 335 pins. The "Rinky Dinks" total was 2,217, and the Ritchie Store total was 1,882.

Mr. F. Mallory of this city, is spending a few days in Toronto.

Mr. Frank Donahue of Orillia is visiting his home on North Front Street.

Mr. and Mrs. James R. Anderson of Huff's Island, Prince Edward County, spent the week-end here with friends.

Mr. J. A. McNabb of Peterborough, was in town today.

Mr. Jack Hayes will sing that fine patriotic song, "The Admiral's Broom", at the concert and dance in the Odd Fellows' Hall on Friday night next.

Wi' Stane And Besom

(Regina Leader-Post)

According to the Saskatchewan Curling Association there are at least 35,000 curlers in Saskatchewan. If anything, this estimate leans toward the conservative side, according to Mr. Scotty Richardson, association secretary. Last year there were 22,000 registered men curlers with the association in the 536 clubs affiliated with the association.

There probably are at least 600 rinks in the province, ranging from one-sheet affairs to Regina's monster Caledonian, the largest in the world with 14 sheets of artificial ice under the one roof.

A few years ago, Saskatoon led the way by providing artificial ice-making facilities; now there are at least 90 sheets of ice in this category in the province.

The best that Ontario can do, despite its population approximately four times Saskatchewan's, is to muster about 16,000 curlers Of all the provinces, Manitoba is next to Saskatchewan in the number of participants.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

NO NEW TRUTH

There are some people who have a perfect passion for anything new or novel. They will surrender an old belief any day for a new one. Nothing gives them such delight as to find that their creed is outworn and that something which promises to make life really happy and adequate has recently come upon the market.

As a matter of fact, all new manifestations of truth grow out of truths which are old and well-established, just as every new branch of a tree grows out of a larger branch which in turn stems from the trunk of the tree. There is no such thing as new truth. What we call new truth is old truth that men have only recently discovered. The way to satisfy ourselves that the recent discovery is truth indeed, is by seeing whether or not it fits into old truths that have stood the test of time.

Jan Struthers has said, "You cannot successfully navigate the future unless you keep always framed beside it a small, clear image of the past." Every great thinker in history has built on the truths discovered by his predecessors. If a newly discovered truth appears to be unrelated to all truth formerly disclosed, a scientist either suspects that he is mistaken or begins to search for the link of evidence he has overlooked. He knows that if a thing is really true, it is organically related to all the truth of the universe.

France Acts the Fool

(Toronto Globe and Mail)

Since its liberation in the fall of 1944, France has had twenty different Governments, headed by fourteen different Premiers. These Governments lasted an average of six months, with some holding office for only a few days. Following the defeat of the one headed by Premier Pierre Mendes-France, a twenty-first Government is about to be named. And it—unless there is some remarkable change in that country—will shortly be followed by a twenty-second, and then there will be a twenty-third, and so the disgusting farce will go on.

For it is a farce, and it is disgusting; and perhaps the only way in which it will ever come to an end is for France's friends and allies to say so. Let them make it clear that this childish game of musical chairs has gone a long way, very nearly all the way, toward wrecking the friendship and the alliance. Let them firmly state that if it goes on, if they cannot count upon any French Government, then they cannot count upon France—and France cannot count upon them. These are harsh words, but they are triply justified.

They are justified, firstly, by the chronic instability of the French democracy which the other democracies, at great cost, re-established some ten years ago. The British, Americans, Canadians and all the rest did not liberate France so that it could make a fool of itself. They did not restore France's freedom to vote so that a melange of irresponsible politicians could pull down Governments—so called—every hour on the hour. They did not, in short, seek to replace the New Order with the New Chaos.

Harsh words are justified, secondly, because the Government which has just been pulled down was one of the best France has had since the war—in some ways the best of them all. Both in the foreign and domestic fields, M. Mendes-France had remarkable accomplishments behind him. In seven months, he had done much for his country, and was on his way to doing much more. But simply because he had done something, simply because he had had the courage to face and act upon problems, he had made enemies in the National Assembly. They waited, they conspired, and when their chance came during the North African debate, they stabbed him in the back.

The third justification for harsh words is that the agreements, drawn up at Paris, on West German rearmament are yet to be fully ratified by France. The National Assembly (comparable to our own House of Commons) has approved them, but the Council of the Republic (comparable to our own Senate) has not. The latter body was to have debated them next Thursday, but with the fall of the Mendes-France Government, the discussion will be delayed for weeks, perhaps months. Which means that the arming of Western Germany, which is essential to the security of France and all Western Europe, will be delayed by that much. Also delayed, possibly scuttled for good, are the economic and social reforms by which M. Mendes-France hoped to cure France's internal sickness. And the future of Indo-China has by no means been settled.

In all, the French National Assembly has done a pretty piece of work. The Assembly, to be sure, is not France. But it is the France with which France's allies must deal—or from now on refuse to deal. Have they any real alternative to the latter course? Can they keep on seeking co-operation where there is no genuine will to co-operate?

The North Atlantic Alliance is a serious enterprise, formed for a serious purpose, and requiring a serious attitude among its members. The time has surely come when the people and politicians of France should be bluntly informed of this fact. For ten years, they have been excusing their failure to pull their weight —and the Western World has been falling over itself to find excuses for them. Let there be an end of it. Let France now count herself into the alliance—or be counted out of it.

Letter to the Editor

'Biggest Slap'

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

We are looking at an item published in the Ontario Intelligencer on the date of January twentieth, this year.

The heading of this item: "George S. White Against Import of New Zealand Cheese".

As most of us know, Mr. White is a very capable and efficient member of Parliament for Hastings-Frontenac.

We agree with Mr. White, it does seem asinine to import cheddar cheese into Canada when we are wondering what to do with millions of pounds of high class Canadian made cheddar cheese stored in storages, wondering by those in charge where they can find a market for this high grade product.

In this same article, Mr. White is quoted as saying, "Government approval of importation of New Zealand cheese into this country was the worst slap in the face Ontario farmers ever received."

If the above 'quote" is reporting Mr. White correctly, then he is totally wrong in that statement, very very wrong.

The biggest slap (in fact, it was a fist blow right from the shoulder) given Ontario farmers was when the Ontario Provincial Government allowed oleo margarine, and similar products to be manufactured and sold in this province.

True, the importation of 2,250,000 pounds of high grade New Zealand cheese from a sister commonwealth nation is something that should not have happened.

But what about the importation of cheap fats and oils used to manufacture and sell 100,000,000 pounds of oleo margarine and similar products per year in the eight provinces that allow its sale and manufacture in each of the said eight provinces.

Does the consuming public know that in this great Province of Ontario, there are only eleven organizations licensed to manufacture and sell these spreads; seems quite a business they have.

How about patronizing our home market. Does anyone ever realize that every grocer man, grocery organization, lumber camps, mining camps, what have you, act as collecting agencies to channel money from all over the province into the coffers of these eleven licensed manufacturers. They keep out their expenses and profit and more than ninety per cent of the balance is sent to foreign countries in payment of these imported cheaper fats and oils.

In other words 'sfunny we hear no Parliamentarians, members of Legislative Assemblies, and not much from any person about this and finally, let me repeat, if it wasn't for the manufacture and sale of these cheaper spreads in eight provinces, there would be no unwarranted butter surplus and the writer honestly thinks we would have a home market for cheese. But wouldn't that be terrible, no person would want that, would they?

Yours for butter,
MACK. ROBERTSON.

Human Body Made to Move

(London Free Press)

Bernard MacFadden, 87-year-old American physiculturist, who made millions advocating exercise and the "body beautiful," who had the fascinating habit of dictating editorials while standing on his head, who took to parachute jumping when he was 80, says: "I must keep up my regular exercise. I'd be dead in six months without that."

Most of us on this continent are exercise-conscious, but chiefly in the role of spectator. We have become a race of sitters. Even in our transportation we sit save that on buses we straphang, which is a simian exercise.

A footnote to health might be that the body was made to move, that as soon as it settles down into inertia it is virtually at a dead end.

Smart Quips About Farmers

(Montreal Star)

A remark on farming by the late Bob Edwards, the gay and witty editor of the old Calgary Eye-Opener, has found its merited place in Robert M. Hamilton's "Canadian Quotations and Phrases." It declares:

"City people envy the farmer—but not to such an extent that they take advantage of the continuous opportunities to be one."

The reason behind this statement of fact was perhaps set forth in the House of Commons a few days ago by Irvin Studer, M.P. for Maple Creek-Swift Current, who said:

"I was not born in a log cabin, and I was not born in a sod shack, but my parents moved into one as soon as they could afford it."

Let's hope that this autobiographical note by Mr. Struder will find its way into Mr. Hamilton's next edition. It deserves to, alongside that other comment on rural life from the lips of an unnamed Ontario senator in 1921:

"Youse farmers want to keep your boys at home. Don't let them go up to the city; keep them on the farm—the temptation is more pure."

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

CORRECT YOUR DIET AND FEEL BETTER

From down east a lady writes:

Dear Dr. Brady:

The Ol' is unworthy . . . Everybody envies my being so full of pep. I tell them it is thanks to Dr. Brady, but they smile at my naivety and continue to drag around, even after "shots" . . . most of them younger in years but none seems to have vite.

(Mrs. L. R.)

Dr. Brady

Well, Ma'am, that isn't our fault, is it? You tried to tell 'em, and for years I have been telling 'em. But the poor geeks like to dream they can get it in "shots" at $7.50 per without bothering their heads aboue diet, nutrition, temperance, natural breathing, exercise, care of the teeth or other silly notions — after all, they can always dispel their inferiority complexes with another cocktail or highball.

In rare instances of advanced malnutrition it is necessary to inject into a vein many times more than the normal daily requirement of one or more vitamins.

One reader informs me that vitamins are magic, for whenever he gets utterly tired out and exhausted he drops in at the "clinic" and gets a "shot", and presently he is on his toes again and in fine spirits. Do I know anything else that will do that?

I do not. But I believe a shot of sterile tap water would have the same effect.

Another writer writes:

I am supplementing my diet with B-complex and calci-wafers. Gone are the aches, pains, allergies and irregular heartbeats, not to mention the ulcer symptoms that worried me . . . 47, look and feel fine, go to gym class every week, enjoy doing all my own housework for a family of four, and occasionally take a part time job . . .

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

LOOK UP—NOT DOWN!

I am under the impression that there was once a society that had as its motto: "Look Up—Not Down. Lend a Hand!" I seem to recall that Edward Everett Hale was the inspiration for it. It's a good motto, anyway. We don't run into obstacles when we keep our chin up, our eyes set ahead, and our vision away from the ground. We need to take in as much territory with our eyes as possible.

We miss a great deal that is going on in the world by not looking up, and by looking down. Emerson, in one of his essays, advised people to hitch their wagon to a star He meant, of course, to aim high—to look up—not down. There is no more inspiring sight in all this world than the starry heavens upon a clear and brilliant night. It was at such a view that the Psalmist grew humble and cried: "What is Man?"

In one of my early school books was an interesting story about a bo who wanted to cut his name above all others on the Natural Bridge of Virginia. He would cut a place for his hands, higher and higher, while people below kept crying: "Look up. Keep your eyes on the top. Don't look down." Well, as the story went, he did not look down, but finally had cut his name above all others, and was pulled to the top in safety.

In this connection it is well not to look back either! Forget all those worries. They are in the past. Today is the day of all others. Dr. Osler, in a talk that he gave before a group of Yale University students many years ago, suggested that we form the habit of "living for the day only, and for the day's work, Life in daytight compartments." It is for the will to inspire the word that sets it to action.

The noblest structure that anyone can build is his own character, and it is up to the individual to be his own architect. No two ever designed exactly the same. You can select as the mental corner-stone these words: "Look Up—Not Down!"

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

It is good to see the common ordinary red or blue bandanna handkerchief coming back into fashion with the trend towards sport shirts and informal clothing for business wear. It is too soon, I suppose, to expect business generally to escape from the old stuffy tradition of business suits. Probably nine out of ten men in business, whether bank managers or store clerks, cling religiously to the conventional sober garments that go with the phrase describing their job as "white collar"

But at several different levels, the breakaway has begun. At the highest level, amongst top executives and vice-presidents, you commonly encounter men, mostly middle aged, who wear sport coats and grey flannels in the office. Not infrequently, a member of the brass will be wearing a blazer to work. Sport shirts are to be noted even at the presidential level of business. And this trend is most noticeable in those modern offices where the furniture and decoration is freed of the mouldy tradition of walnut, and of onyx pen and ink stands.

In the big stores, management still demands very stodgy clothes on the male clerks while allowing the girls to do as they please, the prettier the better. But in smaller stores everywhere, the business suit is pretty well a back number amongst clerks and merchants.

With the passing of the business suit not only the gay shirt and the carefree coat, but the bandanna, as the pocket handkerchief of a man. The white handkerchief has been an absurdity for generations. Nothing is more ridiculous than the sight of a man twiddling at his nose with a little white dolly. A soiled white handkerchief is the most desagreeable object in the world.

But a man burying his face in a good big red bandanna is a noble spectacle. The word bandanna comes from the Hindu word bandhnu, which refers to a particular way of dyeing cloth. The best bandannas I ever got were Mexican, they were red and yellow, spacious, of good thick cotton, and cost twenty cents.

Pleasant Field For Research

(Owen Sound Sun-Times)

A report from London says kissing can produce blue electric sparks with a voltage of possibly 500. That is, of course, kissing by some people. It has been long known that kissing, under some circumstances, can be quite shocking. In fact some young men can testify that some young ladies pack quite a wallop on being kissed, the wallop being delivered, however, by the open hand generally across the male cheek. The report may well lead to considerable experimenting on the part of some young men who are in interested in research. It is reassuring to know there is no chance of being electrocuted.

Lois Marshall of Toronto Delights Large Audience

(By EUGENE LANG)

One of the world's foremost musical authorities has given this definition of an artist—"An artist is a person who succeeds in transferring his or her own thoughts, moods and emotions to other people." Now, if we consider beauty and truth as the same, as has often been claimed, then an artist arrives at beauty by expressing his or her own feelings in such a way that those who hear this artist will surely recognize the truth. Well, to say the least, the truth was indelibly stamped upon over a thousand minds last evening in the Collegiate auditorium by an artist of rare intellect and supreme musical talents in the person of the young Canadian soprano, Lois Marshall of Toronto, who made her debut here.

Her rise to fame has been phenomenal in the short length of time it has taken her to come from apparent obscurity to become one of the finest sopranos on the concert stage today. After her December, 1952, New York recital in Town Hall she has emerged to the high position in the singing world that few have equalled (and perhaps we could say none has bettered) in so short a time. Her career since then has been one long series of triumphs before capacity audiences wherever she has appeared. None other than the great Toscanini chose her for the singer to cope with the difficult soprano part in the Missa Solemnis of Beethoven, this alone if nothing else attesting to her magnificent voice.

PROGRAM CAREFULLY CHOSEN

The program chosen by Miss Marshall was one that showed great care in its selection. Even though the majority of the numbers listed on the printed programs were not too familiar to the audience, nevertheless they were ones which were used to show the wealth of character that Miss Marshall possesses vocally.

The two semi-sacred songs of England's immortal 17th century genius, Henry Purcell, were treated to a rendering of intense feeling and careful expressiveness by Miss Marshall, these two offering a direct contrast to Mozart's florid outpourings in the brilliant "Allelulia" from his Motet "Exultate Jubilate." This latter composition is beloved by all sopranos and Miss Marshall was perfection itself in her clear articulation of its treacherous passages.

Her group of Lieder contained one number each by those four leading 19th century exponents of this style of singing, namely Schubert, Schumann, Brahms and Hugo Wolf. "Die Allmacht" (Omnipotence) by Schubert, one of the stateliest and most sublime expressions of religion in music was portrayed with a fervent depth that penetrated into its very being from opening to closing measures. Both the Schumann and Brahms were sung with such tenderness and compassions and in such a warm manner that one wished time would stand still so that these delightful cameos would flow on endlessly. The comic "Elf's Song" of Hugo Wolf, impishly done by the artist, brought this portion of the program to a close.

IN FINE OPERATIC FORM

Operatically speaking, Miss Marshall was in fine form last evening, as she so admirably convinced everyone by her splendid vocal achievements in three famous arias from the 19th century Italian school. Every facet of her vocal talents was given free reign in these selections, from pathetic yearnings in the Mascagni, through dramatic passions in the Verdi and ending in coloratura trapeze flights in the Rossini, the latter being given as an encore.

Four contemporary songs were representative of the modern idiom, each being a true mirrored replica of the composer's original intent. Musically satisfying were the "To the Children" by Rachmaninoff and "The Daisies" by Samuel Barber. But we must confess that the greatest voice that ever existed cannot do justice to a musical work if the work itself is lacking in appeal and inspired thought. These ears heard nothing of interest in either the "Piping Down the Valleys" of Morawetz or "I Hear an Army" by Barber. Shall we say that when the composer has nothing to say—well, the singer can't say it.

THREE ENCORES GIVEN

Three encores were graciously given by Miss Marshall to the enthusiastic applause of the large audience in attendance. Truly, she has one of the most pleasing voices one would wish to hear and she bears the stamp of the true artist in every fibre of her being. Here is a musical asset that Canada and Canadians may well be proud to place beside the best that there is in the vocal field. We do hope that she will be with us again in the not too distant future.

Mr. Weldon Kilburn, the accompanist and personal friend of Miss Marshall who has guided her for many years in her voice study, maintained a high degree of balance and coherence in his sensitive and well-tempered piano shadings in the accompaniments. For a solo number he played three short pieces by Debussy from the Suite "Pour le Piano." These were done in a clear and pleasing manner, although his encore, a Waltz by Chopin, needs a little brushing up for a more sure-footed performance.

Following the recital, a reception was held for Miss Marshall at the home of Mrs. W. H. Finkle, East Bridge St.

Foxboro

FOXBORO. — Friends of Mrs. Edward Montgomery are glad to know she returned home today, having been a patient for the past week in Belleville General Hospital. Glad to report she is feeling much better.

Sympathy of the community goes to Mrs. W. Wickett and family in the passing of a husband and father.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Spencer, of Toronto, were week-end guests of the former's bother, Mrs. Ferne Spencer.

Mr. and Mrs. Don McKeown attended the Ice Follies in Toronto, on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Prindle, Hazel and Iner, were Sunday afternoon guests of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Parks, and family, Massassaga.

Sympathy is extended to Mrs. Joe Hollinger, whose sister, Mrs. G. H. Rose, passed away on Sunday.

Mr. Carman Buskard was a week-end guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Buskard; Mr. J. McMurray was also a guest at the same home.

Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Ray, Linda and Donna, Mrs. Alex Fleming and Wallace, Helen and Edmund, were Friday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. Chappelle and Sharon.

Mr. Charles Demille spent the week as guest of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Demille.

Poodle Most Popular

LONDON (CP)—The poodle was 1954's most popular pedigree dog, kennel club statistics show.

Next on the list came cocker spaniels, holders of the title for 20 years, followed by Alsatians, boxers, Welsh corgis, pekingese, retrievers, daschshunds, cairn terriers and wire-haired fox terriers.

In 1938, the poodle anked 47th out of 105 breeds, while the boxer, fast social climber of the canine cinque, rated 70th.

Unofficially, of course, the mongrel still is top dog—in numbers anyway.

Woman at 100 Gets All Fussed Up for Birthday

TORONTO (CP) — Rose Clark, who celebrates her 100th birthday next Sunday, had her first hairdo Wednesday.

She was getting "all fussed up" for the birthday party to be held in her honor at the House of Providence. The straight backed, white-haired little woman said she "never held much with hairdos" but she guessed it was all right for her 100th birthday.

It will be a double celebration, for the House of Providence will be marking 100 years of service too. The House was built for the Sisters of St. Joseph's in 1855, the same year Miss Clark was born at Downeyville, a small village near Lindsay.

Premier Frost took a special testimonial from the province of Ontario and greetings from many mutual friends in Lindsay to Miss Clark Wednesday.

Mrs. Frost, the premier's wife, presented her with the two orchids Mrs. Frost wore for the opening of the Ontario legislature Tuesday.

Eldorado

ELDORADO. — Mr. and Mrs. Don Post and family spent the week-end with friends at Gananoque.

Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Sine and children spent the week-end with friends at Stirling.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry McCoy and Wayne spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur McCoy at Nestleton. Mrs. McCoy remained there for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. C. D. McCann and Harley Blackburn spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Clayton McCann of Peterborough.

Miss Alice Rowe is progressing favorably in Kingston Hospital from an operation on Thursday last.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Boyle and children spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. George Harris, Cooper.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Stevenson and children spent Sunday at Napanee.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert McCarey were Monday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Sine.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Pigden and Dewayne were Sunday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. Doug Pigden.

Mr. and Mrs. John McCann spent Monday at Peterborough.

Great Books Group Discusses 'Paradise Lost'

The Great Books Discussion group met in Corby Public Library on Monday evening with the president, Dr. John Martin, in the chair.

The subject of the evening was Milton's "Paradise Lost" with Mrs. Ward in charge. This epic poem or allegory of the fall of man and his redemption proved an absorbing topic for the two-hour discussion.

Seven members were present.

Rednersville United Holds 'Youth Sunday'

"Youth Sunday" was held in Rednersville United church on Sunday. The order of service, under the leadership of the Young People, was as follows: prelude; processional; "Holy, Holy, Holy": Call to Worship; hymn "This is My Father's World"; responsive Psalm reading: Psalm 1; chorus: "From Sea to Sea", by C.G.I.T. group; Bible lesson: John 15, 1-8, read by C.G.I.T. member; prayer; C.G.I.T. chorus: "The Shepherd Divine" from the Bajhan India; announcements; offering: received by Joan Dawson and Wilma de Jong; duet: Carol Bonter and Shirley Parsons; affiliation ceremony for C.G.I.T. group; hymn "O Lord of Love"; message: by George Chase, candidate for the ministry at Albert College; hymn, "Land of our Birth"; benediction and the recessional, "Enter into His Gates with Thanksgiving and into His Courts with Praise."

Argyll Chapter I.O.D.E. Elects New Officers

Mrs. E. S. Fairman, regent, was hostess to the members of the Argyll Chapter I.O.D.E., at her home, Monday evening, with 26 members present.

The meeting took the form of a dessert buffet. Mrs. R. Bird invited the members to the dining room, where white candles cast a soft glow over the table, which was centred by an attractive arrangement of spring flowers.

Coffee was poured by Mrs. P. H. Wills and Mrs. W. N. Ponton.

The meeting was opened by Mrs. Fairman with a prayer and the new members were welcomed to the chapter.

The officers for the year were elected as follows: Mrs. P. H. Wills, honorary regent; Mrs. E. S. Fairman, regent; Mrs. F. Sprague, treasurer; Mrs. F. Symons, secretary; Mrs. G. Scott assistant secretary; Mrs. A. Duffy, standard bearer; Mrs. William Burgoyne, educational secretary; Mrs. R. H. Vaughan, press reporter; Mrs. L. Blaker, hospitality convener; Mrs. F. Lazier, services at home and abroad; Mrs. A. Lazier, flower convener; Mrs. G. Miller, 'Echoes' secretary.

A request was received from the Quinte Secondary school for a flag and pictures of The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh. The chapter will be most pleased to present these to the school on February 16.

It was also decided to have the Argyll Tag Day early in September and a rummage sale was planned for the latter part of April.

Women's Activities

UNITED CHURCH E.A.

WELLINGTON. — The United Church Evening Auxiliary met in the church basement last Tuesday evening with the president, Mrs. Elliott in the chair. She opened the meeting with the reading of a poem followed by the singing of a hymn and prayer.

There were 27 members present.

Mrs. Pyne and Mrs. George Dorland reported on community friendship calls; Mrs. F. Brimley on Christian Stewardship; Miss E Ward, Mrs. C. Tice, and Mrs. Pyne for Africa, India and Korea. Mrs. C. Campbell read the thank-you notes.

After a short business discussion, the meeting was turned over to Mrs. C. Tice and Mrs. B. Gibson for the program, which was as follows: An inspiring devotional by Mrs. M. Taylor; a questionnaire on "What we are doing about ourselves and for others in all walks of life and every race."

An interesting chapter of the study book was given by Mrs. James Dick followed by a musical number by Mrs. N. Foster, and a reading by Mrs. D. McKenzie, "My Thanks to God for the Five Senses."

Mrs. Tice, on behalf of herself and Mrs. Gibson, thanked all those who took part in the program.

Refreshments were served by the group in charge and a pleasant social time spent.

SHANNONVILLE W.M.S.

The monthly meeting of the W.M.S. of Shannonville United church was held at the home of Mrs. L. W. Scott on Thursday, with 19 ladies in attendance. The president, Mrs. Charles Wood, welcomed all and expressed her pleasure that so many had braved the cold to be present.

Mrs. K. R. Vivian, group leader, took charge of the worship service, theme for the month being "The Church in India", and read the call to worship. Mrs. D. Hinchey presided at the piano. Mrs. Charles Kierl read about the Christian leaders in India, and prayer was offered for them in this critical period of their national life.

Scripture lesson was read by the group leader.

Mrs. Arthur Houston read about Miss Rebecca Varkey, a scholarship student from India, two years ago, who spoke of the need of the Christian faith in her country.

The next chapter of the study book "The Church in India", was taken by Mrs. Vivian assisted by readings by Mrs. Everett Stratton and Mrs. Stanley MacDonald. The Protestant churches in South India are united.

Mrs. Wood thanked Mrs. Vivian and her group for their program and took charge of the business.

Mrs. Stanley MacDonald expressed thanks for cards and calls her husband received from the members and friends through his illness.

The president thanked the hostess for opening her home for the meeting.

A sale of home cooking, candy, eggs and canned goods added $12.15 to the funds. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Scott and Mrs. Vivian and her group.

Next meeting is to be held on February 25, World Day of Prayer, at Mrs. Everett Stratton's.

MARSH HILL W.M.S.

The W.M.S. of Marsh Hill United church met at the home of Mrs. Alex. Tanner last Tuesday, with 11 members present.

The president, Mrs. Leslie Finkle opened the meeting by reading a poem "Do Something for Somebody".

Two members contributed to the birthday box and six members paid their fees.

Mrs. Walter Lindenfield read a letter concerning the "World Day of Prayer", which will be held at the home of Mrs. Fred Campbell, February 25.

Mrs. Campbell gave some interesting facts on 'Temperance', and Mrs. Bartindale a reading, "Stewardship Begins at Home."

Mrs. L. Finkle took charge of the worship service, the theme, "The Church Universal in India."

Mrs. Fred Heasman was in charge of the study book dealing with the chapter, "Growth of the Church in India". She was assisted by Mrs. Alex. Tanner and Mrs. Berson Mitts

After the benediction, the hostess served refreshments.

FOXBORO W.M.S.-L.G.

The February meeting of the Presbyterian Ladies' Guild and W.M.S. was held on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Reg. Skinner. Mrs. Johnston, the president of the W.M.S., was in charge of the meeting.

The theme of the meeting was "Prayer". Miss Watt read the Scripture lesson. Mrs. Juby gave a reading on "Prayer of the Heart," and Mrs. Lyons read "My Closest Prayer."

A duet by Mrs. Skinner and Mrs. Johnston was much enjoyed.

Readings on "Prayer" were given by Mesdames Bartlett, Chappell, Johnston and Bell.

The highlights of the Presbyterial were given by some of the ladies, who attended the meeting.

A contest on "Prayer" was also much enjoyed by all.

The February meeting is to be held at the home of Miss Bell.

A reminder was given of the World Day of Prayer to be held in the United church this year, and all were asked to attend, if possible.

Mrs. Skinner served refreshments.

COMMITTEE VOTES YES

BONN (AP)—The economic committee of the Bundstag (lower house) Wednesday night approved the Paris treaties to rearm West Germany. The vote was 21 to 10.

Women of The Moose

Recently the Women of the Moose had a meeting in the chapter room at the Moose Hall on Victoria Avenue.

With Guide Connie Pringle being absent, co-worker Glad Ritch presided and opened the Bible upon the altar. Chaplain Margaret Mallette gave the opening invocation.

An initiation of one new member took place with temporary Guide Glad Ritch and assistant, Guide Florence Carufel bringing Norah Potts into the chapter room. Norah was sponsored by Lena Connell.

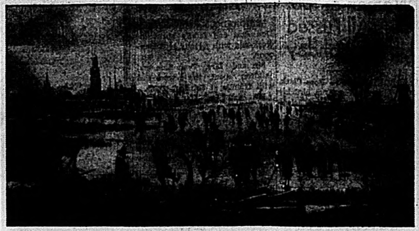
A thank-you letter sent to co-worker Marg. Mallette, from The Ontario Hospital at Kingston, for parcel sent to them, was read.

Several reports were given and proved to be successful.

Pot-luck supper with everything imaginable was served by Child Care chairman, Hazel Whitmarsh and her committee.

OUTLAW SELFISHNESS

BOSTON (AP) — The Massachusetts legislature voted Wednesday to make it a criminal offence for a subscriber on a party telephone line to refuse to yield the line to another party for an emergency call. The bill would make it punishable by fines of $50 to $500 for a party line user to refuse to yield for a call for police, firemen or a doctor.



One of 95 famous paintings by 17th century Dutch master coming to Art Gallery of Toronto, February 19 to March 25, this "A Frozen River," by Aert van der Neer, depicts winter sports familiar to Canadians. Men in foreground are playing "golf," a combination of hockey and curling played with golf sticks; others on the right are ice-fishing. Skaters wear the turned-up front blades famed in "Hans Brinker, The Silver Skates." This scene was likely at Amsterdam where van der Neer kept a wine shop.

Mr. Hogerwaard expressed gratitude and appreciation for the co-operation and support given to him during the past year.

Wife Preservers

Do not let raw vegetables or fruits stand for long periods on the kitchen sink. The acids they contain will eventually stain the surface.

Worth Remembering

by Phyllis Campbell

SPICE UP THAT CEDAR CLOSET!
If you have a natural cedar closet that's lost its clean, pungent odor—do this. Wrap a block of wood with fine sandpaper. Gently rub down the entire surface. Leave the fragrant wood exactly as it is—no waxing or coating. You'll be amazed at the heady, cedar fragrance released!

NOW'S THE TIME TO GET FOXY!
Silver fox is back in fashion limelight. If, like many women, you have silky fox furs stored—now's the time to produce them! Have them styled into a small, "Hug-me" jacket; or a luxurious stole for very little money.

ABOUT FURS AND SCENT—FROM THE CONTINENT!
Those Continental women know how to turn a man's head with intriguingly-scented furs. Whether you're wearing a fur jacket, stole or coat—spray the fur generously with your favorite perfume. It's a minxy trick—even on muskrat!

EASY, INTERESTING AND ECONOMICAL COOKING!
Here's a dish you'd really shell-out for in many famous restaurants—and it's so simple, cheap and appetizing you'll want to make it often. Shish Kebab. Skewer one-inch squares of lean lamb between alternate layers of green-pepper, peeled white onion and tomato. Brush with olive oil, pepper and broil in 350° oven, turning at half time. If you like highly-flavored food, marinate lamb in garlic-olive-oil overnight.

More Moore gives you directions for making meringue shells in heart shapes for the Valentine party.

Lacking any very young fry any more to have a Valentine party for I'm getting a vicarious kick out of working out one or two little items that might appeal to you for yours.

What would you think of making perfect professional meringue shells, ready to be filled either with red jelly or pink ice cream? Even if you do not have a party for your young people you could serve these for dessert for dinner on Valentine night.

Or, if you are having a party for your bridge club in Valentine week, let these be your piece de resistance.

Yes even you can make them for directions are explicit and complete and you need only four ingredients— egg whites, sugar, salt and vanilla.

If the meringue idea leaves you lukewarm or stone cold how then would you fancy a layer cake topped with candy cane crush? It is here too.

PERFECT MERINGUES

(For shells and cookies.)

One-half cup fresh egg whites, 1 cup fine granulated sugar, pinch of salt, 1-2 teaspoon vanilla. Add salt and vanilla to egg whites in large bowl and beat until very very stiff—if by hand five minutes, if by electric beater about three minutes. Then add 2-3 cup sugar, 1 tablespoon at a time, and beat just until sugar is blended. Sprinkle remaining 1-3 cup over entire surface of meringue and fold in gently with the hands, having fingers spread wide. Mix only until evenly blended. Add a few drops of desired coloring (optional) and mix it in with hands. (This is the way professional bakers mix meringues.)

For all meringues, shells and cookies, brush baking sheets with lard and sprinkle lightly with cornstarch then shake off loose starch. With round or heart shaped cutter make an impression over the starch as a guide for you when you squeeze meringue from pastry bag or tube.

Put meringue in dry pastry bag with plain tube or star tube and pipe onto outline on prepared baking sheet, giving it high sides like a nest if for shells. Bake in very slow oven of 250 deg. Fahr. with door party open for 1 1-2 hours if meringue shape is thick. For flatter cookie shape 1 hour at 250 deg. is sufficient. If meringues begin to get golden while baking open oven door entirely.

Meringues should be kept in dry cool place in covered container or carton to keep them crisp.

For Valentine Party meringues are pretty filled with pink ice cream or red jelly. For occasions other than Valentine day assorted meringues in pastel colors are very attractive served with ice cream or frozen desserts.

PARTY LAYER CAKE

For 2 layers blend together in large mixing bowl 1-2 cup best quality shortening with 1 cup sugar, then beat in 2 eggs, 1-2 teaspoon salt and, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Sift together 2 cups sifted cake flour, 2 1-2 teaspoons baking powder and add them alternately with 3-4 cup milk, stirring just until smooth. Bake in two 8-inch greased and floured layer tins 30 to 35 minutes at 375 deg. Fahr. Cool. Put together and spread on top and sides with fluffy or white butter icing. Sprinkle sides with crushed peppermint candy canes, and mark a heart shape on top and sprinkle inside the lines with more crushed candy cane.

Beauty

BEAUTY PROBLEMS OF THE REDHEAD

One reason why red hair has a fascination is because all the shafts are not the same color. Among the auburn threads may be others that carry a coppery tone or a golden glint. This means red hair has lovely lights and shadows.

It is usually a fast color. It seldom darkens as do blonde locks.

It is a beauty treasure and should have the most fastidious care. The shampoo must be bland. Liquid or cream shampoos should be applied several times, each application followed by a prolonged rinsing. If soap deposits are left on the strands, lustre will vanish.

As a rule, the girl with auburn locks is blessed with a skin of delicate texture and fair coloring. To keep it in condition, soothing cream should be applied freely. Subjected to strong sunlight, such skin is more likely to burn than tan, so protective measures are necessary.

Make-up is a problem because the color of the hair must be taken into consideration. It is easy enough to match the fair skin with powder. If skin is unusually pale and rouge is required, it is important to select the right shade.

If eyes are brown or hazel, rouge should have an orange undertone. If eyes are green or blue, one should wear a pink-toned powder and coral rouge. In all cases, one should avoid blue-reds in rouge or lipstick.

Faint-colored eyebrows and lashes are common griefs to this type of beauty. If a crayon is used on the eyebrows, it should be dark brown instead of black.

A REST FOR BIG BEN

LONDON (Reuters) — Big Ben, giant clock overlooking the Houses of Parliament and famous for its chimes broadcast throughout the world, will stop for two months next year for repairs. The clock was badly shaken by bombs which destroyed the old House of Commons in May, 1941. The top of the clock tower was also damaged.

The clock was silent for several hours last month when snow jammed the 14-foot, 200-pound hands.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

IT MUST BE "HONOUR" IN WEDDING INVITATIONS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

The engraver to whom I went to consult about my formal wedding invitations and announcements wrote out for me, while I was there, the form he said is correct. When I noted and called to his attention that he had spelled "honor" like this—not "honour" with the "u"—he assured me that today it is the custom to omit the "u". Is this correct? — Bride-to-be

No! In formal wedding invitations and announcements, "honour" is spelled with the "u." (Likewise "favour," as in "The favour of a reply is requested.") The rules for the forms for engraved wedding invitations and announcements are very definite traditional rules, and they should be meticulously followed. Any deviation from the accepted form is immediately noticed by people who know what's what. And it's just too bad to let any error (such as not spelling "honour" in the traditional way) mar the perfection of such important formal items.

DESSERT SPOON AND FORK ABOVE PLATE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Twice recently I've been surprised to see, in the homes of friends, the dessert silver (dessert spoon and fork) placed above the plate. That is, these two pieces were apparently placed in this position as the table was set. Is this considered a permissible thing to do? If it is, I'd certainly like to "copy" it, for it would save so many steps and so much planning for the dessert-service. To me it makes sense! — A Faithful Reader

Indeed it does make sense for informal service . . . and more and more and more hostesses here are following this practical custom, which has been the custom in Europe for many years.

As you say, this procedure saves many steps, and today this saving is extremely important. When you are setting the table you place the dessert spoon and fork across the top of the individual place, parallel to the edge of the table. The spoon is placed above the fork, its handle to the right, since this is the natural way for the right hand to pick up The handle of the fork is to the left. This setting makes it easy for the hostess to serve the dessert directly from the dessert serving-dish to the individual plates . . . Without even having to think about the dessert spoons and forks. For they are, all ready!

SHOULDN'T BORROW FORMAL WEDDING GOWN

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am a 24-year-old woman divorced, and have a son four years old. I am planning to be married in the near future, and I would like to wear a gown. A very dear friend of mine has asked me if I would borrow her wedding gown. Her gown naturally is all-white, of net, and it has a train of about three feet. As far as the gown itself is concerned I could add color by making a powder-blue skirt and sewing this under the white net skirt. But what I'm perplexed about is the train on the skirt. Is it proper for me to have a train, or doesn't this matter? — A.

Your friend is extremely kind and generous in her offer to let you borrow her wedding dress, but I think you would be extremely foolish to accept her offer. You should not wear a dress of this type, and your plan for adding color will only botch this dress. And of course you mustn't wear a train. For your second marriage, you should wear a simple afternoon dress or perhaps a dressmaker-type suit.

Club Activities

ST. ANDREW'S CLUB

IVANHOE — The regular monthly meeting of St. Andrew's Club, held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Donnan last Thursday evening was well attended. The president, Mrs. H. Thompson, opened the meeting by reading a poem.

The Scripture lesson, Psalm 24, was read by Rev. W. H. V. Walker, who also led in prayer.

A reading, "A Farmer's Valentine to His Wife," was given by Harold Thompson. It was decided to hold a bazaar. A committee was named to make plans. It was also decided to add to the treasury with "A Holiday Fund." All important days on the calendar would be observed by each member contributing the amount determined by the date.

Members were asked to bring used Chirstmas cards to send to a children's hospital.

Readings were given by Mrs. Russell Sills and Miss Beverley McInroy. A musical selection was given by Mrs. A. Hassall.

Mrs. Barton Haggerty moved a vote of thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Donnan for opening her home.

Interesting contests were conducted by Mrs. Russell Sills, after which refreshments were served by the hostess and lunch committee.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

LETTERS AND ANSWERS DON'T MARRY WHILE IN DOUBT

Dear Miss Fairfax:

For the past year, I have been engaged to a young man 21 years old. I am 18.

I am very confused, though, because, while I know I love him, I often find myself wishing that I hadn't promised to marry him. The reason is that he has so many ways that get on my nerves, and I feel that if I did marry him, I could not be happy with him. He is so much in love with me that I don't want to hurt him by telling him this, so what do you think I should do? — Mary Alice

Dear Mary Alice:

What sense could there possibly be in marrying a man with whom you are sure you would not be happy? If he has ways that get on your nerves now, when you don't have to be with him all the time, they would drive you to distraction if you were his wife—unless, of course, you loved him enough to make the effort to adjust to them. Your letter makes me doubt, however, that you really do love this chap in the way a girl should love the man she thinks of marrying.

Of course you don't want to hurt him. But he will be hurt less if you are honest with him now, then he would be if you went ahead and married him and he then found out that you were not happy with him. Don't fool yourself into thinking that you would make him a good wife no matter how you felt. You wouldn't. Your feelings would show in all sorts of ways, whether you realized it or not.

Frankly, I think you had better lose no time telling your fiance that you now realize you made a mistake, and break your engagement; or at least tell him you are uncertain of your feelings and would like to be free, for awhile, in order to test them out.

HAVE YOU ANY MINDS TO MAKE UP?—IT DOESN'T SOUND SO

Dear Miss Fairfax:

We are two unhappy teen-agers who are in love with men much older than ourselves. Our parents found out that we were going out with these men and have forbidden us to see them any more, but we think our parents are not very understanding, since we are really in love with these men, so we go out with them any how and have dates that our parents don't know a thing about.

Don't you think, when parents show such a lack of understanding, it is all right to make up our minds? — Jean and Helen

Dear Jean and Helen:

Can it be possible that you are asking me this question in all seriousness? It doesn't sound to me as though you had any minds to make up.

You know very well that you have no business going out with these men, and you should know, whether you do or not, that if you continue such reckless behavior, you may find yourselves in serious trouble.

If you have sense at all, you will stop this foolishness at once.

LADIES!

Now the "Queen of Hearts" is who you'll be,
If you wear a dress from "Winnie's", take it from me,
No matter if it's a Valentine's ball,
Or just a social, or business call.

We've made it clear in different ads,
That we've all kinds of dresses, so don't look sad,
For a formal, a party, a dinner date,
We've just the dress, and the Spring styles will rate.

As far as the sizes, there's where we don't fall,
We've nine, and half sizes, to please you all,
In youthful styles to become you most,
So at any age, about "you", they'll still boast.

By now you must have the general idea,
For any occasion far or near,
We've even got suits, for travelling far,
But if you're still near, here's where we are!

AFL and CIO Work Out Pact For Merger

By NORMAN WALKER

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Leading American union chiefs, agreed on consolidating their forces into a single organization, today planned a giant drive to take in millions of new members.

Leaders of the American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations have decided to bury traditional rivalries and embark on the same sort of intensive mass organizing campaign that sparked the CIO's surge into one 15,000,000-member union two decades ago.

The AFL and CIO chiefs have worked out what appears to be an iron-clad arrangement to merge federation.

Both George Meany, president of the AFL, and Walter Reuther, CIO chief, predict that the merger will be an accomplished fact before the end of the year.

DRIVE FOR MEMBERS

They say a well-financed organizing drive to take in new members will be launched.

There is no way of anticipating whether the apparently stronger setup will bring on bigger or longer labor strikes, but it is apparent that AFL and CIO leaders feel their hand will be strengthened in dealing with employers.

In arranging the merger agreement Wednesday the union chiefs played a give-and-take role with each other.

The AFL will get the top jobs in the new setup. Meany is assured of the presidency and AFL secretary-treasurer William Schnitzler will have the same title in the merged federation.

The CIO won the right to enter the AFL as a union group and to organize entire plants from top to bottom in individual unions without regard for AFL crafts.

Roslin

ROSLIN.—Mr. and Mrs. Walter Colden spent the week-end with his sister, Mrs. Howard and Mr. Howard at Cobourg Ontario.

The February meeting of the W.A., was held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. S. Stirk. Plans were made to have a euchre party on Valentine night February 14.

WELLINGTON

Mrs. D. Spafford Feted On 90th Birthday

WELLINGTON—Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Palmer, Wellington, entertained on Friday evening in honor of his mother's (Mrs. D. Spafford) 90th birthday. About 40 friends and neighbors were there to celebrate with this fine old lady, who though 90 years of age is quite active and young in spirit. Mrs. Spafford, who lives with her son and family, not only helps with the dishes but does many other chores around the house.

Games and contests were played during the evening while Mr. Hilton Reynolds with his violin and Mrs. W. Callow at the piano, provided some excellent music.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Palmer, assisted by Mrs. Inez Ingram, Mrs. Elwood In[illegible]m, Mrs. Don McDonald and [illegible] Vernon McDonald.

The main item of the refreshment menu was the lovely birthday cake which was made by Mrs. Oscar Bovay. All sang "Happy Birthday," when it was brought in. Mrs. Spafford, assisted by her four great grandchildren had fun blowing out the candles.

Mrs. Spafford was the recipient of many lovely gifts, flowers and cards. After the refreshments were over the gifts were opened and admired. Mrs. Spafford thanked everyone, saying it was just like another Christmas, only this one she didn't expect.

Mrs. Spafford has six grandchildren and five great grandchildren who were all at the party, except Mr. John Palmer, Paris, a grandson, and a granddaughter of London.

Friends and neighbors who were there were: Mr. and Mrs. [illegible]cil Moreland, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Philips, Consecon; Mr. and Mrs. Don Bovay, Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Ingram, Picton; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harris, Mrs. Cory Harris, Mr. Tom Fillingham, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Bovay, Mrs. A. Ogilvy, Mr. Hilton Reynolds, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Callow, Mr. and Mrs. James Callow, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon McDonald, Mr. and Mrs. Don McDonald, Mrs. D. Greenfield, Mrs. Nora Houlding, Mrs. Inez Ingram, Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Ainsworth, Mrs. Everett Lavender, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Cook and children.

TRINITY UNITED WMS

MADOC — Trinity United WMS members met at the home of Mrs. Albert Empey on Wednesday afternoon for its February meeting. Mrs. Carmen was in charge and after the opening exercises asked for the roll call which was to be answered with some suggestions for the monthly meetings with several members offering new ideas.

Mrs. Empey, Christian stewardship convener, reported on month's activities and offered a prayer for the missionary, Miss Joyce Kilpatrick.

Mrs. Fred Fleming reported on cards sent to the sick and replies received. Plans were made by Miss A. Holmes, convener of supplies, for several layettes to be made, and Mrs. Carmen reported on literature.

Mrs. W. McCoy took charge for the worship service. The theme being, "The Church Universal In India". She was assisted by Mrs. Drinkwalter and Mrs. C. Johnson.

For the program Mrs. D. Carmen gave a review of the study book, assisted by Mrs. Lane, Mrs. Moore, Mrs. A. Empey, Mrs. Drinkwalter and Mrs. W. McCoy.

The hostess and her assistants served a cup of tea and refreshments.

Behind Every Stamp Lies Much Planning, Hard Work

By H. L. JONES
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Behind every Canadian postage stamp lies a story of much planning and hard work.

All stamps begin as an idea which may concern a person such as the Queen, a great event or an industrial subject such as a hydro-electric station.

Until recently, Canadian stamps were reproduced mostly from photographs. Now, because the post office wants to encourage many Canadian artists, many are produced from sketches or drawings. Two types of stamps are issued—regular issues to carry the greater part of the postal load and commemorative ones to mark some event of historical interest.

On lower denominations, ordinary issues all bear portraits of the sovereign. On the higher, play is given subjects such as electric power, industrial development, Canada's farm lands and military machines.

LENGTHY PROJECT

Portraits of the Queen appear on the set of stamps currently in use. A four-cent stamp issued in 1953, commemorates her Coronation. Her portrait also is on all ordinary issues from one to six cents.

Look what went into that Coronation commemorative:

The post office decided on a Coronation stamp in April, 1912, soon after the Coronation date was set. Emanuel Hahn, Toronto sculptor, was asked to create a profile plaque of the Queen and design the stamp.

Then artists of the Canadian Bank Note Company of Ottawa, which has printed all Canadian stamps since 1935, interpreted the artist's design by hand engraving on soft steel. Design details were settled in conferences of company officials with W. J. Turnbull, deputy postmaster-general, L. J. Mills, director of financial services for the post office, and J. R. Carpenter, superintendent of the postage stamp division.

DELICATE TASK

Engravers, working with infinite patience under magnifying instruments, cut the design in reverse on a stamp-size piece of blank steel. Every delicate line and groove which gave depth and form to the finished design was cut by hand.

Proofs of the stamp were taken from the master die and carefully checked. Some changes were ordered and the die altered. The color chosen was purple.

Then the master die was hardened and impressed at a pressure of 20 tons per square inch on a soft steel roll. The roll, known as the working die, in turn was hardened and used to transfer the design 400 times to a soft steel printing plate.

READY TO PRINT

The plate then comprised 400 replicas of the master die, each correct in every microscopic detail. It also was hardened and placed on a rotary press.

Specially - manufactured paper was prepared so it would take an ink of fast color and great tenacity from the plate.

Perforating machines handled the next step. After inspection and cutting into sheets of 100 stamps, the new issue was shipped to post offices all over Canada for sale beginning the day before the Coronation.

That was almost 14 months after the planning of the new stamp began.

LADIES' AID

The Albury Ladies' Aid held its monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Duiven on Tuesday afternoon with 14 in attendance. The hostess served cookies and tea.

REDNERSVILLE W.I.

The January meeting of the Rednersville W.I. was postponed owing to cold and bad roads, but was held last Tuesday at the home of Miss Audra Brickman, with over 30 in attendance. The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. Beuford Peck. All enjoyed community singing. A review of the 46th anniversary banquet held on January 20th was read.

Mrs. Young explained Girls' Club work. It was decided to have a euchre in the near future. Mrs. Clarence Vanclief, convener for Agriculture, took charge with Mrs. Howell favoring with a piano solo.

The guest speaker, Mrs. Vesterhoff, a Dutch lady, told of agriculture in Holland which proved most enjoyable.

A vote of thanks was given Mrs. Vesterhoff for the interesting talk about Holland. Refreshments were served. A vote of thanks was given to Audra and the lunch committee.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan Weese left on Tuesday in company with Mr. and Mrs. Jay Sprague to enjoy a trip to California.

Several enjoyed the play at the BCIVS on Thursday and Friday nights, put on by the Drama Club, "More Than Meets the Eye."

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Fitzgerald and family spent Saturday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. F. Fitzgerald.

FORMER SENATOR DIES

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rush Dew Holt, who at 29 was the youngest Senator ever elected, die of cancer Tuesday at the age of 49. He had been ill for many years. Holt was elected as a Democrat from West Virginia in 1934, too young to take office because the Constitution says a Senator must be 30 or older. He finally took his seat June 21, 1931, two days after his 30th birthday and five months after the scheduled start of his term.

Mackenzie Says Canada's Power Won Freedom

SEIGNIORY CLUB, Que. (CP)—Sqdn. Ldr. Andy Mackenzie, denying personal heroism, credits his release from Red China to a Communist realization of the growing world position of Canada.

"I feel a bit embarrassed when people say I'm a hero," Mackenzie said Wednesday in his first public speech after two years' imprisonment in Red China.

"I'm not. — I was completely beaten by these (Chinese) people."

WANT FRIENDSHIP

"They told me in China that the Chinese people want friendship with Canada. If they wanted friendship with Canada, that means we are a power."

The RCAF fighter ace described the writing and signing, after 16 months in solitary confinement, of a false confession that he had invaded Chinese air space under briefing from the U.S. air force with whom he was serving as an exchange pilot in Korea.

He said he was never told to fly over Red China and never did. He was "sort of smuggled into China" handcuffed under a tarpaulin after being shot down 15 miles inside North Korea.

Think Molotov Referred to Red H-Bomb 'Trigger'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Foreign Minister Molotov's boast that Russia holds superiority in hydrogen bomb development may refer to discovery in 1953 of a shortcut method for triggering the fusion explosive.

But if that is the case American officials are confident that any temporary advantage the Soviet Union held has since been overcome.

There is the possibility that the Russian technique was perfected almost a year before American researchers worked out the problem, and may have been tested in the summer of 1953.

However, any Soviet lead made possible by that process—involving a huge saving in time and material—has been overcome and the overall program of the United States now has moved out ahead again. In the opinion of some American experts.

In a speech Tuesday Molotov said the Soviet Union has developed hydrogen weapons with "such success that the United States could appear backward."

President Eisenhower was asked Wednesday at his press conference about the Molotov statement. The president said there was no proof to that effect, then added that it would be a rather remarkable feat.

'Guns Before Butter Policy' May Hurt Reds in East Europe

By RICHARD O'REGAN

VIENNA (AP)—Russia is going to have trouble in east Europe by returning to its "guns instead of butter" policy, Western diplomats in Austria believe.

These east European experts don't expect the fall of Georgi Malenkov to bring many changes in the leadership of the Soviet satellites. One or two "front" men for the apparently outdated policy of more consumer goods may lose their jobs. But the diplomats think Russia will be just as happy to let "collective leadership"—on its way out at home—continue in the satellites as a barrier to any new Titos.

The big effect of the Moscow changes, the diplomats predict, is likely to be in the resistance of the 70,000,000 people of Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Romania and Bulgaria.

Opposition to the Communist regimes was strong before Stalin died and Malenkov announced his policy of more for the people. That "new look" policy undoubtedly lessened suppressed resistance a little, but there is still a great deal. Recent Iron Curtain travellers report continued bitterness and disillusionment.

Economic conditions behind the Iron Curtain are not at all good. Despite a year and a half of the "new look" and emphasis on agriculture, the Reds report immense shortages in food supplies. Nor has there been a great increase in consumer goods.

Adding to the problem, more consumer goods and less police pressure seem to have brought about an actual reduction—instead of the expected increase—in production of coal, electric power and the medium and heavy industries.

Ask Civic Support

TORONTO (CP) — Four sportsmen appeared before board of control Wednesday to ask for civic support of the keep-the-Grey-Cup-in-Toronto committee.

Mayor Nathan Phillips said the city gave its blessing to the committee's plan to send a representative to the Canadian Rugby Union meeting in Vancouver next month. The Downtown Businessmen's Association and the Toronto Parking Association each donated $100 toward the $500 necessary for the trip.

Marysville

MARYSVILLE. — Mrs. John Koen, of Railton, and Mrs. Margaret Koen, Kingston, spent Sunday visiting their brother, the Rev. I. F. Donoghue.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McCullough enjoyed a holiday in Detroit, Mich., lately.

The euchre party held in the parish hall on Sunday evening, was well attended. Twenty-eight tables were in play with ladies' highest score going to Mrs. Joseph Brennan; 2nd Mrs. Harold Murphy and consolation, Mrs. M. Jordan; men, Clarence McGuiness, Martin Doyle and consolation, Dorothy Ann McAuley.

ADDITIONAL TERM

BRANTFORD (CP) — Joseph Kirm, 28, was sentenced to an additional six months Wednesday for escaping from the Ontario industrial farm at nearby Burtch during a supervised skating party Jan. 28. Kirm was serving a six-month term for carrying a revolver. He was recaptured Sunday night in Windsor.

Group Would Force Juke-Box Operators to Pay Tolls By Tightening Copyright Law

OTTAWA (CP) — A performing rights society today urged tightening of Canadian copyright law to force juke-box operators to pay performing fees. The society said it is estimated gross juke-box receipts in Canada total $35,000,000 annually.

The Composers, Authors and Publishers Association of Canada also said it objects to exempting educational, social, charitable, religious and fraternal organizations from paying performing rights fees.

CAPAC argued that these organizations must pay for other services and supplies and "are not entitled to ask for special privileges in respect of intellectual property."

CAPAC is an organization which collects fees for public performances of musical and literary works. Fees are turned over to authors and others with claims on the works used.

"No special group of people has any meritorious claim to be exempted from respecting the property in copyright because of the activities of its members," the association said in a 7,000-word brief to a royal commission studying Canada's copyright, trade mark, patent and industrial designs legislation.

The three-man commission, set up last year, is headed by Chief Justice J. L. Ilsley of Nova Scotia.

CAPAC said in asking for payment of performance fees on juke-box operations it has support of Canadian courts.

The brief said a section of the Copyright Act provides unwarranted exemption by freeing the owner or user of a gramophone from liability to pay performing rights fees.

In both the Exchequer Court and the Supreme Court of Canada it had been held that the exemption was intended only to protect small proprietors and not persons who make a business of using record players to make money.

The association noted the law denies exemption where the performance is in a theatre only. It recommended that no exemption be allowed where payment is made for the performance or for admission to the place of performance.

CAPAC objected to suggestions that performing rights societies file with the copyright office a copy of their works, saying this would be no advantage.

The association estimated that the return for each performance of a song or musical work is about three cents. Total returns were distributed, after deduction of 20 per cent for administrative costs, to about 200 Canadian authors and composers.

Govt. Accused Of Interference

OTTAWA (CP) — A British Columbia member of the House of Commons has accused the government of interfering with B.C.'s sovereign rights in the control of water resources.

George McLeod (SC—Okanagan Boundary) said a bill designed to give the federal government control over international rivers is a further step by the central government to control the destinies of the people of Canada. He spoke during a debate on the principle of the bill.

The bill would require anyone, including provincial governments, to obtain a federal licence for any works in Canada affecting the flow of a river running into the United States.

The bill was brought in largely as a result of an agreement between the B.C. government and the Kaiser aluminum interests in the U.S. for the construction of a dam at Castlegar, in the B.C. interior, to regulate the flow of the Columbia river. The regulated flow would be used for power purposes in the U.S.

Second-Best Customer

LONDON (CP)—Canada is Britain's second-best customer for radio equipment exports.

Figures released by the Radio Industry Council show Canada took almost £1,800,000 worth of equipment in 1954, about £800,000 more than in 1953.

Holland was the top buyer, taking £2,200,000. Sweden and India followed, with more than £1,500,000 each, and then South Africa, France, Italy and Belgium. Sales to the United States amounted to more than £580,000.

Total exports of radio equipment reached a record high of more than £29,100,000. That was £3,300,000—or more than 12 per cent—higher than in the previous record year, 1953.

ARREST TWO ACTRESSES

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two young actresses in the stage hit, "The Teahouse of the August Moon," were booked Tuesday on suspicion of possessing marijuana. Arrested were Barbara Ann Luna, 17, who plays the geisha girl Lotus Blossom in the play, and Patty C. Suzuki, 24, who has a minor role. Miss Luna was released to the custody of the play's manager so she could appear Tuesday night.

Representatives Of Police Assocs. Give Evidence

GRIMSBY (CP) — Representatives of every police association in Ontario Wednesday attended the hearing of suspended chief constable William Jonnston charged with 12 breaches of the Police Act.

Four police chiefs testified that they consider chief Johnston was fully justified in giving information to the press about a request for his resignation by the Grimsby police committee in January.

Testifying were chief constables John Trualsch, Kingston; Ted Lamb, Guelph; Duncan Brown, St. Catharines; and Howard Nickling, Hamilton Beach.

Chief Johnston was summoned to appear at a public hearing of 12 charges after a Grimsby council police committee recommendation Jan. 26.

CONFIRMED REPORTS

The chief had previously refused to resign.

Bruce Murdoch of the Hamilton Spectator staff, testified that chief Johnston merely confirmed information the paper already had about the requested resignation.

Council also charged that Johnston made an improper arrest and refused permission for an arrested man to communicate with relatives or friends.

Constable Edward Fleming of Grimsby said he got a telephone call reporting an alleged accident and arrested David Cowan of Hamilton.

He claimed Cowan was abusive and had to be locked in a cell. When police found no accident had occurred, Cowan was released.

Hearing of this charge is continuing.

Hardware Men Advised to Stock Supermart Items

TORONTO (CP) — R. Fysh of Chatham, advised hardware merchants Wednesday to stock supermarket items such as soap to combat groceteria invasion of the hardware market.

He spoke at the 50th annual hardware and housewares exhibition.

"If the government won't do something about unfair competition by supermarkets, hardware merchants should find their own means of retaliation," Mr. Fysh said.

R. D. Hunter of St. Catharines said supermarkets pick only the cream of hardware lines which move fast.

Edward Maddern, promotion manager of the Canadian Retail Hardware Association, said chain stores and supermarkets do not take such a big bite out of the hardware business.

"There are many Canadians outside of big cities who have never seen a supermarket," he said.

Zhukov 'Very Decent Fellow, Could Do Business With Him On His Own,' Said Eisenhower

Eddy Gilmore was an Associated Press correspondent in Moscow for 11 years, starting in the Second World War and leaving soon after the funeral of Stalin. He wrote "Me and My Russian Wife," an account of his life in the Soviet Union. Currently assigned to AP's London bureau, he is in the United States on a brief leave.

By EDDY GILMORE

Associated Press Staff Writer

The time was a late summer day right after the war. The place was the blue room of Spasso House in Moscow. The man slouched in a deep leather chair was Gen. Eisenhower.

I remember asking the question. "What do you think of Zhukov?"

The general hesitated for a moment. The slanting rays of a setting sun fell across his face. He frowned slightly as he replied.

"Georgi," he said, "is a very decent fellow."

American and British correspondents who had covered the war from the Russian side had the same opinion of the broad-shouldered, square-jawed Soviet commander. A tough guy all right, but a man who could smile and a man who—unlike many other Red commanders—would give you a straight answer to a question.

"Do you think we could ever do business with Zhukov?" someone asked the supreme Allied commander who was later to become president of the United States.

"Well, left on his own," said Eisenhower, "I believe I could do business with him."

Eisenhower visited Moscow after the war as Zhukov's guest and the Russian people cheered him as no American has perhaps ever been cheered in Moscow.

I remember Zhukov sitting around a big table in Berlin shortly after the war. Eisenhower, Field Marshal Montgomery of Britain and a French general whose name I can't remember, were there.

Beside Zhukov sat the late Andrei Vishinsky, then Soviet deputy foreign minister.

Eisenhower made a proposal. When he finished, Vishinsky poked Zhukov in the ribs with his thumb. Obediently, Zhukov got to his feet and recited a routine Soviet reaction to what Eisenhower had said. If I remember correctly, it concerned some minor details of setting up a four-power command in Berlin.

Zhukov was still in the full flight of oratory when Vishinsky suddenly grabbed him by the tail of his jacket and, with a yank, pulled him back into his seat.

"You've said enough," Vishinsky whispered to him in Russian.

Later we asked some of the high American and British officers about Zhukov at conferences.

"He's all very normal," said a British general, "except when he's got the devilish Soviet politicians around him. How he seems to hate them."

Georgi Zhukov was the only hero of the Russian people who came out of the war. They knew—and he knew, of course—that he did more to win the war than any single Soviet commander or Kremlin official.

The high esteem in which he was held by Russia's 200,000,000 people and the fact that he seemed to get along well with Eisenhower are probably the reasons why Stalin banished Zhukov to the relative wilderness of the Odessa military district after the war, a wilderness from which he did not return until after Stalin's death.

Amalgamation of Two Labor Bodies Likely Next Year

OTTAWA (CP) — Amalgamation of Canada's two largest labor bodies is likely next year.

The Trades and Labor Congress of Canada and the Canadian Congress of Labor, with a combined membership of 855,000, have been steering towards unity for months. Wednesday they got an acceleration from a move of their big AFL-CIO associates in the United States.

The American action was an agreement at Miami Beach, Fla., by negotiating committees of the AFL and CIO for a merger of the U.S. bodies, subject to later convention approval.

Informants say the Canadian congresses, while not committed in any way to the action of their U.S. associates, will follow them eventually in amalgamation. When they do is a matter of timing.

NOT INCLUDED

For the present, there is no thought in the minds of the TLC-CCL executive chiefs of bringing into a merger the 100,000-member Canadian and Catholic Confederation of Labor—centred in Quebec—and the 40,000 members of the railway running trades brotherhoods which are independent of congress affiliation in Canada and the U.S.

A. R. Mosher, CCL president and a strong advocate of Canadian labor unity, said:

"I am hoping it may be possible for our two (Canadian) congresses to make the same announcement in the not-too-distant future.

"I see no reason why we should not reach within a year in Canada the same position that the AFL and CIO reached at Miami Beach today."

Gordon Cushing, general secretary-treasurer of the TLC, said "there is no doubt that at an early date a similar decision (to the AFL-CIO step) will be recommended to Canadian conventions."

"SUB" PROBABLY WHALE

AUCKLAND, N. Z. (AP) — An "unidentified submarine" spotted 20 miles off the New Zealand coast by Canadian Pacific Airlines pilot James K. Potter is thought now to have been a whale. Naval planes made radar contact with a school of whales while searching the area today, and the search has been abandoned.

Unemployment May Reach Post-War High

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's two largest labor congresses predict this winter's unemployment will reach a post-war high of more than 650,000.

In a joint letter to their provincial affiliates made public here, the Trades and Labor Congress and the Canadian Congress of Labor say unemployment is the country's most serious domestic problem.

The congresses, with a combined membership of 855,000, state: "On the basis of reliable information, it is estimated that there are in excess of 550,000 unemployed persons in Canada at the moment. From every indication, there will be at least an additional 100,000 unemployed at the peak period, this winter."

The high point of winter jobless usually strikes in March. In that month last year, the government reported a post-war record 570,000 persons looking for work through national employment service and a bureau of statistics estimate of 318,000 actually out of work and looking for jobs.

DOW KINGSBEER BREWERY LIMITED

NEW FREEDOM FROM IRREGULARITY

—you owe it to yourself to try this safe natural way to overcome irregularity

In recent years great strides in medical science have been made in the field of nutrition as it affects health.

Naturally many research scientists have turned their attention to one of man's most universal complaints—"common constipation." Why are some people troubled with it while others are not? And why is it so often a progressive ailment—hastened in its course from occasional, to common, to chronic by the unwise use of drug-type laxatives?

In natural foods, lifelong avoidance of common constipation

It has long been a medically recognized fact that nature has provided—in the foods men were intended to eat—all the elements necessary for avoidance of common constipation.

One of these elements, natural fibrous bulk, is ideally found in the outer layers, or bran, of the whole wheat kernel. Unfortunately this portion is often lost in modern milling.

W. K. Kellogg's Original Whole Wheat Bran Cereal

The known value of bran in promoting regularity prompted W. K. Kellogg (in 1916) to develop a complete, whole bran cereal. He insisted that nothing be taken away from the bran that would lessen its effectiveness.

Proof that this natural laxative cereal is effective is provided by its widespread acceptance and use. Kellogg's All-Bran has literally helped millions.

Clinical evidence of the value of All-Bran has also been demonstrated by a series of studies reported in leading medical journals. In one such study, 135 people with known delayed bowel function were given an ounce of All-Bran daily for one week. Of these, 107 showed definite clinical improvement in bowel activity in just 7 days.

Why All-Bran proves so effective

The greatest advantage of All-Bran is that it corrects the cause of irregularity due to insufficient bulk. Chemical or drug-type laxatives, on the other hand, are intended only for overnight relief of a temporary stoppage. If you feel you must use them, read the instructions carefully and avoid excessive use.

But for natural and lasting relief, put your trust in nature and give All-Bran a try. Eaten daily, All-Bran can help improve your "intestinal tone" so necessary to comfortable, natural regularity.

A delicious, wholesome dish

Kellogg's All-Bran has an appealing, nut-like flavor. Whether you prefer it with hot milk or cold, you'll find it retains much of its original crispness even after liquid is added.

But remember this: be sure you get the original, the one and only All-Bran—Kellogg's. Kellogg's has been making and improving All-Bran for nearly 40 years. And Kellogg's stands squarely behind it.

Satisfaction Guaranteed

Eat Kellogg's All-Bran for 10 days. Drink plenty of water. If you do not enjoy gentle, effective relief from constipation, simply return the empty carton and we will send you double your money back. That's a promise from Kellogg's, London, Ontario.

(due to lack of bulk)

From Mrs. W. Beaucage of Sherbrooke, Que. "I had taken a home remedy and many costly medicines to keep regular. Then I tried Kellogg's All-Bran. I have never been bothered with irregularity since."

A letter from Mr. H. W. Farmer of Windsor, states: "After suffering for over 10 years I'm free from irregularity thanks to Kellogg's All-Bran. I tried everything—costly foods and laxatives—only to find your inexpensive cereal did the trick."

Mrs. E. Pulley of Ottawa, Ontario, relates: "Taking laxatives for months left me tired, nervous and miserable. But Kellogg's All-Bran has helped me to happiness. Now I feel like myself again."

Writes Mr. J. G. Hillis, of Halifax, N.S. "It's a pleasure to be rid of harsh laxatives. I've had no trouble with irregularity for 18 months, since taking your gentle but effective laxation cereal—Kellogg's All-Bran."

A New Way To Cook Fowl

There is more than one way to cook fowl. Granted the usual way is to cut the bird into large pieces - - legs, wings, breast and back, cover them with boiling water and simmer the meat in a covered kettle or saucepan until tender. Then it may be served in quite a number of ways, as a stew with dumplings, as a pie with a top crust of pastry or rich biscuit dough and some of it may be made up into creamed chicken, or jellied and served cold. Now the Consumer Section of the Canada Department of Agriculture suggests another method for cooking fowl which is really not new but may be to some young homemakers. The end result is that the cooked fowl comes to the table looking for all the world like a roast chicken nicely browned, plump and complete with dressing.

The home economists have made many tests on cooking fowl in their experimental kitchen recently and are anxious to pass on the results of their work immediately so that homemakers can take advantage of the very good quality fowl that can be bought just now, at reasonable prices. Since fowl is a mature bird it is not as tender as chicken so like less tender cuts of meat it must be cooked by moist heat rather than being roasted in dry heat. There is no reason, however, as the home economists found out in their tests why a whole stuffed fowl cannot be tenderized first and then browned in the oven.

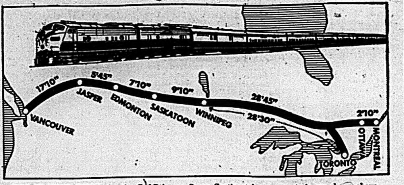
THREE METHODS

There are three ways in which the fowl can be made tender - - by steaming in a closely covered pan in the oven, or in a tightly covered kettle or pot on top of the stove, or in a pressure cooker. If using the oven for both tenderizing and browning the stuffed, trussed bird should be placed breast up on a rack in a covered roasting pan. Then put in a slow 325°F oven. The pan cover must fit very tightly so that the fowl will have a chance to cook well in the steam formed from the moisture in the fowl. If the cover is not tight fitting, a quarter of a cup of water can be added to the pan to start the steaming. It will take about three and a quarter hours cooked this way or about 50 minutes per pound to make a four-pound fowl tender, that is, a four-pound eviscerated fowl or one which will weigh between five and five and a half pounds before it is drawn. A good way to make sure that the meat is tender is to test it with a skewer in both the breast and thigh. If the skewer goes into the meat very easily then the meat will be tender, if not it needs a little more cooking. The lid is then taken off the pan and the fowl is left in the oven for another 40 to 50 minutes or until it is nicely browned. While browning it should be basted three or four times with the drippings in the pan.

The second way to tenderize the fowl is to steam it on top of the stove. In this case the stuffed bird is placed on a rack in a deep saucepan or kettle with just enough water added to barely come up to the rack. Then it is cooked closely covered at boiling point adding more water as needed to keep the steam forming. This way of tenderizing takes a shorter time than in the oven, about 40 minutes per pound which means that a four-pound fowl, eviscerated weight, would take about two and a half hours. As soon as it is tender the fowl should be put in a 325°F oven to brown, basting the bird frequently and allowing 50 to 60 minutes for the browning.

Tenderizing the fowl in a pressure cooker shortens the total cooking time considerably. Again referring to a four-pound fowl it will take about 30 minutes to become tender cooked at 15 pounds pressure and like the bird steamed on top of the stove it will take about 50 to 60 minutes to brown in the oven.

The Consumer Section does not hesitate to recommend cooking present day Grade A fowl this way for a change. Attractive to look at and so good to eat the golden brown bird stuffed with a well seasoned bread crumb dressing and served with a rich brown gravy made from the pan drippings is sure to bring comments of delight at the dinner table.



THE ELAPSED TIMES for the C.N.R.'s new Super Continental passenger train are shown above. The accent is on convenient arrival and departure times at main centres along the 2930-mile route, but 14 hours and 5 minutes will be chopped off the run from Montreal to Vancouver, and a new fast record time established for train travel between the east and Winnipeg. The Super Continental will go into service on April 24 and be made up of new equipment, both first class and tourist.

People Behind Curtain to Hear More of Canada

OTTAWA (CP)—The CBC plans to tell people behind the Iron Curtain more about Canada and Canadians.

The corporation has announced that effective Feb. 27 the CBC International service will increase daily short-wave broadcasts to Communist-dominated countries in East Europe.

The expanded service will go into operation two days after the international service reaches its 10th anniversary of operation. It will be coupled with a consolidation of the service's entire programming pattern, made at least partly for economy reasons.

"Broadcasts to eastern European countries, like Czechoslovakia and Russia will be given greater coverage daily, while some increase also is being made in the time schedule to Poland," the announcement said.

The service now broadcasts programs in 16 languages—English, French, German, Dutch, Italian, Danish, Norwegian, Swedish, Spanish, Portuguese, Russian, Polish, Ukrainian, Czech, Slovak and Finnish.

Through program consolidation many listeners would be given a more appropriate and convenient hour in which to hear programs from Canada.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Leavitt moved into an apartment in Belleville on Saturday.

Mrs. E. Crook spent Saturday with Mr. and Mrs. M. Allan and Mrs. R. Crook.

Johnstown

JOHNSTOWN—Miss Geraldine Harry, Mr. Douglas Harry, Mr. Bob Mallory, Mr. Winfield Harder and Mr. Arnold Harry attended the Junior Farmers' Conference for Eastern Ontario held at Kemptville, on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Junior Brooks were Wednesday afternoon callers of Mr. and Mrs. Will Black.

Mr. and Mrs. Art Dickens of Belleville, spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. Harold Dickens (his brother and family.)

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Stickle and family motored to Mimico over the week-end to visit Mr. and Mrs. W. Ed. Stimer and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Jones.

Mr. Kenneth Gore visited his parents on Sunday at Newmarket.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Stickle were guests of their daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Kennedy.

The Johnstown congregational meeting was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Stickle on Wednesday evening. There were not many out as it was so cold.

Mr. and Mrs. Basil Brooks were callers on Mr. and Mrs. Junior Brooks on Wednesday evening.

The Johnstown W.A. was entertained by Mrs. Alec Vandervoort on Thursday afternoon.

W.A.

The Johnstown W.A. was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alec Vandervoort on Thursday afternoon with a fair attendance (as it was pretty cold.)

The meeting opened with "Let the Beauty of Jesus be Seen in Me," followed by a verse read as a prayer by the president.

The Scripture, St. Luke 10:30-37 and 1st John 5:2 and 3 was read by Mrs. McLean. The Lesson Thoughts were given by Mrs. Alec Vandervoort.

A business session followed. An invitation was received from Aiken's W.A. to attend their Easter meeting. It was decided to have a "Lilac Bazaar" in May, the date to be announced later. A quilting will be held at the home of Mrs. Earl Stickle on Tuesday with a pot-luck dinner at noon, each member bringing one item towards that dinner.

"Happy Birthday" was sung to Mrs. A. Meyers. There were several poems, one being "The Farm Feeds Them All," by Mrs. E. Bush; "A Wife's Valentine to Her Husband," by Mrs. A. Meyers; a lovely solo was given by Mrs. Clayton Curtis "His Eye is on the Sparrow," and a poem, "February," by Mrs. E. Stickle. "The Simple Things," by Mrs. C. Curtis was followed by a fine piano solo by Mrs. A. Vandervoort. A poem, "Hoar Frost," was given by Mrs. C. J. Brunt.

Mrs. E. Bush will entertain the W.A. in March and also have the program.

A contest was given and won by Mrs. Ernest Bush. This was followed by refreshments.

ELSIE M.B.

The Elsie Mission Band of Johnstown met at the school recently with a fine attendance. The program was put on by Bob Hamilton, Evelyn Harry and Wayne Kirby.

The Scripture reading, Psalms 89:1-20 was read by Beverley Clapp. There were 27 members present and two new members.

Grades 1, 2, and 3 sang a Winters Song."

A recitation by Donny Clapp, "Friend or Foe," was presented. Children of other grades sang "Hosanna be the Children's Song." A poem was given by Rosemary Bush called "Travel." Mrs. Ferguson read another chapter of the missionary book, "Boy Friday." There were three contests given; grades 1 and 2 won by Helen Collington; grades 3 and 4 won by Donny Clapp; 5, 6 and 7 by Rosemary Bush.

Beverley Clapp, Donny Clapp and Darlene Harder will have the program for the next meeting.

TIME TO START

The Whitby Dunlops, blasting championship form, gave the Kingston Goodyears a fancy hockey lesson last night in Whitby, handing the Goodies a 7-2 shellacking to draw on even terms at the top of the pack with the Cornwall Colts. The Goodies hold a three-point margin over our side with Brockville dangerously near, seven points in arrears of the Memos. Meanwhile the Petes turned on the Clinton Comets, defeating them for their eighth victory of the year.

Brockville has a tougher schedule than the Memos in the remaining eight games. They meet Cornwall twice, Whitby, Belleville, Kingston, Peterborough and Clinton, albeit five of the games are at home.

The Memos who must needs "hike their britches" to stave off the Brockville threat, meet the Petes twice, Clinton twice, Cornwall, Brockville and Kingston. Four of the games are on foreign ice.

Brockville by splitting their eight games can nose the Memos out of a playoff berth by one point, providing our side loses all its remaining tilts. However, the Memos had better start hitting their stride for this Brockville team has its sights lined on that Number Four playoff spot. The Belleville team has hit a slump, as it were, losing their last three starts. They meet the Petes here Friday night, and they had better get on the well-known horse for these pesky Petes are no respecter of clubs, and they're going to do their dangdest to hang one on the Memos.

CAN PLAY 73 GAMES

Chicago Black Hawks' Eddie Litzenberger, voted the top rookie in the National Hockey League at the half-way mark, will take part in 73 regular scheduled games this season, providing he plays in all the remaining Black Hawk games. The reason Eddie will play three more games than any other player in the circuit is because Montreal Canadiens had played three more games than Chicago at the time in early December that the Canadiens sold him to the Hawks.

Jimmy Peters played 71 games last season as a result of being sold to Detroit by Chicago. Gaye Stewart played 61 games in a 60-game schedule in 1947-48 when the Toronto Maple Leafs traded him to Chicago on November 3, 1947.

WILL BE THE FIRST SINCE DRILLON DID IT

If Jean Beliveau, Montreal Canadiens' sensational sophomore centre, wins the National Hockey League scoring championship this season, it will be the first time a second-year player has done this since Gordon Drillon did it in 1937-38 playing with Toronto Maple Leafs. Dave (Sweeney) Schriner of the New York Americans is another player who topped the scorers in his second season. He did this in 1935-36 while playing for the New York Americans.

Two players won the scoring championship in their first year in the N.H.L. They were Nels Stewart of the Montreal Maroons who won it in 1925-26 and Bill Cook of the New York Rangers who did the same thing in 1926-27.

VARIETY VILLAGE

The main charity of the entertainment industry in Toronto, Variety Village, the school for teaching crippled children an occupation, is the source of pride especially when the school success has been noted. In the annual report of the Ontario Society for Crippled Children, to date, 77 students have left the Village to enter employment. In 1954, the fifth year the school had been in operation, the combined earning power of the graduates will be in excess of $140,000. The Village opened its 1954-55 season last September with a full complement of 24 resident students and one day student.

It is in support of this school that the Bay of Quinte Theatre Managers' Association is staging this Variety Night on Sunday, February 20th at the Capitol Theatre, Belleville. All talent is donated and all proceeds go to Variety Village.

AN IDEA—

Mayor Charlotte Whitton, of Ottawa, in whose veins flows proud Hastings County blood "ain't skeered of any durn mayor in the country."

Asked to referee the upcoming "battle" between the mayors of Belleville and Trenton, the dynamic chief magistrate did not resort to the usual alibis that mayors use, pleading previous commitments and such stuff. No sirree, the mayoral gal, who nearly outplowed a Toronto mayor a couple of years ago, and who denied sending him roses, refused to take any sideline part in the fray. She told this department in a personal wire that her great grandsire, who she says, hails from Yorkshire, b'goom, held the wrestling championship and "Neither he nor I will take part unless on a participant side."

Personally, we think the Ottawa chief magistrate could take on both mayors involved and "whup 'em" hands down. Now that could be an idea for the Trenton Community Centre committee to ponder over. Or barring that, how about a bout between Charlotte and, say, a lady representative of municipal government.

Think it over, men.

Les Canadiens' Coach Charged Lumley's Stick Was Too Wide; It Was, But Purpose Failed

By JIM BASTABLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Dick Irvin, pigeon lover, needler and National Hockey League coach, warned that he had something up his sleeve. He did, but it didn't do much good.

The 62-year-old coach of Montreal Canadiens shook out his surprise Wednesday night before Toronto Maple Leafs and 13,874 Toronto fans. Everybody except Irvin, was startled.

Irvin pulled his surprise at Toronto by asking referee Frank Udvari to measure the blade of goaltender Harry Lumley's stick. Irvin said it was too wide. Toronto coach King Clancy said he was screwy. Irvin was right.

Lumley got a penalty. Although Irvin wouldn't say so, his ace-in-the-hole evidently was aimed at unsettling Lumley and letting Canadiens sneak in with a victory. It didn't turn out that way. The teams were tied 1-1 at revelation time and Leafs went on to win 3-1.

RANGERS, HAWKS TIE

It was one of two NHL engagements. In the other, Dean Prentice scored at 16:29 of the third period to give the fifth-place Rangers a 2-2 tie with the last-place Chicago Black Hawks at New York.

Irvin, who raises pigeons in his spare time, cried foul at the end of the first period. Tuesday he had told Toronto newspapermen at a special dinner that he would have a scoop for them at the game.

Udvari's tape measure revealed that the blade of Lumley's stick was about four inches deep. NHL rules set 3½ as the maximum. Lumley's penalty was served by Leaf rookie Brian Cullen.

How did Irvin know?

Lumley apparently broke a stick in Montreal during a Leaf-Canadiens game last Thursday and conjecture is that Irvin had the wrecked remnants checked. Clancy said he didn't think Irvin "would stoop to that sort of thing." Tom Naylor, keeper of Leaf sticks, was dumbfounded.

STRATEGY BACKFIRED

Leaf general-manager Hap Day said. "We'll get to the bottom of this. If Irvin thought he was going to win the game in the long run, the strategy backfired."

The Toronto sticks, oddly enough are made in Montreal. They're supposed to be checked before consignment to the clubs.

Rudy Migay fired two goals to spark the third-place Leafs. Defenceman Tim Horton scored the other Leaf goal on a 75-foot shot that bounced crazily in front of netminder Jacques Plante. The goals all came after Canadiens leftwinger Dickie Moore opened the night's scoring with his 12th goal of the season.

Lumley stopped 25 Montreal shots, many of them hot. Plante stopped 29 drives.

At New York, the Rangers took a 1-0 lead in the first period on an unassisted goal by Andy Bathgate. Forty-two seconds later Red Sullivan tied the score.

Sullivan scored again in the third. Prentice earned the deadlock.

Canadiens are in first place with 72 points, five ahead of the Detroit Red Wings and 12 up on Leafs. Boston Bruins are fourth with 52. New York is next with 40 and Chicago last with 31.

One game is scheduled for tonight—Chicago at Boston.

AUDIT REQUESTED

TORONTO (CP) — A petition signed by 50 Toronto island property owners and asking for an audit of the Toronto Transit Commission's ferry operations, will be presented to board of control, it was announced Tuesday.

Another Stable Draws Suspension

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Racing Commission Wednesday suspended Forrest Gerry, Jr., owner-driver from Biddeford, Me., for the balance of the current Dufferin Park harness racing meet for inconsistent driving.

All horses owned by Gerry have also been suspended from racing at the park.

The ORC decision followed an investigation after one of Gerry's horses won the first heat of a race.

The horse was not driven by Gerry but ran faster than it had with Gerry in the sulky. The commission's ruling said that constituted inconsistent driving on Gerry's part.

Quebec Musher Holds Edge In Sled Race

OTTAWA (CP)—Narcisse Dompierre of Quebec City and his eight mixed-breed dogs held a 5½-minute edge as they faced the second 33-mile stretch today of the 66-mile international sled dog derby.

The 35-year-old musher built up the lead Wednesday over a field of 24 other teams with a record first lap run over the 33-mile course.

His time of two hours, 39 minutes, 14 seconds was 21 minutes, 20 seconds faster than the lap record set last year by Ernie Brunet of Pointe Gatineau, Que. Brunet, a postman who sometimes uses his hound-dog team to deliver mail, finished in sixth spot Wednesday.

PASSES ALL BUT TWO

Dompierre was the 13th to start. But of the dozen who preceded him at five-minute intervals, he passed all but two.

Two trophies and prizes worth $2,000 will go to the driver with the lowest total time in the two laps.

Dompierre, praising his dogs, said they were really trying to win for him. He predicted he and the team would be in shape to run today's lap in two hours and 35 minutes.

His closest competitor is Emile Martel of Loretteville, Que., winner last year and in 1951, whose cross-bred hounds loped over the first lap in two hours, 44 minutes, 38 seconds.

BREAKS RUNNER

Wilf Lepine of Quebec City, whose cross-bred hounds brought him victory in 1950 and 1952, placed fifth in the first lap with a time of two hours, 44 minutes, 29 seconds.

The day's heartbreak story was that of Fern Telmosse of Deschenes Que., who broke a runner when his sled overturned less than half-way through the race. Running and supporting his sled, Telmosse finished in the good time of two hours, 19 minutes and 22 seconds to end in eighth place.

Leading woman musher was Mrs. Jean Lane of Lunenburg, Mass., in 12th position with a time of three hours, 12 minutes, 34 seconds. She was almost 26 minutes faster than Mrs. Bunty Dunlop of Burlington, Ont., second among the five women racers.

Sudbury Signs Niagara Goalie

KITCHENER (CP) — Goaltender Don Lockhart of Niagara Falls Cataracts of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League has been signed by Sudbury Wolves of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A southern group, it was reported here Wednesday.

Maxie Silverman, coach of the Wolves, made the move for insurance in the event Sudbury is admitted to the NOHA playoffs.

Wolves are in the cellar of the five-team league and out of the playoffs, pending a decision on a protest lodged by the Sudbury team with the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

Silverman is said to have signed Lockhart, whose team also is out of the playoffs, as a replacement for Joe Nadin, who turned professional with Quebec Aces of the Quebec Hockey League.

Kitchener Dutchies Wallop Mercs 5-3 As Maroons Trounce Windsor 9-6

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It's anybody's guess who will end up in second place in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League. Right now Windsor Bulldogs, Owen Sound Mercurys and Stratford Indians all have only a three-point spread between them.

Windsor had a chance to take a comfortable hold Wednesday night but they lost their game with the upstart sixth-place Chatham Maroons 9-6.

The Mercs, only one point back of the Bulldogs, also failed to change the standings. They lost to Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen 5-3 before 3,500 Kitchener fans.

The win clinched first place for the Dutchies who have 62 points. Windsor has 53, Owen Sound 52, Stratford 50, and Chatham and Niagara Falls Cataracts 33 and 26.

Windsor climbed into second place Tuesday after defeating the Maroons 7-4 in Windsor. But the Maroons, paced by Jim Connelly's three-goal effort, took their revenge on home ice Wednesday.

CHATHAM TOOK OVER

Windsor kept it at 2-2 in the first period and were down 5-4 in the second before Chatham let loose in the final session.

Cliff MacArthur, with two goals, and Paul Oliver, Ken Schultz, Bob Couper and Eddie Busch with singles were the other Maroon scorers.

George Gee tallied twice for the Bulldogs. Murray Wilkie, Andy McCallum, Gord Haidy and Bud Hillman scored the others.

Kitchener had little trouble trimming the Mercs as they took an early first period lead on goals by Clare Martin and Joe Schertzl.

Centre Ken Laufman made it 3-0 in the second before Ed Louttit backhanded the Owen Sound opener in at 15:23. Less than two minutes later Jack McKenzie added another Dutchie marker.

Kitchener took a safe lead early in the third period with Jim Logan's goal. Doug Gillespie and Elmer Skov followed with two Mercury markers but time ran out.

Stars of All Sports Will Be Guests At Sportswriters Celebrity Dinner

TORONTO (CP)—A roster of 19 stars from 10 sports, ranging from swimmer Marilyn Bell to baseball player Al Rosen, was announced today for Ontario's $25-a-plate sports celebrity dinner in Toronto for crippled children.

The Ontario Sports Writers and Sportscasters Association, sponsors of the Feb. 17 dinner marking opening of the Canada-wide Easter seals campaign, reported that its lineup includes the biggest array of baseball notables since the event was inaugurated in 1952.

Besides Rosen, Cleveland Indians third baseman and former American League batting champion, baseball will be represented by pitchers Robin Roberts of the Philadelphia Phillies, Sal Maglie of New York Giants and Dazzy Vance, former Brooklyn Dodger.

EXPECT $20,000

All proceeds of the dinner, estimated at about $20,000, go to the Ontario Society for Crippled Children. From its first three dinners, the association gave the society $70,266.54 including two anonymous donations of $12,700 each.

Marilyn Bell will receive a plaque commemorating her selection by the association as Ontario's outstanding athlete of the year for swimming across Lake Ontario last September.

The rest of the lineup:

Boxing: Jimmy McLarnin, voted Canada's outstanding boxer of the first half century.

BLIND CHAMP TO ATTEND

Golf: Gene Sarazen, United States and British Open champion in 1932; Pat Fletcher of Saskatoon, who kept the Canadian Open championship in Canada in 1955 for the first time since 1914; and Charlie Boswell, blind golf champion.

Hockey: Nels (Old Poison) Stewart, Charlie Conacher and Babe Dye, a star in the 1920s.

Track: Jesse Owens, former U.S. sprint star, and Rich Ferguson of Toronto who ran third to Roger Bannister and John Landy in the miracle mile at the British Empire Games last summer in the fastest time ever recorded by a Canadian.

Marksmanship: Gilmour Boa, Toronto rifleman.

Yachting: Bill Gooderham, Toronto.

Wrestling: Strangler Lewis.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—The big mystery around here at the moment is where metropolitan track fans go in the summertime. There is a move afoot to trace the seasonal migration and learn, if possible, where the tuxedoed flock hangs out during the hot months when track events are supposed to be held.

The strange behavior of the local pole vault addict is pointed up by the fact that he already has snapped up the last reserved seat for Saturday night's New York A. C. meet at Madison Square Garden. He hung from the rafters last week to watch Wes Santee and Fred Dwyer pull hair in the final stages of the Millrose Games mile.

This is the more striking because the famous sports palace had come to look like a haunted house on most nights when the marquee said fights and ice hockey and other red - blooded sports events were in progress.

But they put on these skirmishes between sallow looking young men in shorts and all at once you find you can't battle a path through to the door, much less get inside. Where these fast mile fanciers come from no one knows. The only sure thing is that they will have disappeared by June.

There is, of course, a sort of special attraction as Gunnar Nielsen and Windy Wes take turns outfooting each other around the boards and setting a new indoor mile record practically every week, but it must not be thought that this alone accounts for the capacity houses. The indoor meets always pack them in.

Y.M.C.A. Basketball

The YMCA House League Basketball League had two games scheduled last night. In the first game Don Harris' Whizz Kids went down to defeat at the hands of George Parkhurst's Pirates by a score of 71 to 49. The 8.30 game proved to be a close contest right down to the final whistle. Speedsters nosed out the Idiots 74 to 72.

High scorer for the night was Jack Mathews with 40 points. In second place was Ted Batchelor with 36. Third and fourth places went to Don Smith with 30 points and Wayne Bovay with 28.

Next week is the last regular league game before the play-offs. It could end in a three way tie for second place.

Wings Bench Terry Sawchuk; Call Up Hall

DETROIT (AP)—Goalie Terry Sawchuk of Detroit Red Wings was benched Wednesday for the first time in his brilliant five-year career in the National Hockey League.

General manager Jack Adams of the Red Wings said Sawchuk, riddled for 10 goals in the last two games, will be given a three-game "rest."

Glenn Hall, a 23-year-old netminder from Detroit's farm club in Edmonton, will replace Sawchuk.

In making the announcement of the sudden switch, Adams said, "We're giving Terry a rest—nothing more." It is known, however, that Adams hasn't been pleased with Sawchuk's showing in recent games.

The Red Wings, whose hopes for a seventh successive championship have been steadily fading, have won only one of their last six games, tying four and losing one. This slump cost them first place and they now trail the league-leading Montreal Canadiens by five points.

Bisons Boast Six-Game Win Streak

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Buffalo Bisons boasted a six-game winning streak today and were within five points of first place in the American Hockey League.

The third-place Bisons crushed Springfield 10-5 Wednesday night to knock Indians out of a first-place tie with Pittsburgh Hornets. Pittsburgh took over sole possession with a 5-1 victory over Providence Reds. Hershey Bears edged Cleveland 4-3 to snap Barons' six-game victory streak.

Dick Gamble, Lou Jankowski and Pete Babando collected two goals apiece to lead Buffalo. Both clubs erupted in the third period for a total of 10 goals, six by Bisons.

Pittsburgh broke a four-game losing streak. Ahead 2-1 at the end of the second, Hornets clinched the verdict with three goals in the final period.

Dunc Fisher's second goal of the game, midway in the last period, gave Hershey its uphill triumph over Barons, who dropped into fourth place.

Big Seven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Jean Beliveau of Montreal picked up an assist as the Canadiens bowed 3-1 to Toronto Wednesday, to strengthen his position atop the National Hockey League scoring race.

Beliveau now has 60 points on 30 goals and 30 assists. He is followed by teammate Maurice Richard with 56. Richard was held scoreless Wednesday but still leads the league in goals with 32.

Bernie Geoffrion of Montreal, also held scoreless Wednesday, remains in third place with 54 points. Bert Olmstead picked up an assist to hold down fourth place with 48 points.

Ken Mosdell rounds out the five-man Canadien contingent with 46 points. Sid Smith of Toronto holds down sixth place with 44 points.

George Sullivan of Chicago picked up two goals Wednesday as the Black Hawks and New York Rangers played to a 2-2 tie, and moved into a seventh-place tie with Gordie Howe of Detroit in the scoring race. Each player has 43 points.

Terry Sawchuk of Detroit leads the goalies in shutouts with 10 and Fern Flaman of Boston is the league badman with 116 minutes in penalties.

The leaders:

	G	A	Pts.
Beliveau, Montreal	30	30	60
Richard, Montreal	32	24	56
Geoffrion, Montreal	29	25	54
Olmstead, Montreal	8	40	48
Mosdell, Montreal	20	26	46
Smith, Toronto	28	16	44
Howe, Detroit	22	21	43
Sullivan, Chicago	13	30	43

Canadian Wins

MIAMI, Fla. (CP) — E. P. Taylor's Canadiana won her first start of the season Wednesday, winning the sixth race at Hialeah by 3½ lengths.

The Toronto sportsman's filly, winner of the 1953 Queen's Plate, carrying top weight of 124 pounds, ran the six furlongs in 1:12 1-5 over a slow track and paid $3.80, $2.90 and $2.40.

Rare Music was second and Ros Clag third in the field of nine fillies and mares.

Canadiana's share of the $5,000 purse was $3,250.

Quinte Defeats Trenton Cagers By 39-24 Count

By ERIC MOODY

Quinte Juniors unleashed their potential power. Wednesday at Quinte when they defeated Trenton C.I. 39-24.

The game started with both teams playing cautiously.

It was Walmsley who made the first score for Quinte and then paced them for the lead they never lost. The checking was hard and fast and proved the only weapon Trenton could call upon to hold Quinte from scoring unchecked.

At the start of the second quarter the Trenton squad tried vainly to smother Quinte's rushes but to no avail. Trenton's spark was Hilton who scored a total of 8 points. The score at the end of the first half rested at 22-12 for Quinte.

During the second half Musgrove of Quinte, aided by the deceptive passing of Gatland, Dickey and Elliott, was able to account for six of the total 39 points.

The players and scores run as follows:

Quinte—Walmsley 11, Musgrove 6, Gatland 6, Dickey 6, Elliott 4, Beeby 2, Pearce 2, Armstrong 2, Green Phillips, Hobbs.

Trenton—Hilton 8, Cottrell 7, Alexander 4, Hicks 3, Foreman 2, Kennedy, Burns, Scott, Holt, Pudden, Holmes, Klingspon, Ostrowski.

This fifth straight victory for Quinte gives them the right to play off with the other group champions, Albert College.

Kitchener Rink Still Unbeaten

GALT (CP) — Carl Asmussen, 1940 Ontario single-rink curling champion, led his Kitchener Granites into the second day of the 18th annual championships today with a clean record.

A capacity crowd at the Galt Curling Club saw the youthful skip direct his quartet through two rounds of undefeated play Wednesday to emerge the only unbeaten rink in the first day of the round-robin competition. The winner will represent Ontario at the Dominion championships in Regina in March.

Of the seven other rinks in the Ontario championships, six came out with one victory and one loss each. Guelph's entry, skipped by Allan Jones, lost both games.

Asmussen had little trouble defeating Burritt Harrison's Peterborough rink 12-7 in the first round. He edged Guelph 8-7 in an extra end in the second round.

21 IN A ROW

Andy Grant of Toronto Royal Canadians chalked up his 21st successive victory in open competition this season by downing Guelph 10-8 in the first round but was stopped 7-6 by Ross Tarlton's Hamilton Thistles in the second draw. Hamilton had lost its first game 9-7 to Chatham, skipped by Gordon Gilbert, a member of the 1949 and 191' winning rinks.

Chatham evened off its record by dropping the second-round game 9-7 to Col. W. D. Timmerman's Ottawa Granites after the Ottawa rink lost 10-8 to Jack Mitchell of Thornbury in the first draw.

Kenora Rink Wins Playoff

FORT WILLIAM (CP) — A Kenora rink Wednesday won the northwestern Ontario curling championship in a sudden-death final playoff.

It was the second straight year that a Kenora quartet has won the regional event. The rink skipped by Jimmy Guy, 38, now will meet the northern Ontario champions for the right to enter the Dominion curling championships.

Guy's Lake of the Woods quartet defeated Dr. Wyatt MacDonald of Fort William 12-7 after the two had tied for the finals. Each had six wins and a loss in round-robin competition, Kenora's only loss had been to the Fort William quartet.

Eight rinks were entered in the northwestern championships.

Trent Valley Hockey League

The Belleville juniors raced from behind a first-period two-goal deficit in Memorial Arena last night evened the count in the second heat and scored a pair in the third chapter to defeat the Picton McFarlands 4-2 in a scheduled Trent Valley Hockey League game.

It was a clean hard-fought contest with Referees Doug Bone and Bobby Strachan handing out four penalites two to each team.

Johnny Mowatt was the scoring ace for Picton getting both goals for his club. McKenna, Atkins, Baker and Buskard were the Belleville sharpshooters.

The teams played ten minutes of scoreless hockey in the first period before Mowatt took Pettingill's pass to beat Charlton in the Belleville nets for the opening score. Less than a minute later the same players duplicated the feat to give the McFarlands a 2-0 lead. There were no penalties incurred.

McKenna cut the margin to one barely 42 seconds after the second period opened, driving home St. Denis' goalmouth pass to blink the light. Picton's O'Tool drew the first sentence of the game going off for tripping at 4.24 but the Picton defence held off the Belleville thrusts with no damage done.

Vestervelt used a knee illegally and took an enforced rest after eight minutes of play and the juniors capitalized on a Picton power play, Atkins and Bryant racing in with the former driving home the tying goal.

The teams battled on even terms for twelve minutes in the third period with neither squad capitalizing on penalties given to opposing players. Buskard fired home the winner at 12.45 with Bryant being credited with his second assist of the night. With less than three minutes to go Baker slung home the insurance goal on an unassisted effort. Only two penalties were given during the period.

The teams:

Belleville—goal, Charlton; defence, Baker, Fox; centre, Bryant; wings, Buskard, Atkins; subs., Murray, Casey, Brooks, Garrison, Vestervelt, St. Denis, McKenna, Stoliker.

Picton—goal, Parks; defence, Marv. Stacey, Smith; centre, O'Tool; wings, Marvin, K. Steacy; subs, Isbister, LeBlanc, Greer, Mowatt, Fournier, Pettingill.

Referees: Doug Bone, Bobby Strachan.

Expansion Talk Detrimental Says Baseball Boss

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball commissioner Ford Frick has warned all major league executives he will consider loose talk about league - expansion "detrimental to baseball" until the time has come for specific action.

Frick's order, sent privately to all major league clubs as "notice No. 5, re: League expansion" was intended to silence baseball men who name minor league cities and expansion dates in public.

Several times Frick has been quoted as saying he thought expansion inevitable and there is no indication he has changed his mind. However, he sees the harm to minor league franchise owners in "loose talk of their major league brothers."

The National League recently announced it had abandoned the 10 club idea for the present and the American League said it planned no immediate expansion although it set up standards for new applicants.

The names of San Francisco, Los Angeles, Houston, Dallas, Ft. Worth, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Toronto and Montreal have been bandied around ever since the successful shift of Boston Braves to Milwaukee. The shifts of St. Louis Browns to Baltimore and Philadelphia As to Kansas City brought new pressure from minor league cities.

'Jackie' Out Of Pan-American

VANCOUVER (CP) — Jackie Macdonald of Toronto won't be going to Mexico with Canada's first Pan-American games team next month.

Fred Rowell, chairman of the Games committee of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, said Wednesday Jackie is unable to practise for the discus because of weather conditions in Toronto, and there is no women's shot-put competition at the Pan-American meeting.

City Should Buy Stadium, Enlarge It

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto harbor commission said Wednesday that, if the city wants to enlarge Maple Leaf Stadium, it should buy the property and do the work.

In a letter to Mayor Nathan Phillips, the commission said it is not interested in having debentures issued to finance the construction.

The harbor commission owns the 18,000-seat stadium. The Toronto Maple Leaf baseball club has a 15-year lease expiring in 1963. City council recently approved a scheme to enlarge the stadium to 40,000 seats at a cost of $1,750,000.

Under the arrangement the commission would be asked to seek permission from the federal department of transport to issue debentures. The city would guarantee the amount.

Balmy Beach Will Compete Says Shefsky

TORONTO (CP)—Sam Shefsky, president of Toronto Balmy Beach, said Wednesday night he feels certain his team will compete in the Senior Ontario Rugby Football Union this year.

There had been speculation that Beaches might drop out of the league or move to another city because of financial problems.

Shefsky said he met officials of the Toronto Argonauts, the Balmy Beach parent club in the Big Four League, and proposed an all-Canadian Beach team for this season. Although no definite decision was announced he believed the proposal will be approved by Argo officials.

Shefsky said he would propose the reduction, and possibly elimination, of imports to Sarnia Imperials and Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen, the other teams in the league, at the ORFU's annual meeting here in March.

In three years of operation the sponsorship of Balmy Beach is said to have cost Argos $70,000.

Giants Sign Coach Staff

NEW YORK (AP)—New York Giants Wednesday announced the signing of its four-man coaching staff, Larry Jansen, Herman Franks, Freddie Fitzsimmons and Frank Shellenback.

Giants are hopeful that Jansen, a 34-year-old righthander who was taken off the active list last summer, may show enough in spring training to warrant returning him to the active list. However, for the present, he is signed as a coach.

Manager Leo Durocher recently said he planned to give Jansen plenty of pitching work in the training sason.

Franks still is in th Caribba,

Franks still is in the Caribbean, managing his pennant-winning San-League in the Caribbean series.

Jensen, who since 1947 has won 120 games for the Giants, was made a pitching coach last June after back trouble reduced his efficiency.

Stars Last Night

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rudy Migay, Toronto, who scored two goals, including the winner, as the Maple Leafs defeated Montreal Canadiens 3-1 at Toronto.

Sunday Boxing May Be Approved

TORONTO (CP)—Board of control is expected to approve Sunday boxing shows in two theatres when it is forced to a decision on them in two weeks.

The board learned from city solicitor Wallace Angus Wednesday that it has the power to sanction at least 41 sports, including wrestling, stock car racing, table tennis, billiards and horseshoe pitching, for Sunday afternoons.

Boxing promoter W. C. Varley said he now is lining up boxing contracts with a couple of theatres.

Minor Hockey

MARMORA — Juvenile hockey teams of Coe Hill and Marmora met on the Marmora Arena on Tuesday evening for the second game of the OMHA play offs, a 2 out of 3 series. The game resulting in favor of neither team. The score was 6-6. Last Saturday evening at Bancroft Marmora managed to squeeze out the narrow victory of 8-7. A third game will be played at Bancroft on Thursday evening.

Scorers for the homesters were C. Ellis 1, Brooks 3, Brady 1, and McMillan 1.

For Coe Hill the netters were F. Landon 1, Bruce 2, Glen Crosby 1, Blathedwick 1, Coghlan 1.

The game was clean with Marmora having four penalties and Coe Hill two.

Teams:

Coe Hill—goal, L. Landon; defence, F. Landon, Leveque; centre, Bruce; wings, M. Crosby, G. Crosby; alternates, Laundry, Delyea, Murphy, Grover, Crosby, Watson, Blatherwick, Leedy, Coghlan.

Marmora—goal, Prentice; defence, Walker, Brooks; centre, Brady; wings, Darrah, L. Ellis; alternates, Bedore, Maloney, McMillan, Buchanan G. Ellis, Van Heuklehom, Flynn.

Referees: W. Mulholland, P. M. McIntosh.

Phillies Sign 'Peanuts' Lowry

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia Phillies announced today the signing of outfielder Harry (Peanuts) Lowry, recently released by St. Louis Cardinals.

Phils said Lowry, signed as a free agent, will get a chance for a starting berth, but if he fails will be used in utility and pinch-hitting roles.

Writers to See Million Dollar Nose Get Test

NEW YORK (AP)—Rocky Marciano's $1,000,000 nose is scheduled to be tested in full view of the press Tuesday but manager Al Weill, having set the date himself, isn't going to wait that long.

"I'm going up to Grossinger's, where Rocky's training, on Friday and I think I will take a look for myself before the weekend's over," said Weill in an interview Wednesday.

"We ain't signed for nothin', I tell you, despite what you may read or hear about Rocky being signed for (Don) Cockell," said the rotund manager who guided the Brockton Bomber to the heavyweight throne.

Rocky's golden beak was sliced open in his September scrap with Ezzard Charles. There's a thin red line where the wound has healed. Rocky says it feels okay but even he won't know for sure until it's rapped.

"Rocky will box three or four rounds on Tuesday," said Weill. "If the nose comes through okay we'll have a couple of exhibitions before any title fight."

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

When right will better serve their purpose, some bridge players dabble in something wrong. Only a few such are as stubborn as they look. The rest are just plain ignorant of the facts.

The standard choice of bids is a new suit first, assist in suit second, no-trump last. Many hands offer a choice of all three. Seldom need a sound basic pair deviate from the standard choice.

With a choice of two or three, a player might find occasion to change the order. But when there is but one true bid, preferring a bid that is not true is usually the act of one who does not know.

Your south partner opened with a bid of one diamond when your hand contains the cards shown here:

♠J 6 4 2
♥A 6
♣9 3 2

What is your correct response? A simple assist to two diamonds and nothing else but that. Regardless of any opinion you might hold to the contrary, this is the only first reply that is justified.

You lack a biddable suit for a takeout. Your hand lacks the true qualities for a no-trump response. With adequate trump support you are right down the old alley with a diamond assist, showing three tricks.

To make a first response of takeout to one spade, as some are known to do, is far from good bridge. To do it for other than "ruse" purposes is a display of downright ignorance.

Over your two diamonds, what if partner does not make another bid. Your pair will lack what would be needed to make a game bid of any kind. So, be glad you are in the correct trump suit.

What is the danger of bidding such a weak spade suit? It is not the result in this one deal, which may be insignificant. It is the lack of confidence by partner on all your future spade bids.

Partners in a bridge game should try to get along. Neither, when a way is right, should switch to something wrong.

YOUTHS ARRESTED

RIDGEWAY (CP)—Three youths were arrested Wednesday in connection with a wave of robberies from 16 Crystal Beach and Bay Beach summer homes owned by United States citizens. Police said they picked up Anthony Quinn, 16, of Crystal Beach and two 15-year-old boys. Quinn was charged with breaking, entering and theft. The two boys will appear in family juvenile court.

Stage Director Josh Logan Will Direct His First Movie

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)— Broadway may be shocked to learn that Josh Logan is an avid movie fan.

This may be a blow to devotees of the legit. After all, Logan is the most successful of stage directors, his list of hits including "Annie Get Your Gun" and "Wish You Were Here." And now he's here to direct his first movie, "Picnic."

"I've always loved the movies," he admitted when I caught him lunching with scripter Dan Taradash ("From Here To Eternity") near Columbia studios. "Why, I even read the fan magazines.

"Once I read in one of the mags that Rock Hudson can sing. This intrigued me, because maybe I could get him for a Broadway musical. So I kept reading more stories about him until I found out that he sang only in the shower."

How is it that such a film fan as he has not succumbed to movie offers until now?

"I've had chances to come to Hollywood ever since my first Broadway hit ('On Borrowed Time')," he explained. "They came in every year. But they were either for a term contract, which I didn't want, or they came at a time when I was all wrapped up in a play.

"Finally the studio offered me a finished script that I liked, a story I was familiar with (he directed 'Picnic' on the stage) and a star—William Holden. Also it came at a time when there was a slight lull in my theatre commitments."

Lest Broadway become concerned, let me add that he intends to return to the stage, although his movie jobs may become frequent. He feels that he got his professional start here, having served with Walter Wanger in the '30s in production jobs.

He leaves this week for Japan, where he'll scout possibilities of what to do with "Sayonara," the James Michener story which he owns (pending suits by film studios which felt abused in bidding for the rights). Logan doesn't yet know whether he'll do the story as a film or play.

"Picnic" was a fairly outspoken play on the stage, and I asked whether he found any difficulty in getting it past the film censors.

"Not at all," he replied. "I found them very helpful. If anything, their suggestions improved the story."

Competition Chopping Down Ratings of TV's Top Stars

By WAYNE OLIVER

NEW YORK (AP) — Increased competition is chopping down the popularity ratings of television's top stars.

The competition is coming in two ways. In many areas that formerly had only one station, viewers had to watch whatever it carried or turn off the set. Now they have more stations and more choice. Secondly there is the tendency by each network to throw its strong programs against the opposition's best.

Gone are the days when Milton Berle or Lucy could be expected to be tuned in by 65 to 70 per cent of the TV sets in range.

The ratings on Lucy, for example, with strong Monday night opposition from Medic, has been running 4½ to 14 percentage points behind last season, when the Dennis Day show was the chief rival.

Berle ran eighth in the latest Nielsen rating with an estimated 44 per cent of sets tuned in. He was fourth with 52.7 per cent a year ago.

Another example is Dragnet with 44.2 against 56.3 a year ago.

A big factor could be, of course, that some shows aren't as good as a year ago or that viewers are tiring of them. Nonetheless, the ratings necessary to win places in the top 10 have been substantially below last season.

Among newcomers to the charmed circle are George Gobel, Disneyland and an occasional color extravaganza.

Making films for TV is becoming big business. Sponsor magazine estimates TV films made for distribution directly to stations will gross $60,000,000 this year, and old movies shown originally in theatres will gross $20,000,000 more. The totals do not include TV films made for network showing.

Robert Montgomery long ago established himself as a fine actor, but his over-acting in his portrayal of the alcoholic in "The Lost Weekend" weakened what could have been one of his best productions.

CONTRIBUTE TO FUND

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs Wednesday presented $286 to the Agnes Macphail memorial fund. The money was the result of a special collection at the federation's biennial convention in Toronto last July to honor the nationally-known humanitarian, who died Feb. 11, 1954. Aim of the fund is to establish a scholarship at the University of Toronto for post-graduate study in penal matters.

AT THE BELLE — Glamorous Team — Clarke Gable and Lana Turner, two of Hollywood's most glamorous personalities, share the romantic spotlight in "Betrayed", a new M.G.M. drama starting today at the Belle Theatre. The new picture, filmed almost entirely on locations in Holland in color, unfolds the adventures of a Dutch Intelligence officer and the espionage agent with whom he falls in love.

Wm. J. Smith Is Temporary Head of Union

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) —British-born William J. Smith of Montreal Wednesday became president of Canada's biggest transport union, capping a career which has run through railway engine wiper, iceman and brush salesman.

The 50-year-old union man was named temporary head of the 35,000-member Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees (CCL) until its September convention. It appears likely he will be confirmed at the convention for a three-year term.

He succeeds Harry A. Chappell, 51, who died Friday.

At a press conference, Mr. Smith said he plans no change in CBRE policies. That was a matter for the union's triennial conventions.

But he indicated he intends to use his additional weight to push his idea—previously expressed—that the federal government's system of conciliation in union-railway negotiations should be changed.

He is on record as suggesting that federal conciliation boards on rail matters should be named by the government, without "advocates" being put up by either side. The custom is to have an independent board chairman and two members, each one of whom represents management and the union involved.

He said the brotherhood will never give up the right to strike.

"What we want," he added, "is better machinery for the more accurate evaluation of the issues."

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes, and find what your outlook is, according to the stars, for

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 11, 1955

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Too many times we try to crowd too much into our day, our lifetime. This is not alone bad for health and disposition, but we often confuse ourselves and others. Think about it.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Being too short, terse, quick can also be as annoying as being too lengthy, too fussy or ebullient. Strike that happy medium, and keep it. Know when brevity becomes abruptness.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Be enthusiastic, condense your day to facts, but don't overdo, nor waste time overexplaining. Conciseness must be with and for ourselves as well as towards others. And keep good humor.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — A much better day than you may give it credit for being. Look at [illegible] best, see the best in all, and give credit where it is due. You are a generous soul; keep yourself hopeful, too.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — Manufacturing needed and progressive articles, science, invention, improvements (that are really such), teaching, study, research, home duties, religion head the first-honored list. Think!

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo) — Associations with intelligent people really making something of their lives is important to health and attitude. Check over personal needs; be generally efficient, it will pay.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Many "little" things you probably should attend to? Then do so now. Libra is not one to "put off." Don't heed the likely temptation here. A good day for good deeds and planning.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Remember the old one, "there's many a slip twixt the cup and the lip?" So today, don't say the wrong thing then regret it; just don't say, if you aren't sure. Be not unwisely persuaded either.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Sometimes others' way is better than ours if we would only view it from outside our own (usually at least semi-biased) mind. Seek truths, facts, the soundly best methods.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — Ask for assistance where you should, don't be persuaded against your better judgment, however. Capricorn usually succeeds because you are able to take on new approaches if they are truly assets.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — Go about your affairs in your innate calm way. Be not overanxious nor doubtful. Look out for a tendency to underestimate your own assets; know them, use them for their virtues.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces) — More to be said for this day than shows on the surface. And the same for your talents and the opportunities of everyday life. Look well, reach out to meet achievement.

YOU BORN TODAY are a benefit to home, country and society generally when living up to your fine characteristics, developing your many talents. This is a Zodiacal Sign of all-round capability, of willingness, too, to carry others on to success with you. There is surely need for the assets you possess in this world today, so don't waste valuable time not living up to God's and your fellowman's expectations. Develop your artistic abilities: Never utilize leizure hours with time-wasters or doing chores in dallying manner. Get after those big accomplishments. Let your universality of nature be others' blessing.

Little Benny's Notebook

After dinner pop was changing his shoes for his slippers, and ma said, Are you tired, William?

Not a bit, my feet are a little sleepy, that's all, pop said, and ma said, Oh well, even if you felt as brite as a lark all over; you could confess it freely, because I have no intention of asking you to go out and play bridge.

That's nice, pop said, and ma said, In fact I refused an invitation point blank.

Good fir you, pop said, and ma said, Maud Hews called me up. She wanted us to go around there tonight for a few rubbers to keep them company. It seems they are housebound with an old ant of Yewstace's who is staying with them, she said.

Why dont they take her to the movies? pop said, and ma said, Oh, she thinks moving pictures are sinful,

How does she feel about cards? pop said, and ma said, It seems she's very broad minded about cards. Anyway, I told Maud that we went out for bridge Monday, and once a week is your quota to go out to play, she said.

Good, pop said, and ma said, Maud finally suggested playing over here and bringing Yewstance's ant along. It seems the old lady's idea of wild dissipation is to sit in a corner with a serious magazine while a bridge game is going on, she said.

It is. heh? pop said, and ma said, So, William, as long as you say you're not tired, I'll call Maud up if you say so.

It's a woman's werld, let's cleer a corner for the old gerl, pop said.

And he changed his slippers back to his shoes, and Maud called up Mrs. Hews.

New Zealand Enjoying Best Summer in Living Memory

By J. C. GRAHAM
Canadian Press Correspondent

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP)—While Canada has been in the grip of winter, New Zealand at the bottom of the world has been enjoying one of the most glorious summers in living memory.

There has been enough rain at nights to prevent a drought, but for weeks on end the country has been basking in long days of hot sunshine.

Only now in February is New Zealand really getting back to work. A large part of the country has been more or less continuously on holiday ever since Christmas Eve. New Zealanders take two extra days' holiday at Christmas and two at New Year's. In addition most towns celebrate Founders' Day holidays in December or January.

This year the holidays have fallen after the weekends, which in any case last two full days in New Zealand. There have thus been two four-day weekends and one of three days in most cities. Annual vacations are now almost universally three weeks, mainly taken in January.

ON PROSPERITY CREST

It might be asked how, with all these holidays, the country pays its way. Some New Zealanders ask that too and maintain that the country needs far more hard work.

The fact remains that New Zealand is riding on a high tide of prosperity. Holiday crowds have been spending record amounts. The money passing through the totalisator (pari-mutuel) machines at the many horse race meetings has reached a record high.

Seaside resorts have been jammed with holidaymakers, tanned a dark brown by the abundant sunshine. Swimsuits, sun frocks and shorts have been the standard wear of most New Zealanders for weeks.

Harbors have been gay with white - sailed yachts — even the school children build and sail their own in hundreds.

FAMILIES OWN CARS

Roads have been crammed with a never-ending stream of cars, laden with camping gear or towing trailers. The number of cars per head of population in New Zealand is rivalled only by North American countries.

A vast array of sporting events, carnivals, trout and big game fishing, have been in full swing. New Zealanders feel that in a summer such as this they have really been leading the good life.

There is no poverty or unemployment anywhere in the country. It is often claimed here that for the working man, the standard of living is the highest in the world.

This will be disputed by North American countries where there are far more elaborate and luxurious ways of spending leisure. But there is no doubt that in few countries in the world is so much of all that is available for the enjoyment of life within the reach of everyone.

BRODIE SURVIVOR HEALTHY

CHICAGO (AP)—Rodney Brodie, survivor of a historic 1952 operation which separated him from his Siamese twin brother, who died, was reported in "fine condition" today after a month-long checkup. The boy, now 3½ years old, left the University of Illinois research hospital accompanied by his father, Royt, to return to his home in Ferris, Ill. He is able to walk without assistance and carry on a conversation.

Quebec Liberals Assail Taxes On Oil, Meals

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Taxation, representation and employment policies were criticized in provincial legislatures across Canada Wednesday.

Five legislatures sat—Prince Edward Island, Quebec, Ontario, Manitoba and British Columbia.

In Quebec, the opposition Liberals demanded abolition of the two-per-cent sales tax on furnace oil and patent medicines and the five-per-cent tax on restaurant meals.

They asked for greater representation for Montral in the Quebec legislature, maternity allowances, scholarships to talented students and establishment of an accident prevention bureau.

The leader of the Progressive Conservative opposition in Prince Edward Island criticized the government's intention to establish the province's first department of labor under a minister.

"There is no call for a full-time minister of labor," R. R. Bell said in reply to the throne speech. "The people of the province want a job not a labor department."

A CCF member in the Manitoba legislature charged that the province's department of industry and commerce had "degenerated into a glorified Chamber of Commerce."

Donovan Swailes, member for Winnipeg Centre, said the department should stop its "circus-like ballyhoo" and begin a program of scientific research into the existence, availability and usefulness of the province's resources.

A CCF motion of non-confidence in British Columbia's Social Credit government was defeated 26-20 during a long budget debate on the education finance formula for that province.

REPORT SHIPBOARD BIRTH

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP) — Chinese press reports said a girl was born aboard a refugee-laden landing ship Wednesday half an hour before it docked at the northern Formosan port of Keelung.

BEQUEATHS A BANQUET

ELIZABETH, N. J. (AP)—"Eat, drink and be merry" was the advice in the will of a retired company executive filed for probate Wednesday. Fred H. Loehrs, who died in Florida Friday, left $499 for a party by the eight surviving members of the secret SDSD Club of Elizabeth. No one except the members knows what the letters mean, but they're going to have the requested party.

Gets Help From Syntona Second Time In 2 Years

Was Troubled With Stomach Disorders; Felt Tired, Wornout, Full of Aches and Pains.

"This being the second time in the last few years that I've had good results by taking Syntona, I am certainly convinced of its merits," said Mr. Peter Ottoman, 541 Mary Street, Woodstock, Ontario, in a recent report.

"I had recently become very rundown, wasn't able to get my proper sleep at night and I felt tired-out from the time I would get up in the morning. Many days I was full of aches and pains. In addition my stomach was acting up badly. Food that I ate gave me indigestion, gas pains, and sour acid risings. Constipation was a daily worry to me.

Knew What To Take

"About two years ago I had been in a similar condition and I remembered the good results I got that time by taking Syntona. So, I decided to try it again. From the first bottle my food began to digest better and now the gas sourness and indigestion have cleared up. Constipation is relieved and the aches and pains are relieved. As a result I am getting much better sleep at night and I do not feel all fagged out as I did before."

MR. PETER OTTOMAN

Made from 12 of Nature's Herbs and Roots, Syntona acts on the stomach, kidneys, liver and bowels. At the same time it helps rid the system of excess acids and impurities and promotes better assimilation of food for increased strength and energy.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville by Dolan The Druggist.

Ronnie Heath Heads Bethel Mission Band

RAWDON — Bethel Mission Band on the Rawdon United Church circuit, which has been newly organized under the leadership of Mrs. John Mulheron, held its initial meeting at the church hall on Sunday morning, with 20 children in attendance.

Mrs. Mulheron gave a talk on "The Aims and Objects of a Mission Band," and told how they could become interested in boys and girls of other countries.

Mrs. W. G. Fletcher, as narrator, and Allan Fletcher in charge of the projector, presented a film, "The Life of Christ."

Mrs. Mulheron outlined a story entitled "Journey Through the Years."

Marlene Hedley read the Bible lesson. Ten fees were paid and plans made to convene every third Sunday.

NEW OFFICERS

The officers are: president, Ronnie Heath; vice-president, Patsy Thompson; secretary, Barbara Hadley; assistant secretary, Allan Fletcher; treasurer, Barbara Green.

Stirling

CARD PARTY

STIRLING — River Valley Women's Institute sponsored a card party at the school house on Friday evening with ten tables in play. Guests were in attendance from Frankford, Madoc Jct. and Stirling. The prizes were donated by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Morrow and the awards were:

Ladies' high, Mrs. J. R. Donohoe; low, Mrs. Don Tucker. Men's high, Mrs. J. L. Donohoe (playing as a man); low, C. W. Moore.

"Happy Birthday" was sung for Mr. John Kane. The convener was Mrs. Gilbert Finkle, who will be in charge of the parties for February. Owing to the banquet there will be no card party on the 11th. However, plans are made for the 18th and 25th. Refreshments were served and a social half hour enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. William Clare and Mrs. Will West are holidaying in Florida.

Mrs. K. B. Henry, Buffalo, New York, spent a few days with relatives in Stirling.

Mr. Grant Fox, Brighton, who has been holidaying in Florida and Cuba spent a few days last week with Mr. and Mrs. Sam Kirkey.

Messrs. Ed. Heasman and Harry Heasman took in the Farm Forum bus trip to Toronto last week.

On Monday evening Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Bush entertained River Valley Farm Forum at their home. The address was "A Public Relations Program for Agriculture."

SCOUT SKATING PARTY

The Scout skating party was held at the local arena last Thursday evening. Despite the extreme cold weather there was a fair crowd and the Scouts cleared $35 for their project. Mr. Joe Irish was in charge of the party with Mr. Frank Harding as assistant.

The prizes were as follows: Door prize, Barbara Green; best dressed girl, Linda Mayhew; best dressed boy, Keunie Keuning; boys' race, 8 to 9 years, Andy Faulkner; boys' race, 10 to 12, Bobby Green. Scouts' game, contest of balloon bursting between Troop A and Troop B, with the former troop as winners.

St. James C.W.L. sponsored a card party in the Legion hall, with 13 tables in play. Prizes went to: Ladies' high, Mrs. F. Long; ladies' second, Mrs. Ed. Heasman; men's high Manson Farrell; second, Joe Forestell; consolation prizes went to Queenie Farrell and Frank Long. Door prize, Queenie Farrell.

Refreshments were in charge of Mrs. J. R. Donohoe, Mrs. J. O'Neil and Mrs. Thos. Hanna.

Bonarlaw

BONARLAW — Mr. and Mrs. C. L. McKeown and family were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Thomson on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Reg. McKeown visited Mr. and Mrs. L. Mumby on Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Burkitt spent Sunday evening with Miss Laura Petherick and Tom at Petherick's Corners.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Burkitt spent Saturday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Burkitt.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Ingram, Coe Hill, visited Mr. and Mrs. S. McInroy on Sunday.

Miss Ruth Bateman returned home from Belleville hospital on Tuesday and is convalescing at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Bateman.

Soviet's Decree Ousts 6 Members Of Supreme Court

Further Move Is Announced In Shakeup of Red Regime

LONDON (Reuters)—Six members of the Supreme Court of the Soviet Union have been relieved of their posts by Supreme Soviet decree, Moscow radio announced today.

The radio gave their names as I. V. Fetistov, Leonid Dimitriev, Ivan Zarianiv, Pavl Kolepov, Ivan Maulevich and Panteley Pavlenko.

The decree of the Supreme Soviet was dated Feb. 7. At the same time it appointed seven new members of the Supreme Court.

The Soviet Union's Supreme Court has more than 70 members and 35 "people's assessors" under its president. The present court was elected for a five-year term by the Supreme Soviet session in March 1951.

Under the constitution, the courts are described as independent and subject only to the law, but judges may be released from their offices and people's assessors from their duties if recalled by their electors or on the strength of a court verdict against them.

Strike Is Likely States Official Of CBC Union

OTTAWA (CP)—A top official of the CBC technicians' union said today strike action is likely in the contract dispute with the publicly-owned corporation. The statement was made amid indications the off-again-on-again contract talks may resume late today.

Timothy J. O'Sullivan of Montreal, head of the seven-man negotiating team for the National Association of Broadcast Employees and Technicians Union (CIO-CCL) said in a statement:

"The attitude demonstrated by management is such as to make a strike appear quite likely in spite of our reasonable approach.

"It appears to the union that, having prepared for the last six months to break a strike, the CBC management is determined to push the union into a strike situation."

A confusion of other public statements clouded the strike possibility but it appeared likely the government would take a hand in getting the disputants back into negotiations, broken off abruptly Thursday.

The labor department was reported ready to bring the disputants together, though neither antagonist would admit making the first approach.

The department's impending move was in the face of an authorization to NABET's negotiating committee to call a strike of its 775 CBC members if a satisfactory agreement is not reached by Feb. 16.

Negotiations broke off after 1½ days of meetings here. The CBC had offered nothing towards the union's wage demands. The union had modified its original requests.

New Wonder Drug Promises Benefits In Some Diseases

NEW YORK (AP)—A mystery "vitamin" which may become a new wonder drug was described in a report today to a scientific conference.

It promises benefits in treating some heart conditions, rheumatic fever and polio, and in preventing miscarriages.

It is hesperidin, also called Vitamin P, although scientists aren't certain it is a true vitamin.

Vitamin P is found in the peel and pulp of lemons and oranges and certain other foods. You don't get much of it from drinking fruit juices.

When combined with Vitamin C, hesperidin strengthens the walls of tiny blood vessels or capillaries. Various illnesses seem to weaken these blood vessels, permitting blood fluids to leak out, and that perhaps favors the spread of disease germs.

Chief Constable Reinstated By Grimsby Council

GRIMSBY (CP) — William J. Johnston has been reinstated as chief constable of this Niagara district town of 2,773 after police officials described him as an officer of the highest calibre.

Chief Johnston was found guilty of three of 12 charges by the town's seven-man council which deliberated for three hours and then reinstated him.

In making the announcement, Mayor Watson McPherson cautioned chief Johnston to "show more courtesy to the public in performance of your duties."

THE WEATHER

TORONTO. (CP) — Synopsis: The cold air that surged across southern Ontario during the night dropped temperatures 20 to 25 degrees in a few hours and produced one or two inches of snow. This northerly flow of cold air will persist today and Saturday.

Boy Acquitted In Court On Robbery Count

TORONTO (CP)—A 16-year-old boy from Glace Bay, N.S., was acquitted in juvenile court Thursday on a charge of robbery with violence after he had been in jail for more than two months.

The boy was arrested Dec. 10 after police received complaints he had stolen a billfold containing $40 and a wristwatch valued at $80 from Clarence H. Waddell.

Judge N. K. Bennett, in ruling acquittal, said he felt the conduct of the complainant was "questionable." Mr. Waddell had invited the boy to have drinks in a bar at his home.

It was the second trial in juvenile court for the boy and came after almost two months of repeated efforts by Harry R. Rose, a lawyer who acted in the boy's defence without fee, to have him removed from police court.

Mr. Rose took on the case last December and discovered that the boy was only 15 and not 18 as court records showed. The boy had had hearings in adult courts all without benefit of counsel. The boy has just turned 16.

Routs 3 Men With Blast Of Shotgun

PICKERING, Ont. (CP)—Laurie Davidson, 52, today routed three men with a blast of his shotgun as they were attempting to enter his combination grocery store and service station in this village, 10 miles east of Toronto.

Davidson was awakened by the sound of breaking glass, he said. He fired his shotgun at the men. Robert Littlejohn, 21, of Toronto, was treated at hospital and released.

Charged with breaking and entering are Littlejohn, George Armstrong, 21, of Toronto, and Robert J. Smith, 19, of Dunbarton, police said.

OFFICIALS DOUBT VIAL CONTENTS REALLY RADIUM

One Expresses Opinion It Might Be Uranium

PORT ARTHUR (CP)—A vial of radioactive powder with a strange history and unknown identity lies in the General Hospital's radium vault here.

Angus MacDonald, northern Ontario prospector and Second World War veteran, thinks it's radium. If it is, officials estimate a $1,000,000 value for the contents of the two-ounce vial which is about three-quarters full.

At Ottawa, National Research Council officials say from the description they doubt it is radium. One said it might be uranium, worth several hundred dollars a pound, or some other radioactive material.

Radium, he said, would have to be shielded by inches of lead to be safe. MacDonald's vial is in a cardboard box lined with a lead-like substance.

NOT DANGEROUS

Uranium is not necessarily dangerous to handle. The total world supply of radium is between four and five pounds and the strongly radioactive metal is worth about $500,000 an ounce.

MacDonald, former provost corps corporal who turned over the vial to police about three weeks ago, said Thursday he had been keeping the powder more than 10 years, ever since a member of the Dutch underground gave it to him after the Battle of Arnhem in 1944.

He said it had come from a German laboratory in Holland and he understood German scientists there had been trying to produce fissionable material from heavy water.

He had kept it hidden in his army kit and smuggled it into Canada in the magazine of his rifle.

EXAMINE THOSE CONCERNED

The RCMP here have taken over the investigation and plan to examine MacDonald and any other persons involved for radioactive burns or bone deterioration.

Atomic energy officials at Ottawa said Canada has strict controls over possession, import and export of radioactive materials. But they are not taking a serious view of MacDonald's case and court charges are unlikely as far as federal officials are concerned.

Whatever the material is, Port Arthur General Hospital is unhappy about storing it and has asked the RCMP to take it away as soon as possible.

Claims Many Prisoners Should Be on Probation

TORONTO (CP)—J. Alex Edmison of Queen's University said Thursday there are people in Canadian prisons who should not be there. Many should be on probation.

He told the Women's Canadian Club that Canada sends 10 times more people per capita to prison than England and Wales.

The reason is that Canada lacks Britain's probation facilities through which first offenders can remain at liberty under strict supervision, Mr. Edmison said.

He said Ontario is making a good start toward the probation system. The province has 72 of Canada's 96 probation officers.

Mr. Edmison said that of those placed on probation in Britain, 72 per cent have never appeared in court again.

One-Time Queen of Chinese Pirates Saves Hundred Orphans from Reds

KEELUNG, Formosa (AP) — Two-Gun Huang Pa-mei has reached this Formosan port, minus her famous shooting irons but loaded with 100 orphans from the Tachen islands.

The former guerrilla and pirate queen, famed for resistance first against the Japanese and later against the Communsts, seemed bouncy and energetic despite her 48 years.

"I have laid down my weapons," she said. "I am too old to fight."

The children are orphans of parents killed by the Communsts.

Huang Pa-mei was once known as the "queen of the pirates" along the coast south of Shanghai. The widow of a pirate, she turned her band of buccaneers and their stealthy armed junks against the Japanese early in the Second World War and earned a Nationalist pardon for her pirate days.

After the Reds gained control of the mainland she turned the prows of her Tachen junks against the Communists.

Regular Chinese Nationalist forces later took over defence of the islands, and "Two-Gun" Huang laid her pistols down and took up the orphaned children of fellow guerrillas.

Red China Holds Initiative View of Veteran Writer

James D. White, Peiping correspondent for The Associated Press from 1936 to 1941 and student of Chinese affairs, writes the following interpretative from San Francisco, where news of the Pacific is funnelled into the AP network.

By JAMES D. WHITE
The Associated Press

What next after the Tachens?

Red China has the initiative and many choices. Peiping can sit tight and see what happens. It can pick off more off-shore islands from Nanchishan to Quemoy. It can blow the works and go after Formosa.

What are the factors that may determine Peiping's strategy?

Red China's basic aim is to become the dominant power in Asia. That is the classic Chinese concept of China's place in the world. Over this is laid the dynamic of communism, even more ambitious.

The classic Chinese idea of how to attain this goal is through political action in which military action is used as a tool when useful, but only as a tool.

The Chinese are not afraid to use armed force. That was shown in Korea, where it profited them under the circumstances. They fought and negotiated United States forces to a standstill and emerged with the most powerful combat-trained army in Chinese history.

The Chinese undoubtedly realize that next time the circumstances may not be the same. Here we get into what actually is the Chinese state of mind. This is a complex which has grown increasingly remote to the Western world in the last five years of Red rule.

My Asian friends assure me of two things which may be of supreme importance.

One is the Chinese conviction that any war with the U.S. would involve the use of atomic and possibly hydrogen weapons against them. We used the atomic bomb on Japan, why not on China?

The other is an equally-firm Chinese conviction that they, if anyone, can emerge from such a war. They figure it this way: Their treaty with Russia guarantees Soviet involvement in such a war. Russia and the U.S. then would destroy each other's war-making powers. China, with her 600,000,000 people and experience in survival, would emerge if anyone did.

The Chinese may be wrong in these convictions, but my Asian friends assure me that they hold them.

In that case the Chinese can go on as they are, exerting pressure in all directions—including against Russia—to further their own ends.

This is their classic formula for success, and it works. The outstanding example is the Indochina settlement.

This may mean, among other things, that the Chinese are not to be bought off with United Nations membership and diplomatic recognition. The time to have extended these favors, if ever, was while they still were favors—five years ago when China was weak and before she had attached herself inseparably to Russia.

Red China now is like an outlaw who has profited by putting himself outside the law and is in no mood to take up lawful living—except at a considerable price.

Support of Planned Toll-Roads Study Voiced in Legislature

TORONTO (CP)—Support of a planned toll-roads study was voiced in the Ontario legislature Thursday.

Gordon F. Lavergne, Progressive Conservative member for Russell, said he was impressed by arguments in favor of toll roads and said a planned study of them was a progressive move.

In his maiden speech as seconder of the motion to adopt the government's program, he said:

"I feel we are well advised in taking immediate practical measures to fortify ourselves with all the relevant facts.

"Here in Ontario there is an increasing interest in the subject of toll roads. I am not prepared to say we are ready for toll roads in Ontario. I am not sure that anyone in this province is in a position to make a categorical statement on the subject."

Mr. Lavergne said he was impressed by the statement of former governor Thomas Dewey of New York that the Buffalo-New York Thruway collected $1,500,000 in tolls during a four-month period on one part of the highway and that travel was 70 per cent in excess of preliminary estimates.

Today, the legislature finishes business of the first week of the 1955 session, so far a quiet one. The session starts an hour before the customary time of 3 p.m. to allow out-of-town members to leave earlier.

Mr. Lavergne also said the province this fiscal year will spend $135,000,000, one-third of its revenues, on grants to municipalities. Per capita grants to municipalities would amount to an estimated $11,646,054 during the fiscal year ending March 31, 1955.

"I do not pretend that the municipalities have no troubles. But, when this government devotes one-third of its revenues to municipal aid, it is showing its awareness of an acute problem in a most practical manner."

The 1955 municipal directory, prepared by the department of municipal affairs, showed that the total taxable assessment in the province increased $40,216,000 from 1953 to 1954.

The province's population during the same 10-year period increased by more than 1,000,000—to 4,845,848 from 3,579,728. The ncrease from 1953-54 was 198,071.

Constable Will Be Charged Under Police Act

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto police commission ruled Thursday that constable William Chambers will be charged under the Police Act with using unnecessary violence on a prisoner.

The charge arises from a report by Mr. Justice W. D. Roach of the Ontario Supreme Court on events which followed a football game melee at Varsity Stadium Oct. 28 during which stadium constable James Cowie suffered a fatal heart attack.

The Roach inquiry stemmed from complaints by game spectators Robert Wright, 21, and Michael Griffin, 22, that police beat Wright and held them both incommunicado after charging them with obstructing police.

Const. Chambers will be brought before the chief constable and his deputy for disciplinary action in procedure somewhat similar to an army court martial. He faces possible dismissal.

The commission ordered Sgt. F. Davies and acting detective Jack Nicolucci to appear before it.

Mr. Justice Roach found Chambers had used unnecessary violence, that both men had been improperly denied the right of communication with relatives, friends or counsel and that they had been detained an undue length of time.

Pierre Pflimlin Has Good Chance To Head Govt.

PARIS (AP) — Pierre Pflimlin, member of 13 post-war French governments and staunch advocate of West German rearmament, sought today to line up enough support to become France's new premier.

Assembly circles voiced a friendly reaction to his candidacy Thursday night and observers give the 48-year-old Alsatian lawyer better than an even chance of marshalling sufficient backing to get the job.

Pflimlin, a member of the Catholic party Mouvement Republicain Populaire has devoted himself mainly to domestic affairs in his various cabinet posts and is little known outside France.

After Antoine Pinay gave up Thursday, President Rene Coty's next logical choice was a member of the MRP. The party was one of Pierre Mendes-France's bitterest opponents during his stormy premiership and also doomed Pinay's chances by refusing to give him solid support. Backers of those two men might retaliate by opposing any MRP member.

CHINESE TRADERS BUSY

LONDON (Reuters — Communist China's foreign trade plan for 1854 was exceeded by three per cent, the Chinese ministry of foreign trade announced in a broadcast Thursday night. More than 80 per cent of the trade total was with Russia and other "people's democracies."

SOCIAL CREDITERS BATTLE COMMONS OVER B.C. POWER

Federal Govt. Trying To Block Agreement

OTTAWA (CP) — The 14-man Social Credit group is battling the rest of the Commons over an agreement made between the British Columbia Social Credit administration and the Kaiser Corp. of the United States.

The federal government is trying to block the agreement and to do this has introduced a bill to give it stricter control over international river waters.

Resources Minister Lesage accused the B.C. government Thursday in the Commons of "selling out' its water power resources for "peanuts—and peanuts that are not guaranteed." The debate continues today.

The B.C. - Kaiser agreement, signed last September, would permit the American firm to build a storage dam on the lower Arrow lakes in B.C. The water would be fed into another dam at Bonneville, Wash., to generate power. B.C. is to get 20 per cent of the power generated in the U.S. from water stored in the lakes, a widening of the Columbia river.

The federal government has won support in principle for its bill from the Progressive Conservative and CCF groups. To a man, the Social Credit bloc is opposed.

Mr. Lesage said the B.C.-Kaiser agreement would guarantee B.C. 20 per cent of additional power generated at Bonneville.

But, he added, the Bonneville Power Authority, a U.S. federal agency which markets power, is not a party to the agreement.

"There is no guarantee at all," he said. "I never saw anything so childish." He also referred to the B.C.-Kaiser agreement as a "fire-sale," "sell-out" and a "steal."

A. B. Patterson (SC — Fraser Valley) said Mr. Lesage was adopting a dog-in-the-manger attitude that if Canada couldn't use Columbia river power now, then nobody else would be allowed to have it. He said the bill was calculated to wrest provincial rights away from B.C.

John Blackmore (SC—Lethbridge said the B.C.-Ottawa dispute presents a "dangerous situation." The Dominion government could override the province but in so doing it would "destroy" the Dominion.

Hang Murderer Of Montreal Boy

MONTREAL (CP) — A murder case described by police as one of the most gruesome in Montreal's history ended today with the hanging of 45-year-old Lucien Picard.

The dwarfish Montreal machinist, convicted Nov. 9 of the sadistic slaying of six-year-old Raymond Trudeau, was calm and did not utter a word as he was led to the gallows.

Picard was arrested in Quebec City two days after young Trudeau's dismembered body was found last July. Parts of the body were located in a waterfront garbage container. The torso was found stuffed in a suitcase in Picard's room.

Engineers Plan to Move Dredges From What Was Once Bottom of Lake

By PHIL ADLER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ATIKOKAN, Ont. (CP) — Engineers are about ready to begin the herculean task of dragging two 700-ton dredges up from the bottom of a drained lake and overland for more than two miles.

They hope the actual move, considered one of the largest moving projects ever undertaken in Canada, will start next week.

Movement of the $1,000,000 dredges owned by Steep Rock Iron Mines Ltd. has been in the planning stage for more than a year. The huge units now are resting on 36 wooden cribs at the bottom of what was once Steep Rock lake. They will be lowered on three crawler tracks and then hauled by five big tractors.

The destination is about 250 feet above the starting point.

The dredges, known as hydraulic suction units, have pumped about 26,000,000 cubic yards of silt from the lake bottom to allow open-pit mining of iron ore. They will do a similar job in the new location.

A combination of time and cost consideration gave birth to the idea of moving the dredges intact. Engineers estimated the move will cost $340,000 and take about 24 hours for each unit after actual movement is started. This represents a saving of $600,000 and six months of time had the dredges been dismantled and reassembled.

The unique operation began when an area 100 feet wide and about 400 feet long was flooded and timber cribs built. The dredges were floated over the submerged cribs and utilized to pump out the water in the pool. The dredges settled high and dry on the cribs and then workmen took about 200 tons of equipment off each.

Small barges were towed in skids to the new site. Each unit rests 360 feet below the original water level of the lake. The hulls will be lowered on the crawler tracks and then five tractors will start the long haul. Two will push and three will pull.

Ahead of them lies an eight-per-cent grade and a sharp road curve but engineers, using scale models of the dredges and moving equipment, have plotted each step down to the inch.

Bitter Gale Slows Tachen Operation At Crucial Stage

Soldiers, Guns, Equipment Will All Sail at One Time

By FRED HAMPSON

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP)—Bitter, bone-chilling gales today lashed the great American and Nationalist Chinese fleet evacuating the rain-swept Tachen islands and slowed the withdrawal to a crawl at a vulnerable stage.

The Nationalist defence ministry said the withdrawal has entered its crucial stage, although there is no indication that the Communists mean to attack.

AP correspondent Forrest Edwards, aboard a United States aircraft carrier, reported indications on his ship that the troop withdrawal is a one-shot affair.

Nationalist troops, guns and equipment will be loaded and the whole armada, including the protective warships, will make the 200-mile trip to Formosa together, Edwards said.

REFUGEES ARRIVE

Nationalist troops in number remain only on upper Tachen. Work details remain on lower Tachen. The other islands have been abandoned.

The U. S. attack transport Washburn arrived here today with 1,185 Nationalist troops, the vanguard of Chiang Kai-shek's American-trained 46th Division, and 520 tons of ammunition. Trains shuttled the troops off for south Formosa military camps almost immediately.

The official Central News Agency said 16,070 civilians have arrived at the northern Formosan port of Keelung. The refugees are quartered in schools and other relief centres. The U. S. foreign operations administration was reported to have set aside $8,000,000 for rehabilitation.

With the Tachen withdrawal near completion, a storm appears to be brewing over the future of Nachishan, Nationalist island 80 miles to the south.

WON'T GIVE UP

Nachishan is a bowl-like island with a lush green valley in its centre ringed by hills. It lies about 20 miles off the China mainland, 120 miles north of Formosa.

The Nationalists made clear today that they intend to hold it, whether or not the U. S. helps.

Col. Hsiung En-teh, a defence ministry spokesman, called the defence of Nachishan a "natural development" after the Tachen withdrawal.

Horror Comics Ban Proposed In Britain

LONDON (AP)—The government proposed Thursday a ban on sale of horror comics.

Home Secretary Gwilym Lloyd-George told the House of Commons a "Young Persons-Harmful Publications" bill was designed to "prevent the dissemination of certain pictorial publications harmful to children."

Details were not given. Some clergy and youth leaders have blamed circulation in Britain of American horror comics for increasing juvenile crime.

Bartender Owns Two Elephants, Not Pink Kind

RENO, Nev. (AP) — A 29-year-old bartender in this gambling centre disclosed Thursday his wealthy uncle in Florida has willed him two elephants.

"What am I going to do with two elephants?" asked Wesley C. Richards. He hasn't been able to get the problem off his mind.

"I understand there's not much of a market for elephants right now," Richards added "You just don't look in the elephants wanted column of a newspaper and make a deal."

Richards said the elephants—which he valed at $10,000 apiece—were left him by W. C. Richards of Pensacola, Fla. whose business was importing animals

Killed at Crossing

TORONTO (CP)—M. W. Heaton, 65, of Oakville was killed today when his automobile was struck by a Stratford-bound CNR passenger train in the west end of the city.

Police said Heaton drove onto the tracks while the wig wag level-crossing signals were operating.

The accident was one of 30 in the Toronto area today. All were blamed on icy roads and most were minor.

In suburban North York, two children were injured when a school bus was in collision with a car.

CITY & DISTRICT NEWS

NO DAMAGE

Over-heated stoves, one at the Wharf Street Debating Club on South Front street, and the other at 34 Burton street, brought out the fire reels last evening and early today. No damage was reported.

FOUR SCOUTMASTERS HONORED AT CHICAGO

Four Scoutmasters of the Belleville district recently were presented with honorary memberships of a Scouting explorer post in Chicago.

They are: Willis Jackson, now of Trenton; Bernard Fox and Stan Kerr, Belleville, and Harry Ashton, Foxboro.

The Scouters' Club of Belleville also plans to hold a second international camporee some time in August. Last year Belleville district Scouts were hosts at an international camporee to Scouts from Chicago.

Minor Hockey

Close scores featured the three "Squirt Division" games played in Memorial Arena last night with the Canadiens blanking the Maple Leafs 1-0; the Red Wings edging the Bruins 2-1 and the Rangers and Black Hawks battling to a two-all tie.

Peter Carver and "Bunny" Hurst who play for the "Church Street Clippers" between league games, were the stars of the Canadiens 1-0 victory with Peter scoring the only goal of the game and "Bunny" turning in his sixth shutout in the nets.

Two "Richards" shared the scoring honors in the Rangers-Hawks tie with Richard Eves getting both counters for the Hawks and Richard Hayes duplicating the fest for the Rangers.

Richard Thompson was the sharpshooter for the Red Wings getting both his team's goals while Roy Brenton scored the Bruins lone tally.

Operating Deficit of $4,109 Shown in Annual Report

Belleville YMCA finished the year 1954 with an operating deficit of $4,109, the association's annual report shows.

Operating expenses amounted to $13,505, and administrative expenditures to $10,740.

Among other items of income, the financial report also listed the following:

Membership fees, $4,697.18.

Residence and program activities, $6,112.78.

Donations, community chest, $9,903.57.

In his president's report, W. L. McDougall said the past year had been one of progress and that the Belleville YMCA is in "better shape" that it has been for a number of years.

Several economies in the administration of the association had been effected and together with contributions from the community chest it now appears possible to balance the budget for the year's operations, he says.

Special contributions have enabled improvements to the building on Campbell Street during the past two years, "which have been most necessary." It is hoped several other major repairs may be attended to within the next few years.

The association, in addition to full-time staffers, also had been "most fortunate" to have on its board of directors, men devoting their spare time to the association without charge.

'Y' MEMBERSHIP INCREASES

YMCA activity and membership have increased, he noted.

"While the charges made for membership are only a small fraction of the actual cost, nevertheless, the YMCA feels that wherever possible some membership fee should be charged as it develops independence and self-respect," he said.

However, when a member is unable to pay the association does not press for the fee. Open to all denominations, the YMCA bars no one from its services for inability to pay a membership fee.

"The institution is serving the youth of Belleville as never before and providing much needed services to the city.

The success of the YMCA depends to a large extent on volunteer leadership offered by its members and other community-minded citizens, he says. Over 110 volunteers served as leaders during 1954.

Concluding, says Mr. McDougall: "Many thanks and much appreciation is extended to all those who have given sacrificial leadership to particular groups, committees or activity during the past year."

'Y' President Calls Year One of Progress for Assoc.

Close to 180 members and guests attended the annual meeting of the Belleville YMCA last night and heard president W. L. McDougall tab 1954 a year of progress for the association.

During the evening the following eight directors were named as replacements to the 24-man board for a three-year period:

H. W. Ackerman, F. R. Clarke, G. A. Freeman, H. J. Fuke, Dr. E. G. Kennedy, E. G. Porter, Linton D. Read, G. B. Scott.

The association's new executive will be elected at the next directors' meeting.

Mr. McDougall gave the assembly only a brief rundown on his report, a more detailed account of which is published elsewhere in this edition. However he made special mention of the work of executive secretary D. G. Diamantides and noted that through his work a substantial deficit at the outset of 1954 had been pared down during the year.

For 1955, the budget is balanced according to present anticipated income and expenditures.

Several members of city council were among distinguished guests present, including Mayor Jack Both and Mrs. Both, and Aldermen Gerald Hyde, Claude D. Tice, Mrs. Jane Forrester and Mrs. Effie McCabe.

Guest speaker for the evening was Robert Rae, executive secretary of the Toronto St. Clair YMCA. Professor Alan Klein, scheduled as speaker was unable to attend due to illness.

Mr. Rae's text dealt with the spirit and movement of the YMCA association.

The YMCA is a world fellowship united in Christ for the purpose of building a Christian society, he said.

The centre and motivation of its work is with youth, to build character, giving young people the opportunities to grow and develop in the Christian way of life.

He recalled the early history of the organization, first founded in London in 1844 as a means to offset the influence of the industrial revolution on the rural population taking up a new life in the strange environment of cities. Seven years later the organization spread across the Atlantic, first taking root in the contrasting atmosphere of a pioneering Canada.

This, he said, emphasized the express genius of the organization: ". . . its ability to adapt and fit itself into circumstances in which it finds itself."

Today, the organization is linked across the world in 77 countries, creating new interests and new abilities in its diverse locations, serving in some unique and different fashion.

"The 'unique' way in which it serves is the great challenge to be met by the YMCA," he said.

He also laid stress on the association of the YMCA with the church and said that in many communities the organization is looked upon as the "right arm of the church." This is what the YMCA was intended to be.

The organization was important in that it presented to non-church-going youth the opportunity to meet and be influenced by active churchgoers of their own age group.

It also brings different denominations together and gives young people the opportunity to play and live together in a "practical demonstration of Christianity at work."

The speaker also noted important adaptation the association has to make regarding its women's membership, which now total 20 per cent of the membership.

BELONGS TO EVERYBODY

"The YMCA now is 'an association of persons'," he said.

Neither does it belong to anybody, but to everybody interested in it and willing to work for and support it.

He stressed that it was helping build Christian persons and a Christian society, with the ultimate goal of people living together in peace and happiness. To build that society, it is necessary to live together and work together and to this end the YMCA is important, he said.

The speaker was introduced by E. Follwell and thanked by Ronald Cass.

In the course of the meeting service of several long-term members was hailed by presentation of special pins. Among them were: Alderman Gerald Hyde, Joseph Shortt, one-time general secretary; William G. Connor and V. Weir, credited with 30 years' service.

Entertainment was provided by Jack Deacon, soloist, accompanied by Linton D. Read. The evening concluded with demonstrations by the YMCA's affiliated groups. Chairman of the meeting was president W. L. McDougall, who read a congratulatory telegram from the YMCA national association.

He was a member of St. George's Church.

EDWARD GODFREY
(Outremont, Quebec)

Following a lengthy illness, Edward Godfrey, 825 Wilder Avenue, Outremont, Quebec, prominent in the mining engineering field for many years, died at his home early this Friday morning.

He was born in England 78 years ago, being educated in that country and a graduate of an engineering school. He came to this country as a young man and settled in Quebec, where he had resided for the past 45 years. He followed his profession in this country for some years, retiring from active service about 20 years ago. He was with the Canadian Industries Limited and his services were highly valued. The late Mr. Godfrey was well-known and highly respected in his community. A man of friendly nature, he made many friends both inside and outside his profession.

The late Mr. Godfrey was identified with the Anglican church in Outremont and took an active interest in the affairs of the parish. He served as Warden of the church for many years. He was also a member of the Mining Engineering Society and the Masonic Order.

Surviving are his wife, the former Martha Westbrook; two sons, Phillip Godfrey, of Mount Royal; John Godfrey of McMasterville, Quebec; two daughters, Mrs. W. S. (Marjorie) Stone of this city; Mrs. Reginald (Edna) Hudson, of Toronto.

Mrs. Myles Morton, of this city is a granddaughter.

Resting at the William Ray chapel at Outremont, Quebec. The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this edition.

MRS. JOSEPH RYLOTT
(Madoc.)

Mrs. Melissa Rylott, widow of Joseph Rylott, Madoc, died in the Alexander Nursing Home, Queensboro, Thursday, February 10, after being in failing health for the past year. She was in her 92nd year.

The deceased was born in Madoc township, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Walter Demille, and lived her whole life in Madoc and district.

She is survived by two sons, Percy and John, of Toronto; a daughter, Mrs. George (Elizabeth) Labrash, Trenton, and a sister, Mrs. Martha Robertson, Madoc.

The deceased was a member of the United Church.

Resting at the McKenzie Funeral Home, Madoc; the funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

Valentine Party Held For Handicapped

Members of the Belleville Handicapped and Disabled Citizens' Club held their monthly meeting at the YMCA with Mr. H. Reed of the National Employment Service as the speaker.

In his talk Mr. Reed encouraged handicapped persons to study the art of handicrafts to enable them to produce crafts for sale to the public to aid in their earning power. Handicrafts would give the handicapped a useful object in life and would help others in need.

Handicapped children were treated to a Valentine party in conjunction with the meeting of the handicapped and disabled. Balloons were provided for all and a variety of games was played.

Local dairies provided milk and city bakeries donated Valentine cakes for the party. Transportation for the children and members was provided by Dave Thompson.

Cadets Hold Stores Muster

Monday evening, Lt.-Commander J. S. Gardiner and Lt. Strike were aboard R.C.S.C.C. Quinte, for their annual stores muster and kit inspection. A total of 96 cadets were on parade and were inspected by the visiting officers. During evening quarters Lt.-Comm. Gardiner complimented the cadets and officers on their fine dress and excellent manner in which the stores was kept.

He also stressed the fact that the cadets should be very proud to be wearing the naval uniform and suggested the need for new entries to build up the corps' strength. He noted that the cadets had come a long way in their training since his last visit before Christmas.

Also in attendance were members of the local navy league, Dr. J. Guthridge and Orliff Lloyd.

Police Blotter

Theft of a windbreaker containing a considerable sum of money was reported to police today by George Jackson of Rossmore who said the windbreaker had disappeared while on a visit to the city. Police are investigating the report.

Two other incidents of theft were also noted in the police blotter, one the disappearance of a truck owned by the Quinte Distributing Co. of Deseronto, and the other of auto accessories taken from a car parked near the Docter Hotel. The truck was stolen from Napanee.

Three minor accidents with damages all less than $100 were reported to the police.

Community Youth Activity At 'Y' Reached Peak in '54

Busiest youth centre in the Quinte area is the Belleville "Y", which, during 1954 reached one of its peak years in community youth activity in the district.

A list of the YMCA's activities during the past year underlines the facilities and opportunities offered by the "Y".

Here are some YMCA activities during 1954 at a glance:

(1) Some 48 golfers registered for the golf school, the students being divided into two groups, beginners and advanced. The students were instructed by the district's leading amateur players — Dr. G. V. Faulkner, Tom Carruthers, Cal Smith, Joey Pidutti, Spence Wonnacott and Mike Acquafreddo. It is planned to continue the school in 1955.

(2) Ladies "keep fit" classes were held weekly under the direction of Barbara Bennett. Some 52 members were instructed in light calisthenics, volleyball and swimming.

(3) The "Y" now plays host to 28 nurses of the Belleville General Hospital, who use the association's facilities weekly for physical culture.

(4) Last Spring the association was host to over 50 leaders of YMCA organizations in Peterborough, Kingston and Cobourg for the two-day eastern Ontario leaders conference.

(5) Interest in weight lifting and body building club took a definite upswing in 1954, membership increasing by five. More space is needed if the club is to progress, it was noted.

(6) Thirteen periods of instruction were held in swimming and life saving. Some 58 members passed their beginners test and 136 passed intermediate level tests; eight passed advanced tests and 10, life saving.

(7) Basketball was one of the most popular games with over 80 members participating in two house leagues.

(8) Finally 29 boys and girls attended swim and gym regular weekly classes.

MANY SOCIETIES USE "Y"

In addition to these activities the "Y" headquarters on Campbell Street is used by many outside organizations. During the year 49 non-YMCA organizations used the association's facilities for their activities.

Among highlights for 1955 is the selection of secretary-general D. G. Diamantides by the YMCA National Councils of the United States and Canada to head a North American delegation of leaders to the YMCA International Training Course in France.

The course is preparatory to YMCA centennial celebrations scheduled for Paris this summer.

Other affiliated organizations active in the Y year were:

(1) Y's Mennettes Club; a list of some of its activities during the year shows that: One of its most outstanding projects was sponsorship of three prenatal classes to the benefit of many pregnant mothers. Donations were made to the Red Cross, community the Belleville General Hospital building fund and the YMCA World Service Fund.

(2) Quinte District Foremen's Club with 125 members whose object is to aid foremen understand supervisory capacities and develop personality. During the year the club was honored by the appointment of H. G. Jones as a director of the Canadian Council of Foremen's Clubs.

(3) "Y" leaders' mothers' club which sponsored two banquets for Eastern Ontario "Y" leaders' conference.

(4) Boys' Hi-Y Club which among other business donated $41 to the World Service Fund and canvassed for the community chest campaign.

(5) Girl's Hi-Y Club, responsible among other projects, for contribution of an original Manly Macdonald painting to the school and service to the community chest.

MORGAN. — In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Roy McMurray Morgan, who was taken from us so suddenly February 11th, 1951.

We do not need a special day
To bring you to our mind;
For the days we do not think of you
Are very hard to find.
If all the world were ours to give,
We'd give it, yes, and more
To see your face, Roy dear
And clasp your hand once more.

—Lovingly remembered by Mom, Dad, brothers and sisters. F11

Weekly Livestock Review

TORONTO (CP) — Cattle prices were fully 50 cents to $1 lower this week at the Ontario public stockyards.

Calves were steady, hogs 50 cents lower and sheep and lambs barely steady to 50 cents lower.

The run of 6,100 head of cattle was slightly more than last week and comparable to the same week a year ago. Included in the fresh run were 649 head of western cattle, an increase of some 300 head over last week. Shipments to eastern Canada were light and there were no exports to United States.

Prices: Choice steers, all weights $20-21, a few small lots to $21.50; good steers $19-20; mediums $16-19 with commons at $12-16; good heifers generally $17; a few sales to $17.50; odd extreme tops of $18; mediums $14-16; commons $12-14; boner steers and heifers $10-12; choice fed yearlings $20-21; a few tops at $21.50; good fed yearlings $19-20; mediums $16-19; good cows generally $11 but closed at $11-11.50; light heifery cows to $13; canners and cutters down to $6; good heavy bologna bulls $13-13.50; butcher bulls up to $14; common and medium light bulls down to $10.

Replacement cattle: Shipments back to the country of replacement cattle numbered 500 head. This is an increase of some 200 head over last week. Prices remained unchanged with good stockers and stock calves at $17-18; tops of $19; mediums $14-16; commons $12-14.

Calves were 1,400 head. This total is some 200 head more than last week. Good and choice vealers were $28-30; mediums $19-27; commons $12-18.

Hogs were 3,000 head. This is about 500 head more than last week. Prices on grade A opened $1 lower than last week at $26.50 and closed at $26.50 to $27; sows were steady to firm at $19.50-20; stags were unchanged at $14.

Sheep and Lambs totalled 800 head. This is an increase of some 400 head over last week. The increase is attributed to the fact that there were two double decks of western lambs included in the receipts. Local feedlot lambs were steady at $22 for good ewes and wethers; the western lambs were 50 cents lower at $21.50; medium lambs $17-21; commons $12-17; bucks were discounted $1. Good light sheep were $8-10; common and heavy sheep down to $3.

Rossmore Man Given 2 Months On Theft Charge

Appearing for sentence on a charge of theft from the Pappas Pool Room on Front Street, Everett Parks, Rossmore, was given two months in jail by Magistrate T. Y. Wills.

On a charge of receiving stolen goods in connection with the same offence Daniel W. Fortune was given two years suspended sentence and was ordered to pay court costs of $21 as well as restitution of $43.50.

Charges under the Liquor Control Act accounted for the majority of court appearances with a parade of ordinary drunks almost filling the prisoners' bench. Most of the charges were for first offences and 10-day sentences were handed out by the magistrate following pleas of guilty.

One local resident, however, charged with a fourth offence, was given three months in jail.

"That will put you well into the spring," commented Magistrate Wills as he pronounced sentence.

E. Guss Porter acted as Crown Counsel for the morning court session.

Festival Will Feature Three One-Act Plays

The Eastern Ontario Drama Festival, to be held in Belleville all next week, commencing Tuesday, gives theatregoers the opportunity to glimpse both the long and short of the theatre.

In addition to four full-length plays the festival also will feature three one-act productions in a matinee presentation, Saturday, February 19.

The plays to be presented are: "L'Imbecile," by the Le Pont Neuf group of Hull, Que.; "The Rehearsal," by the Ottawa Little Theatre Workshop and Belleville's theatre guild entry, "Two Sides to a Tortoise."

The first, "L'Imbecile," is fantasy by Montreal's Lomer Gouin, first presented in 1954, of a girl who falls in love with a poor sailor, whom her father abhors. Complications set in when a rich widow attempts to have the girl marry her son and the heroine, learning her sailor has disappeared to become a pirate, refuses at first to comply.

"The Rehearsal," by Norman Newton, is a provocative take-off on amateur theatricals, which indulges in some tongue-in-the-cheek tilts at non-professional theatre groups.

Belleville's entry is by another young Canadian writer, Weldon Hanbury. "Two Sides to a Tortoise" is the story of a mother who places her impression of duty and righteousness above motherly love.

Further excitement is injected into the afternoon by the fact that trophies are in the offing for the production or productions.

One, the Rupert Davies trophy, is awarded for the best one-act play by a Canadian author, while the Fulford Shield is presented to the group producting the best one-act play.

The performances commence at 2 p.m. and will be commented upon at their conclusion by the official adjudicator, Andre van Gyseghem.

Crushed by Crane

TORONTO (CP)—Mike Iathauro, 39, a construction worker, was killed early today when a steel crane crushed him during sewer excavation in suburban York township.

The crane was operated by the McNamara Construction Company.

DROP OUTMODED RULE

COLUMBIA, S. C. (AP) — The state legislature Thursday eliminated from the South Carolina constitution a requirement that office-holders swear that they had not duelled since 1881.

Second Group Backs Demand Juke-Box Men Pay for Music

OTTAWA (CP)—The royal commission studying Canada's copyright law heard for a second time today a suggestion that operators of the country's $35,000,000-a-year juke-box business should be compelled to pay performing right fees on recordings they use.

The proposal was submitted by BMI - Canada Ltd., affiliate of Broadcast Music Incorporated of the United States. In advancing it, BMI agreed with the Composers, Authors and Publishers Association of Canada which made a lengthy submission to the commission Thursday.

Both organizations collect fees from public performances of works on which they hold licensing power from the author or composer. Both have international connections.

JUKE BOXES EXEMPT

Juke-box operators now are exempt under a provision of the law excluding gramophone users from the liability. BMI said this is unfair.

The submission was to the royal commission headed by Chief Justice J. L. Ilsley of Nova Scotia, appointed last year to look into Canada's patent, copyright, trade mark and industrial design laws.

BMI disagreed with its competitor on another point, however. While CAPAC favored a tightening of the law to make liable to fee payment those performances of copyrighted work by educational, social, charitable, religious or fraternal organizations, BMI said there is no need for any change.

ASK FURTHER PROTECTION

BMI urged Canada to ratify immediately the Universal Copyright Convention. Since Canada is already a signatory to the Berne Copyright Convention, adherence also to the universal convention would give Canadians complete protection of their works in most countries. This would include the U.S. which has ratified the universal treaty.

BMI said that to the extent to which a particular radio or TV broadcast work is "copyrightable subject matter" it can and should be protected. But it would be unwise to extend this provision to "program ideas or mere formats."

U.S. Officer Honors Pilot For Bravery

TRENTON (Special) — A veteran of World War II and an exchange pilot with the U.S.A.F. in the Korean conflict Flying Officer Andrew Lambros, Wiarton, Ontario, now flying with Ferry Flight at No. 6 Repair Depot, was honored this morning at a parade at the maintenance base here, when Brigadier General Lloyd P. Hopwood, commandant of the U.S. A.F.'s air command and staff college at the Air University of Montgomery, Alabama, presented him with the U.S. air medal in recognition for his bravery on combat missions.

Present at the ceremony was Group Captain D. H. MacCaul, commanding officer of the Repair Depot. The parade commander was Wing Commander D. D. Cunningham, chief technical officer.

F/O. Lambros, a qualified jet and propeller driven aircraft pilot, winged his way to Toronto following the presentation. He returns to Trenton this afternoon. He is married and his wife and two children, a girl, age nine, and a boy, six, live at Wiarton.

SEEKS BROTHER

A sister, Mrs. Lloyd Partridge, of Trenton, is anxious to get in touch with her brother, Ernest Archibell, 25, of Trenton, who set out last Friday with another man to find work in the district and has not reported back to Trenton since. He was supposed to get in touch with his home Tuesday.

HURT KNEE IN FALL

Police advised the town office that an icy spot on the sidewalk at the top of Gilmour Hill needed sanding after a Mrs. Bowen, 19 Leonard street, slipped and fell and hurt her knee while walking to work this morning.

CARS COLLIDE

While the roads were slippery this morning two cars collided on the curve in front of O'Malley's service station on North Front street. Police reported that a car driven by Margaret Rowe, of Demorestville, failed to negotiate the turn, skidding across the highway to the west side into a vehicle operated by F/S. Alan Westfall, 7 Trenton street, causing $150 damage to his car and $125 to her own.

Students Warned To Refrain From Using Tracks

Students of the Quinte Secondary school on College street who cut across the Canadian National Railways double tracks at the end of Coleman street as a short cut to and from school are causing worries for railway officials.

So much so in fact that railway police have taken the matter up with the school principal, who has been asked to impress on students that prosecutions will follow if the trespassing continues. Signs have been posted by the railway warning students to keep off railway property.

"Students darting across the tracks just ahead of fast moving trains are causing endless worries for engineers," stated a railway police officer this morning, "and they are afraid that some day an accident will occur."

Railway police noted that many students in the west end of the city south of the tracks use the shortcut over railway property instead of walking around by the overhead bridge on North Front street.

"The shortcut does save them considerable steps but the practice is a dangerous one and is a constant worry for train engineers," he said.

William J. Ford Installed Pres. Of ANAF Assoc.

At a general meeting of the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans in their clubrooms on Front street, Thursday evening, a large number of the members witnessed their newly-elected president, William J. Ford, installed for the coming year. Mr. Ford thanked the members for the honor conferred on him and hoped that the coming year would be as successful as the many that have gone before.

The sports committee reported that extensive plans had been laid to keep up the interest of the members during the winter months. Darts, cribbage and bridge are the prevalent pastime and it is expected that teams in the various categories will repay visits to Ottawa, Perth, and Toronto, in the near future.

A motion was unanimously adopted that a letter be sent to the federal member for South Hastings, Frank S. Follwell, objecting to the obscene books and crime comics, that are being sold throughout the country. The letter will claim they are a breeder of crime and a contributory factor to juvenile delinquency.

Following the business session a social hour was spent after which refreshments were served.

DOWN WITH THIS REVOLUTION

The clothing revolution that made woollen bathing suits almost obsolete last summer has all but eliminated unlined, black leather gloves and dark, unfringed scarves.

The woollen bathing suit has a definite place in the swim scene in most Ontario lakes. For one thing, it is warm. Synthetic fibres have their place but in men's bathing trunks there is nothing like wool.

Last summer's attempt to buy a woollen bathing suit was an adventure in frustration. Clerks, especially younger clerks, met requests for woollen bathing suits with blank-eyed wonder or ill-concealed levity.

"We don't carry them, sir. Practically no one buys woollen bathing suits anymore. Would you care to look at some others?"

This sales talk carried the nasty insinuation that anyone so far behind the fashion parade as to ask for a woollen bathing suit was really too old to risk his life swimming. The chilling models in synthetics included designs featuring purple porpoises with luminous eyes, green palm trees against Hawaiian sunsets, and surrealist interpretations of seaweed and oysters. We ask you, honestly, if plactics might not be out of bounds in bathing suits?

This mad craze away from accepted clothing values persisted into the winter season.

"Unlined, black leather gloves, sir? Well . . . I'm afraid we don't have them. We don't have much call for them these days. Mostly browns and greys with fleece linings. Would you like . . . ?"

"A dark, fringeless scarf, sir? Let's see. Here is one. Not exactly what you wanted. The fringe is short and you must admit that the color is dark if you disregard that one yellow band through the centre."

Again, there is the suggestion that unlined gloves and dark scarves are old-fashioned and out-of-date. This sort of talk is purely defensive. Everyone who has ever worn unlined gloves knows that they are superior in every way to lined ones. They are more stylish because they are neater and trimmer on one's hand. The lining cannot come loose and bunch in the fingers shutting off one's circulation. And what, pray tell, is more fashionable than black?

As for scarves. Have you ever tried travelling for a week by train, bus, or car with a cream-colored scarf?

This total disrespect for "old-fashioned" clothing virtues must stop.

Synthetic bathing suits, lined gloves and bright scarves, indeed! The next thing we know brown shoes will be formal.

Where will it all end?

MOVING DAY IN JOHANNESBURG

Home is where the heart is. Sometimes the heart does not seem to be sensible in its choice of a location. That may be the explanation why 2,000 armed police were required to move 100 native families from a condemned district in Johannesburg, South Africa, on Wednesday. The South African government has prepared new quarters for them in a housing development twelve miles from the city. Perhaps their new houses are much to be preferred to those they were forced to leave. But it is evident they did not want to change their homes.

If this was just a minor slum clearance program, the story would have a human interest touch but would be devoid of any real significance. This evacuation move, though, is much more than a slum clearance program, although it goes by that name. The South African government plans to move all of Johannesburg's 60,000 Negroes to new quarters outside the city limits. The real motivation for this program is not slum clearance but segregation.

The African National Congress, largest native organization in the country, is opposed to the move. It is receiving support from prominent white South Africans, mostly, if not exclusively, of English origin.

Sixty thousand resentful individuals grouped together in an exclusively native city may appear to some people to be a rather large bundle of dynamite to stockpile within twelve miles of an exclusively white city.

That, however, is not our funeral. But it might easily prove to be the African whites' funeral!

MOST FEATHERS WITH LEAST SQUAWK

The Federal Government's decision to convene a Dominion-Provincial Conference during 1955 is already being hailed in some quarters as recognition by Ottawa of the constitutional rights of the provinces under the British North America Act.

It would be pleasant to think that such actually was the case. A more realistic appraisal of the conference proposal, however, would be that Ottawa's concern, and to some extent that of the provincial governments, in a further Dominion-Provincial Conference will be the perennial one of how to get the most feathers with the least squawk.

Were there some hint that the proposed conference might result in the taxpayers of Canada being squeezed less, rather than more, by government, there would be legitimate ground for optimism. Lacking any such indication, ordinary taxpayers might be justified in assuming that the conference may address itself almost exclusively to the problem of painless taxation.

GRAVY

The trouble with gravy I pour on my plate
Is not that its calories add to my weight,
But the mess that it makes of my trousers and sleeves
And my shirts and my ties by the stains that it leaves.

Whatever the gravy the cook may prepare
It is dangerous stuff to be handled with care.
For somehow or other, when nicely I'm dressed,
I walk from the table with spots

There's something about it that's tricky, I'd say.
It seems disinclined on potatoes
 to stay.
Instead of on meat, where I like it to be,
Through the prongs of the fork
 It slips down onto me.

Still spotless the white linen napkin remains;
Though worn to protect me, it picks up no stains.
But my suit of blue serge gets great blotches to tell
That thin or thick gravy I don't handle well.

Atomic Power Goes to Sea

(Chicago Daily News)

According to the Encyclopaedia Britannica, nearly 300 years elapsed between the time that gunpowder was first employed to propel missiles (1313) and its use to aid ore mining. Explosives have since become an invaluable aid in projects to benefit mankind by changing the face of the earth.

Test trials of the submarine "Nautilus" powered by an atomic motor attest to the accelerated pace of man's inventive genius. Scarcely a decade after the development of nuclear fission as a military explosive, it is adapted to work in an engine.

The Nautilus is a warship, to be sure, but the facts learned about atomic power will not require a long time for translation into peace-time uses, beneficial beyond all imagination. The trial run was an epochal event in history.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

MATURITY

How relatively few mature minds there are in the world! Robert Louis Stevenson once wrote that "to know what you like is the beginning of wisdom, and of old age." Youth is restless and is forever trying things out. But with maturity silently becoming an asset, the sure and substantial things in life are sorted out and set aside to live by. That's why the advice of elderly people is so sound and worth hearing.

There aren't very many people like Ulysses, with evergy to burn, yet with a rich life having been lived. It takes a heap of experience to round out a mature mind. You don't find the "hot heads" among the mature, but you will the quiet thinkers. The world owes a great debt to its "elder statesmen."

It often takes a long time for some of us to learn the value of maturity. Stevenson suggests that it comes with a settled mind and is the beginning of wisdom and old age. But it is during this period of old age that so much of human wisdom is born and recorded. It's like ripe fruit, of no value until ripe.

I am not in agreement with those who say that a man's best work has been completed before he is at the age of fifty. Most of the progress of the world has been achieved by thinkers and doers far past the age of fifty. The matured mind has substantiality to it. It has reviewing qualities. It knows so much more than it guesses!

With maturity come mellowness and judgment. People listen to those who have travelled and learned, and I might say saved for one's enjoyment and meditation, as well as for the profit of others. We cannot be very happy unless we share of our abundance and scatter it. The richest and most satisfactory period of life is when the mind has matured.

Aviation in 1985

(Wall Street Journal)

Aviation industry leaders met in the proper atmosphere for predictions—the night skies of 1985, provided by the Hayden Planetarium here—and heard some prophesies on what flying and airplanes will be like 30 years from now. The symposium of aeronautical and astronautical scientists and company officials was sponsored by Trans World Airlines.

Among the prophesies: Supersonic speeds, atomic powered planes, space ships. One pattern that emerged: The most free-wheeling predictions came from the researchers, the most conservative from the men who knew most about manufacturing the complex vehicles of space.

Dr. Wernher von Braun, knowledgeable rocket man and chief of the guided missiles division of the U. S. Army's Redstone Arsenal in Alabama, plumped for 2,000-mile-an-hour airliners by 1985, allowing travellers to eat breakfast in New York and drink mid-morning coffee in Los Angeles. The craft probably would be powered by ram jets, simplified versions of today's jet powerplants, he said. And there would be space ships, either manned or unmanned, as first steps toward the huge space station of the even more distant future.

Dr. Fred L. Whipple, chairman of Harvard's Department of Astronomy, came out for atom powered airliners so big, passengers would have private compartments in the wings. Dr. Whipple's huge machines would rise vertically before shooting off at supersonic speeds. The Harvard astronomer is among tho who expect robot-controlled rocket ships to be speeding through outer space by 1985.

Listen to Arthur E. Raymond, vice-president in charge of engineering for Douglas Aircraft Co., a leading builder of airliners in 1955: He sees the vast majority of commercial aircraft 30 years from now powered by turbines—either straight jet or jet plus propeller. But, he adds. "I should not expect many of them to be flying supersonically because of the cost." Supersonic speed is about 700 miles an hour. Nor does he foresee much growth in the size of airplanes, though there will be, he thinks, a lot more traffic. "Airlines may still be looking for a DC-3 replacement," Mr. Raymond observed wryly. This two-motor craft for years has been the reliable workhorse of the airlines.

F.B. Rentschler, chairman of United Aircraft Corp., leading builder of military jet powerplants and engines for airliners, declared it was immaterial whether engines were jet, nuclear powered or rocket types "Through the next 30 years commercial transports will continue steadily to improve in speed, safety and comfort and in approximately 10-year cycles," the United chairman said. He singled out the maintenance of the integrity and stability of the aviation industry as the most important factor in looking ahead.

Edward C. Wells, vice-president in charge of engineering for Boeing Airplane Co., whose company is flying the only U. S. jet airliner prototype, looks for jet airliners to be widely used within the next decade, but doubts that nuclear power will come along for other than military flying for some time.

Not so conservative is Lockheed Aircraft Corp.'s engineering vice-president, Hall Hibbard. Mr. Hibbard looks for a 1,500 mile-an-hour airplane in 30 years, and vertical-rising planes capable of carrying 50 passengers each at 500 miles an hour for feeder service. Mr. Hibbard is also among those who believe cargo business ultimately will eclipse passenger traffic.

Canada's J. Geoffrey Notman, president of Canadair, Ltd., foresees planes about 50 per cent bigger than today's, powered with jet or turboprop engines, but with only a 50 per cent increase in speed over today's craft. He appended an eminently practical note:

"I hope that the 1985 airline passenger does not have to walk through the rain and snow to go aboard the aircraft, and that he will get his baggage without delay after disembarking," he declared.

Railways Fight Back

(Cornwall Standard-Freeholder)

A few days ago it was disclosed that passenger revenue collected by Trans-Canada Airlines was approximately 30 cents of every $1 that Canadians spend on travel. At almost the same time, both railway lines let it be known they were cutting from 12 to 16 hours off their transcontinental schedules—the greatest reduction in many years.

The railways, obviously, are not going to take the airlines' competition lying down. At the same time as they wage a vigorous fight with the trucking interests for freight business, they are tackling the equally difficult job of retaining their share of the passenger miles.

The exact figures for 1954 have not been disclosed. But as far as the end of 1953, TCA was able to show a greater passenger revenue than its daddy, the CNR. The battle for passengers actually has been going on for some time, and let no one think the airline operators have had it all their own way.

Dieselization has helped the railways greatly, and it is the prime reason why the transcontinental travel times can be slashed so drastically. But the railways have taken other steps. They have spent millions on new equipment and now both systems are running transconinental trains that a few years ago were in the "dream train" class, so far as Canadian passengers were concerned. They have tackled the problem of meals, and both of the major lines have several "dinette" cars on the road. They mean that a person can get a light meal at a reasonable price, and with reasonable speed. He doesn't get the white tablecloth and the other classic accoutrements of the dining car; but he gets good food and good service. There are dinette cars on the "city trains" that run between Toronto and Montreal; and; according to reports, they are proving highly popular.

Both railways have introduced some fine new sleeping car facilities in the past year or so, and on the transcontinental runs there are sleek, beautiful observation cars. There are still other improvements the railways can make in their services, and the signs are that they are bringing them in as fast as they can. The air services are fine for those who want to cut down their travel time and can afford the risk of a cancelled flight. But if the railroads continue to improve their service to match their for a long time to come. proven dependability, they'll be getting their share of the traffic

This Cruelty Must Cease!

(Toronto Star)

Last spring the Ontario Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals brought to light the shameful conditions under which horses were working in Ontario logging camps. Public reaction to the details of mistreatment of the animals in the bush was strong. It seemed at the time that in a civilized country such cruelty need only be exposed to make correction imperative. But that has not proved to be the case.

Mr. Herbert Merry, vice-president of the Ontario SPCA, recently returned from a 60-mile bush camp inspection along the Ottawa river. He describes the cruelty to horses in some camps as "almost unbelievable." In one camp only two of 12 horses were fit for work. In another camp, 27 of 28 horses had to be given immediate veterinaryy treatment and one had to be shot. Mr. Merry says he saw horses being forced to haul logs weighing as much as three-quarters of a ton.

Such mistreatment of animals is against the law. The SPCA has done all that its limited resources will allow to combat the deplorable conditions it uncovered. But its funds will not stretch to the point of providing a sufficient inspection staff. The society has tried, but without much success, to persuade lumber and logging companies to refuse business to jobbers who mistreat horses. It has urged the Ontario government to use its licensing powers to insure the proper care and treatment of bush animals.

Often the offenders are itinerant jobbers, or small contractors, not the direct employees of the logging companies. Many of the jobbers use rented horses, and this probably explains much of the mistreatment. A man who owns a horse has a good incentive to care for it properly, for neglect of it would be as bad economics as allowing machinery to deteriorate.

The Ontario SPCA is launching a campaign to double the number of bush inspectors to combat what its officials describe as "increasing cruelty" to animals in bush camps. Mr. Merry will visit all the society's 33 branches to map plans for the campaign. If the public is asked to support the society's new move, either by way of funds or otherwise, there should be a generous response in an effort to end conditions which are a blot on this province's good name.

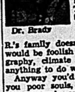
Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

HOLD ON THER E. DON'T MOVE!

A New England reader says her sister has been trying to persuade her to move to California.



Dr. Brady

Yet the sister, her husband and children hardly recover from one round of "colds" when another starts. They don't have that back east. (E.W.R.)

Maybe E. W. R.'s family doesn't, but if so, it would be foolish to imagine geography, climate or weather has anything to do with it.

Anyway you'd think, wouldn't you poor souls, that we've got our geography and climate mixed up here. The California sister should be concerned about the rounds of so-called "colds" the family of her New England sister has, presumably just because she won't move to another climate.

Here knee deep in winter I'm watching the clock to be sure to get to the bowling green in time for the draw. Thousands of other people are heading for the golf links, tennis courts, parks, playgrounds, to play their game, and other thousands are puttering around lawn or garden—as in any other time of the year. Besides, I served time at hard practice in upstate New York, so I know what exposure to cold, wet and all that means.

The question of a change of climate for health's sake reminds me of one of my first patients in Penn Yan when Topsy the Beautiful Sorrell, Mr. Whitfield's low sill, patent leather dash, rubber tired buggy, Micky the lovely brown eyed sorrel—I mean the head nurse of the surgical ward —and Lalla Rookh, our first born, whom we had named the year before we married, a staggering load of debts and, something I still can't understand, unlimited credit with Penn Yan's merchants—were the assets of our happiness.

The patient was a youth of 19, a blond, with pulmonary tuberculosis. Two or three other members of his family had succumbed to tuberculosis. I don't remember just why the boy had come to me, the newest and youngest doctor in the community. Perhaps in the hope that I'd go along with his belief that it was just an obstinate "cold." Although I told him frankly that he had tuberculosis and must immediately give up his job as clerk in a store and follow the open air rest regimen. I could see he didn't accept my opinion or advice. So I sought out an elder member of his family and made sure my diagnosis and advice was not misunderstood.

But my advice was not followed. Soon afterward the older member of the family casually informed me that they were sending the boy to Denver.

The boy spent several weeks in a Denver boarding house and then was brought home to . . .

Another of my first patients, also a blond (I had and still have a notion that blonde with tuberculosis do better than brunets) was about 25 years of age. He had to come to Keuka Lake from New York City, to pick grapes. When I told him he had tuberculosis and that his best bet was an open air rest regimen, he took it in good earnest and lived like Thoreau there on a hillside by the lake, making a good recovery.

The point I want to make is that change of climate for health's sake seldom proves a happy venture.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE FORGIVENESS OF SIN

A psychiatrist was speaking.

"Almost everyone with whom we deal in mental institutions is overwhelmed with a sense of guilt. Sixty to seventy per cent of all our patients would walk out of mental hospitals tomorrow if they could be relieved of a sense of guilt."

This sense of guilt is probably no stronger today than it has been in the past. We are just discovering more cases and subjecting more cases to study. Every person has felt a sense of guilt settling down upon him at some time or other, and many have carried this sense of guilt through life, an awful burden indeed. We can readily understand therefore how Christianity swept across the world with its message of liberation and new hope, for it promised men forgiveness of sins. That one teaching stands out as the very center and core of the Christian gospel.

The gospel, or the good news, involves kindliness, justice, and fills the believer with hope, but its promised release comes when people accept on faith the assurance of the Word of God that through Jesus Christ, the Heavenly Father has offered forgiveness to all men. The only people who will not be forgiven are the people who believe that they have nothing for which to be forgiven, or who scoff at forgiveness and thrust it aside. All who truly want it may have it. The only requirements are repentance and faith.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

A friend of mine who has for several years past enjoyed the pleasure of entertaining quite a wide variety of wildbirds at the feeding stations in his suburban garden, has been puzzled all winter by the absence of visitors this year. Formerly, he had cardinals, blue jays, two species of woodpecker, chickadees, nuthatches, four kinds of native sparrows besides the English sparrows and starlings. But what few birds he has seen this year, a few hasty chickadees, and an anxious brief woodpecker or two, have appeared wild and furtive in their behavior.

A week ago, at dusk, my friend saw an owl fly out of one of the Norway spruces at the bottom of his garden. Knowing my friend for a very determined man, I am afraid that owl is a gone goose.

But the chances that the owl has eaten, or even attacked the former visitors, are very slim. Beyond the foot of my friend's garden is a large suburban vacant field full of weeds and grass, in which doubtless large numbers of mice and even rats are in residence. It is practically certain the owl is more interested in the field than in my friend's bird-gathering feeding station. There has been no identification of the owl, but it sounds from the description like a long-eared owl, which is known to eat little else than nice and small rodents.

Just how few birds owls do attack is attested by recent figures published in the Auk, the official quarterly of the American Ornithologists Union.

A study of barn owl pellets shows 489 rats, mice, moles, rats and squirrels eaten, as compared to 21 birds, 14 of which were sparrows. A study of horned owls, which are big enough to take rabbits, shows four birds—a quail, a flicker and two sparrows—against ten rabbits, 18 rats, two mice and a squirrel.

The doomed owl around my friend's house is doomed because he may merely have scared the other birds away. There is no way of telling small birds that owls eat mostly mice. Like bird-loving men, small birds have their natural suspicions.

Jury Returns Verdict of Death By Natural Causes

BANCROFT — A coroner's jury returned a verdict of death from natural causes at an inquest held in Bancroft on Wednesday afternoon on seven-month-old Daniel Wayne Masters, of Madoc who died at the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Whyte, early on Sunday morning. The boy had been staying with Mr. and Mrs. Whyte, who reside near Bancroft, for two weeks and was apparently in his usual state of health during that time.

According to evidence given by the mother, Mrs. Sadie Masters, the baby had not been strong since birth and seemed unable to take solid foods. He had been feeding on a milk formula. Dr. A. N. Rota, pathologist to the Crown Attorney, who performed the autopsy, said the child was well developed and that there was no question of malnutrition. He found no sign of asphyxia. The doctor attributed death to bronchitis and early bronchial pneumonia.

Coroner Dr. O. W. Anderson presided over the inquest and the jury comprised Reg. Blatherwick (foreman), and Keith O'Shaughnessy, Roy Barker, Cecil and M. J. McAlpine.

Coaches Needed In Schools Says Trainer

BANCROFT — Before Canadian football clubs can bring the game back to an "All Canadian" standing there will have to be great changes in our educational system, according to George Stockwell, head trainer for the Toronto Argonauts.

Since their formation in 1872, Mr. Stockwell told Bancroft Lions on Monday evening, the Argonauts have produced some of Canada's finest football and rowing athletes. They won three Grey Cups with a Canadian coach and an all Canadian team and, when finally forced to import American players, they brought in men that were a credit to both their own country and ours. Quite a few of these boys had since made their homes in Canada and are now citizens.

The speaker told his listeners that football today was a tremendous business and that only the best athletes were good enough. If the best Canadian players were to be found and developed we should encourage a more active sports program in our schools.

In the belief that a healthy body creates an active mind the schools should have sports coaches. Coaching should not be left to teachers who have spent the greater part of the day in classrooms.

In an effort to foster this plan, the Argonauts have supported junior teams and have run winter long clinics for coaches for high school work in Toronto and vicinity. Last winter, coaches from Peterborough, Oakville and Hamilton attended these clinics.

Psychiatrist Gives Views On Capital Punishment

OTTAWA (CP)—The claim that capital punishment is a deterrent to murder has been disputed by an Ottawa psychiatrist.

Dr. J. P. S. Cathcart, who has examined about 25 convicted murderers for the remissions branch of the justice department, said Thursday that a feeling of retribution seems to come to killers only after the crime is committed.

"The idea of punishment does not seem to figure in their thinking," he said. The murderers he examined in the last eight years were incapable of being deterred by the threat of capital punishment.

Dr. Cathcart spoke to the Commons-Senate committee studying whether the Criminal Code sections on capital and corporal punishment and lotteries should be amended.

COULD HAVE REFORMED

Majority of murderers he examined could have been reformed, though only after some punishment, said the committee's first witness this session. Some murderers had a "dreadful feeling of guilt" and demanded punishment.

Except for killings committed by gunmen during holdups, he said there would be no increase in the number of murders if the death penalty was abolished and replaced by life imprisonment.

Dr. Cathcart estimated that about 30 per cent of the murderers he examined for the remissions branch were granted commutations.

"PRETTY NORMAL"

Not all murderers were psychopaths. A person in his right mind could commit murder. It was "a pretty normal," though unacceptable, reaction under certain circumstances.

He said present conditions for psychiatric examination of accused murderers are inadequate and recommended establishment of examining centres in each province.

Lack of adequate facilities for examining accused persons made psychiatrists hesitant about testifying in court.

Harness Racing and Curling To Be Featured in Centennial

By GERRY MARTIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP)—People up and down the country will shortly receive an official-looking summons ordering them to appear in this Prince Edward Island capital sometime during the year.

Charlottetown is celebrating its centennial in 1955 and the "summons" is just one of several gimmicks the city is using to advertise its birthday.

Merchants have gone along with the "advertise Charlottetown" program and have received special permission to issue redeemable paper "centennial currency." This appears in the same denominations as regular silver.

PLENTY OF ADVERTISING

Added to the summons and souvenir currency are metal licence-plate bars, and piles of posters, stickers and folders that will flood tourist bureaus and travel agencies in the next few months.

This city of 16,000 is the heart of a province that finds its biggest pleasure is harness racing.

It is the home of Confederation, for here in 1864 the "Fathers of Confederation" met. Out of the meeting came the union of Canada's provinces. Prince Edward Island, however, didn't join with the other provinces until 1873.

Charlottetown traces its origin back to 1763 when the French called the small fort Port La Joie. The English took over the island and made Charlottetown its capital in 1761. It was incorporated as a town in 1842 and 10 years later became a city.

Besides welcoming many Canadian conventions almost every week from May to September the city has planned a gala round of entertainment that should satisfy even the most sceptical visitors.

"Plan to arrive in '55", is the city's slogan.

CENTENNIAL BONSPIEL

To get things off to a good start curlers from almost every club in eastern Canada are expected here for the five-day Charlottetown Centennial Bonspiel starting March 21.

Mayor J. David Stewart, swinging a double-edged Scottish war-sword, cut a giant threedecker cake on New Year's Day to officially open centennial year ..

Two white-wigged criers read the official proclamation that made Charlottetown a city 100 years ago.

A. Waltham Gaudet, general manager of the centennial and his various committees have lined up a program ranging from sports to concerts

Already the committee has received requests for information from many parts of the United States and Canada and the city is preparing to handle the largest number of visitors in its history.

St. Michael's Academy PTA Has Boys' Night

On Monday, the regular meeting of St. Michael's P.T.A., was held. The shop was open at 7.30 and many interested parents and friends filed through to watch groups of boys engaged in various phases of their work in Industrial Arts.

Mr. B. R. Collins conducted the business meeting, after which he called on Mr. Carl Casey to announce the entertainment. It featured "Boys' Night", a program given by the boys of Grades seven to ten.

Mr. Casey thanked the staff members who had prepared the boys. He also thanked Mr. P. Cleary for installing a loudspeaker system for the evening, after which he asked Michael Ryan to call on the individual performers.

PROGRAM

David Buller, of Grade eight, spoke on "The Brown Scapular." Casey Soden, also of Grade eight, gave a talk on "The Pontifical Association of the Holy Childhood," after which a number of his classmates sang the Association hymn, "The Mustering."

Casey and Carey Soden played a piano duet.

Boys from Grade nine B enacted the trial scene from "The Merchant of Venice."

Bruce Jarvah, Grade nine A, developed the topic, "The Gift of Faith."

Three choral speaking numbers, "Just For a Minute," "Etiquette," and "Foolish Questions," by the boys of Grade seven, were next.

Dale Burley from Grade ten B, gave a speech on "Pope Pius XII". After Michael Cowan's reading, "An Old Timer's Memories," he with his companions sang "Home on the Range."

Michael McCarey and Paul O'Neill from Grade ten A spoke, the former on "Balmoral Castle," and the latter on "G. K. Chesterton." Between their speeches, John Berrigan sang, accompanied at the piano by Michael Rashotte.

Dr. Ross thanked the boys for their entertainment.

Refreshments were served by the mothers of Sister Mary Gonzaga's class.

Sister Mary Avita's class won the attendance plaque.

Pr. Wales H-S Association Holds Successful Valentine Tea, Euchre

Bright, mild weather helped in the good attendance at the Valentine tea and euchre held by the Prince of Wales Home and School Association on Wednesday.

Receiving at the door were: Mrs. P. Murray, president, and Mrs. J. Vandervoort, vice-president. Mrs. D. Hunter, association treasurer, was treasurer for the afternoon.

The tea room, in charge of co-conveners Mrs. Bongard and Mrs. Clark had been prettily decorated by the Grade 7 pupils of Mr. Lockyer's class. Done in the traditional red and white, the ceiling was a lattice work of streamers, while decorations of cupids, hearts and Valentines of many descriptions were used for wall trimming.

CHARMING PICTURE

The tea table, itself, was a charming picture with lace cloth and silver tea service with its centre of four tall cupids standing on hearts. All were trimmed with glitter, giving a glowing and striking effect, which gave testimony to the hard work and artistic effort of Mrs. Bongard.

The small tables were daintily covered with white cloths, red plates centred with white doilies, cupids and hearts surrounded by dainty cookies.

Serving the delectable little sandwiches and small cakes and cookies and various prettily arranged relish trays were: Mrs. Townsend, Mrs. Jenkinson, Mrs. Flunder and Mrs. Miller.

Presiding at the tea table the first hour were: Mrs. Sproule and Mrs. Dickens, and for the second hour: Mrs. Slack, school principal, and Mrs. Phillips, Grade 8 teacher.

In charge of the kitchen was Mrs. Grey, with Mrs. Keene, Mrs. Thompson, Mrs. Shultz, Mrs. Keeble assisting in the replenishing of trays and plates of cookies.

A vote of thanks was due Mrs. Grey and her committee for a splendid effort.

NOVEL CANDY TABLE

The candy table presented a novel picture with red and white window effect and red and white candy canes hung inside with a large sign and heart trimming.

Mrs. Burch was in charge of this busy booth, assisted by Mrs. Hagerman and two young ladies from Grade 8, Miss Wendy Burch and Miss Beatrice (Suzy) Haggerty.

The home baking table did a brisk business. As soon as the array of delectable and mouth-watering foods were placed on display, they quickly disappeared. There were tempting buns and bread, chocolate cakes with glowing red cherries and hearts, cup cakes, angel cakes, cherry tarts and jam tarts, gaily trimmed cookies and many other luscious looking items as well as pickles, jam and canned fruit, all attesting to the culinary skill of the ladies of the association.

In charge of this busy spot was Mrs. Bedford, assisted by Mrs. Oliver, Mrs. Lewis and Mrs. Riddell. This table, too, was decorated in the cupid and heart theme.

EUCHRE WINNERS

At the well attended euchre, held in the evening, the winners were as follows: Ladies, Mary Clapp, Mrs. Nevery; men's, Earl Keene, B. McKay. Lone hand, Ed. Carter. Ladies' booby prize, Miss Corneal; men's booby prize, H. Pound; door prize, Mrs. Reddick. The door prize was a lovely modern glass cannister set donated by T. Burch. The draw on the ham, donated by Mr. Jack Clark, was won by Miss Corneal.

Reporting for the afternoon was Mrs. Douglas Watson, Publications and Poster convener of the association. Reporting for the euchre was Mr. Douglas Watson.

White Cane Club Holds Social Evening

Members and escorts of the White Cane club recently held their monthly social evening at the YMCA.

The highlight of the evening was the presenting of a Kenwood blanket to Miss Rosabelle Munro, the home teacher of this district, who is leaving to be married on Saturday.

Mr. Ed. Brown entertained with a number of songs for this special occasion.

Miss Nonie McIsaac also sang and recited.

A new member, Mr. Ross Jackson, was given a welcome into the club.

Members and escorts joined in a sing-song with Mrs. Burgoyne at the piano.

Refreshments were served by the Kinettes and a congratulation cake was presented to Miss Munro, who cut it and thanked the members saying she hoped she would be able to visit the club in the future.

Out-of-town guests were, Mr. P. Timmons, Bob Paddon and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Boland.

South Hastings Skating Party Y.P. Holds

On Monday evening, Young People throughout South Hastings' district, gathered at the Stirling arena, for their annual skating party.

A gay two hours were spent in skating before going to St. Paul's United church hall.

At the hall, the Young People were welcomed by their president, Reta Christie, and the Rev. A. Packman. Roll call was taken revealing that around 300 were in attendance.

A lively sing-song followed and was led by Ralph Swan with Evelyn Emerson assisting at the piano.

St. Paul's Young People's Union served tasty refreshments to the hungry skaters and the skating party came to a close until next year.

Women's Activities

TABERNACLE W.M.S.

The February meeting of the Tabernacle United church W.M.S. met in the church parlors with 18 members and two visitors present, with Mrs. W. B. May, the president, presiding, and Mrs. G. F. Lent at the piano.

Mrs. May conducted the business meeting. Reports were given by the secretaries and treasurer; 25 calls were recorded. Mrs. Paul corresponding secretary, reported having received an answer to the invitation to College Hill Auxiliary for the May meeting to which both College Hill and Foxboro had been invited. Special speaker is to be Mrs. Weese.

The March meeting will be taken by Mrs. Woodward. This will be the last chapter of the study book "The Church in India."

The April meeting which is the "Easter Thank-offering" meeting will be a pot-luck luncheon. The special speaker will be Mrs. Pitman from Stirling.

Mrs. Fisher spoke on "Stewardship"; Mrs. T. Skeggs on "Temperance"; Mrs. Baird on "Literature," telling how she had received a letter from Mrs. Jones, thanking her for her good report on the number of books read by the members. An announcement was made of the Presbyterial to be held in Picton, on March 24, and The World Day of Prayer also, to be held in St. Andrew's church, February 25.

An offering was received to be used to cover mailing of bale for Korea.

The meeting was then turned over to Mrs. Archibald.

Mrs. McLennan led the worship service the theme being, "The Church Universal in India."

Mrs. Archibald reviewed the fifth chapter of the study book, "The Church in India." When the Rev. Mr. Masih of India, was here he said there were one million Christians in India of these 500,000 were Protestants. These were divided among different churches.

NATIONAL COUNCIL

These Protestant churches have a National Council which is formed by representatives from Punjab and the Malabar churches. There are 15 regional councils in India. They all have access to the National Council and must work through it. The government also works through this National Council. The south has been trying for a long time to have a United church and they are hoping to join with the north and are working towards that goal.

They all work together in leper settlements and T.B. sanatoriums. There is Christian co-operation in Bellore and the graduates are in great demand all over India. It does not matter what church they belong to. The medical colleges all work together.

A bale of used and new clothing was packed at the close of the meeting to be sent to Korea.

WINS YIELD CONTEST

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — William Bartja, Leamington, has won the annual provincial high-yield soybean contest with a variety of hawkeye, Middlesex county agricultural representative W. K. Riddle announced Wednesday. Mr. Bartja's soybeans yielded more than 56 bushels an acre. Lloyd Wilkinson of Leamington was second and Harry Clark of Blenheim came third.

'Child Problem' Talk Heard At PTA Assoc.

A splendid turnout of members was present at the February meeting of Holy Rosary Parent-Teacher Association held in the school under the chairmanship of president, James Colligan.

Rev. Sister M. Timothy opened the meeting with prayer and introduced the guest speaker, Dr. Edith Peterkin, noted child psychologist.

This interesting speaker gave an inspiring talk on 'child problems' and the difficulties often encountered between child and parents, and child and teachers and how to deal with them.

Dr. Peterkin received a hearty round of applause and was sincerely thanked on behalf of the association by Mrs. Jack Halloran.

The business meeting followed. The minutes were read by Mrs. Halloran and the correspondence by Mrs. Marie Bell. Mr. Leonard Farrell, treasurer, gave his report. The plaque for attendance was awarded to Rev. Sister M. Timothy's class.

REPORTS

Reports were made by Rev. Sister M. Evelyn regarding the library committee and by Rev. Sister M. Timothy on the membership drive.

Mrs. B. Burley, archdiocesan president, gave a brief talk on the past, present and future activities of Holy Rosary P.T.A., and expressed her delight at the progress already made during this first season of the unit.

The new business consisted of forming four new committees, each with chairman and two members.

Mr. Don Lee was elected chairman of sports, and Mrs. Herbert Brown was elected chairman of the program committee. Mrs. Ed. McGuigan will head a committee to fight salacious literature. A committee on "Health and Welfare" will be headed by Mrs. Rathwell and Mr. J. Colligan.

There was much discussion regarding obtaining a doctor and nurse for the school children and it is to be hoped this problem can be solved satisfactorily and with the help of the township.

The next meeting will take place on Tuesday, March 8, with the entertainment being handled by the school children under the direction of the teachers.

It was moved by Rev. Sister M. Timothy and seconded by Mrs. Bell that all future meetings be scheduled for the second Tuesday of each month

Rev. Sister M. Evelyn closed the meeting.

C.W.L. Sponsors Charming Valentine Tea, Baking Sale

A charming Valentine tea and sale of home-baking was held Wednesday afternoon in St. Joseph's school hall sponsored by the C.W.L. of that parish.

The hall was adorned with red and white streamers and cupid and heart cut-outs, some outlined in lacey paper edgings which added to the general attractiveness.

Mrs. P. F. Halloran presided at the door. Mrs. H. Carr-Braint, president of St. Joseph's C.W.L., greeted the guests.

The tea room was convened by Mrs. A. J. Gibbons, Mrs. P. Mercier and Mrs. J. E. Poirier.

DAINTY TEA TABLE

The tea table, daintily appointed with a white linen cloth, was centred with an outstanding arrangement of spring flowers, including tulips, daffodils, snapdragons, fern and downy pussy willows. Flanking this were tri-branched silver candelabra with tall red and white candles set in dainty lacey collars, gleaming silver tea services added a pleasing effect.

Each quartet table with its dainty teacloth was centred by a lovely plate of dainty sandwiches separated from the tiny cakes by a lacey doily, accented by a little red cupid, with Valentine serviettes adding their appropriate touch of color.

Those presiding at the silver services were, Mrs. R. Kennedy, Mrs. T. Buckley, Mrs. G. Williams, Mrs. E. MacDonald, Mrs. E. Labelle and Mrs. C. Craig.

Servers and replenishers were, Mrs. R. Johnson Mrs. H. O'Neill, Mrs. B. Lynch, Mrs. T. Black, Mrs. H. Emerson, Mrs. O. Dufour, Mrs. F. Maud, Mrs. C. Murphy, and Mrs. G. Whalen.

Mrs. J. N. Anton was tea room hostess.

The flower centrepiece was won by Mrs. R. Lynch.

Mrs. J. A. Kitchen presided at a raffle on a beautiful handmade satin cushion. This was won by Mrs. L. Bone.

The home-bake booth was convened by Mrs. J. M. Lawn, assisted by Mrs. J. Thorne, Mrs. B. Park, Mrs. J. D. Panting and Mrs. R. Lynch.

APPETIZING PIES

There was an array of most appetizing pies, lemon cup cakes, iced cup cakes, delicious layer cakes decorated in Valentine colors, angel cakes, date loaves, home-made rolls, assorted cookies, macaroons and meringues, and numerous other goodies.

A raffle of a delightfully decorated Valentine cake held at the home-bake booth was won by Miss Donoghue.

A charmingly arranged tea and sale giving much credit to the conveners and all those who donated and assisted in any way in making this event such a success.

Avondale N.A. Holds Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of Avondale Neighbors' Aid was held at the home of Mrs. E. Bush, Thursday afternoon with an attendance of 28 and one visitor. Mrs. Bird, vice-president opened the meeting

The devotional was conducted by Mrs. G. May. Scripture was read by Mrs. Maurice Smith. Reading was given by Mrs. May on "Valentine".

Business was discussed.

The next meeting will be held at Mrs. M. Smith's home.

An invitation was accepted to join Centenary W.A. in the World Day of Prayer on February 25, at Centenary church.

An auction sale was carried on with auctioneers, Mrs. E. Windover and Mrs. A. Daniels.

Mrs. A. Daniels thanked the hostess and the lunch committee for hospitality and the refreshments served.

MONKEYS DIE IN FIRE

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Four trained monkeys and a chimpanzee valued at $4,000 altogether died Wednesday in a blazing barn. They were owned by Roy Cooper, 31, who travels with carnivals during the summer. The monkeys were trained to drive small racing cars.

Keen-Age Club Hears Talk On C.A.S.

The February meeting of the Keen-Age Club of Tabernacle United church, was held in the church parlors with Mrs. R. Redner, the president, presiding. Mrs. E. Stansfield read the minutes of the last meeting.

Mrs. G. May introduced the speaker, Mr. Kerr, superintendent of the Children's Aid Society, in Belleville, who gave an interesting talk in regard to the functioning of the Children's Aid Society.

Mr. Kerr was thanked by the president.

There was also a short business meeting.

A motion was passed that $400 allocation be rendered the church for 1955.

An invitation was extended by Mrs. Rowley to have the March meeting at the manse which was accepted.

At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served by the social conveners.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

THREE TIPS ABOUT FEBRUARY

1. The February birthstone is the Amethyst.

2. The February flower is the violet.

3. The February pronunciation . . . have a care, please . . . is Feb-ru-ary.

Look at this word carefully. Pronounce each letter . . . don't omit that first r. Incorrect is that careless, so-often-heard "Feb-oo-ary." Correct! Feb-ru-ary.

DON'T SAY "DON'T YOU REMEMBER ME?"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My sister always makes such a point of saying "We have met before—don't you remember me?" or something like this, to a boy or girl (particularly to a boy) who is being introduced to her and whom she has casually met before. Mother and I tell her this is unnecessary, sounds "sour," and probably embarrasses the person who probably has forgotten the meeting. But she disagrees with us, insists that "naturally" the person would want to be told about the former meeting. She reads your column, and Mother and I would like to have you print your point of view about her "We've-met-before" line. — X.

I completely agree with you and your mother. This idea of recalling a previous meeting is, in most cases, quite pointless. If the person asked to recall the former meeting obviously doesn't recall it, he or she will be embarrassed, or at least confused, by being put in this awkward position of not having the grace to remember the name or the meeting or the occasion of the meeting. The socially-smart thing to do is to accept the introduction with a pleasant "How do you do" (adding the name if you wish), make no mention of the previous meeting . . . and start again on the of manner that this time the meetmanner that this time the meeting will be really remembered.

FORMAL NAME IN RETURN ADDRESS ON ENVELOPE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We've had quite a discussion about how one should write one's name in the return address on an envelope. That is, whether or not the title should be written before one's name: for example, Joan Smith or Miss Joan Smith; Mary Brown Jones or Mrs. John Jones? — Emilie H.

Since the name written in the return address on an envelope is for information and identification (not a signature), the formal name with title should be used. Miss Joan Smith. Mrs. John Jones.

BEST MAN AND USHERS NOT IN LINE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it true, as my fiance and I have been told by several friends, that his best man and ushers do not stand in the receiving-line at our wedding reception?—Ellen H.

Yes, this is true . . . the best man and ushers do not stand in the receiving-line. The best man stands nearby so that he can be signalled to by the groom if there are any errands or other duties he wishes done. And the ushers are in the position of co-hosts, seeing that the guests find convenient places in the line, helping older or infirm guests in the line waiting to be received, and in general seeing that "all is well" with all the guests.

ADDRESSING A CATHOLIC PRIEST

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

If you are a Protestant, should you address a Catholic priest as "Father Kenna," as a Catholic does? — T.M.

Yes.

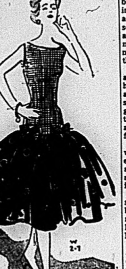
DOUBLE-RING CEREMONY

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Ken and I are to have a double-ring ceremony. who buys his ring? And who carries his ring to the altar? — Marie

Ken buys your wedding ring, of course . . . and you buy his. The best man carries the ring your groom is to give you . . . and usually the maid of honor carries the ring you are to give to your groom (Occasionally the best man carries both rings.)

Fashionable Silhouette



By VERA WINSTON

The long torso line has a firm grip on resort and play clothes as well as on the more formal aspects of fashion. The current line is very evident in this dress of checked gingham and solid color cotton which features a bodice very much in the mode, too, inasmuch as it has a boat neck and is sleeveless. Seams shape the mid-section making it softly snug above the flouncey skirt which has a built-in petticoat. Circles of the checked gingham are appliqued all over the skirt in print fashion.

Beauty

TEN-MINUTE FACIALS

Women in their forties who have been tearing around like crazy, doing this and that, with time nipping at their heels, may be suddenly beset with the fear that their faces are wearing out just a little bit. Too much activity, not enough rest, no periods of relaxation and there they are!

Let them be cheerful. We live in an age of cosmetic magic. If you have experienced these reflections, are too rushed for rejuvenating sessions at the beauty salon, you can give yourself refreshing treatments that will put your mind at rest and your complexion in beauty form.

Wash your face with soap and warm water, rinse with tepid water, then with cold, dry gently. Have at hand a thick square of gauze and an astringent or skin tonic that is ice cold.

Pour some of the liquid into a saucer, dip in the gauze, slap it briskly over your back. Necks never get the attention they should have and, when neglected, can look older than anything.

Keep working upward, slapping along the jaw line, over the cheeks and forehead. Always use an upward movement to tone tissues and stimulate circulation.

Pat the flesh dry with your finger tips. Get out your favorite massage cream. Use it as you have used the liquid tonic, starting along the line of the collarbones. Do up and down strokes on the neck. Clasp your hands at the nape line, turn your head from side to side with plenty of muscle pull.

Spread the cream over your cheeks and forehead. Do little circles in front of the ears. Apply cream around your eyes, starting at the inner corner of the upper lids. Then use your fingers like little hammers. Your skin will be glowing.

Remove the cream with tissues. Powder will go on neatly and smoothly when the flesh is slightly moist after the treatment.

Congregational Meeting

ALLIANCE TABERNACLE

The annual congretional meeting of the Christian and Missionary Alliance Tabernacle was held on Tuesday evening in the church auditorium with approximately 70 members and adherents present.

The pastor, the Rev. Eric Strain, presided and brought to his people a timely message on, "The Power of Faith," based on 1 John 5:4, "For whatsoever is born of God overcometh the world! and this is the victory that overcometh the world, even our faith."

"Faith is the foot of the soul; so it comes to Christ; the arm of the soul, so it embraces Christ; the eye of the soul, so it looks upon Christ; the mouth of the soul, so it feeds on Christ, and the lips of the soul, so it kisses Christ".

FAITH'S ATTRIBUTES

Mr. Strain dealt with his message under the preciousness of faith; the progressiveness of faith; and the triumph of faith. Faith is precious because of its infinite possibilities; because of its justifying power: "Therefore being justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ, (Romans 5:1); we live by faith, "The just shall live by faith," (Romans 1:17); we stand by faith, (Romans 11:20), and we walk by faith, (2 Cor. 5:7).

"Faith is progressive: it grows through the use of God's word. The great men of the world have been men of faith: Noah, Abel, Joseph, Isaac, David, Jacob, Samson; Gideon, Samuel, by faith did exploits, subdued kingdoms; wrought righteousness; stopped the mouths of lions; quenched the violence of fire; escaped the edge of the sword; out of weakness were made strong; waxed valiant in right; turned to flight the enemies of the aliens. They were stoned, sawn asunder, tempted, slain with the sword; wandered about in sheep skins and goat skins, being destitute; afflicted and tormented."

TO REGAIN THE VISION

"We Christians of today," stated Mr. Strain, "Need to regain the vision, passion and spirit of the early leaders, Luther, Wesley, Knox and Whitefield. Let us do as John Knox who cried: 'Put on your helmets'; hear the great Cromwell say, "In the name of God go, GO!' but not into oblivion; go into all the world with a great spiritual crusade. The world is dying; souls are dying by the millions; 180,000,000 in Africa; 350,000,000 in India; 750,000 villages without the Gospel; 500,000,000 in China without hope; and 160,000,000 in Russia; 10,000,000 living in houseboats in the Orient—all without Christ."

DEPARTMENTAL REPORTS

Following the message, the reports from the various departments of the church were heard, each showing that the past year had been a fruitful one. The current fund and the building fund were read by Mr. Harold Vanderwater, church treasurer; the missionary pledge by Mrs. Fred Fraser, who stated that $4,739.45 had been received for missions; Choir report, by Mr. Ken Dixon; daily vacation Bible school by the pastor; Sunday School by Mrs. M. Baragar; Christian Service Brigade by Mr. R. Brown; Alliance Youth Fellowship by Miss Barbara Wickett; Married Couples Fellowship by Mr. W. Wright; the Benevolent Fund by Mr. Robert Brown; the Pioneer Girls, by Miss Dorothea Atyeo, and Mrs. Kenneth Dixon; and the Women's Prayer Band, by Mrs. Roy Atyeo, on behalf of the treasurer, Mrs. E. Pickard.

The total amount of receipts for the year from all departments was $16,901.86.

OFFICERS APPOINTED

After the singing of "Onward Christian Soldiers," the election of the officers for 1955 took place, with the following results: treasurer, Mr. Harold Vanderwater; secretary, Miss Eleanor Baragar; financial secretary, Mr. Daniel Benn; Sunday School superintendent, Mrs. Fred Fraser; assistant S. S. superintendent, Mr. Wilbur Wright; missionary treasurer, Mrs. Fred Fraser; head usher, Mr. Daniel Benn; music committee: Mrs. Robert Brown, Mrs. W. Sills, Mrs. D. Vanderwater, Mrs. K. Dixon, and Mrs. R. Atyeo.

Elders: W. Wright; R. Brown; W. Sills, and C. Colley. Deacons: K. Dixon; R. Rollins; R. Anderson and D. Vanderwater. Auditors: K. Dixon and Mrs. M. Baragar.

By-laws from the Alliance Constitution were read, and new business relative to the proposed new church discussed.

The singing of "Blest Be the Tie That Binds", concluded the meeting.

Readers' Friday Column

By Mary Moore

LETTER:

. . . some time ago I asked you for a perfect meringue . . .at last I am thanking you for your help. . . I can now look a lemon pie right in the eye, before I got your letter I had given them up as a bad job. . . there seems to be many more who cannot know how to make a nice meringue, but now I welcome the excuse to make one . . .it seems I was doing things all wrong. . .I have not tried the meringue shells yet, I have a family of large eaters and they look as if they would disappear quickly . . .I'll try them shortly. . .I think your column is what makes the paper just a bit better than the usual paper and like lots of people I know I never miss reading it.—Mabelle M.

ANSWER:

Thanks Mabelle—I hope my future behavior keeps my reputation intact with you. Let me know when I can help again. Did you see the meringue shells recipe in last night's column?

QUESTION:

About three weeks before Christmas I made your very rich white fruit cake, stored it as you advised in brown paper liners, then wrapped in wax paper, then towels. One week before Christmas I looked at it and a mold was starting to form on the outsides. I cut off the outer edges of the cake, rewrapped it and put it in the frig. It was very good, but exceptionally moist. By the week after Christmas it was tasting stale and starting to mold again, so I had to throw the balance (very little) away. I made this cake for the first time last year, my first attempt at fruit cake and it was delicious though quite moist. Could you tell me from my description what I omitted to do or what I did that was wrong? I made your dark fruit cake and it is still around and very good indeed.—D. M. W.

ANSWER:

The postmark on your letter is Jan. 11. Since that time I have pieces of the same cake stored in various places in my house to see if they would mold. One was in the refrigerator, another in my fruit cellar which is quite cool, another was in the regular part of our basement in a cupboard in a tin box. None has molded and they are now nearly three months old. The explanation may be that because I make cakes in such large quantities and buy supplies from a very good store which specializes in fancy fruits and nuts and coffee and tea the fruits and nuts may be extra fresh. I have had this report from other readers. I used to think light fruit cakes that contained milk were apt to mold more readily than those without so have avoided using milk in any of my recipes recently. Next year could you make sure of your supply of fruits and nuts being fresh, and all other ingredients too, which includes eggs and butter. If readers write to me after seeing your letter and suggest anything helpful I will reprint it here.

QUESTION:

This year we bought a fruit cake which is so crumbly we cannot cut it. It seems to have too much fruit in it for the batter. Would you mix it with a white cake mix and re-bake it? How high would you have the oven and how long would you bake it? . . .I have a heavy crockery pot for cooking baked beans. Could you give me a recipe that is not too sweet and has no molasses in.—Mrs. V. P.

ANSWER:

No do not mix the crumbled fruit cake with white cake mix. I would suggest that you buy a 28-oz. tin of mincemeat and mix 1 cup each crumbled fruit cake and chopped apples with it and make two 8-inch mincemeat pies; and, use another 1 cup of the crumbled cake crumbs instead of raisins in a recipe for bran muffins. I have mailed you a recipe for baked beans.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

WATCH OUT FOR THOSE LONG-DRAWN-OUT PHONE CALLS!

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Since I am a senior in high school, and very active in everything that goes on there, it is only natural that I should get many telephone calls at home in the evenings. However, it makes my father very angry when I talk for more than about two minutes on the phone, and it has got so that it seems we are always quarrelling over this.

Have you any advice? — B.S.

Dear B.S.:

Naturally, I have no way of knowing how many phone calls you make or receive in an evening, nor how long you actually talk in each instance. I suggest that you check up on yourself about this and see if, actually, you don't put in more time on the phone than ou realize or than is really necessary. It's awfully easy to get into the habit of visiting over the phone, and for a tired business man, which your father probably is, to have to listen to a lot of trivial chatter and giggling, is annoying.

Since you undoubtedly see in school every day the boys and girls who call you at night, I should think that, in most cases, they might save whatever they have to say until the next day. If it is something that demands immediate attention, however, then don't drag out your conversation, but be as brief about is as possible. If your father sees that you are trying to be reasonable about the whole business he will probably be more patient.

BE SMART. AND DON'T TAKE BOY FRIENDS TOO SERIOUSLY YET

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 14 years old, and my girl friend is 12. As we are best friends, we try to help each other whenever possible.

There is a certain boy in our neighborhood who thinks a lot of both of us. The problem is that my girl friend likes him very much, and gets mad when he talks to me. I think this boy is very nice, but I do not want him as a boy friend, because I do not want to lose the friendship of my girl friend. So please tell me what I can do to let this boy know I do not specially care for him, as I think he feels that I do. — Jane

Dear Jane:

Don't you think you and your girl friend are pretty young to be taking boy griends so seriously?

I suggest that you tell your girl friend you think it's silly for the two of you to have words about this boy; that all girls and boys of your age should be friends and have fun together without "rushing the season," so to speak, on romance. Then set the example by being friendly and natural with all the boys, not putting all your attention, or even most of it, on any one of them. If the question of boy friends comes up, just laugh it off and say something like: "It will be a long time before I'm ready to pick a boy friend."

Try this and see how it works out, then let me know.

Policyholder Wm. T. Hamilton discusses Highlights of the 65th Annual Report with The Excelsior Life's President Major-General A. Bruce Matthews

☆ Mr. Hamilton has been a policyholder since 1935 and now owns seven Excelsior Life Policies.

Mr. Hamilton: "Did The Excelsior Life have a good year?"

President Matthews: "Yes, indeed! Our new insurance totalled $53,266,717, which was $4,749,258 more than in the previous year . . . And our Insurance in Force has grown to $375,102,284 — which is an increase of $29,816,314 during 1954 . . ."

Mr. Hamilton: "What is the Company's financial position?"

President Matthews: "Stronger than ever! At the end of the year our assets had reached $73,827,115; our liabilities for policy reserves, etc., were $64,440,980, and our unallotted surplus and contingency reserve had increased to $3,066,031.42 . . ."

Mr. Hamilton: "How about the 1954 income?"

President Matthews: "Our premiums received were $9,811,576, while our income from investments, etc., was up to $3,331,582 — making an income total of $13,143,518 . . ."

Mr. Hamilton: 'And what was done for your policyholders?"

President Matthews: "In direct payments we paid out over $3,889,808; $1,335,251 in death claims, plus $2,554,557 to living policyholders like yourself in maturities, dividends, annuity income, surrenders and similar benefits — as well as adding $4,853,507 to our policy reserves to provide increased protection for the larger volume of insurance in force."

Mr. Hamilton: "Mr. President, you have every reason to be proud of the 1954 progress of our good Company!"

Sunday School Lesson:

As Simple As That

By ROY L. SMITH

Perhaps the preachers are to blame. Maybe it's the theologians. It may even be the plain man on the street. But it is an unfortunate fact that the whole question of religion has become terribly confused for plain people when, as a matter of fact, it is really very simple.

BELIEVING IS TRUSTING

There have been those who have insisted that, in order to be religious, one had to believe something about Jesus Christ, rather than believing in Him.

If we believe in a physician, it is not because we have investigated his professional training, theories, and techniques. About these the plain layman is poorly prepared to pass a judgment. If we believe in a political party, we are ready to vote for its candidates, as we are ready to take the doctor's medicine. If we believe in a bank we deposit our money with its officers.

If we believe in Jesus Christ, we commit our lives to Him, we trust to His judgment concerning the laws and principles of life, we accept His interpretations of life, ourselves, and God.

TRUSTING PRODUCES A SPIRIT

When we trust the physician a spirit of calm and confidence enters into our spirit which produces a state of relaxation. This, in turn, makes it possible for the physician to render us his greatest service.

When we trust Jesus Christ, a spirit of calm and confidence takes possession of us which enables the Spirit of Jesus Christ to restore our own soul.

> The Uniform Sunday school lesson for February 13: "New Life in Christ," John 3: 1:21; 10:7-16; Acts 16:19-34; 2 Corinthians 5:17.

Faith (which is another name for trust) is that attitude of mind and heart which creates the conditions that permit an inflow of divine power on the life of the believer. There need be no mystery about it. We are surrounded by ether waves. Faith is the process of tuning the soul so that the reception is improved.

MORE THAN INTELLECT

A very great many people have missed the vast benefits of good religion because they have assumed that they were to be achieved as one became intellectually convinced.

Endless arguments concerning the nature and person of Jesus have resulted in much confusion. That which we had hoped might bring us out into the light has led us deeper into the fog. The peace of mind we have sought has eluded us, for the simple reason that we have not taken those personal and spiritual attitudes which make it possible for the Spirit of God to restore peace.

Good religion cannot afford to violate good reason logic, and valid evidence. Neither can it hope to succeed unless the searcher takes the receptive and trustful attitude.

I BELIEVE

Ther is a vast amount of practical atheism in the world in which people who say they believe in God live as though there were no God. To "believe" in God means that we stake our life, and all the issues of our life, on the proposition that such a God as Jesus described is actually in charge of our affairs. It is much more than an intellectual opinion concerning God and Jesus. It is a fixed attitude of trust and confidence which leads to a mood of serenity and peace.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

K A GUY!

When blonde-haired Arnie Dugan steps on the ice tonight against the Peterborough Petes, the modest leftwinger won't be in exactly strange company. Arnie probably will experience a few nostalgic twinges when he sees the familiar Peterborough uniform for it was in the Liftlock City that the versatile star learned a lot about sport.

ARNIE DUGAN

Arnie is not given to making speeches. Sometimes he borders on shyness and his remark to this department the other night regarding the Memos: "We'll have to pull up our socks," is the equivalent of a ten-thousand word political speech as far as Arnie goes.

He's a likeable cuss, this 27-year-old bundle of sports versatility. He is equally at home with a boxing glove, as with a hockey shillalagh, lacrosse stick or baseball bat.

As a matter of fact should a donnybrook start at the Dugan family home when Dad and brother Jack are around it should be quite a show for Jackie was a good boxer, winning the Canadian middleweight title and fighting professionally for a couple of years Dad can still toss a mean left hook and so can Arnie. And dad, like Arnie, was an outstanding senior baseball player who helped bring diamond glory to the Petes teams of not too many years ago.

Arnie's first glimpse of the world was the Detroit skyline, for he was born in the Tecumseh section of Windsor, Ontario, living there until he was four, when the family took up residence in Peterborough.

He exchanged his diapers for a pair of hockey trunks, baseball pants and lacrosse shorts. He played in minor leagues in these sports, coming up through junior ranks to senior status. He is a good outfielder and hitter, but of late his summer activities have been centred on lacrosse. He led the Petes' senior OLA scorers five years ago and still is quite a boy with a gutted stick.

Two years ago Arnie went to the Pacific coast where he was named coach of the Nanaimo Native Sons senior lacrosse club, a team which bowed to the Victoria Shamrocks for the western title last year. Arnie has been invited to coach the Native Sons this year and is "thinking seriously" of it. If he does he will likely take two or three eastern lacrossers with him.

However, he says: "I'm not too fussy about this coaching job and would rather confine my activities to playing." But in all probability, spring will see Arnie back in the familiar spot.

He played as a replacement for the Shamrocks against his old buddies, the Petes, last season, when the Petes won the Mann Cup for the third time, and turned up as one of western stars. He is a tricky, rugged player with a fine shiping eye.

He is a junior team-mate of "Red" Sullivan, now with the Chicago Black Hawks. He played senior hockey with Jake Wade for the Petes until three years ago when the boys decided faraway pastures looked greener and joined the Brantford Redmen senior "A" club. Leaving the Redmen he went west to play lacrosse and intermediate hockey, coming to Belleville this season, where he again joined forces with "buddy Jake."

Arnie was a trifle slow in getting his hockey legs but he soon rounded into form and right now is playing the best hockey of his Belleville career. He has a record of nine goals and 18 assists and packs one of the hardest shots on the club. Mrs. Dugan is the former Adele Gardner, of Peterborough. The Dugans have three children, two girls and a future lacrosse and hockey star.

TES TONIGHT

Tonight the Peterborough Petes, their playoff hopes aglimmering, will be the guests of the Memos. It makes no difference to the pesky cusses from the Kawarthas who wins the group gonfalon, but you can bet your income tax rebate they're going to make the going as tough as possible for the clubs trying to grab the title. They do not intend, by any stretch of the imagination to be a stepping stone to championships for any of the pack, and if it is humanly possible for them to knock off the Memos tonight, they will do just that.

By the same token, the Memos who have dropped their last three starts, realize the Brockville danger to their fourth-spot position and will be out with blood in their eyes to grab an all-important victory. So all-in-all, all factors taken into consideration, tonight's tilt should be one of those rollicking Petes-Memos battles that thus far have never lacked for action and thrills.

The teams to this point have a fifty-fifty record in games played, each winning a pair and two other games ending in ties. The last time the Petes were here the battle ended in an overtime nine-all scuffle. The Memos and Petes finish their scheduled games with each other in Peterborough next Monday night.

UTSTANDING OFFICIALS

There are rumblings and mumblings in the respective camps of the Police and Firemen hockey entourages as the boys in blue undergo heavy training for their annual Shrine Club ice battle scheduled for Memorial Arena on March 1st. Shrine president Jack Bush announced today that Pete Conacher and Dit Clapper, two well-known names of the National Hockey League will be on hand in a refereeing capacity. Both teams, Dame Rumor has it, have several gimmicks up their sleeves in their quest for victory and don't be surprised to see unusual happenings on the eve of March 1. The tickets are only a quarter, so buy one whether you can attend or otherwise.

Score Two on Rookie Goalie With First Pair of Shots; Ezinicki Returning to Blues

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

In four minutes and 52 seconds, Boston Bruins had only two shots on Hank Bassen. They scored on both.

Such was the predicament of Chicago Black Hawks' rookie goaltender in the National Hockey League Thursday night. The Bruins scored on their first two shots of the game and went on to defeat the Hawks 4-2 before 7,219 Beantown fans.

Bassen, playing his ninth game since replacing substitute netminder Ray Frederick, didn't have a thing to do in the first four minutes except to clean the ice in front of his cage. But when the fourth-place Bruins broke through, he couldn't handle them.

It started at 4:10 when Don McKenney, prize Boston rookie, fired one into the nets on a play with Real Chevrefils and Bill Quackenbush. Forty-two seconds later, Fleming Mackell made it 2-0.

TRAILED THEREAFTER

The Hawks were never in the game after that. They trailed 4-1 at the end of the second period and scored the only goal of the third.

Other Boston marksmen were defenceman Fern Flaman and Lorne Ferguson. Eddie Litzenberger and Harry Watson scored for the last-place Hawks.

It was the only game of the night and Bruins gave indications that they are getting stronger as the 1954-55 campaign continues. They now have 54 points, six behind the third-place Toronto Maple Leafs.

The engagement marked the return of Boston netminder Sugar Jim Henry, out for several weeks for a rest. Henry stopped 21 shots, Bassen 22.

EZINICKI'S RETURN

Meanwhile, New York Rangers expect to get plenty of bounce at Boston Saturday with the return of Wild Bill Ezinicki to NHL ranks. They will bring up the 30-year-old rightwinger from Vancouver Canucks in their encounter with Bruins at Boston.

Wild Bill, one of the big gate attractions in the league with Leafs and Bruins, works on the theory of flattening the "other guys before they flatten me." Says Ranger coach Muzz Patrick:

"He's plenty tough and roams around the ice all night looking for someone to hit—that is, with his body. He can score goals as well as fight."

DARK IS FAVORED

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Alvin Dark, ball player by trade and a good amateur golfer, is one of the favorites in the national baseball players golf tournament which opens today. Dark is the shortstop of the world's champion New York Giants.

Twenty-three diamond stars, including Brooklyn pitcher Don Newcombe, are entered in the active major league division of the tournament.

Royals, Braves Quebec Winners

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Jack Gelineau, onetime National Hockey League star goalie, ran into a snag on his comeback trail Thursday at Quebec.

Gelineau, called out of retirement recently when regular Quebec goalie Dave Gatherum was injured, was riddled for five goals in two periods by the Montreal Royals before being yanked in favor of Claude Evans. Montreal wen on to win the game 8-5.

At Valleyfield, the Braves kept their playoff hopes alive by dumping the Shawinigan Falls Cataracts 3-1. The win moved the Braves to within four points of fourth-place Chicoutimi.

ROSBURG LEADS

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) —Bob Rosburg of San Francisco left a sick bed Thursday to shoot his best golf of the year and share the lead at the end of the first round of the $10,000 Tucson open golf tournament. He came in with a 65 to tie Tony Holguin of Midlothian, Ill. Both were five under par.

TO SKIP HANDICAP

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP)—The King Ranch's top stakes horse at Santa Anita, Rejected, will skip the $50,000-added San Antonio Handicap, trainer Buddy Hirsch disclosed Thursday. And Llangollen Farm's threat, Porterhouse, also is a question mark for the Saturday feature, a tuneup for the $100,000-added Santa Anita Handicap Feb. 26.

Hamilton Cubs Clinch Berth; Whip Flyers

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton Cubs clinched a berth in the Ontario Hockey Association junior "A" playoffs Thursday night by defeating seventh-place Barrie Flyers 5-3 before a crowd of 1,673.

Brian Kilrea with two, Bill Binnie, Gary Sharpe and Jerry Sullivan with singles scored for Cubs. Arnold Smith, Doug Vaughan and Bob Barlow were the Barrie marksmen.

Flyers were coached by Donny Poliziani, a Hamilton boy who played with Barrie until he broke his wrist, as regular coach Hap Emms kept his promise, "never to coach in Hamilton again."

Emms made the statement after the Flyers' last visit to Hamilton when he was ordered from the Barrie bench by officials who said Emms called them "homers."

The ejection was part of the "usual raw deal you get in Hamilton," Emms said then.

Coach Poliziani, a 20-year-old forward, took Tom Green from the Barrie nets in a last-minute gamble for a sixth forward but the strategy backfired as Kilrea fired the puck into the empty net.

Barrie outshot Hamilton 35-25.

ANDREWS FAVORITE

NEW YORK (AP) — Paul Andrews, who lost to Harold Johnson at Chicago last St. Patrick's Day, is an 8-to-5 favorite to reverse the score tonight when the two high-ranking light-heavyweight contenders meet again at Madison Square Garden.

The 10-round match will be carried on network radio and television (NBC) starting at 10 p.m. EST.

Since they met almost a year ago Andrews has been on the upgrade while Johnson has slipped since he was knocked out by Archie Moore in a title fight.

Kitchener Granites, Toronto Royals Favored for Single-Rinks Curl Title

GALT (CP)—Only six rinks remain in the running for the 18th annual Ontario single-rink curling championships today. Two foursomes were knocked out Thursday as the round-robin play went to the sixth round.

A champion, who will represent Ontario at the Dominion competition in Regina in March, will be declared today.

Leading the Ontario championships, being held at the Galt Curling Club, are Kitchener Granites and Toronto Royal Canadians, each with four victories and one defeat. Guelph and Peterborough follow with three wins and two losses each.

Hamilton Thistles and Thornbury have won two and lost three and Ottawa and Chatham, the two eliminated rinks, have won only one of their five games.

The strongest comeback Thursday was made by Guelph, skipped by Allan Jones. At the bottom of the standings Wednesday after losing its first two starts, the Guelph successive victories to climb into third place.

Jones led his group to an 11-6 victory over Gordon Gilbert of Chatham in the third round, took Ross Tarlton of Hamilton 10-9 in the fourth, and capped off the day with a 10-6 victory over Jack Mitchell of Thornbury.

Carl Asmussen's Kitchener rink, which finished the first day with two victories and no losses, dropped its first game Thursday but came back with two wins to retain a share of the lead. Asmussen was defeated 11-6 by Andy Grant's Toronto rink in the morning.

Later, however, he came back with a 10-9 decision over the Ottawa rink, skipped by Lt.-Col. Bill Timmerman, and a 13-3 win over Chatham.

Grant's Royal Canadians made a clean sweep of the day's games. After taking Kitchener in the morning, the Toronto rink defeated Thornbury 12-11, after an extra end, and Ottawa 10-6.

Burritt Harrison's Peterborough group took two of its three games, nudging Ottawa 10-9 and shellacking Chatham 13-5 and then losing 11-6 to Hamilton.

It was Hamilton's first victory of the day after suffering two set backs, the one to Guelph and another, a 10-8 decision, to Thornbury.

Ross Tarlton's Hamiltonians played under a severe handicap from the third round after lead Ernie Lock was forced to withdraw after suffering a shoulder injury. Tarlton had to play 2½ games with three men. Second player Gord Wilson played four stones in Lock's place. Lock's injury was described as torn shoulder ligaments. He sustained the injury during a bonspiel at Sarnia earlier this season.

Each rink has two games today. If there is a tie for first place after the morning and afternoon draws, a playoff will be held tonight.

Thinks Penticton Better as a Club Than Picked Canadian All-Star Team

PENTICTON. B.C. (CP) — The Cinderella story of the Penticton Vs began a little more than three years ago. The beginnings were humble.

Vs made their debut with a makeshift team in October, 1951—and finished last in the Okanagan Senior Hockey League.

There was little to indicate that next season they would reach the finals for the Allan Cup, that in 1954 they would climax a come-back-studded playoff trail by winning the cup or that this spring they would be chosen to represent Canada in the World Hockey Championships in Germany Feb. 25-March 6.

Vs, named for victory, valiant and vidette varieties of peaches grown in the Okanagan valley, did all these things.

Team officials estimate this year's squad is 30 per cent stronger than last season's Allan Cup-winning club.

Three new faces are in the lineup. Most notable is defenceman Hal Tarala, who came to the Vs from the professional Western Hockey League.

Other newcomers are Mike Shabaga, who played with Trail Smoke Eaters of the Western International amateur loop last season, and Kassian from Saskatoon Quakers of the WHL.

Noted for their roughhouse style of play, Vs are capable of adapting themselves to any type of hockey.

Playing-coach Grant Warwick, Jim Fairburn, Jack McIntyre and Dick Warwick are all small men who thrive on wide-open hockey.

Jack Macdonald, Ernie Rucks, Bill Warwick, Don Berry and Doug Kilburn are tireless skaters.

Goalkeeper Ivan McLelland is one of the steadiest in amateur ranks. He gets ample protection from defenceman George McAvoy, team captain, Kevin Conway, Dino Mascotto and Tarala.

Some observers rate the Vs a far better club than Toronto East York who lost the championship last year to the Russians.

Grant Warwick says:

"We have a good team and the hockey fans who want this championship so bad can be assured we'll give them our best hockey."

Doug Grimston of New Westminster, B.C., former president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, is more enthusiastic.

Commenting on a proposal to strengthen Vs with players from other leagues across Canada, Grimston said:

"Individually you may find a better player than some on the Vs, but collectively they are the fightingest team in hockey today and can do a better job of representing this country than any all-star team."

Lions May Get Rod Pantages

VANCOUVER (CP) — Rod Pantages, fullback with the Grey Cup champion Edmonton Eskimos, is available to British Columbia Lions of the Western Interprovincial Football Union, Lions manager Phil Webb said Thursday night.

Webb said Eskimos have placed Pantages, a native of Vancouver, on the open market and we might get together and talk about it."

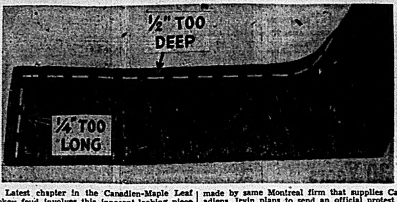
Pantages, four seasons with Eskimos, last year said he was unhappy with the club and saw little action.

No Opponent For Moore

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP)—President Tony Petronella of the National Boxing Association says the NBA is willing to overlook its "defend your title or step down" rule in the case of light-heavyweight champion Archie Moore—for the present.

Petronella said Thursday night that the NBA feels that there is no logical contender ready to meet Moore.

EXHIBIT "A" IN DETECTIVE DICK'S" CASE AGAINST LUMLEY



Latest chapter in the Canadien-Maple Leaf hockey feud involves this innocent-looking piece of hickory. "Detective" Dick Irvin, Montreal's coach, discovered that the goalstick used by Toronto netminder Harry Lumley is one-quarter of an inch too long and one-half-inch too deep. Although the Leafs protested that the sticks are made by same Montreal firm that supplies Canadiens, Irvin plans to send an official protest to NHL president Clarence Campbell. Irvin claims Lumley has been using out-size sticks all season and should be disqualified from his top spot in the race for the Vezina trophy. (Central Press Canadian).

Olympic Skating Trials Set For Saskatoon

SASKATOON (CP) — Seventeen competitors, the cream of Canada's skating crop, are converging on Saskatoon for the Olympic trials Saturday and Sunday. The three top performers will be Canada's color-bearers in the 1956 Olympic Games in Italy.

The four men who represented Canada in the 1952 Olympics—Gordon Audley and Frank Stack of Winnipeg, Ralph Olin of Calgary and Craig MacKay of Saskatoon—have filed entries for the meet.

There has been a suggestion that Stack may accompany the Winnipeg team in a coaching capacity only, but when the trials begin the 50-year-old speedskater is expected to don his blades.

Audley, Bill Panting, Pete Zwibrycki and Arvon Stacey, all of Winnipeg, arrived in Saskatoon for workouts early in the week.

Olin, who captured three events at the last trials and who is especially strong in the 1,500-metre event, will have one racing mate from Calgary, Fred Mantesso, who won the five-mile marathon at the Canadian outdoor championships in Edmonton two weeks ago.

Quebec Musher Wins Sled Derby, Sets Record in International Event

OTTAWA (CP)—Narcisse Dompierre, 35-year-old Quebec City musher, has won Ottawa's two-day international sled-dog derby in record time.

Dompierre, competing here for only the second time, drove his six mixed-breed dogs over the finish line Thursday for a second-lap time of two hours, 54 minutes and 44 seconds.

His speed Thursday, combined with a swift pace in Wednesday's first lap, brought him victory with a record total elapsed time for the 60-mile race of five hours, 33 minutes and 58 seconds.

Second was Dr. Charles Belford of Deerfield, Mass., whose huskies covered the second lap in three hours, two minutes and 30 seconds for an elapsed time of five hours, 47 minutes and 19 seconds. He won $1,000 in cash and merchandise.

Emile Martel of Loretteville, Que., whose previous record of six hours, two minutes and 30 seconds Dompierre cracked, was in third place. His team of cross-bred hounds covered the 33 miles Thursday in three hours, six minutes and 12 seconds, giving him an elapsed time of five hours, 50 minutes and 50 seconds.

Dompierre wore a big smile as he was presented with the Derby Trophy by United States Ambassador R. Douglas Stuart after the race. The victory also nets the Quebec City driver $1,000 in cash and that much more in merchandise.

Like most of the other 18 entrants, from an original field of 25, who finished, Dompierre's speed was slowed by sticky snow conditions Thursday.

Mrs. Jean Lane of Lunenburg, Mass., captured a $150 award for pacing the five women competitors. Her time was six hours, 48 minutes and 19 seconds, placing her 10th in the over-all standing. Mrs. Bunty Dunlop of Burlington, Ont., won $100 in cash and merchandise for finishing second in the women's standings.

Orphans Defeat Madoc-Tweed

MARMORA — A good game of hockey was seen on the Madoc rink on Wednesday evening as the Madoc-Tweed Combines engaged Marmora Orphans in the last game preceding the Hastings-Addington play offs to retire winners by 8-4.

Jordan opened the score for his team after five minutes of play with Devolin giving the assist. McMullen added the next on Devolin and Jordan's assists. Closing the first period was Tuft's score on Semmelhack's assist.

Madoc scored another three goals in the next frame. F. Nickle tallied in less than a minute on Smith's assist. Devolin registered on an assist from H. Brown and then that player scored unassisted.

The Orphans came back, Deering beating Cournyea on an individual rush and W. O'Neill also scoring on Shannon's assist. Early in the third Shannon got a goal on W. O'Neill's assist and Deering again beat Cournyea unassisted. Madoc's final goals came from Tufts on F. Nickle's assist and F. Nickle closed the scoring on assists from G. Nickle and Smith. Eight penalties were evenly shared by the teams.

Orfuns— goal, Williams; defence, Darrah, Lynch; centre, Deeding; wings, Kouri, Sabine; alternates, R. Courtney, W. O'Neill, P. O'Neill, Shannon, Drummond, Brown, Barr.

Combines—goal, Cournyea; defence, H. Brown, Smith; centre, G. Nickle; wings, McCullin, Tufts; alternates, Jordan, McMullen, Semmelhack, Levick, Avery, Devolin, F. Nickle.

Referees: A. McFaul, F. Green.

Thinks Toronto Best Major League Prospect

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—For the second time in less than two years the head man of baseball, Commissioner Ford Frick, has ordered his loose-mouthed minions to cease and desist from talking about big-league expansion.

It is to be hoped that this time the diamond dictator means it. We, for one, have become just a little weary lately of interviews about the crying need for 10 - team leagues.

The roused commissioner says the flow of wild talk from club executives in harming the game, especially the minor leagues, and he's probably right. Our objection is that the 10-team idea is strictly dream dust and the magnates know it.

They are fully aware that there are not enough big league ball players to supply two new teams in either league.

We think the boys had better wait and see how they finally digest Kansas City before they seek another helping.

A baseball figure whose judgement we respect told us recently that, in his opinion, the only city now without major league ball which would be better than even money to make a go of it is Toronto.

"Give Toronto a contender and I'll guarantee it would match what Milwaukee has done," he declared. "The only drawback is, of course, that it would wreck the International League completely. Buffalo probably wouldn't even be able to open."

Sunday Boxing, Wrestling Out In Ontario

TORONTO (CP)—There will be no Sunday boxing or wrestling in Toronto or anywhere else in Ontario, athletic commissioner Merv McKenzie said Thursday night.

He said it has long been a policy of the Ontario athletic commissioner's office not to issue licences for either amateur or professional boxing and wrestling on Sundays.

It was reported Wednesday that board of control was expected to approve Sunday boxing shows in two Toronto theatres when it is forced to a decision on them in two weeks.

Boxing promoter W. C. Varley said he was lining up boxing contracts with a couple of theatres.

Do Not Favor All-Canadian Gridiron Loop

KITCHENER (CP) — A suggestion that the Ontario Rugby Football Union become an all-Canadian loop or cut its quota of American imports found little favor Thursday with officials of Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen.

President Sam Shefsky of Toronto Balmy Beach made the suggestion Wednesday night. He said he thinks his team will be operating in the ORFU again next season. Shefsky said he suggested to Argonaut officials that the team operate without imports.

Previously, Argos, parent team of the Beaches, offered the ORFU club for sale because it was costing too much to operate.

Shefsky said he will propose reduction, and possibly elimination of imports, to Sarnia Imperials and Dutchmen, the other two teams in the league, at the ORFU annual meeting later this month.

B. F. (Spike) Kearns, Kitchener president, said Dutchies want no cut in the import quota. He said the league needs a sprinkling of imports to put on a good brand of football.

"We're going to go along with four imports and Sarnia will also have four of the best," he said. "Any more than four, however, is a little too rich for us."

At Sarnia, Ches Parsons, newly-elected manager of the team, would make no comment before the matter was discussed at the annual meeting.

Says Williams Will Play

BOSTON (AP)—The Boston Daily Record says in a copyright story that Ted Williams "is returning to the Red Sox" and will join the team "about March 10."

"Although Ted has not yet notified the Red Sox of his impending return," the story adds, "he is expected to make his official announcement in about 10 days." Williams retired after last season.

This is the latest of a series of speculative reports, all of which have been met by this stock comment by Joe Cronin, Red Sox general manager:

"We have mailed Ted a contract and we haven't heard from him."

Kitchener Board Wants Payment, Manager Says Team Will Not Operate

KITCHENER (CP) — The muddied Kitchener senior baseball situation exploded Thursday night with an announcement from owner-manager Don Gallinger that Kitchener Panthers will not operate in the senior Intercounty League this season.

Gallinger issued his statement following a decision by the Kitchener park board that he must immediately pay $3,000 or $4,500 owing from 1954 rental before any agreement for 1955 will be offered.

Gallinger said that unless the board changed its mind by 6 p.m. tonight the decision not to operate would stand. He added that the club would be put up for sale and that efforts to see if it could be operated in Galt had indicated that Galt would be operating the Terriers, as usual.

The park board Wednesday night refused two offers by the ball team for part payment of the outstanding rental debt of the club.

As an alternative, the board asked immediate payment of $3,000 plus payment before each game of $100 for rental, $50 for concessions and $100 on other monies owing. The $50 for concessions was to be terminated when the club had paid $900.

Further confusing the situation is the fact that Gallinger does not actually own the franchise. He has been buying it on an agreement-of-sale basis from the Canadian Legion branch.

President Harold Gellatly said Thursday night that under the terms of the agreement Gallinger is not permitted to offer the club for sale without getting the legion's permission, which he has not done.

Further he cannot move the franchise out of the city without permission of the legion, which he has not obtained. Baseball difficulties arose when Panthers operated at a loss of $12,000 last year.

Plans to Expand Toronto Stadium Run Into Snag

TORONTO (CP)—Plans to spend $1,750,000 to enlarge Toronto Maple Leaf Stadium to bring it up to major-league baseball size have been stalled somewhat.

Many persons would like to see Toronto have a bigger baseball park and a major league team, but, it seems, nobody wants to put up the $1,750,000. Business men say it would be a gamble, and it wouldn't be wise to gamble the public's money.

W. H. Bosley, chairman of the Toronto harbor commission, which owns the stadium, told the city council so Wednesday. He gave the cold shoulder to a council recommendation that the board float a $1,750,000 bond issue to pay for the enlargement from 18,000 seats to 40,000.

MORE PROFITABLE

The harbor commissioners indicated they would like to get rid of the ball park and turn it into commercial land for harbor and dock facilities—a much more profitable venture, they said.

Supporters of the plan say an enlarged stadium would most likely bring a major league team to Toronto and give the city's hotel and tourist business a boost.

But, asked the harbor commissioners, has Toronto enough hotels to accommodate the thousands of out-of-towners who would come to see the big-league teams?

And what about traffic and parking? The Fleet street stadium is on one of the busiest thoroughfares in the city and is almost in the way of the proposed lakeshore expressway.

LITTLE ROOM

There's little room for expansion, and less room for parking.

Jack Kent Cooke, Maple Leaf Baseball Club owner, says there's a good possibility Toronto would get a major league franchise if it had a bigger stadium. But he adds, he isn't prepared to buy the stadium and enlarge it himself.

City council hasn't given up the idea altogether. It agreed to conduct an inquiry suggested by the harbor commission.

Tennessee Farm Boy Has TV Show of His Own Coming Up

By WAYNE OLIVER

NEW YORK (AP)—Eddy Arnold, Tennessee farm boy who took a mail order guitar and went to town with country music, has a television show of his own coming up on the celluloid network.

Arnold, whose phonograph records have sold in the millions, has done three summer stints on network TV, but the new filmed shows will be his first on a regular basis. They will be distributed directly to stations after the fashion of the Liberace shows.

The husky six-footer is more worried about being himself than whether country music will click with city viewers.

"Actually I do better in personal appearances in the larger places than in the small ones," Eddy explains in his Tennessee twang. "I don't know whether they come to hear me sing or are just curious to see what kind of varmint I am."

WANTS FAME TO LINGER

Although Arnold made his reputation as a singer of country songs, he says he plans to include standard popular tunes on his show. Since he hopes the films will be rerun a number of times later, he will steer clear of current hits unless he's pretty sure they'll stand the test of time.

"When I finally put my guitar in the case the last time. I want to be remembered just as a singer, not as a country singer or pops singer—just as a singer," he says.

Arnold is a little more than half way through the first 26 of his 30-minute musical films, due to start on the air in a number of cities later this month.

"I haven't worked this hard in 10 years—but it's still better than one-nighters."

Eddy hasn't had many one-nighters in the last few years, however. When he has, they've been big ones.

He was summer replacement for Perry Como on CBS-TV in 1952 and for Dinah Shore on NBC-TV in 1953. Last summer he was featured on NBC's "Out on the Farm." He has made two movies and RCA-Victor reports sales of his records have passed 30,000,000.

Pretty Gisele MacKenzie, featured singer on "Your Hit Parade" on NBC, is being sought by rival CBS for a show of her own next fall. The Winnipeg girl's click as Jack Benny's guest is largely responsible.

'Previews Are Indispensible' Says Director of 30 Years

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Our lesson for today concerns that peculiar Hollywood institution, the preview.

Almost every night, several theatres throughout southern California light up their marquees with "Major Studio Feature Preview." Little knots of film executives arrive and talk in the lobby with anxious voices. There is good reason for their anxiety. The theatre patrons will soon determine whether millions will be made or lost.

For some info on the preview I went to Mervyn Leroy, longtime boy wonder of films. Still boyish at 54, he has been directing pictures for almost 30 years and claims to be the veteran of 2,000 previews.

"Previews are indispensable," he told me in his comfortable studio office. "You can put your heart and soul into a picture, but you never know if it's good until you play it before an audience."

ALL EXCEPT ZANUCK

Vrtually all producers except Darryl Zanuck preview their pictures.

"All you need is an audience—any kind of audience," he said. "Give me a crowded theatre anywhere; that's all I need to find out the worth of a picture."

Some studios hand out cards for the previewers to express their opinions on. Leroy thinks this is a bad idea.

"It makes everybody a critic," he reasoned.

"You don't need cards. You can get the feel of the audience just by observing them. I like to sit in the balcony and look down on them. If they sit forward in their seats, I know the picture is going well. If they slump back and get fidgety, that means trouble."

The director said he has never had a picture that couldn't be fixed after a preview. He remarked, pausing to knock on the nearest wood, that he has never had a real floperoo.

"You can always fix up a picture, as long as you have had a good story to begin with," he observed. "If you didn't have a good story, you're sunk; nothing can help you."

Even some of his best films have been bolstered after previews. He said "Anthony Adverse" laid a small egg at the preview because it was about a half-hour too long. But it was a winner after some slicing was done. Likewise "The Wizard of Oz" was tightened up after the first showing. That's the commonest fault of previewed films—overlength.

"But some require retakes to lengthen the picture or explain confusing story points," Leroy said. "When we previewed '30 Seconds over Tokyo,' we found out the bombing run into Japan was too short on the screen. We added more of the flight scenes."

Recently Leroy went to San Francisco and Oakland to preview "Mister Roberts." He found the laughs lasted so long that the dialogue was obscured. So additional footage had to be inserted to space out the laughs.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

You hear all kinds of stories about a jump takeout in response to an opening one bid. The favorite myth is that it guarantees a fit in the suit the opener has bid. The rumor is garbled.

It is nice to have support for opener when you jump takeout to your own suit. Right quick you can have visions of a slam, which is a feeling any bridge player must enjoy.

But a jump takeout does not insist a slam is present. It is a signal that game can be made by the pair. Not a guarantee of slam. Therefore, such a jump does not necessarily guarantee support.

Your partner opens with a bid of one diamond when you have the north hand shown here:

♠A K 7 4
♥A K 9 5
♣Q 9 7 6

What is the first response you should make? Jump takeout with a bid of two spades. Tell your partner you have six or more tricks with at least two sure tricks and a spade suit that is biddable.

Even among the greatest masters you will hear opinions that the immediate jump should not be made with this hand. Not because it lacks a diamond fit. But in order to keep the bidding low.

There is merit in their claim. But you will also notice that a jump will come from them on the second round. So, they nullify what they give as an excuse for not jumping at once.

A jump on the second round does not offer as much information as a jump on the first round. So, your best bet is to jump at once and stop trying to figure out exceptions based on judgment.

With an opening partner your hand is certain to try for no less than a game. Unless partner gets stubborn about his diamond suit you can end at three no-trump; or, conceivably, six no-trump or more.

With otherwise enough, some partners will not jump without a fit. With such partners, it is I who has a fit.

SIGN FOR FIGHT

MIAMI BEACH (AP) — Joey Giardello, No. 1 middleweight title contender from Philadelphia, and Andy Mayfield of Miami were signed Thursday for a 10-round fight next Tuesday night in Miami Beach Auditorium.

AT THE McCARTHY — Audie Murphy and Lori Nelson are paired in Universal-International's Print-by-Technicolor "Destry" now playing at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre, also starring Mari Blanchard, Lyle Bettger and Thomas Mitchell.

AT THE CAPITOL — Audie Murphy stars with Dan Duryea, Susan Cabot and Abbe Lane in the action thriller, color by Technicolor "Ride Clear of Diablo" showing today and Saturday at the Capitol Theatre. On the same program "Francis Goes to West Point" starring Donald O'Connor and Lori Nelson. Special attraction for the children Saturday Matinee The Bowery Boys in "Follow The Leader".

Punching Fan To Stand Trial

BOSTON (AP)—The case of a hockey fan charged with assault and battery on Ted Lindsay of Detroit Red Wings was continued Thursday until March 16—the next time the Detroit club is due in Boston.

The fan, James T. Mulloy, 24, of Brookline, was charged by police with whacking Lindsay on the head at Boston Garden Feb. 5 as the Detroit club walked to its dressing room at the end of the second period of a game with Boston Bruins.

Mulloy pleaded innocent to the charge in municipal court last Monday and was freed on $50 bail. The delay Thursday was to permit Lindsay to appear in court.

CARTER-DEMARCO BOUT

BOSTON (AP)—Lightweight boxing king Jimmy Carter — who ruined the ring careers of New England favorites Tommy Collins and George Araujo — meets Boston's welterweight contender Tony De Marco tonight in a non-title 10-rounder at Boston Garden.

This time, say De Marco's followers, the champion from New York will meet his match. There will be no radio or TV of the fight.

De Marco, 23-year-old comer who ranks as the No. 6 contender for welterweight champion Johnny Saxton's crown, boasts a string of 15 straight victories.

AT THE CAPITOL — Donald O'Connor stars in the comedy "Francis Goes to West Point" showing today and Saturday at the Capitol Theatre. On the same program in Technicolor, Audie Murphy with Dan Duryea in "Ride Clear of Diablo". Special show Saturday Matinee for the children The Bowery Boys in "Follow The Leader."

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars, for

SATURDAY, FEB. 12, 1955

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Today gives you an opportunity to exploit your ingenuity, keen intuition and other valuable Aries assets, but warns against over-forcefulness, carelessness handling money, investments.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) You are intelligent, should seldom be "in a spot" or caught off guard. Today is no exception, be calmly careful and ready for the unexpected. You can handle, if up to usual standards.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Gather all fresh knowledge you can early, don't let anything upset or sidetrack your mind once you have screened problems and think you have the answers. Of course, there are always exceptions.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Moderation in luxuries, in foods and late hours are things to watch, keep tabs on. Concentrate on essentials, pursue the purposeful and returns will be most gratifying.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — Keep head high, your tongue in check, and don't make unwise changes, or leave important work because it has lost its initial interest, that when it just might be most valuable to you.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo)—Open your bag of ideas, promote them into actualities, don't wait until someone else suggests it or does the job. Nothing risked, nothing gained. Push onward to success, happiness.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — You may have unexpected responsibilities, may have heavier sacrifices, but at one time or another everyone has the same situations. Handled cheerfully, bring big credits.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Snap judgment pays few dividends unless for routine quantities. You may convict a perfectly good idea or project to unwarranted demise by not investigating its possibilities.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — Vigorous but sagacious action, keen attention to that happening around you urged. Day could be excellent for sales, sound investments, planning future, merchandising, real estate.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — Inclination is to overlook or spend for unessentials. Don't indulge foolishness, only good fun. Sensible promotion, engaging in healthy activities rate high. Romance favored.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — Knowing how best to use your talents, taking advantage of true opportunity aims toward lasting success. Lay a strong foundation early and efforts will have stable backing.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces) — Read Aquarius, then use the accelerator; your layout is before you, and it's up to you. Explore new ventures, make headway where it counts, and don't fuss at small setbacks.

YOU BORN TODAY: Usually mild and ready to co-operate. May become dilatory if things are going your way. You become able doctors, nurses, often take up reforms. Seek education and religion always, they will greatly enhance ability and system in endeavor. You are in a manner conservative, yet may take unusual chances or risks, too, going on into new things often with unusual success. You deal in facts rather than fancies, and once you have the incentive, will accomplish much. Avoid stubbornness, overinsistence, tardiness. Birthdate of: Abraham Lincoln, 16th U.S. Pres.; Geo. Meredith, Brit. novelist, poet; Wallace Ford, actor; John L. Lewis, labor leader.

Little Benny's Notebook

Ma was eating her grapefruit diet with a thoughtful expression this morning, and she said to pop, William, I have a confession to make. I told you the butcher didn't have any liver, and that's why I gave you chops for dinner instead of your proverbial liver and onions. But the fact is, I didn't ask the butcher whether he had liver or not, and that's the truth, she said.

I'm glad to hear it, my dear, the truth will set you free, pop said. Did we have chops last night? I thought we had chickin, he said, and ma said, Oh, I dont meen last night. This all happened a few weeks ago, she said, and pop said, Yee gods, have you been losing sleep all this time? The butcher may not have had any liver after all, he said.

That's a very broad minded viewpoint, William, ma said. Still, when something is praying on my conscience, I always like to get it off my mind with an honest confession, she said, and pop said, Good, now it's off your mind and in the forgotten past.

To tell you the whole story, William, the thing that's really on my mind happened only yesterday, but if you're sattisfied to learn about the liver, perhaps that's enough, ma said, and pop said, I'm quite sattisfied, my dear, I'll forgive you for item number 2 without even heering it.

And he kissed her goodbye and left for his office, and I said, G, ma, what did you do yesterday?

I opened a letter addressed to your father, ma said, and I said, Why, ma? and she said, Because I knew he couldn't possibly get anything in the mail that I oughtn't to see.

Sounding like a good lady's reason.

SPRING IS JUST AROUND THE CORNER

Our reason for thinking so is because buyers are beginning to look around. For instance, we had a call from a retiring professional man looking for a Brick Bungalow in the $20,000 to $25,000 class. One from a business man wanting a good 4-bedroom Brick, East Hill, in the $20,000 range. And calls from all sorts of people looking for homes in all price ranges in all parts of the city. Any one of these buyers may be interested in your property. If you are selling we would like to hear from you. Call us today at

No Complaints Of Dumping U.S. Turkeys Here

OTTAWA (CP)—Agriculture Minister Gardiner said Thursday he has received no complaints about excessive shipments of United States turkeys to Canada.

He was asked in the Commons by Gordon K. Fraser (L — Peterborough) whether anything is being done about "dumping" of U.S. poultry on the Canadian market. Mr. Fraser said one firm recently imported more than 100,000 pounds.

Mr. Gardiner said he has received complaints that certain Canadian poultry products are sent to the U.S. to be treated under a system used there and then are returned here.

"We have been asked to take action in regard to that," he said, "but I have not heard of any undue shipping of turkey or anything like that into Canada that does not come within the law."

Will Not Give Up Rifle Range For Long Time

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence Minister Campney indicated Thursday his department won't give up the Long Branch rifle range in suburban Toronto for months—if it does at all.

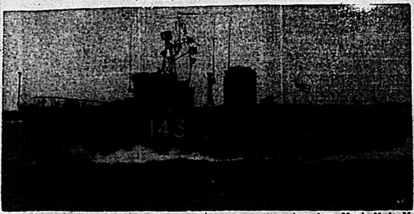
He informed Margaret Aitken (PC—York-Humber) in the Commons that Camp Borden, 60 miles north of Toronto, is being surveyed as a possible new site for the range. If it were found possible to construct a range there, it would take "some months at least" before suitable accommodation could be provided.

Expanding Toronto wants to obtain the Long Branch range for industrial and residential development.

FIRE ROCKETS

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Tribune said Thursday Canadian gun crews successfully fired two of the U.S. Army's supersonic guided missiles Wednesday at the Fort Churchill firing range 600 miles northeast of here. The rockets, dubbed the Nike, were launched from platforms in 35-below weather and in a strong wind. No target was used but the radar control demonstrated that the missiles would have hit any moving plane, the story said.

QUINTE ON TRAINING CRUISE

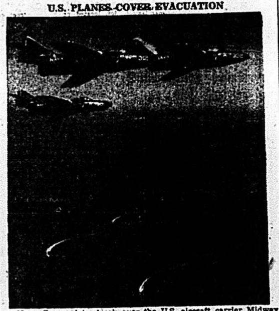


HMCS Quinte will join the Canadian navy's other four minesweepers next month in a seven-week training cruise in the Caribbean area. The exercise will continue from March 11 to May 1. (CP from National Defence.)

PACT TO END CIVIL WAR IN LABOR RANKS

Head men of the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organization are seen as they met in Miami Beach, Fla., where they approved a detailed formula for labor unity after 20 years of civil war in labor's ranks. The pact made it certain that the 10,000,000 members of the AFL and CIO's 5,000,000 members would come under one banner by the end of the year and one head, George Meany, left, now president of AFL. His opposite number in the CIO, Walter P. Reuther, right, announced that he would be happy to step aside in Meany's favor. Secretary-treasurer of federation, William F. Schnitzler, standing second from right, will occupy the same post in the new group. Others present include David McDonald, standing at left, president of CIO United Steel Workers; Harry Bates, president United Bricklayers; Schnitzler and James Carey, secretary-treasurer of the CIO. (Central Press Canadian.)

U.S. PLANES COVER EVACUATION



Navy Cougar jets streak over the U.S. aircraft carrier Midway and escorting destroyers in the Pacific on their way to join other ships of the 7th Fleet in the task of evacuating the Tachen islands. The Chinese Communists have reportedly fired away at American planes with ground guns, but otherwise have not hindered the withdrawal of the Chinese Nationalist forces from the islands. (Central Press Canadian).

Drew Will Be Back in Seat Next Thursday

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Drew is expected to be in his old Commons seat next Thursday, it was learned Thursday.

Mr. Drew, who is reported fully recovered from meningitis contracted last fall, will return to the capital sometime Wednesday and be feted at a private dinner that night.

Host at the dinner will be Hon. Earl Rowe (PC—Dufferin-Simcoe), who has been acting Opposition leader in Mr. Drew's absence.

Reports are that Mr. Drew, who has spent the last few weeks in Guelph, has been walking eight miles a day recently to recover strength.

AWARD BURSARIES

MONTREAL (CP)—The Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire will award 11 bursaries of $1,600 each this year to children of service men killed or permanently disabled in the Second World War, it was announced Thursday.

END LONG STRIKE

TORONTO (CP)—A strike that lasted 113 days, four days longer than the Ford of Canada walkout, ended Thursday. About 740 employees of the Standard Sanitary and Dominion Radiator Ltd., won a five-cent hourly wage increase, two cents immediately and three cents next July 1.

Sole Authorized Seaway Job Agency Is NES

OTTAWA (CP)—The only authorized hiring agency for Canadian workmen on the St. Lawrence seaway and Hydro projects is the National Employment Service—not private jobs-for-a-fee organizations—the Commons has been told.

Labor Minister Gregg said in the House Thursday that no outside agency has been authorized to hire workers for the projects.

Mr. Gregg was asked by Clarie Gillis (CCF—Cape Breton South) about a private agency which was reported taking applications for seaway employment at a $1 fee.

Mr. Gregg said there are two private organizations with Cornwall addresses advertising they will accept applications for jobs. Seaway Opportunities was charging a $1 fee and International Recruiting Agency $3.

HAD AGREED

Canada's St. Lawrence Seaway Authority and the Ontario hydro-electric power commission had both agreed that job placements should be through the National Employment Service, which charged no fee.

He said NES offices across the country have been asked to advise all those seeking project jobs not to leave for the seaway area until they were sure work was available. Notices would be posted in post offices advising job seekers to apply at their local employment offices before going to the project.

Preference was being given to residents of the area if they were qualified for the jobs.

Mr. Gregg read a directive sent last month to NES offices which outlined the procedure and said. "In order to be sure that the towns and cities where the projects are located are not swamped with people coming to look for a job, we have agreed to do everything possible to stop this."

WORD TO JOBLESS

He said he hopes the situation will be generally understood "so that unemployed people in any part of the country might not be misled on the one hand or miss any real opportunity for employment on the other."

The labor department had taken part in planning of all employment matters on both seaway and Hydro projects.

"I believe that good methods have been worked out both as they apply to the recruitment of workers within Canada and also to simplifying the movement of workers to and fro across the international border to ensure the maximum employment for Canadians and to best serve the changing needs of these great developments."

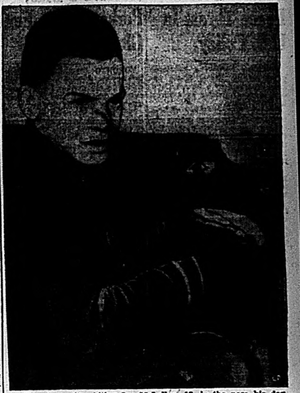
DOG DIES AFTER BITE



Two days after biting Ian McLellan, 12, in the nose his dog Joe took sick and died. The boy was given anti-rabies serum and needed six stitches to close the wound. City officials checked the dog for rabies. It was believed it may have picked up a slow-acting poison. (CP Photo).

Ottawa Soon To Ban Stripes On Bacon

OTTAWA (CP)—The meat-colored red stripes on transparent wrappings for bacon soon will be banned.

Government officials said Thursday the meat packaging and vending industry has been informed the government intends to bring into play a section of the Foods and Drugs Act to halt use of that type of wrapper.

A circular letter to the industry said there have been complaints that the practice is "deceptive."

Officials said the ban will be effective "before too long." One official said the ban would go into effect once present stocks of wrappers were disposed of.

There have been claims in the Commons that red stripes on the transparent wrappers tend to make bacon look meatier than it is.

A bill designed to prohibit such wrappers was introduced in the Commons several days ago by Davie Fulton (PC—Kamloops). He said Thursday he won't withdraw his bill and hopes it will be defeated.

The letter to the meat industry was signed by Dr. C. A. Morrell, director of the health department's food and drug division.

One section of the Food and Drug Act states: "No person shall label, package, treat, process, sell or advertise any food in a manner that is false, misleading or deceptive or is likely to create an erroneous impression regarding its character, value, quantity, composition, merit or safety."

The letter added that, after an effective date for the ban is set, users of the red-striped bacon wrappers will be prosecuted.

Senator Sees Peace Threat In U.S. Policy

OTTAWA (CP)—The Formosan policy of the United States has been described by a former Canadian cabinet minister as a threat to world peace.

Senator William Euler (L—Ontario) said Thursday during the Senate throne speech debate that Canada will be playing with fire if it supports President Eisenhower's position that Formosa is necessary for U.S. defence.

". . . I fear that out of this policy of the United States there is a risk of getting into another war," he said.

It was not worth the risk of war to challenge Communist China's claim to Formosa and other islands off the China coast held by the Chinese Nationalists, who have U.S. support. These islands, including Formosa, "inherently belong to China."

Senator Euler, member of the Liberal cabinet of the late Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, said he saw a newsreel this week showing Mr. Eisenhower making a statement that Formosa is necessary for U.S. security.

"With all due respect to the head of a great nation, I thought that was a most far-fetched statement," he said.

Formosa was not of value to Communist China or Russia as a place to launch an attack. Any attack on Australia or other countries could be made from the mainland of China.

"To try to substantiate the position that the United States needs Formosa for that purpose would be like saying that for her own security she ought to have possession of the island of Newfoundland, Vancouver island or perhaps the Queen Charlotte islands.

"Russia herself might even say that if the United States needs an island 10,000 miles away from her own borders, when she already has Russia ringed about with airports, that for her (Russia) protection Russia ought to have possession of Cuba or any other island near the United States."

A third world war in the atomic age would destroy civilization. Because of this, the former trade minister said, "we should avoid even the slightest risk of getting into a holocaust which would destroy the world."

Senator Euler reiterated a view he expressed previously in the Senate that Communist China should be recognized by Canada and the United Nations. Canada would have followed the example of the United Kingdom and recognized Red China "if it had not been that she feared the displeasure of the United States."

Canada was too prone to follow the lead of the U.S. in foreign policy matters. ". . . I think that Canada's influence upon United States' policies and actions is practically negligible."

Senator John Connolly said the Free World must remain strong for self-preservation and perhaps for the preservation of the human race.

"We cannot shut our eyes to the fact that behind the Iron Curtain men are at work, resourceful in the pursuit of their ambition and ruthless in their methods," the Ontario Liberal said.

Receive 8 Bids, Perhaps More, For Globe and Mail

TORONTO (CP)—Eight prospective buyers, perhaps more, are reported in the market for the purchase of The Globe and Mail, Toronto's only morning newspaper.

Bids closed Thursday at 3 p.m. EST and H. E. Langford, manager of the Chartered Trust Co, acting for the owners, said they were submitted in confidence and he could not disclose how many were made or by whom.

The sealed tenders were not opened pending a meeting of the executors of the will of George C. McCullagh, publisher until his death Aug. 5, 1912. Each bid was accompanied by a certified cheque for $500,000.

Mr. Langford said Harry G. Kimber, president and publisher of The Globe and Mail and one of the executors, is recovering at home from pneumonia and was ordered by his physician to refrain from meeting his associates for another day or two.

Sx bids were confirmed by the bidders themselves or by their representatives and two others were reported by the Toronto Star.

The confirmed bids:

Triarch Corp., a British-United States corporation acting on behalf of a second party—a surprise bid;

Lord Rothermere, publisher of the London Daily Mail;

Roy Thomson, Canadian publisher with U.S. and United Kingdom newspapers;

Jack Kent Cooke of Toronto, owner of the Toronto Maple Leaf Baseball Club and magazine publisher;

The Southam Company, publisher of seven Canadian dailies; and William Loeb, owner of newspapers in Manchester, N.H., and Vermont.

In addition, The Star reported bids by E. P. Taylor, Toronto industrialist, and by Max Bell of Calgary, oil man and publisher of Calgary and Victoria dailies.

Mr. Taylor and Mr. Bell were not available for comment.

All but the Triarch Corp. bid had been mentioned in advance speculation about purchasers. This was a last-minute tender and Triarch officials said they could not give the name of the party they represented.

Offers were invited last Jan. 10 and at the time it was announced the results will be made known by Thursday, Feb. 17. Bds were asked on either all issued shares of capital stock of the Globe Printing Company or the assets and undertaking of that company through the Chartered Trust Company.

The estate of Mr. McCullagh holds 11 per cent of the issued shares of the Globe Printing Company. The estate of William H. Wright holds the other 49 per cent.

When the company was put up for sale, the executors said that if no satisfactory offer was received the 111-year-old newspaper enterprise need not be sold.

It's all about "Little Canada"—Wives and families of the soldiers serving with the 1st Canadian Infantry Brigade Group in Germany are rapidly establishing a "Little Canada." The opening of the new married quarters, capable of housing about 1400 families, has been a big boon to the serving soldier with the brigade.

1. Children are probably the most important consideration of any community. The safety of the boys and girls of "Little Canada" is well looked after. Here Corporal Boyd Hamilton of Moncton, N.B., escorts a group of his young wards along the streets on their way to school. In the background are some of the new buildings of the married quarters.

2. The first family to move into the new quarters were Corporal and Mrs. Bill Sim and their two sons Michael (3), and Robert (6), of Toronto. Here, they are seen relaxing in the living room of their new home.

3. Recently Major General Dan Spry, Director of the Boy Scouts International Bureau, visited the new community, and paid high tribute to the work that is being done by the soldiers and teachers to further the work among the young Scouts and Cubs. He is seen here with Private Bill Clarke, of Hamilton, Ont., and Bob Hunt, of Toronto, school teacher with the Canadian Brigade.

RETAIN DEATH PENALTY

LONDON (AP)—The House of Commons Thursday night rejected proposals to abolish the death penalty for five years as an experiment. In a free, non-party ballot, Commons voted 245 to 214 to retain death by hanging as the supreme penalty under British law.

Montrealer Buys Globe and Mail Over 12 Bidders

Understood Price of Paper In Excess of $10,500,000

TORONTO (CP)—The Globe and Mail enters a new era of ownership today under a 45-year-old Montreal businessman whose bid for Canada's largest morning newspaper may have been the highest on record in the journalistic world.

R. Howard Webster, an unassuming bachelor who declined to provide a picture of himself for publication with the announcement and who had retired for the night when reporters called at his home at 9:30 p.m., is the new owner of the Toronto daily.

No purchase price was announced but it was understood to be considerably in excess of $10,500,000, the amount of one of 12 other bids—two of them by one bidder—rejected by executors of the estate of George McCullagh.

OTHER BIG PURCHASES

The Toronto Telegram, also owned by Mr. McCullagh when he died in 1952, was sold for a reported $4,250,000. One of the largest transactions in the United States was sale of the Washington Times-Herald to the Washington Post in 1954 for a reported $8,500,000. This did not include the Times-Herald presses, purchased later for an undisclosed sum.

In Great Britain, where major newspaper transactions are rare, the London Daily Sketch was sold in 1952 for an amount estimated at from £250,000 to £500,000. This was the last major newspaper transaction in London.

Mr. Webster, son of the late Senator Lorne C. Webster of Montreal and member of a family with extensive financial holdings in Canada and the United States, announced his purchase of the 111-year-old newspaper shortly before 9 p.m. Friday night.

NO CHANGES PLANNED

The announcement was made from Montreal to The Globe and Mail, to whose staff he sent a message saying: "I have no intention of any changes. I hope they will all stay with me and that together we will make a real success of it."

Harry G. Kimber, president and publisher since Mr. McCullagh's death, will remain in those offices.

Mr. Kimber, confined to his home where he is recovering from pneumonia, was one of four trustees of the McCullagh estate who met at his house to consider bids, called Jan. 10 and closed Thursday. The others were J. Maitland Macintosh, Henry E. Langford and John S. D. Tory.

Mr. Langford, general manager of the Chartered Trust Company of Toronto, said the executors are "pleased that the successful bidder is a member of such a well-known Canadian family, long recognized as devoted to Canada's development and progress."

PLEASED WITH PRICE

Although declining to announce the amount of Mr. Webster's bid, Mr. Langford said "the price was satisfactory, eminently satisfactory."

The $10,500,000 bid that was rejected was made by William Loeb, owner of newspapers in Manchester, N.H., and in Vermont. The Southam Company Ltd., publishers of seven Canadian dailies, bid $10,000,000, and a $9,105,000-bid was made by Roy Thomson, Canadian publisher of dailies in Canada, the United States and United Kingdom.

Other unsuccessful bidders included Jack Kent Cooke of Toronto, owner of Toronto Maple Leafs baseball club and magazine publisher; Lord Rothermere, publisher of the London Daily Mail; E. P. Taylor, Toronto industrialist; and Max Bell, owner of two Victoria dailies and publisher of the Calgary Albertan.

Aounts of their bids were not disclosed nor where the names of the other four bidders. Mr. Langford said two bids contained offers that did not meet conditions established by the executors and another contained two offers, based on different conditions of purchase. Offers had been invited either for the issued shares of capital stock or for assets.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO. (CP) — Synopsis: A major storm moved through New England during the night bringing 50 degree temperatures to the Maritimes and considerable snow to southern Quebec. Elsewhere in central and eastern Canada very cold Arctic air dominates the weather picture with little relief in sight today or Sunday.

Will Continue To Violate Law Says Member

VICTORIA (CP)—Frank Calder, only Indian member of a provincial legislature in Canada, says he will continue violating the law forbidding him to have a drink except in public licensed premises.

Mr. Calder, CCF member for the northern constituency of Atlin, in the British Columbia legislature, was commenting on a charge that two Queen's representatives violated the law by serving him a drink.

The charge was made in the legislature Thursday by Frank Howard, CCF member for Skeena, who was asking the B.C. government to request the federal government to change the "ridiculous" Indian Act.

Under the act, as it applies in B.C., Indians can drink in premises licensed to sell liquor such as cocktail bars and beer parlors, but can take no liquor home.

TO CONTINUE

Mr. Calder said: "I intend to continue violating the law, as long as the other 47 MLAs who with me make the laws of this province, can drink where they like, so will I."

Mr. Howard said Mr. Calder had had a drink at the recent state ball given by Lieutent-Governor Clarence Wallace here. Mr. Wallace and Mr. Calder had both violated the Indian Act, he said.

Mr. Howard also said Governor-General Vincent Massey on a western tour had given Mr. Calder and another Indian representative a drink at Prince Rupert.

Mr. Massey had violated the law, he said.

Public Works Projects Will Cost 100 Million

OTTAWA (CP) — The government plans to spend about $100,000,000 more on public works projects in 1955-56 than in the current fiscal year, Works Minister Winters said Friday night.

Speaking on the CBC program, The Nation's Business, he also said the construction industry "can look forward to a high level of activity in Canada throughout 1955." There were prospects of another exceptionally good year of house building.

Mr. Winters remarks were contained in the text of a speech released to the press in advance of delivery.

The public works department, he said, now is working on 84 construction and major reconstruction projects and expects to start work on another 75 similar projects during 1955-56.

Otto Strasser Starts for Home To Try to Oust Konrad Adenauer

PARADISE, N. S. (CP) — Ex-Nazi Otto Strasser heads for home today to test his belief that he can put Chancellor Konrad Adenauer out of a job at the 1956 West German elections.

Hitler's onetime close collaborator and, subsequently, his arch foe, will leave this Annapolis valley farming community where he has spent the last 14 years and begin the long-cherished return to Europe.

Strasser will spend Sunday at Montreal and then board a trans-Atlantic airliner. His first stop is Zurich where he will spend until mid-March with his wife and two children before continuing on to Germany.

Strasser will preach the social and political doctrines that he lumps together under the title of "solidarism", a system whereby workers, governments and management would share industrial profits.

Strasser is an avowed foe of Adenauer whom he considers no more than a puppet of the Western powers who does not speak for Germany and does not constitute a sovereign administration.

He plans to reorganize his political party in divided Berlin and is optimistic that he can win the West German chancellorship in 1956.

Hitler and Strasser were both National Socialists, the words that were contracted to form "Nazi."

However, they differed in that Hitler placed emphasis on the "National" and Strasser on "socialism."

The one time high-ranking German politician spent most of his exile in this village studying and preparing for the day of his return. This was made possible in November when the West German Supreme Court restored the citizenship that Hitler revoked when the two split.

SKID ROW HOTEL IN CHICAGO BURNS KILLING 17

12 Tenants and Two Firemen Are Injured

CHICAGO (AP)—A raging fire swept through a crowded Skid Road hotel early today, killing 17 men and injuring 12 tenants and two firemen.

Hours after the fire was extinguished firemen still searched the debris of the wrecked building for other bodies. They had fought the blaze in sub-zero weather for nearly four hours.

Only six of the dead were identified immediately. Some were victims of smoke inhalation and exposure. Others were burned almost beyond recognition.

More than 200 residents of the Barton Hotel, a five-storey brick building on West Madison street, fled into sub-zero weather.

Firemen helped scores down ladders and fire escapes from the upper floors. The 365-room hotel occupied the top four floors and an employee said 245 rooms were occupied.

A janitor at the hotel told police the first alarm of the fire came from an unidentified man on the second floor. Cause of the blaze was not immediately determined.

House Defeats Motion to Block 44 Divorce Bills

OTTAWA (CP)—A CCF motion designed to block consideration of 44 divorce bills Friday was defeated by a vote of 107 to 28 in the Commons.

The motion was made by Stanley Knowles (CCF — Winnipeg North Centre) after Speaker Rene Beaudoin asked whether the House was prepared to give the divorce bills second reading—approval in principle.

Mr. Knowles said there are more important matters before the House than divorce bills. He moved that the Commons debate instead a bill proposed by Mrs. Ellen Fairclough (PC-Hamilton West) calling for equal pay for women doing men's work.

Outside the House, he said the motion was the first of its type ever moved by a CCF member. It was moved to test feelings of members of Parliament on the present method of handling Quebec and Newfoundland divorce cases.

MUST BE APPROVED

All petitions for divorce from Quebec and Newfoundland, only provinces without divorce courts, must be approved by Parliament.

Mr. Knowles motion was supported by 18 members of the CCF party, eight of the Social Credit group and two Quebec independents—Paul Gagnon, Chicoutimi, and Fernand Girard, Lapointe. It was opposed by 80 Liberals, 21 Progressive Conservatives and six Social Credit members.

The total vote of 135 reflected the sparse Friday afternoon attendance in the House. It has 264 members with one seat vacant.

Since the start of the session, 415 petitions for divorce have been filed by residents of Quebec and Newfoundland. Deadline for submitting petitions is Feb. 17. A total of 177 cases have been processed by the Senate divorce committee but still must be approved by the Commons and the Senate.

Agreement on Tariffs, Trade May Be Signed Soon at Geneva

OTTAWA (CP)—A new General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade may be signed at Geneva within two weeks but qualified informants here have indicated it will be much like the expiring agreement.

Informants said Friday Canada and the 33 other member countries of the trade pact, aimed at lowering import barriers, have tentatively decided to renew it.

They said, however, that the United States is unwilling to agree to a reduction of existing import curbs. They indicated the new GATT may in fact give the U.S. increased power to block shipments of farm products that might interfere with her internal price-support program.

Delegates at current Geneva talks on the pact would make a final effort during the next two weeks to get the U.S. to change her mind, but they held small hope that she will.

Should the U.S. be granted further power to stop imports of farm products, informants said, Canada and other countries may demand GATT changes permitting them to take retaliatory measures if U.S. import curbs prove unduly restrictive.

A hint of developments at the conference, in progress for three months, came from Trade Minister Howe Friday when he told Donald Fleming (PC — Toronto Eglinton) in the Commons that GATT tariff duties have been renewed for a "further period."

Mr. Howe later rose on a question of privilege to make a correction. He said the actual renewal "has not taken place and may not take place until the end of the (conference) session, some two or three weeks hence."

When Mr. Fleming said he understood some agreement already had been reached, Mr. Howe replied: "All I can say is that progress is being made."

It was learned that during the next two weeks the Geneva debate will be on revision of GATT trade rules only. The informants said there is no quarrel over the need to renew the hundreds of tariff concessions under the pact, which are due to expire next June.

Canadian officials had hoped member countries would agree to impose ceilings on the use of curbs, but the U.S. was reported to have demanded more, rather than less, freedom to reduce imports. The U.S. already has imposed restrictions on Canadian grain and on Canadian and overseas dairy products.

Highway Safety Committee Will Report to Legislature

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario legislature, with four days of routine opening matters accomplished, will get down to the real business of the session Monday.

Premier Frost has announced that the long-awaited report of the committee on highway safety will be tabled then by Provincial Secretary W. M. Nickle, committee chairman. Considerable legislation is expected to arise from the report.

Release times for the reports of the committees on highways irregularities and central registry of liens have not been announced.

The legislature was told Friday that two Cornwall firms reported to have been soliciting applications for employment on the St. Lawrence seaway have been warned they must have licences to operate.

Labor Minister Daley said he had sent letters and wires to the firms, telling them such agents must have licences. His information was they had none.

Mr. Daley and Hon. George H. Challies, minister without portfolio and a commissioner of Ontario Hydro, both said the only information they had was obtained from newspaper reports.

Mr. Challies, whose riding of Grenville-Dundas includes part of the seaway area, started the comments on a report from Ottawa that two private firms were soliciting applications for fees of $1 and $3.

The Ottawa report said one of the firms used newspaper advertisements.

Mr. Challies said there is no connection between Ontario Hydro and such organizations. Most of the work on the seaway power project was by contract, contractors engaging their own workers from two main sources, the national employment service office at Cornwall and the Hydro personnel office near there.

About 600 persons now are employed on the project, said Mr. Challies. By 1956 the number is expected to increase to 4,000.

Two government bills were introduced by Education Minister Dunlop, one to provide an electoral body to choose chancellors for the University of Toronto, the other to increase the board of directors of the Royal Ontario Museum to 19 from 12.

Members who will serve on 17 standing committees of the House were named by the striking committee.

CBC and Union Have Resumed Negotiations

OTTAWA (CP) — The CBC and its union of technicians agreed today to resume negotiations immediately in an attempt to avert a strike threatened by the union.

Top officials of the disputants at a meeting in labor department headquarters agreed to put negotiating committees back into discussions at about 11 a. m. EST.

Previous negotiations broke down Thursday, with the National Association of Broadcast Employees and Technicians threatening a strike unless settlement of a contract dispute was reached by next Wednesday.

Sir Thos. White, Former Finance Minister, Dies

TORONTO (CP) — Sir Thomas White, who bolted the Liberal party of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and later turned down an offer to become prime minister of Canada as a Conservative, died Friday. He was 88.

Finance minister for eight years in the government of Sir Robert Borden, he declined the prime minister's post two years before he retired from politics in 1921. He had been acting prime minister while Sir Robert was at the Paris peace conferences after the First World War.

Sir Thomas, born in a log cabin at Bronte, Ont., was a newspaperman, lawyer, poet and financier.

He was Canada's oldest privy councillor.

BOLTED LIBERALS

Sir Thomas was one of a group of 18 men who left the leadership of Sir Wilfrid when, in the general elections of 1911, the Liberal prime minister sought to have the Taft-Fielding reciprocity pact endorsed by the country. The Liberals were defeated that year.

Sir Thomas ran as a Conservative for Leeds in a by-election in 1911 and was elected by acclamation.

Against an outcry from his own party, Sir Robert Borden handed the finance portfolio to the former Liberal. Sir Thomas was re-elected for the same constituency in the general election of 1917 and retained his finance portfolio until 1919.

As finance minister, it was Sir Thomas' job to find the money for Canada's military effort during the war, while keeping trade at a figure which enabled her to continue as a belligerent. Through his efforts, Canada acted as banker for Britain, France and other allied countries who made the Dominion's finance department a clearing house for their financial dealings with merchants and manufacturers of the United States.

In 1916 Sr Thomas was made Knight Commander of the Order of St. Michael and St. George for his war financing services. He was made a Knight Grand Cross in the same order in 1935, an unusual recognition in Canada.

LEADER IN FINANCE

For many years after he left politics, Sir Thomas was a leader in the country's banking and financial circles. He gave up his seat in the House of Commons in 1921 to become a member of the board of arbitration on the purchase by the government of the Grand Trunk Railway.

He was chairman of the board of directors of the Canadian Bank of Commerce from 1938 to 1944.

Sir Thomas graduated from Osgoode Hall in 1899, but never practised law. He financed his college education by working as a reporter for the Toronto Evening Telegram. He often said, "I have had no such working pleasure in life as I found in journalism."

Sir Thomas married Annie Isabell Silverthorne of Jarvis, Ont., in 1890. They had one daughter. Lady White predeceased her husband in 1948.

There will be private funeral service at Mount Pleasant cemetery.

SOCIAL CREDIT MOTION DEFEATED BY 118-14 VOTE

Filibuster Shaping Up On Water Control

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons has knocked down one Social Credit roadblock—and now faces another—in the way of a government bill to tighten federal control over use of international river waters.

A filibuster appeared shaping up Friday night as Social Credit members charged the measure is an invasion of provincial rights aimed at British Columbia's Social Credit government.

They staunchly defended B.C.'s agreement with the Kaiser Corp. of the United States to build a water storage dam on the Columbia river's lower Arrow lakes to increase power production on the U.S. stretch of the river.

Trade Minister Howe said the project is not prudent and would ruin long-range plans for Columbia river development.

DEFEATS MOTION

The Commons Friday night voted 118 to 14 to defeat a motion by Social Credit Leader Low to delay decision on the bill six months—a procedure known as a six-months' hoist which in effect, would have killed the measure this session.

Then F. D. Shaw (SC—Red Deer) moved that the bill be not given second reading—approval in principle—but that its subject matter be referred to the committee on external affairs.

This move, coming shortly before adjournment, opened the way for members to speak again. The Social Credit group then had used 10 of its 14 members debating the government's main motion for second reading.

Only Fernand Girard (Ind—Lapointe) supported the Social Credit group on Mr. Low's motion for a six-months' hoist. Liberal, Progressive Conservative and CCF members voted solidly against it.

MOSTLY SOCIAL CREDIT

Most of the day's speakers on the international rivers bill were Social Credit members.

Mr. Low said the federal government has made no attempt to sit down with the B.C. government to discuss the Columbia river problem involving the proposed Kaiser dam on the lower Arrow lake. The government's attitude would have been different if it had involved Quebec, Manitoba or Newfoundland.

"The amount of just consideration for a province's rights which can be expected from this government seems to be directly proportional to the number of votes the Liberals got in that province in the last election."

Mr. Howe denied the bill is a political move.

"If I wanted to play politics, I'd let British Columbia turn over the Arrow lakes lock, stock and barrel to Kaiser," he said.

Purchaser of Toronto Globe and Mail Mystery Man in Financial Circles

MONTREAL (CP) — R. Howard Webster, new owner of the Toronto Globe and Mail, is a 45-year-old, unmarried mystery man in Montreal financial circles.

Within a matter of an hour after he advised the newspaper's employees he was their new boss, Mr. Webster had retired to his 35-room mansion in an exclusive section of upper-class Westmount. Early-morning callers at his home were advised, as were reporters Friday night, that he was not available for comment on his purchase.

Surprisingly little is known about the man who is believed to have put up more than $10,500,000 on an 11th-hour bid for the newspaper.

He is the son of the late senator Lorne Webster, who died in 1941 leaving a multi-million dollar estate to his five sons and daughter. Reginald Howard's brother, Colin, is considered a far more publicly prominent member of the family through his numerous directorships in iron and steel and equipment industries.

The Globe and Mail purchaser is himself a director of a long series of Canadian and United States firms. He has a second home in Detroit, from which he manages his interests in the Annis Fur Company and the family-owned, 47-storey Penobscot building, Detroit's tallest.

His school years are clouded in what would seem to be the same self-imposed obscurity that marks his later life.

He graduated from Lower Canada College here in 1927 and earned his Bachelor of Arts degree from McGill University four years later. It was not known if he did any post-graduate work. He is known to have been a good scholar and an enthusiastic hockey player.

It could not be determined immediately if he belongs to any clubs or if he had any outside sports or hobbies.

His financial interests here include directorships in Holt-Renfrew Limited, the St. Catherine-Stanley Realty Company and the Imperial Trust Company.

As far as is known in business circles here, he had no other newspaper interests before his bid, the highest of 13 submitted, won him The Globe and Mail, Canada's biggest morning paper.

Red China Masses Motorized Junks Off Matsu Island

U.S. Forces Are on Alert For Any Attack on Formosa

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — Red China massed a fleet of armed motorized junks off the Nationalist outpost island of Matsu today in an ominous new threat on the heels of Chiang Kai-shek's peaceful evacuation of the Tachen islands.

(In Washington, the state department announced that United States naval and air forces which protected the evacuation of the Tachens now will "resume their normal operations but will be alert to any concentration or employment of Chinese Communist forces obviously undertaking to facilitate attack upon Formosa, and will be prepared to take appropriate military action if required.")

Two hundred miles north of Formosa, the Tachen islands were left devastated and empty.

NO INTERFERENCE

The last landing ship carrying a U. S. naval beach party and a few Nationalist soldiers pulled off a mud flat with high tide at 10:25 a. m. today.

The Communists, eight miles away on Yikiangshan island and 14 miles away on the mainland, made no attempt to interfere with the final stage of the evacuation.

The windup completed six days of frenzied activity during which 40,000 or more civilians, guerrillas and Nationalist troops were removed from the Tachens, the Yu Shands, 35 miles northeast, and Pishan, 32 miles southwest.

Six carriers, one converted to an anti-submarine warship, cruisers and destroyers coursed in a half-ring off the islands. Planes circled overhead throughout the evacuation.

ONE PLANE LOST

One navy Skyraider carrying $1,000,000 worth of radar was shot down by Communist mainland anti-aircraft when it strayed off course. Nationalist ships picked up the pilot and crew.

Communist guns on Yikiangshan fired at four other planes and scored a few holes in the wing of one.

Fleet and air gunners were under orders to "fire back if fired on" but the 7th Fleet commander, Admiral Alfred M. Pride, ruled that the incidents were caused by American pilots flying too close to Red territory, and the U. S. guns remained silent.

Jury Finds Accused Guilty

VANCOUVER (CP) — Thomas Blainey, 39, was convicted of manslaughter by an Assize Court jury Friday in the fatal shooting of his four-year-old nephew on an Indian reserve near Powell River Oct. 27. Blainey will be sentenced later.

Evidence at the trial was that the boy was killed by Blainey's rifle after it accidentally discharged. Blainey told police he took the boy's body and dumped it into the sea. The body was never recovered.

3 Crew Members Of Jet Bomber Believed Lost

WESTOVER, Mass. (AP)—U. S. Fifth Air Force rescue headquarters reported today that a B-47 jet bomber, believed out of March air force base, California, blew up in the air over Churchill, Man., today.

The report said no parachutes were sighted and the three crew members were probably lost.

ASKS OPINIONS

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Tourist Association has asked its members for their opinions on toll highways. In a circular sent to members, the association asks whether its past policy of consistently opposing toll roads is "outdated."

FORMER RECTOR AT ST. THOMAS' TO BE SPEAKER

The Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne, former rector at St. Thomas' church and now retired living in Port Hope, will address the congregation of the church on Sunday morning. Mr. Payne was rector of the church from 1931 to 1945, when he left to become Diocesan Commissioner. Later he was appointed Institutional Chaplain for the Anglican church and served in that capacity until his retirement.

While serving here he was the chaplain of the Argyll Light Infantry Regiment and was also appointed for a term as Rural Dean of Prince Edward county. While in the city he made many friends both in and out of the congregation and many will be in the pews on Sunday to again listen to his words of wisdom.

TEMPERATURES TAKE ANOTHER DIP DUE TO COLD SPELL

Temperatures took another dip down to zero early this morning in the wake of a cold spell, which moved over the district last night.

At midnight last night the mercury in the city pump house read ten degrees above. However the temperature rapidly declined during the night until by seven a.m. it had reached zero. Three hours later it had lifted but slightly to 1 above. A slight trace of snow accompanied the arrival of the cold spell last night.

Forecast for the week-end predicts it will continue cold for Sunday with the low mark probably around zero and the high 15 above.

FAULTY FURNACE

A faulty furnace brought fire reels on the run to the New Service Lunch establishment on Front street shortly after 11 a.m., today.

MONTREALER

Mr. Webster's name had not been mentioned in advance speculation about purchasers and it is understood he decided only this week to enter a bid. This was done on his behalf by Dominion Securities Corp. Ltd.

Mr. Webster, who said he purchased The Globe and Mail for himself, became the fourth owner of the paper, which was founded in 1844 as The Globe by George Brown, a Scottish immigrant and prominent political figure in the early days of Canada's fight for responsible government.

He is a director of many Canadian and United States companies, has been a principal stockholder in the Eversharp Schick company since 1949 and was associated in 1952 with the Webster family's purchase, through a Michigan company they had organized, on the 47-storey Penobscott building, Detroit's tallest, for about $17,500,000.

MERGED IN 1935

The Globe and Mail, whose circulation is 244,391, cae minto being in its present form in 1936 when Mr. McCullagh merged The Globe, for which he paid $1,850,000, and the Mail and Empire, which cost him $2,020,000.

Owners of The Globe before it was purchased by Mr. McCullagh were members of the family of Senator Robert Jaffray who bought it in 1880 after Brown was shot and killed by an employee who had been dismissed.

The newspaper is housed in the William H. Wright building, a six-storey structure in downtown Toronto named for the multi-millionaire mining man who backed Mr. McCullagh in his first newspaper purchases.

The McCullagh estate held 51 per cent of The Globe and Mail's stock and the Wright estate 49 per cent.

In a statement Friday night, Mr. McCullagh's widow said: "We wish the new owner well in the great responsibility he has assumed and earnestly hope he will maintain the same high ideals of public service and expand its (the paper's) influence in the years ahead."

Woman Picket Fined

TORONTO (CP) — A woman picket who spat in the faces of two women employees and called them "scabs" was fined $30 Friday for assault.

One of the complainants, Doreen Mercer, said that Frances, McKay, 38, who was on picket duty, twisted her arm and wrenched it so badly she had to go to hospital for treatment. The other woman was not identified.

The women are employees of the International Resistance Company in east-central Toronto, strikebound since Nov. 1.

Twenty-Four Student Nurses Are 'Capped'

Twenty-four student nurses in the first-year course at the Belleville General Hospital were officially welcomed into the School of Nursing last evening at a capping ceremony held in the hospital's dining room.

The nurses, in training since September, received their caps from their "big sister" — second and third year student nurses— while sixty parents, friends and hospital officials looked on.

Following the capping each girl was presented with a lighted candle by the science instructor. The candle symbolizes the lamp of Florence Nightingale.

Officiating at the capping ceremony were: Miss Madge Kidd, science instructor; Miss Margaret Lenfesty, nursing arts instructor, and Miss M. L. Peart, director of nursing.

Rev. Everett Smith led the opening prayer and delivered the principal address of the evening. Greetings and best wishes for a successful training course were extended to the girls by Mrs. Lennox Smith, president of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary; Mrs. Clifford Howie, president of the Nurses' Alumnae; Miss Nancy Allison, president of the Student Nurses' Association, and Miss M. L. Peart.

The nurses' choir, under the direction of Alf Evans, sang two songs during the evening.

At the conclusion of the ceremony the nurses served refreshments.

Complete Details For Holding Of Drama Festival

Putting on a theatre festival is almost more work than putting on a play.

The local festival organization, headed by F. C. "Court" Miller, has completed details for the Eastern Ontario Regional Drama Festival being held in the Belleville Collegiate Auditorium Feb. 15, 16, 18 and 19.

All four three-act plays being presented here next week have been polished to a high sheen during the past few days.

The Belleville Theatre Guild's entry, "Joan of Lorraine" has been in rehearsal since its presentation here a month ago. "Noah," Peterborough Little Theatre's entry, completes its Peterborough run tonight.

Ottawa Little Theatre Inc. and Le Theatre du Pont Neuf, Hull, have been working hard on their festival presentations in hopes of copping the regional title and a chance to participate in the Dominion finals in Regina in May.

Andre Van Gyseghem, adjudicator, will arrive in Belleville Monday noon, Feb. 14th, prior to the festival's opening Tuesday by "Joan of Lorraine."

Festival officials have been advised that Richard MacDonald of Ottawa, a director of the Dominion Drama Festival, will be in Belleville Wednesday, Feb. 16th.

A civic luncheon for festival officials, visiting dignitaries and members of visiting companies will be held at the Shrine Club Wednesday at 1.15 p.m.

All players have signified their intention of being present on the final night's performance to hear Mr. Van Gyseghem's over-all adjudication and for the presentation of trophies and awards.

Obituary

WILMOT HODGEN
(R.R. 1, Corbyville)

Wilmot Hodgen, 5th concession of Thurlow township, R.R. 1, Corbyville, died in the Belleville General Hospital, Friday, February 11th, after a lengthy illness. He was in his 75th year.

The deceased was born on the 7th concession of Tyendinaga township, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hodgen. He lived in Foxboro prior to moving to R.R. 1, Corbyville, two years ago.

He is survived by his wife, the former Ethel M. Yorke, and a brother, Gibson Hodgen, of Belleville.

The deceased had been employed some years ago at the Canada Cement Company plant at Point Anne.

He was a member of Cannifton United Church.

Resting at Belleville Burial Co. Funeral Home; the funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

WILLIAM JAMES HUFFMAN
(Brockville—Napanee)

There passed away in the Brockville General Hospital on Thursday, February 10, a former resident of Brockville and Athens, in the person of William James Huffman, after a brief illness.

The late Mr. Huffman was born at Napanee and was 85 years of age. He was a son of the late George Huffman and his wife Hester Johnston. In 1898 he was married to Annie Moorman of Belleville.

For some years the late Mr. Huffman was engaged in the insurance business in Belleville. In 1914 he was transferred to Brockville as district manager of the Kingston Division of the Prudential Insurance Company. Later he accepted positions as salesman for the Mason & Risch Piano Company and the John Raper Piano Company, which positions he filled for over 20 years.

In 1927, the late Mr. Huffman moved to Athens, where he retired some ten years later. He was a member and regular attendant of the Athens United Church of which he was an honorary elder. Among his other fine qualities, the late Mr. Huffman displayed a friendly and generous disposition, always ready to lend a helping hand to his neighbors.

Surviving to mourn his loss are his wife, the former Annie Moorman of Belleville; his daughter, Mrs. R. C. Swerdfeger (Ruth), a grandson David Swerdfeger; two brothers and one sister in Saskatchewan, as well as several nephews and nieces.

The body will be resting at the home of his daughter, 50 Wall Street, Brockville, until this Saturday afternoon at 2:30 p.m. when the funeral will be conducted by the Rev. C. Beckel of Athens. Interment will be at Oakland Cemetery.

CYRUS PINE
(R.R. 2, Ameliasburg.)

Cyrus Pine, 5th Concession of Hillier township, R.R. 2, Ameliasburg, died in hospital in Kingston, Saturday morning, February 12, after a seven weeks' illness. He was in his 75th year.

The deceased was born and raised on the family homestead on the 5th Concession of Hillier. He was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Silvester Pine.

He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Leon (Marguerite) Caughey, Ameliasburg, and Miss Vera Pine, Wellington. He was predeceased by his wife, the former Cordie Nelson, and is the last of his family.

He was an adherent of the United Church.

Resting at his late residence; the funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

Trade Slightly More Active On Local Market

Trade was slightly more active than in recent weeks on the local market this morning. Offerings also increased somewhat in quantity. Prices were unchanged for the most part.

Carrots continued at 50 cents a six-quart basket while parsnips took a slight rise to 75 cents a basket. Turnips were 5 - 10c each, while cabbage sold from five to 15 cents a head. Onions were unchanged at 50 cents a basket and potatoes continued to hold steady to $3 per 75-lb. bag. White beans were 30 cents the quart and sauerkraut 20 cents a quart.

Apples were the bulk of the fruit offering with Spies at $3.50 a bushel, 85 cents a basket; Snows, $2.50 and 60c; Sweets, $2.75 and 75c; McIntosh, $3.00 and 75c.

Eggs were up one cent at 43 cents for large grades, 41c for mediums and 38c for small. Poultry continued at 45c for fowl and 50c for spring chickens.

HOLD ROADS MEET

OTTAWA (CP)—A national highway safety conference, sponsored by the Canadian Good Roads Association, will be held here May 24-26, the association announced Friday.

Everyone Marks Valentine's Day

Monday next thousands of Bellevillians, in common with many other peoples across the world, will be seeing red. Resulting from this some probably will turn white, some purple, most of them a light shade of pink.

Monday is February the fourteenth—Valentine's Day — when all those cards, bearing big red ditties a likely lad builds his ink, come dropping through the mail to startle the eligible, unnerve the bashful and aggravate the poorer propositions, in the flirtation field.

Nearly everyone marks the day by dispatching Valentine cards, either under their own names or pseudonyms. In so doing they are helping perpetuate one of the oldest social customs of the western world.

Valentine's Day is believed to have its origin in the pagan Roman festival of the Lupercalia, celebrated some time during a period corresponding to the present middle days of February. On the occasion of the feast, the names of young women were placed in a box and drawn by young men as chance directed.

When Christianity gained supremacy in the Roman empire the early Christian church commenced a revision of many of the pagan customs of the empire. Included among them was the festival of the Lupercalia, in which the church authorities, while not wholly abolishing the festival, revised it somewhat by substituting the names of saints for those of the women.

As the festival commenced around mid-February, the church appears to have chosen the feast-day of St. Valentine for celebrating the event, because it occurred around the same time.

Valentine himself was a Roman priest, martyred in the third century during the reign of the emperor Claudius.

ROOTS IN MIDDLE AGES

Today's active industry, which specializes in churning out versey cards for the occasion probably has its roots in the middle ages. Some of the first sweet-nothings for Valentine's Day were written by a French knight, some time before Agincourt.

By Shakespeare's time the composing of valentines for the wench friend seems to have been common practice while most poets of the era dedicated much regular verse to the feast.

Drayton, a contemporary of the bard of Stratford, came across with:

> "Muse bid the morn awake,
> Sad winter now declines,
> Each bird doth choose a mate
> This day's St. Valentine's."

Compare this to some of the ditties a likely lad builds his hopes on when sending a valentine today, and you might have one of the reasons for women in politics.

The proper ceremony marking Valentine's seems to have been something akin to the old parlor game of forfeits; anyway spirit of the thing still holds good for a parlor game any old time.

A traveller in England in the early eighteenth century has left posterity an account of the principal ceremony of the day in England and Scotland: "An equal number of maids and bachelors get together; each writes their true or some feigned name upon separate billets, which they roll up and draw by way of lots; the maids take the men's billets and the men the maids'; so that each of the young men lights upon a girl that he calls his Valentine . . . and this little sport often ends in love."

However, like all old customs, it probably was taken a great deal more seriously in those days than modern times, and might have placed the drawer of a billet in a rather compromised position. The rich, of course, could easily dismiss any embarrassing obligation by the recognized procedure of buying their way out.

TAKEN SERIOUSLY

In his diary, Samuel Pepys obviously is referring to this when he makes note of a famous English beauty, later to become the Duchess of Richmond:

"The Duke of York, being once her Valentine did give her a jewel of about £800 and my Lord Mandeville, her Valentine this year, a ring of about £300."

Mister Pepys makes no reference as to why the lady ever bothered to become the Duchess of Richmond.

But the belief did persist that the person drawn as a valentine had a likelihood of becoming wedded to the drawing party. At least among the common folk who held that birds mated on Valentine's Day and that the influence was reflected in human emotions.

Certainly lots of folk did take it seriously, as evidenced by this account of a young lad's behavior towards the feast in the middle eighteenth century:

" . . . the night before (Valentine's) I got five bay leaves and pinned four of them to the four corners of my pillow and the fifth to the middle . . . then if I dreamt of my sweetheart we should be married before the year was out.

"To make it more sure I boiled an egg hard and took out the yolk and filled it with salt, and when I went to bed, ate it, shell and all, without speaking or drinking after it."

. . . Which, if nothing else, also opened up the additional possibility of the local physician falling for her.

And so come Monday and the best of luck!

Car and Army Truck Collide, $1,200 Damage

A sideswipe collision between a car of a Toronto motorist and an army truck resulted in heavy property damage late Friday afternoon as the two vehicles came together just east of the Point Anne lane.

Allen Workman, Vaughan Rd., Toronto, was eastbound when just east of the four-lane road his car collided with an army truck driven by Lance Corporal Alex Martin of the RCSA, at Picton. Workman told police that a front tire may have blown causing his car to swerve into the army truck. Damage to Workman's car amounted to nearly $1,000 and to the army truck about $200.

Ontario Provincial Police Constable J. Fullerton, who investigated, said that no one was injured.

In a second accident Friday evening a car driven by Ronald Craft, R.R. 4, went out of control on No. 14 Highway, just north of the city, skidded into a tree, then swung around with the rear crashing a telephone pole. About $400 damage was done to the vehicle.

Craft told Police Constable Al Cockburn that he was forced to swing sharply to avoid a car which emerged from Donald St. As he did so his car went out of control and crashed into the tree.

Fifth Anniversary White Cane Club Being Celebrated

Clarence Morris, South Foster Ave., is a young man of twenty-one who was educated in Brantford. He is a King Scout who goes to the Kiwanis Troop of Boy Scouts as Assistant Scoutmaster every Monday night. He is president of a social club and every day he goes to work as a hand sander at McFarland Woodenware Company.

Up to this point Clarence could be any average young man, but there is this difference: Clarence carries a white cane, the school he went to is the School for the Blind, and he is president of the White Cane Club.

Clarence's story will never make the front page, but nevertheless it is a story of quiet courage as he goes unattended to work each day. He is a fine example of the rehabilitation program of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind whose object is to help the blind to help themselves. "Blindness is not a handicap," Clarence says, "but it is a nuisance."

For fifteen years Clarence has had to manage without sight, and the fact that he and many more have successfully coped with their difficulties may give hope to those newly blind who tell the field workers, "I might just as well be dead."

This month marks the fifth anniversary of the White Cane Club in Belleville. It provides social activities once a month, and about fifteen members and their escorts attend regularly. Lunch is provided by the Kinette Club at the Y.M.C.A. Bowling and other games are played, and there is usually some musical entertainment. In the summer a picnic is held and each Christmas the Rotary Club is host at a turkey dinner. Trips have been arranged to visit other clubs in Kingston and Peterborough. All the officers of the club are blind.

SPOTLIGHT CAPABILITIES

White Cane Week is an effort to spotlight the capabilities and achievements of the blind. They enjoy life, can turn in a good day's work, and look after their own homes. But there are still countless well-meaning persons who feel uncomfortable and helpless in the presence of the blind. Many people speak in a loud voice to them as though they were deaf, and offer assistance when it is not necessary. However if a person carrying a white cane is in difficulties it is a kind gesture to offer your arm, not to grasp his arm, especially at busy intersections.

"If one concentrates on the powers the blind have left, not on the vision they have lost, it is easy to consider the blind as normal people and to make good friends and neighbors among them." In the words of Mrs. W. C Bending, president of the Canadian Council of the Blind, "Just put the accent on ability, not disability."

Who Was This?

By A. A. M.

What was the name of the prophet of Israel to whom the Lord showed a vision of two baskets of figs placed before the temple of the Lord?

When the Lord asked the man of God, "What do you see?" he replied,

"Figs, the good figs are very good and the bad figs are very bad so that they cannot be eaten." Then the prophet was given the meaning of this vision. The Lord said unto him,

"I will regard as good, like the good figs, the exiles from Judah, whom I have sent away from this place into the land of the Chaldeans. I will set my eyes upon them back to this land. They will not be torn down, but built up, for I will plant them and not uproot them—I will give them a heart to know that I am the Lord. They shall be my people and I will be their God. For they shall return to me with their whole heart."

But the bad figs, the Lord likened unto the King of Judah, the remnant of Jerusalem who remained in the land and those who dwelt in the land of Egypt. Their doom was to be terrible indeed!

The Lord said, "I will make them a horror to all the kingdoms of the earth, to be a reproach, a byword, a taunt and a curse in all the places where I shall drive them. They shall be utterly destroyed by the sword, by famine and by pestilence!"

Find the name of this prophet and this story in the twenty-fourth chapter of Jeremiah.

Who was the Egyptian maid of Sarai, who became the second wife to Abraham, when Sarai, his first wife, was childless? In those early days a man had several wives but this seldom produced a happy home. When the Egyptian woman knew that she was going to have a child she looked on Sarai with contempt.

Then when Sarai complained to Abrahahm, he replied,

"Behold your maid is in your power; do to her as you please." Sarai dealt harshly with her and the Egyptian woman fled into the wilderness.

When she rested by a spring of water the angel of the Lord came upon her and asked,

"Where have you come from and where are you going?"

The second wife replied,

"I am fleeing from my mistress Sarai."

Then the angel commanded her, "Return to your mistress and submit to her." The angel told her,

"Your child will be a son and you will call his name Ishmael. The Lord will greatly multiply your descendents so that they cannot be numbered." He also warned her that her son would be a man at strife with his kinsmen, with his hand against every man and every man's against him.

The Egyptian woman replied to his revelation,

"Thou art a God of seeing" for she asked,

"Have I really seen God and remained alive after seeing him?" Therefore the well where she rested was given a special name, "Peerlahairoi."

The second wife obeyed the command of the angel and returned to Sarai. In time the Egyptian woman bore a son and called him Ishmael.

You will find this story and this Egyptian woman's name in the 16th Chapter of Genesis.

For Parents Only

On Learning How To Count

By NANCY CLEAVER

Did you have a terrible struggle with arithmetic at school when you were a child—or do you remember one of your chums who wept over addition or subtraction problems? Have you been wondering if you are apt to muddle your child if you attempt to help him with numbers?

Some youngsters seem to be just naturally bright in mathematics; a large group get along without too much difficulty. But in every class there are likely some children to whom arithmetic is indeed a perplexing subject. Is there anything which parents can do to help their little folk in their first acquaintance with numbers?

The old - fashioned counting rhymes cast their spell over many children. Perhaps you can remember saying in a kind of chant, as a small child, some version of:

"One, two, buckle my shoe;
Three, four, knock at the door;
Five, six, pick up sticks;
Seven, eight, lay them straight;
Nine, ten, a good fat hen."

COUNTING SONG

Or perhaps the "One little, two little, three little Indians," counting song was a favorite with you. Some modern educationists pour scorn on nursery rhymes, but they have survived for a good many years. A child has fun while he and mother repeat or sing them together, and he does learn the name of the lower digits.

The new emphasis in learning is to relate it to life situations. Thus a mother who wants her child's first introduction to arithmetic to be a pleasant one at school, prepares him for it by certain simple counting experiences at home. Three and four-year-olds love to help mother put away the groceries.

As mother sorts the canned goods she can say out loud, "One can of corn, one, two cans of tomatoes, one, two, three cans of soup." the Child who is almost ready for school may want to count oranges to see if there are a dozen.

Two or three children "playing store" can make their own "pretend money" by cutting out nickels, dimes and quarters from tinfoil. The experience in keeping accounts will help them see why storekeepers and homemakers both must know their way around in the world of arithmetic.

EXPLAIN VALUES

When a child is old enough to run on errands to the grocery store, counting money and change is another interesting number experience. Parents should take time to explain the value of nickels, dimes and quarters in terms of coppers.

It is easy to invent simple problems and make a game out of them as "Here is a foot ruler, and here is a yard stick. How many rulers would make one yard stick? Mother has a quarter and a dime. How many nickels could she change them for?" or "This is Wednesday, count on the calendar how many days are left in this week."

The child who has had opportunities to try to figure out the answers to simple problems is taking his first step in an important part of mathematics. Mother finds that it takes a little longer, but it is worthwhile to give Junior these simple exercises.

Best luck to you as you give your child "first aid" in arithmetic . . . but don't make the mistake of doing his sums for him. They are his job, not yours!

Stories of Famous Hymns

By HORACE B. POWELL

FIGHT THE GOOD FIGHT

Fight the good fight with all thy might!
Christ is thy strength, and Christ thy right;
Lay hold on life, and it shall be
Thy joy and crown eternally.

Run the straight race thru' God's good grace,
Lift up thine eyes, and seek his face;
Life with it's way before thee lies,
Christ is the path, and Christ the prize.

Cast care aside, upon thy Guide
Lean, and his mercy will provide;
Trust, and the trusting soul shall prove
Christ is its life, and Christ its love.

Faint not nor fear, his arms are near,
He changeth not and thou art dear;
Only believe, and thou shalt see
That Christ is all in all to thee.

The Apostle Paul's first epistle to Timothy, as we find it in the Scriptures, contains the admonition: "Fight the good fight of faith; lay hold on eternal life, whereunto thous art also called".

The Rev. John S. Monsell, English clergyman and hymnist, paraphrased that Bible verse when he planned the hymn lines which appear above. They made their initial appearance in 1863 in a collection of "Hymns of Love and Praise for the Church's Year", one of a series of volumes of verse published by the author.

Dr. Monsell was born in Ireland and was educated at Trinity College in Dublin. Two years after his graduation, in 1832, he took holy orders and began a career of varied service for the Church of England. His ministry and literary career were cut short, however, when in 1875 he died in a fall from the roof of a home which was being built for him.

In the last three decades of his life, Dr. Monsell wrote more than 300 hymns. Fight the Good Fight" is not the only one of these which has survived; two others, "Lord of the Living Harvest" and "To Thee, O Dear, Dear Savior", may still be found in most present day church song lists.

A Lift For Living

Sustaining Our Love

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

We speak of "falling in love." The expression suggests the spontaneity and naturalness of the process. The emotion may be kindled by the lovableness or the loveliness of another. But these natural loves lack the fuel in themselves to sustain their fires. They burn out.

After the wedding is over and happy couple set out together, each may say to the other, "You are all in life that I live for." Such words wound well and mean well. There should be a singleness of devotion, devoid of any competing loves. But there must be some supplementary loves.

Husband wife cannot preserve the romance and richness of their affection by devoting them selves exclusively to each other. When two persons set out with no interest higher than looking after each other, their relationship resembles the childish sport of teeter-totter. When one is down, the other brings him up. That helps, but each soon wearies of watching the other's ups and downs. It has been argued that husbands and wives should spend vacations away from each other. I have just heard of a couple who tried this advice. The husband joined several cronies for a fishing trip in Canada. The wife was to join some of her women friends at a summer resort. One night the wife was awakened by the telephone. She heard the anguished voice of her husband miles away. She had packed his several grips and he couldn't find his compass. Why had she forgotten the compass? Calmly she told him he would find it wrapped in a sweater at the bottom of his small case. He found it there. Perhaps this is an argument against separate vacations.

SERVE THINGS TOGETHER

Comradeship and mutual respect, so essential to enduring love, require the serving of things together, a community of interests, a devotion to common causes.

Likewise the parent-child relationship needs larger loyalties to preserve its wholesomeness. Left to itself mother love, so incomparably beautiful, can hurt the child by "the silver spoon" which gives too much or by "the silver cord" which asks too much.

Many a youth is too long sheltered from the deep satisfaction which comes through serving others. And many a grand parent is too soon shelved away from the same satisfaction. Life needs outgoing commitments which catch it early and keep it late.

Friendship reveals the same requirement of larger sustaining loves. Our finest personal comradeships are formed in circles of larger loyalties, such as the love of a school or the service of a common cause. What happens to friendship when these supporting ties are removed may be seen at class reunions or veterans' conventions.

Not long ago a friend told me what a "flop" his last class reunion had been. He said he grew tired of hearing various members tell about their grandchildren. They could hardly keep up their spirit throughout the evening. When they were students, the common interests of the campus provided the stimulus, but now that they were away from these, they had to arouse their spirits by artificial stimulants. And this they did. But alcohol which gives a "kick" is a poor substitute for our loyalty which gives a glow.

SUSTAINING LOYALTIES

Yes, our natural human loves need larger sustaining loyalties. This is one fact which Jesus must have had in mind when He declared that His disciples needed a love higher than that for father or mother or brother. He saw that love cannot be maintained by the mere principle of mutual reciprocity.

When love deteriorates to a matter of give-and-take, the tendency is to think more about the "take" than the "give." When friendship gets down to the mere business of balancing invitation with invitation, favor with favor, it becomes a pretty thing.

Our love for others is sustained by what we do for them even more than by what they do for us. Perhaps we should pause a moment to think that over.

Certainly the kindnesses and services of others do beget a loving response in us. But is it not also true that a mother feels a special nearness to the handicapped child who needs her most? Why? Because the deepest hunger of human nature is the desire to be needed.

It has been said that the good things in life are paid for in advance, the bad things are paid for afterward. Love is one of the good things. Aye, the best.

MUST BE A "COY" ON THE JURY!

A prisoner's paradise in Williamson, West Virginia, has been ordered demolished.

This unique way station is the Mingo county jail. Its chief claim to fame as a prison is that it is the most porous pokey in the United States. Prisoners with strength enough to leave usually did.

In the 59-year history of the prison mass breakouts were uncommon because prisoners escaped so fast that no mass of them could be accumulated.

Patchings of punctures made by prisoners in the rear wall of the prison are so numerous that the wall looks like it had undergone shell fire. Breakouts have been so frequent that persons loitering near the prison have been warned to beware of falling bricks. Tunnellings through the roof, walls and floors of the jail turned the building into a rabbit warren of escape routes.

Five prisoners escaped last July by breaking out through the wall at the second storey level and lowering themselves to the ground on bed sheets. In September five more tunnelled under the wall from a first floor cell block.

The son of the late "Devil Anse" Hatfield, leader of the famous feuding Hatfields, started this mass exodus 59 years ago by digging his way out and meeting a friend with a horse.

A recent escapee, waiting transfer to penitentiary, escaped through a hole left by a previous escapee before prison officials had had time to repair it. He was later captured near his home while drinking with friends.

"I didn't plan to escape," he told prison officials on his recapture. "But the hole was too tempting not to."

The exact number of escapees is unknown, probably because some of them escaped before they had been properly registered as prisoners. The Mingo county grand jury decided to abolish this unique prison last September. At the time of their investigation there were 44 prisoners in the building originally designed for 30.

No reason is given for the shiftless attitude of the 44 prisoners who refused to escape. Probably they were bored or maybe they decided that with winter coming on, they should plump for better housing. Or it might be that the prison glee club was not putting enough remorse into the "Prisoner's Song."

JOB OPPORTUNITY

Food tasting may have been a dangerous profession under certain circumstances during the Middle Ages, the type of occupation on which life insurance companies would have frowned had life insurance companies been in existence. Today, though, there are many who would regard such a job as not without its compensations.

Unfortunately food tasting has gone out of style except as a sideline for chefs, but wine tasting is an acceptable substitute. The movie censor must get an opportunity to get a slightly different slant on life from that accorded the common people. Such positions as these have an appeal all their own. But the wine tasters, the movie censors and other members of similar privileged fraternities never had it so good as those fortunate applicants for positions now being filled by the United States Council on Student Travel. The council is in the market for educational directors on trans-Atlantic liners.

Just why it should be necessary for a trans-Atlantic liner to have an educational director, even if the liner is being used to transport students, we do not know. There are certain hazards about ocean travel, and although an educational director may have an adequate knowledge of the history of art, international relations and economics, languages, philosophy and sociology, the selected curriculum, students may find their interest in these subjects somewhat less than normal. There is nothing like an Atlantic gale to make international relations, for instance, a matter of no immediate personal interest.

The educational directors, though, providing they are good sailors as well as being able to speak French, German, Greek or Italian in addition to English, may have quite a time during their job assignments, which will vary from one round-trip to periods of three to five months.

Added attraction—all positions will allow for vacations abroad.

ACTION ON THE SLOAN AWARD?

Support for the proposal of Chief Justice Sloan of British Columbia, federal arbitrator in last year's rail labor dispute, that Canadian railways be freed from the restrictive burden of the abnormally depressed freight rates on export grain comes from the Liberal member for Kootenay East, Mr. James A. Byrne.

Speaking in the House of Commons, Mr. Byrne points out that the low freight rates on export grain, fixed at the level of 1899, have forced the railways to increase substantially their tariffs on the movement of consumer goods and placed them in a difficult position when dealing with wage demands.

Certain it is that the railways cannot prosper when transportation costs, as they exist under the ramshackle freight rate structure of 1899, bear little relationship to cost. Yet so long as export grain, which normally constitutes about one-third of the total volume of rail freight traffic, continues to move at rates established more than half a century ago, it is obviously impossible to achieve a just and equitable distribution of the burden of rail transport costs.

LINCOLN

This his birthday! One who came
From a simple cabin door,
Step by step to rise to fame
And be loved forevermore.

Lincoln! Leader of a host
Love of liberty inspired,
Strong when strength was needed most,
Wise when wisdom was required.

Calm, when furious was hate;
Patient under grievous care,
Never seeking to be great;
Wanting only to be fair.

Lincoln! Were he here today,
This his message brief would be:
Steadfast in the struggle stay.
Give your hearts to liberty.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

FEBRUARY 12, 1935.

The local police authorities state that over 300 revolvers have been registered at the police station since the new law calling for the registration of all revolvers and pistols came into effect.

The King George Home and School Club has been four years in operation and at a recent meeting the following officers were elected: president, Mrs. W. J. Harrison (re-elected); vice president, Mrs. C. W. Bankey; secretary, Mrs. R. W. Smith; treasurer, Mrs. W. J. Johns.

In an intermediate hockey match at Madoc the Marmora team defeated the Madoc team, the score being 4 to 2. The following composed the teams: Madoc: Nickle, West, Embury, Henderson, Alexander and Akey; subs: Ashley, Clarke, Keller and Noble. Marmora: Stuart, Shannon, Burns, Campion, Hewitt and Neal; subs: Loveless and Smith.

Miss Dorothy Elliott has returned home from Lindsay where she spent two weeks with her sister, Mrs. Ralph Smith.

A large crowd of winter sport enthusiasts enjoyed the facilities of the Bay of Quinte Country Club over the week-end. Skiing parties formed the major group and quite a number enjoyed excellent skating on the bay near the club.

Dr. J. McDonnell of Pueblo, Colorado, is visiting friends here.

His Grace Archbishop Gauthier of Kingston, will arrive here tomorrow evening to visit St. Michael's Parish.

The roads in this section of the country are blocked with snow. The fall was very heavy and accompanied by a strong wind the roads soon became blocked with drifts six feet high in many places. The stages are unable to get through and the railway trains are hours late.

The Rev. O. C. Elliott, pastor of the Baptist Church here, took part in an induction service at the Baptist Church in Lakefield on Sunday.

From our file copy at this time in 1895: "Preparations for the opening of Hotel Quinte are being pushed forward as fast as possible."

From our file copy at this time in 1895: The country roads are gradually becoming more passable and our friends from the country, who have been shut in for some time, are flocking to town in large numbers. We are glad to see them."

Insurance Values Drop

(The Printed World)

Anyone who owns an insurance that was paid up before 1939 may amuse himself by calculating what it is now worth in comparison with what he paid for it or in comparison with what his beneficiary would have received, had the policy become a claim sixteen years ago. (That is a euphemism for death favored by some insurance agents).

Since policies and premiums differ, the sum is one that every policy-holder will have to work out for himself, but it is safe to say that, in purchasing power, the face-value of a pre-war paid-up policy must have declined by at least half. For every thousand dollars in 1939 values that a man might have left his widow by insurance, he will leave only five hundred today.

The life insurance companies are not to be blamed for this decline in values, except in so far as they, with other financial institutions, have not fought sufficiently against the robber of their customers' savings. Inflation has been the criminal, let loose upon the thrifty under the highest government auspices. Every Ottawa department that has hired one of the thousands of unnecessary civil servants put on the payroll in recent years is a partner in the crime and a sharer in the loot.

A life insurance policy that would be attractive to many purchasers would be one geared to the cost of living. Premiums would have to rise with the c.-of-l. index, but benefits payable would rise also. Working out the premium rates would be something of an actuarial puzzle, but not necessarily impossible of solution. The great difficulty for the insurance companies might be to find some way of hedging against the declining values of government bonds, of which they are large holders. These investments are also subject to the constant attrition caused by government sponsored inflation.

Can Appeal Exam Results

(Fort William Times-Journal)

A student in a West Berlin University went to court to appeal against being failed in academic examinations. The German court ruled that examiners' decisions may be contested in the administrative courts if the grounds for appeal are that the examiners applied the examination rules arbitrarily or faultily. That business should be stopped right there, else Junior is going to come home from high school one day and say: "Pop, call our lawyer. I've failed again."

Foreigner On English

(BBC Newsletter)

Andre Drucker is a European who spent most of his early life in Bohemia and Vienna. He came to England fifteen years ago not knowing any English but within a year was broadcasting in his adopted tongue. He considers his English to be quite passable now but still finds it a bewildering language and in a recent broadcast he put forward some of the reasons for his bewilderment-reasons which could not be taken entire seriously. The dictionary, he said, had defined language as "speech peculiar to a nation". "It follows," said Mr. Drucker, "as the English are somewhat peculiar themselves so their language must be particularly peculiar." It was the only language, so far as he knew, which could be, and was, spoken with a closed mouth. "I am not a scientist but my guess is that the eternal fog and smog has something to do with it," he said. "Naturally no one likes a load of soot settling on one's tongue every time one is saying "Grand morning, isn't it?" It was this closed mouth technique, he thought, which had created the stiff upper lip for which the English were so famous. He had seen the English mouth opened sufficiently to allow a pipe stem to be inserted, or a fork at feeding time, but for ordinary conversational purposes it remained shut.

But the chief difficulties in English were those of pronunciation and spelling. He thought at first that these peculiarities were defensive, a sort of "English for the English and keep the foreigners out of it", but his present theory was that the confusion was kept up at great cost and at great strain on the memory because the English loved anything odd. "They stick to their own British systems of measuring, weighing and moneying, all utterly obsolete, cumbersome and difficult to grasp, and they love having a language which is more eccentric than anybody else's. True, it is a nuisance but it is different and and difficult," he said. "So difficult that they have accepted it as normal to remain semi-literate all their lives.

Nobody raises an eyebrow if the most learned men of the country declare in public that they can't spell their own language. They actually boast of it, especially at literary luncheons," said Drucker. He cited the famous novelist who announced that her manuscripts were full of spelling mistakes, a confession that a foreign writer would consider degrading but which the English received with laughter. "They don't like their men and women of culture, science, society and politics to be without weaknesses. A Siegfried-like hero who has only one vulnerable spot bores them. Happily they all share the spelling weakness. They is no greater market for English dictionaries than England", he said.

Pronunciation was an even greater hazard and there was a wealth of confusion. He thought there was a great unknown someone who invented all the fearful and incomprehensible rules and ordained that "'drought' is 'drowt' and 'draught' is not'drowt'; that 'rough' is 'ruff' and 'plough' is not 'pluff' and 'nought' is neither 'nowt' nor 'naft', and 'bow' is also 'baouw' but 'flow' is never 'flaouw'."

The people who had once mastered these intricacies had endless fun in keeping a poker face when a foreigner misbehaved, as he invariably did, with these utterly confusing syllables. Drucker had discovered that when broadcasting he was not allowed to pronounce certain names and words at the microphone until the producer of the program had telephoned the BBC's Pronunciation Unit, an essential department in a country that had such an odd language. Sometimes the producer would say that the Pronunciation Unit could give no definite ruling and he could please himself as no one listening would know better. "It is on this point that the English make a grave mistake," said Drucker seriously, "there are people about who know all about the English spelling and pronunciation. They are foreigners."

TV Laughter Machine-Made

(Victoria, B. C. Times)

Television producers have found that the problem of raising a laugh with a comedy program is less than the problem of curbing the guffaws. Carried away by hilarity, the studio audience tends to laugh too long and so interfere with the split-second timing needed for the broadcast. At the same time, surveys have proved that television audiences in the quiet of the nation's darkened living rooms need the stimulus of laughter pouring in with the comedian's words and image.

The answer, of course, was clear: keep the studio audience off the air and dub in laughter as needed. This was done with great success, using tape recordings of the studio audience's reaction. The next step also was obvious. Stored recordings of the laughter from old programs, perhaps years old, were employed. This moved Mr. Fred Allen to remark that the laughter being heard on the air was that of people long since dead. Recordings of all kinds of audiences were freely available. Producers could easily buy a set of controlled chuckles; a burst of applause with murmurs of appreciation; a good, unrestrained yak; a completely abandoned boffo.

And so came the next step. Someone invented a machine that makes laughter noises. By pushing various buttons, all combinations of snicker, chuckle, cackle and roar can be reproduced. The process thus has gone full cycle. Modern science has reached its peak of achievement in this successful demonstration of the metallic glory of our age; a machine laughing at a machine.

Pretty Girl From Beaker?

(Windsor Star)

All of us know how easy it is, in the oral or written language, to make a faux pas. In trying to say what we mean we often convey a different impression, with startling effects.

An example has come to hand in a release by the Canadian Association of Textile Colorists and Chemists. Its opening sentence says: A group of Quebec scientists are currently pondering the problem of how to produce a pretty girl, draped in multi-colored fabrics, from an ordinary chemists' beaker."

This certainly is a miraculous age. Imagine chemists, puttering around with tubes, by entirely artificial means creating a lovely young woman! Not just a mere infant, but a fully developed woman who could be attractively draped in multicolored fabrics! And such dramatic news was forwarded to us in a prosiac manner by ordinary mail.

The concluding paragraph, read in conjunction with the opening one, added to the effect. An expert was quoted. "It is not the kind of thing our chemistry professors prepared us for, but it presents an interesting technical problem." Indeed it does!

Our pleasurable vision of pretty girls being produced by the wizardry of chemistry was shattered, however, by the intervening paragraphs. We learned only the multicolored fabrics are being produced by chemistry. Our astonishment diminished.

ROADMENDERS ALL

One of my favorite books for many years has been "The Roadmender." by Michael Fairless. The author wrote under a man's name but her real name was Margaret Fairless Barbour. She was the daughter of a country lawyer. This little book was written while she was dying of consumption, so that she never lived to see it in print, but it is one of the real treasures of literature. Though published fifty years ago, it still sells, and has sold in a dozen and more special editions.

So devoted to this book have I been that I collected every edition I could find, so that I have a book shelf of nothing but "Roadmender" specials! It is the simple story of a man who repaired the road in England. The author has made us all roadmenders, taking note of nature, the human stream, and of God's love toward all—from the humblest to the greatest.

The spirit of the book is all summed up in these lines: "After all, what do we ask of life here or indeed hereafter, but leave to serve, to live, to communicate with our fellow-men and with ourselves; and from the lap of earth to look up into the face of God?" This is one of those "brief books" that I have mentioned so many times in this column. I understand that over half a million copies of this little book have been sold in all editions. I hope that millions are yet to be printed and read.

Yes, we are all roadmenders, meeting all comers as we repair the way and communicate with our friends and strangers along the great road of life. A humble task, but one made rich and full of satisfaction because of the opportunities for service in the contacts made every day of our life. Michael Fairless lives today in her beautiful book, and millions bless her memory.

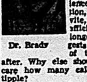
CALORIES IN ALCOHOLIC BEVERAGES



Dr. Brady

Immediately after the holiday season the mail brought numerous inquiries concerning the number of calories or "food value" of alcoholic beverages. This sudden interest in the effects of crapulence on nutrition, good looks, vite, functional efficiency and longevity suggests the remorse of the morning after. Why else should any one care how many calories in his tipple?

In general, wine contains two to four times as much alcohol as beer, but less carbohydrate.

The carbohydrate in beer consists of maltose and dextrin. Maltose is a kind of sugar produced by the germination (with warmth and moisture) of grain, usually barley, and by fermentation of the starch in the grain. Dextrin is a gummy carbohydrate formed as an intermediate product in the grain by heat, acids or enzymes. Both maltose and dextrin yield the same number of calories as sugar.

The sweet wines contain approximately a teaspoonful of sugar to the ounce or three teaspoonfuls in the glass of wine.

Dry wines, contain little or no sugar.

According to Food and Beverage Analysis by M. A. Bridges, B.S., M.D., F.A.C.P., (Lea & Febiger) various kinds of beer yield from 100 to 135 to the glass — a standard measuring cupful. A glass (wineglassful, about 3½ ounces) of champagne 90 calories, port wine 165 calories, Rhine wine 70 calories, claret 60 calories. A glass (brandy glass, 30 cc, about an ounce) of brandy 70 calories, Bourbon or rye whiskey 85 calories, hard cider 40 calories.

These figures are the calorifacient effects of the beverages if we assume that all the sugar and all the alcohol is burned in the body.

All of the sugar in alcoholic beverages or in soft drinks may be burned in the body, that is, utilized to produce heat or muscular energy.

But capacity to burn alcohol in the body is limited.

If more alcohol is taken than the body can burn to produce heat or muscular energy, the excess merely intoxicates and impairs both mental and physical efficiency. When the odor of alcohol is in the breath, the individual has taken more than he can utilize and he is "under the influence", or "slightly intoxicated" or just plain "drunk", depending on the extent of overindulgence.

The caloric or fuel value of alcohol is greater than that of carbohydrate (starch, sugar) or protein (lean meat, egg white, milk curd, the nitrogenous constituent of nuts and vegetables) but less than that of oil or fat.

Webster says food is nutritive material which, absorbed or taken into the body, serves for purposes of growth, work or repair and for maintenance of the vital processes. Food serves another purpose, not mentioned by Webster. It supplies heat.

Whatever the old timers and old soaks thought or think about it, we know that any one can endure exposure to extreme cold better without alcohol.

Now if you suspect I'm a (insert appropriate adjectives) teetotal abstainer your suspicion is well founded, and if you think I'm rabid on the subject of alcoholic indulgence you're right again. You want to make anything of it?

Strength for the Day

WALK IN FAITH

St. Paul in one of his epistles urges his followers to walk in faith.

This is a striking statement—walk in faith. There are plenty of people who talk in faith. There is nothing easier than that. One can memorize a creed and recite it with a glib tongue and call himself a Christian—that is, if he is utterly naive and unfamiliar with the Bible. For the Bible nowhere states that people are saved just by believing something. It insists that this belief must be of a variety which makes a spiritual difference —manifests itself in new attitudes and in new ways of living.

All religion begins with belief, but religion which ends with belief is not religion at all but a delusion and a snare. Belief is the first step in the direction of faith. One of the great religious leaders of the past often put in parenthesis after the word "faith" the hyphenated word "trust—obedience." The seed of religious life is belief; the tree is faith; the fruit is obedience.

A test to which all of us should subject ourselves is a regular check-up on the extent to which we really practise the things we profess to believe. Many people have perfectly good Christian doctrines that rattle around in their empty hearts and minds like loose cargo being tossed about in a ship during rough weather.

Walk in faith—don't just talk in faith.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

An office building which I frequently have to enter is growing a little out of date. It has reached the stage that it seems always to need paint, and there is a frowsy sort of news stand in its lobby. It has three elevators, only two of which are normally running.

The elevator operators are middle-aged men, maybe a trifle worse than middle-aged. Sometimes they are in full uniform, which is grey with tired silver braid around the lapel edges. Sometimes they are in half-uniform, and at other times they turn up in any old clothes.

And they are the worst-tempered old coots you ever met.

"Come on, come on!" they will snarl at the passengers to hurry them aboard.

They slam the doors in your face just as you are stretching out to enter. Their answers to enquiries from passengers are in grunts and mutters. They never look at anyone. Something else is always on their minds. They engage in hostile badinage with the news stand girl and with the rowdy office boys who are always congregated in the lobby drinking cokes.

They are surly, insolent, impolite and full of growls.

The general manager of the company that owns the building, and occupies two floors of it, is an old acquaintance of mine.

"It's time," I said to him, yesterday, when I just about had my nose clipped of by rudely slammed elevator gates, "it's time you fired or pensioned off those two rheumatic old Airedales you've got running your elevators."

"Who?" cried my friend, astonished. "You mean Herbie and Joe?"

"I never felt attracted to learning their names," I admitted. "But they're impossible."

"Why," expostulated my friend, "they're characters!"

"Characters, is it?" I reflected.

And I reflected further on the thought that a great many ill-mannered, grumpy, crotchetty people, both sexes, get away with murder among their familiars being promoted to characters.

Couple's Diamond Wedding Celebrated in California

TRENTON (Special) — Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Higgins of R.R. 6, Trenton, who will celebrate their diamond wedding anniversary in Pasadena, California, on February 20 have made 28 motor car trips to California since 1923. They left recently in a late model car driven by their only son Fred, who lives at home on the farm with his father and mother. They visit a daughter, Mrs. Ross Young, 3141 East California Street, who was educated in Trenton schools and married the son of a well known Gardenville family.

It was a real cold snowy winter's day in 1895 when Mary Jane Martin and Charles Benjamin Higgins were married in King Street Methodist Church parsonage, Trenton, by the late Reverend William Johnson. The snow banks were so high that Cunningham's horse-drawn livery bus could hardly make the Grand Trunk station, now the CNR upper station They caught the train for Belleville, where they spent their honeymoon in a hotel on Front street.

The Higgins who have travelled 150,000 miles back and forth across the American continent made their first trip in a Grey Dort car. Each year they return to their productive fruit farm north of the telephone road once covered by towering pine trees and cleared by the Higgins family after they settled in Murray township after leaving Belleville, where Mr. Higgins was born.

Mr. and Mrs. Higgins have been semi-retired for years but they turned their life's work of growing fruit and raising flowers into a healthful hobby, while their son develops a six acre vineyard and orchards of cherries, peaches and fancy apples.

On February 20 the Higgins will be honored at a party in California arranged by their daughter and son-in-law. They will be receiving gifts and messages of congratulations from their many friends in Trenton and the district.

GIRLS' SPORTS

The Girls' Quinte Juniors played one game this week against O.S.D. Juniors at the O.S.D. It was a fast well-checked game with a very close score right up till the end. In the last quarter, O.S.D. broke ahead against close guarding by L. Anderson and J. MacDonald. O.S.D. took the game 24 to 20.

Scorers for Quinte were: Canning 11, Lang 4, Musclow 3, Hatfield 2.

Scorers for O.S.D. were: Garnett 11, Drewry 10, Bishop 1, Caldwell 1, Beaumont 1.

Quinte Juniors have won 2 out of 4 games this season.

BOYS' SPORTS

The Boys' Quinte Juniors played one game this week against Trenton at Quinte Secondary School.

Quinte was in top performance and took the lead in the early minutes of the game. They held this lead till the end and took the game 39 to 24. Quinte has been unbeaten in the five games they have played.

Scorers for Quinte were: Walmsley 11, Musgrove 6, Dickie 6, Gatland 6, Elliott 4, Armstrong 2, Pearce 2, Beeby 2.

Scorers for Trenton were: Hilton 8, Cottrell 7, Alexander 4, Hicks 3, Foreman 2.

This game was especially important to Quinte because it means that they now have the right to play off with the other group champions in Toronto.

This week's assembly was presented by Miss Shantz, form G9A. Helen Burkitt of G11B, played for the opening exercises.

Mr. Reid introduced the guest, Mr. Stewart Robb, who was representing the Belleville Theatre Guild. Mr. Robb gave a brief talk about the Drama Festival.

Gail Juby opened the program with a song and dance called "I Haven't Got a Worry." Then were favored with a piano solo by Jara Janecka, who played "Farantelle".

W.I. Presents Life Membership Pin

MOUNTAIN VIEW — The February meeting of Mountain View Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Clifford Barber with the president, Mrs. S. Barber presiding. There were 20 ladies present.

After the opening, the president asked that one minute of silence be observed in memory of an Institute member, the late Mrs. J. D. Keeble, and also in memory of a former member, Mrs. George Wilson. Several donations were approved.

PRESENTATION

Mrs. Ernest Wallbridge was presented with a life membership pin and certificate by Mrs. Ben Anderson, who spoke highly of the personality of the recipient. This life membership was especially in honor of Mrs. Wallbridge's golden wedding anniversary which she and Mr. Wallbridge had recently celebrated.

A sing-song was held with Mrs. Ben Anderson at the piano.

Mrs. Clark Sprung, convener for Historical Research, gave an interesting paper on "Ontario and Its Growth."

A bird contest was conducted by Mrs. Alfred Poste with the favors going to Mrs. Hatfield and Mrs. E. Wallbridge.

Mrs. George Neal moved a vote of thanks to the hostess for her hospitality.

After the meeting closed the hostess served refreshments and a social half hour was enjoyed.

MOUNTAIN VIEW — Mr. Chas. Sprague spent the supper hour on Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Poste and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark Sprung were Saturday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Chappell.

PRESENTATION

During the course of the church service on Sunday, Mrs. Ben Anderson, who has been church organist for over 40 years, and who has recently resigned, was presented with a leather-bound hymnary by the congregation. The presentation was made by the presiding minister, Mr. Morrow.

ROYAL BONES IN DUMP

MALINES, Belgium (Reuters)—Remains believed to be those of Marguerite of York, sister of Edward IV, 15th-century king of England, were recovered from a refuse dump here Thursday by a local archivist. Workmen had left the remains on the trash heap after finding them in a lead coffin on the site of an old church.

HI-Y SCOREBOARD

BASKETBALL

The powerful B.C.I. Seniors put on a superior demonstration of ball handling, passing and scoring while slaughtering Bancroft 108-28 last Wednesday B.C.I. surged out in front 20-6 in the first quarter and increased the route to 51-14 by half-time. They did not let down as one would expect. With a comfortable 37-point margin in the third quarter they soared further ahead 79-21. Batchelor paced the winners' attack with 22 points while Parkhurst hooped 14. Coghlan was high scorer for Bancroft with 9 points.

Players and points:

Bancroft: Bruce, Hibbard 6, Leedy, Rupnow 2, Coghlan 9, Crosby 8, Leveque.

B.C.I.: Geneja 6, Farnsworth 8, Batchelor 22, Craig 9, Smith 3, White 4, Parkhurst 14, Bennett 7, Gault 8, Ablarde 7, Varco 9, Deacon 5.

I regret that at the time of publication no information of the Junior basketball game between B.C.I. and Bancroft had been obtained. A complete summary of the game will be featured in this column next Saturday.

FLOOR HOCKEY

In a sudden death semi-final play-off game the Beavers slaughtered the Bronchos 14-5. The win gave the Beavers the right to play the Orioles in a two out of three game final series for the Lower School championship. Wilson scored four goals and Thomas three to pace the Beavers' attack. Roseberry, R. Dickson and Morris each scored two goals while Foster gained the other one. Maracle scored three goals and O'Neil two goals for the losers.

In the first game of the Lower School finals the Beavers tied the Orioles 4-4. Thomas scored two goals for the Beavers while Roseberry and Wilson got the others. Irwin had two goals for the Orioles with Rowbottom and Wood also scoring.

The Orioles trounced the Beavers 9-6 in the second game of the Lower School finals. The first game ended in a tie. Irwin with five goals and Wood with three led the Orioles to victory. Rowbottom had one goal and one assist while Hill and Vaughan each received assists. Thomas scored four goals and one assist for the Beavers with Wilson and Roseberry getting the others.

ICE HOCKEY

The Blackhawks whitewashed the Mohawks 3-0 last Tuesday. Calver with two goals and Cornell scored for the winners. Foster received two assists and Dalrymple one. Charlton had a comparatively easy time while registering a shut out.

In one of the best games of the season the Buzzards tied the Canucks 3-3 in the final second of play last Thursday. Ab Wright scored all three Canuck goals with McKay assisting on two and Criss the other. Buskard scored two goals, Kingston a goal and an assist and Horwood two assists for the Buzzards. Two disputes arose in this game. The first occurred when Buskard shot and hit the goalpost. The puck bounced loosely about in the crease between Moore's pads before he was finally able to scoop it up. Buskard vigorously protested that the puck had been fished out of the net. As it was the officials made the correct decision. No goal.

The second outburst occurred after the game. Some fans sitting near the timekeeper's box believed that the game was actually over before Kingston's wobbly shot entered the net to tie the score. Whether it is true or not I don't know but that's the word of the grapevine.

COMING EVENTS

One of the school's great annual events is drawing near. This year's presentation of Kampus Kapers steps into the stage spotlight next March third and fourth. Don't miss it. The program is completely comprised of school talent featuring the best entertainers in their respective fields such as music, comedy and drama. Show your school spirit and support this spectacular event.

PROSPECTOR TELLS OF SMUGGLING RADIUM HOME AFTER WAR

Ontario provincial police in Port Arthur are investigating the stranger-than-fiction story of a former Canadian army provost corporal who says the two-ounce vial of highly radioactive powder now lodged in radium vault of the General hospital in Port Arthur was one of three taken by himself and a member of the Dutch underground from a safe in the laboratory of a group of German scientists in Holland early

WEST HUNTINGDON

L.O.L. Elects Officers Presents Scholarships

WEST HUNTINGDON — The annual meeting of L.O.L. No. 3, Central Hastings, was held on Tuesday at Madoc, County Master Mr. Milton Hagerman presiding over the morning and afternoon sessions. The credentials committee reported 66 delegates present, representing the 22 lodges in the county.

The special address was well given by John McMurray, of Albert College. The returns committee reported an increase in membership with honors going to Marmora lodge, having the greatest number. Special mention was made of the two juvenile lodges in the county, one at Marmora, and one at Ivanhoe. Both are progressinv favorably.

SCHOLARSHIPS PRESENTED

A pleasing feature of the meeting was the presentation of two scholarships of $100 each to two young men who are entering the ministry, Mr. Paul Packman, a student at Queen's University, and Mr. John McMurray, of Albert College.

An invitation to hold the 12th of July commemoration at Madoc was accepted.

Past County Master Mr. Gordon Moffatt conducted the election of officers for 1955 and those thus honored are:

County Master, Nelson Howard, Sulphide; deputy County Master, Don Rodgers, Stirling; county chaplain, Rev. A. Beare, Springbrook; assistant county chaplain, Archie Sinclair, Tweed; recording secretary, Arthur Wilson, West Huntingdon; assistant secretary, Arthur Hassall, West Huntingdon; marshal, Wilfred Phillips, Madoc; treasurer, Harold Martin, Stirling; first lecturer, George Gordon, Queensboro; second lecturer, Gordon Carleton, Moneymore.

The above officers were installed by past master of Ontario East, Fred Bateman, who also presented past county master Milton Hagerman with a past master's jewel.

DIG UP ANCIENT BONES

BORDIEGHERA, Italy (AP)—Two ancient Romans, otherwise unknown to history, made their mark in world annals Thursday. Their ashes were discovered in a tomb at this northwestern Italian town. The Romans were Flavius Lucretianus and his wife, Julia Fuscina, believed to have lived about 1,700 years ago. Their tomb, with glass and brick vases nearby, was uncovered during excavations for a new building. Fragments of stone gave their names.

Persistence Wins Top Labor Job For One-Time Plumber from Bronx

By NORMAN WALKER

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Patience and persistence have made a one-time Bronx plumber, George Meany, the top man in American organized labor.

A stocky, 230-pounder with a cigar constantly clenched in his teeth, Meany is well equipped with wit and ability. But ceaseless plodding after objectives is a major reason for his success.

Few gave him much chance when, on being chosen president of the American Federation of Labor in late 1952, Meany announced his goal was to merge the AFL with the rival Congress of Industrial Organizations.

Yet with characteristic diplomatic skill he calmed the jealousies and fears of fellow union chiefs and steered the AFL-CIO merger deal through top-level union meetings here this week.

CHOICE OF ALL

Meany now is the unchallenged choice of all organized labor's moguls, both AFL and CIO, to head the new 15,000,000-member organization. He seems to have won their complete confidence

At 60 he is healthy and vigorous, and enthusiastic over his prospective new job.

He is the sort who, when balked, is willing to wait to put his ideas across but never will be detoured.

Meany loves to play golf and gin rummy. He spends a few weeks every winter sunning in Florida. A big man, he once put away great quantities of food but now sticks to a rigid diet. A Roman Catholic, he is a regular churchgoer.

He closely follows news from abroad and is a staunch anti-Communist. It was largely through his guidance that the AFL helped many European and Asian labor organizations get back on their feet after the Second World War.

Once when Meany was introduced as guest speaker at a National Press Club luncheon in Washington the point was made that he had started out as a plumber. The audience was charmed with this quick response:

"Anyone who doubts a plumber's ingenuity never got a bill from one."

KING'S SONG POPULAR

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP)—A new song by King Phumiphou Aduldet is topping the hit parade in Thailand. "We Want to Be Happy Today" is the title. The 27-year-old monarch is an accomplished jazz musician.

Women's Activities

ST. PETER'S W.M.S.

MADOC. — The St. Peter's Presbyterian Women's Missionary Society held its February meeting in the church vestry.

After the opening hymn and the Scripture reading by Mrs. Bailey, Mrs. David Blakely was requested to take the chair of honor. A life membership was presented to her by the president, Mrs. Field Allen, and Miss Van Kleek with most gracious words welcomed her as a life member of the society.

Mrs. Spencer was in charge of the meeting, assisted by her daughter, Mrs. Cecil Wood. Mrs. Spencer told of India and her rice lands, and of a chemical fertilizer which has been a national triumph, that has increased the rice yield in some parts of India to such an extent that the ration has been lifted for the first time in twelve years. India is now looking for a market to export her rice.

A poem "Obedience" was given by Mrs. Blakely. Mrs. Wood then took the W.M.S. on a visit to the rural women of India, to their homes, their farms, and their schools which are crowded. The Indian government welcomes our educational efforts and our hospitals but they do not want their people to be taught about Christ the Saviour of mankind. So the missionary has to live the life of Christ, as he works among the Untouchables, the lepers, the orphans, and the blind, of whom there are so many in that far off land. The life span of the Indian is 27 years.

The task of the missionary is great and the time may be short, as India, too, may shut her doors to the gospel as Red China has done.

After the closing exercises, an enjoyable social hour was spent with refreshments being served by Miss Van Kleek and Mrs. Blakely.

World Tour by Cargo-Liner

By Lavonia Stockelbach

Inside Malaya

The Malays are now outnumbered by the Chinese and have a little scorn for the Chinese industry and acquisitiveness and are a happy peace loving people satisfied to live day by day. I think one of the outlets for their happiness is in the gay clothes they wear. The streets are picturesque with the bright colors of both the Malaya and the Indians of whom there are many. The Indian women do not wear their many folds of dress with the same neatness as the Malays, but both have a keen sense of the artistic.

COURTEOUS PEOPLE

On saying how much I should like to live in Malacca it was immediately suggested that I stay and give lessons in art to children, several could be found within a few days and a score promised within a month all agreeing that my demand for a two-hour day would be satisfactory to all concerned! It could be pleasant for they are an exceedingly courteous people and in the households with Malayan help they are so smilingly friendly and gentle that you can overlook some minor faults.

Their society is based on the family, clan, village and so they have no abstract idea of loyalty to a state; they have not yet found a common patriotism.

There has been free education for a century and although there has been no legal action to enforce attendance, number of schools has increased by more than a hundred during 1953. There are some separate girls schools where domestic science, cookery, laundry, home-nursing, and dress making are taught.

Townships will submit a request for a grant of funds to help the people themselves to build a school and teachers' quarters and to pay salaries. It is so very true that education asked for is ten times better than education forced on an unwilling people. Everything possible is being done to improve the standards and tone of the school.

CAUTIOUS FOLK

The Chinese are a cautious folk and do not like innovations but once convinced of the benefits to be derived go along whole-heartedly. There is one thing I noticed and that was the extension to Chinese school teachers for leave for those suffering from tuberculosis as there is a cruel amount of that dread disease but among many of the people the good of the treatment is undone when the patient is again at home away from supervision.

In the government report, I like the sentence "It is a pleasure to see purposeful activity going on in an atmosphere of easy discipline in a very large number of the primary classrooms."

Physical education is well looked after and if the exhibition I saw of Badminton is any criterion of the other training, it is of a very high standard. The natural grace of the girls improved by training gives a beautiful speed that is almost incredible.

FINE DRESS MATERIALS

It was my great desire to see some of the fine native silvercraft and the typical woven sarongs. I examined many of the latter and was glad to see that somewhere in this drearily clad world beautiful materials, almost imperishable materials, were still being produced.

Both the silverware and the weaving are often done under the most primitive conditions. The looms are crude and made of local timber and weaving is done by hand and bare feet. The brilliant silk sarongs with gold thread woven in take from three to six weeks to make and as fashions rarely change it was worth while to invest money in a length of material that would last so long. Shakespeare has truly said that fashion wears out more apparel than the man, but where there is no change of fashion one can more easily afford a beautiful garment.

The women who were at the farewell reception given to the Premier of Malay in Kuala Lumpur were, indeed, most gloriously arrayed except the white women who looked rather dull by comparison.

The working of silver and brass is more or less restricted to certain families or guilds who keep to themselves and hand down from generatio to generation the secrets of the craft. One silver necklace was made up of fine pieces of filigree connected by hundreds of tiny rings all made by hand and farming a harmonious design. Another used the horn of the water buffalo cut in ovals and joined by filigree. That same buffalo horn is carved into many lovely little designs. One I have represents a crane feeding her young; another is a bird apparently about to take a bath but the bath turns out to be an ash tray. . . .

UNUSUAL ARCHITECTURE

It is strange that the most beautiful and impressive architecture is not always so appealing as something smaller but beloved by the Spirit of Time. The old church in Malacca is such a one. The building material is a stone they call lacterite of a lovely warm terra cotta shade. The surrounding buildings are of the same stone and apart from the quiet dignity of the design the notable wonder is that high up in the walls are fan-like window spaces. At first they seem to be of stained glass until your attention is called to the fact that they have no glass at all but through the open spaces the glowing warm colors of the neighboring buildings show through.

Never have I seen such a fine effect achieved by such simple means. A glow is cast over the interior of the otherwise sombre church. Of course it is to be remembered that it is a very warm country where artificial heat is not needed. As I rested a swallow darted in and flew around. That probably would not disturb a congregation because it seems to be a habit for while I was waiting to have money exchanged at the bank several flew in there and everyone seemed used to it.

I found it much more disturbing to see the number of armed men on guard at the bank for the present "emergency" has its share of "Wild West" excitements. Then I bought some Malacca canes from the man who made them and who was selling them on the steps of one of the administrative buildings, so overhead expense was not put into the price of the canes.

One of the first things called to my attention in Malacca was the shrines to be seen in many Chinese homes. The doors were left wide open and one could, with discretion, look in when passing by. These were private houses but I was taken to a public one in an outlying and poor section of the town. You entered through a gate with painted carvings of flowers and fruits.

GORGEOUS NOT GARRISH

It was godgeous but not garrish. Inside was just a very large room at one end of which was the altar and at the two sides were round tables at which some students were studying and writing for apparently there is a close connection between their religion and education. At one table were half a dozen little glasses of water which we were politely invited to drink by the Chinese lady who seemed, one might say, to be doing the honors. She had a sweet face, benign and quietly happy as though she had peace in her soul.

We drank and a young boy, who spoke little English, explained that the water came from a very deep well at the back of the temple; water so pure and unfailing that the well was considered holy. We were asked to go out and see it and passing through a room at the back of the altar that was used for domestic purposes we enjoyed the dark coolness of the tree shaded spot.

Instead of lighting candles and placing them before the shrine, josh sticks took their place and smouldered slowly with a pleasing fragrance. We brought away with us a bottle of the water and a package of josh sticks while the children had a happy time examining everything to their heart's content and having things pointed out to them by the young boy.

It all seemed so cosy, so part of family life with the clothes hanging up in the yard to dry and preparations for a meal in progress while in the temple itself was the beautiful altar. The name of it was Bukin China.

MANY RELIGIONS

If one wants to study the religions of the world come to Malaya. Here we find without searching the main religions and their many branches, Buddhist, Muslims, Taoist, Christian, of which latter the Roman Catholics and the Methodists predominate.

You can recognize the Muslims who have been on the pilgrimage to Mecca by the white cloths bound around their heads. They are considered somewhat holier than those who have not made the pilgrimage.

In 1953 there were 5,981 pilgrims plus 21 infants. There were three deaths on the outward journey and 34 on the return.

Port Arthur Trades and Labor Council Headed by Woman

PORT ARTHUR, Ont. (CP)—An energetic nurse's aid has made history here by being elected the first woman president of the Port Arthur Trades and Labor Council. She may be the first woman in Canada to hold a post of this type.

Mrs. Marion Kushner, 38, has served on the council executive for some years and has firm opinions on a wide variety of subjects.

Through her work as a nurse's aide at the Port Arthur General Hospital, Mrs. Kushner is a member of Local 268 of the Building Service Employees international union. She first went to the Trades Council as a delegate from that group. Her husband, Joseph Kushner, is a carpenter. They have no children.

STEADY WORKER

A native of Braudon, Man., she came to Fort William in 1937 as a young girl to obtain work. There she was married in 1942 and the following year moved to Port Arthur. Six years ago she took her training as an aide and has been in the same job since.

She has taken an interest in labor's problems as far back as she can remember. But she has never become keenly interested in politics and firmly resists any attempts to introduce politics into union discussions.

This does not mean Mrs. Kushner is not interested in civic betterment. For labor as a whole, she does not think wages are the main talking point for the next few years. She sees it likely that more headway could be made by obtaining "fringe" benefits to raise living standards and create a happier life.

FIRM IDEAS

A great future for women in this line of endeavor is predicted by Mrs. Kushner. She has no hesitation in exhorting female workers to get into active labor groups.

She would also like to see more co-operation between Port Arthur and Fort William, in the belief that more new industries would result, bringing more jobs to Lakehead workers.

A few years ago the council, in a bitter internal struggle, ousted Communistic leanings. Mrs. Kushner remembers this and has served notice that no Reds will be allowed in while she is at the helm, "and that's definite."

SURPRISE FOR MALENKOV

OXFORD, England (Reuters)—A telegram was sent Thursday night to Georgi Malenkov, the deposed Soviet premier, by members of the Oxford University Union Society wishing him a "long and happy retirement." The telegram also invited him to take part in a debate Feb. 24 on the motion "This house refuses to be frightened by the Communist bogey."

Local Guide Association Holds Most Successful Tea

Sponsored by the local Guide Association and generously supported by the parents of all the Belleville Guides and Brownies a most successful tea was held in Bridge St. Sunday School auditorium on Thursday.

Mrs. A. A. Mathews, treasurer, and ticket conveper, presided at the door.

Guests were welcomed by District Commissioner Mrs. R. D. Arnott, Mrs. R. O. Dulmage, tea convener, and co-convener, Mrs. N. C. Cathers.

Framed in colors of yellow and brown, the home baking booth presented an appetizing picture of culinary beauty. Mrs. H. Kellar was in charge here, assisted by Mrs. R. T. Potter, Mrs. J. Dyble and Mrs. F. Burrows.

Convening the candy table, Mrs. T. Colden used colors of blue and yellow, with an intriguing centre of miniature Brownies around a tiny toadstool. Perhaps these wee replicas sprinkled fairy gold on the candy display as the cellophane bags and boxes of sweets vanished like magic. Assisting Mrs. Colden were: Mrs. E. Alyea, Mrs. J. Dickens, Mrs. H. Burley and Mrs. H. Frazer.

NURSERY PROVIDED

Many mothers availed themselves of the privilege of leaving their small children in the nursery under the capable care of Mrs. J. H. Govier, Mrs. W. A. Jordan, the Misses Doreen Breach, Lorna Donaldson, Mary Pearse and Marilyn Elliott.

Convened by Mrs. W. T. Meagher, the tea room with its comfortable arrangement, capable and gracious service, created an atmosphere of pleasant relaxation. Tea room hostesses were Mrs. W. J. Robinson and Mrs. Everett Smith.

LOVELY TEA TABLE

The tea table with lace cloth cover was beautiful with silver service and tri-branched candelabra with blue tapers flanking a floral centre of yellow carnations, daffodils, minosa and blue eurythas grass delightfully arranged in a blue Italian glass bowl.

Pouring tea at various times were: Mrs. A. Lewis, Mrs. H. Carr-Braint, Mrs. H. C. Brown, Mrs. W. N. Ponton, Mrs. M. E. Branscombe, Mrs. E. Logan, Mrs. H. S. Davis.

The ladies who served tea and those who replenished plates were trim in blue uniform as they were mostly all Guide or Brownie leaders, and included:

Mesdames J. Kuntze, F. Maund, J. Pringle, J. Vandervoort, R. Lennox, A. Adams, E. Jourard, K. Moult, P. Cleary, N. Gerow, H. Samuels, E. Burch, T. Stewart, W. L. Horwood.

Replenishing plates were, Mesdames W. Jones, W. Eakins, J. Sharland, T. Kelly, J. Hanley, G. Gist, J. Miles and Miss J. Payne.

The stage effect created by Mrs. J. C. R. Punchard at one end of the tea room was striking in its simplicity. Three Union Jack flags, and three Guide Company flags in V formation pinpointed a large gold Trefoil, which is the Guide emblem. Below the Trefoil in large letters of gold color was the Guide motto "Be Prepared".

Last but not least, mention is made of Mrs. N. Tremaine, kitchen convener, and her many assistants, Mesdames E. M. O'Connor, G. Durno, J. Dyble, W. St. Pierre, D. Gariepy, S. Else, J. Deryaw, J. C. R. Punchard, O. C. Murphy, T. Pigden, R. Faubert, W. Van Tassel, H. A. Bronson, A. Gilroy, E. Lidster and C. Heath.

Much credit is due the conveners and all others who helped in many ways to make this tea successful. The efforts of the Guides and Brownies in selling tickets helped considerably and their interest is appreciated. Prize winners for ticket sellers will be announced as soon as possible.

Highway Accidents—What To Do

By SHIRLEY AND BOB SLOANE

An accident, of course, is something that happened to the guy in the tangled wreck you passed on the road. Thus few drivers ever have any clear picture of what they would do in an accident involving themselves.

Let's hope it never happens, but in case it ever does, here are some of the do's and don'ts of highway mishaps.

Probably the most frequently overlooked "don't" is "don't obstruct traffic!"

For some unfathomable reason, most drivers have the impression that com hurricane or high water, you must leave your respective cars just where the bumpers grazed—even if that's all there was to the accident—and summon the police, no matter how many more important things the law may have to do.

Have you ever crawled in bumper to bumper traffic for hours only to find finally that the cause of it all is a couple of cars up the road that apparently did nothing more serious to each other than scratch chrome?

Of course it's happened to you, as it has to every driver. It probably occurred to you at the time that the drivers, and subsequently their insurance companies, could have settled things satisfactorily even if the drivers had pulled off the road and out of the way of traffic.

LEADS TO MORE TROUBLE

Obstructing traffic with stalled cars can—and often does—cause several more accidents. Most police officials are agreed (though laws differ somewhat) that if cars can move or be moved, get them out of the way after carefully marking off the area of the collision and position of the cars.

The same goes for injured people—providing they can be moved safely. But if there is any doubt, leave them where they are and call a doctor. That should be your very first move when there are injuries—skip the remarks to bystanders that begin with "Someone ought to . . . ." Arrange it yourself if you can move.

Though it's your privilge to call police in any accident, police prefer not to be called in what they call a "5-and-10" accident—a mishap where damage is so trivial that no insurance company would quibble about payment.

Of course, you should get some evidence first that the other guy is insured. "Five-and-10" accidents are those in which total damage is less than $50.

You should know the law in your own state pertaining to reporting accidents to the motor vehicles department, and make it your business to find out quickly about the law in the state you're visiting. Generally you must report any accident involving more than either $50 or $100 damage. Your insurance agent—who should be contacted promptly no matter where you are—will help you on that score.

You should also carry a card issued by your insurance company indicating that you are insured so you won't be unnecessarily detained by the other driver.

If you can't move your car, set up whatever you have in the way of warning lights or signs to protect oncoming drivers, and set them up a good distance behind your car. You ought to have a set of flares or similar warning device in your glove compartment. These are available inexpensively at any auto supply store. Being smacked again by an oncoming driver who doesn't see you is a possibility not to be taken lightly.

If othr cars stop at the scene of the accident get the names, addresses (from their drivers' licenses) of the drivers, and the registrations of their cars. If you see cars continue on without stopping try to at least get their registrations. Your lawyer or insurance man will decide how to use them.

As a matter of fact, it's a good idea to get the names and addresses of anyone around, whether or not you believe they saw the accident.

NOTE DAMAGE

Make a note of all damage to the other car. Many drivers repair past damages with your or your insurance company's check, passing off the old damage as your responsibility. If possible, get the other driver to sign a paper stating the apparent extent of damage. Make notes, too, as to when, where, and how the accident took place.

Never under any circumstances —except if all drivers involved agree not to call the police—leave the scene until police arrive. If you do, you can be charged with evading responsibility— a charge which can be much more serious than anything having to do with the accident itself.

In getting names and addresses of other drivers, always get them from drivers' licences; this protects you against drivers giving false information and also proves that the driver has a licence. If he can't produce one, either he hasn't got one or has left it home—both violations of the law and a score in your favor.

If injured persons are taken to the hospital, get the name of the ambulance service (if a private one), the hospital, and the attendant doctor.

(Q) "Is there any general ratio of train travel time as opposed to air travel?" — H.J.S., Allentown, Pa.

(A) On short trips you'll usually find that air travel (not including transportation to and from the airport or railroad station) is five to six times faster than rail. On long trips it can be eight to 10 times as fast.

Christ Church C.C. Plans Activities

February's first Monday evening brought together once again member of Christ church Contact club.

During the business with president Marguerite Cooke, presiding, the regular yearly pledges were renewed for contributions towards the upkeep of a missionary boy in India, Camp Hyanto, Junior and Senior Sunday schools, St. George's Sunday school, Summer Vacation Bible school, as well as candy and Christmas parcels to the Bishop Horden Memorial School at Moose Factory.

A motion to pledge $500 to the new Parish Finance Fund was carried.

AUCTION SALE

Ways and means of raising funds was the next item of business. A motion was passed to hold a public auction sale in May. Members of the congregation and friends will be asked to save any "attic treasures" or other unwanted household effects for this sale. The members also voted to hold a tea and bazaar early in June.

Work on layettes was then undertaken, after which tea or coffee and delicious tarts were served by hostesses, Evelyn Wareham, Thelma Saunders and Trudy Sands.

Rednersville W.I. Hears Talk on 'Holland'

The January meeting of the Rednersville Women's Institute was postponed to February 1st, due to weather and road conditions.

Miss Audra Brickman was hostess and a large number was present. The president, Mrs. Beuford Peck, was in the chair and opened the meeting.

Mrs. W. Howell was pianist for a short sing-song.

Mrs. K. Green, acting secretary, read the minutes and correspondence and Mrs. M. Wallbridge read the cards of thanks.

Mrs. E. Young spoke briefly on "Girls' Work". Plans were made to hold a euchre next Wednesday at Dawson's hall, Albury, at 8.15 p.m. A goodly number of prizes will be donated.

Mrs. W. Howell favored with a piano solo, which was much enjoyed. Mrs. C. Vanclief, convener for "Agriculture," introduced Mrs. Wesderhof of Victoria, who spoke on her native land, "Holland".

Mrs. H. Montgomery moved a vote of thanks to Audra as hostess and to those taking part in the program of the evening.

A social time was enjoyed with refreshments being served.

Holy Rosary Hall Scene Of Card Party

A most enjoyable and successful evening card party was held in Holy Rosary hall recently with 23 tables in play.

Prize winners were as follows: ladies' Mrs. George Lee, Mrs. Harvey; consolation, Mrs. Kay Black; lone hands, Mrs. George Lee; men, F. Bedard, M. Hogan (tie); Wes Laing and L. Farrell, (tie); consolation, K. Crewman; lone hands, M. Hogan.

The Valentine cake was won by Mrs. F. Shortt and the doll by Mrs. Allore.

Following the cards, refreshments were served by the committee and an enjoyable social time spent.

Women's Activities

ST. ANDREW'S W.M.S.

The February meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of St. Andrew's Church was held Tuesday afternoon with 34 members present.

The meeting was opened with prayer by the president, Mrs. V. Weir.

The secretary's report was read by Mrs. Fleming, who reminded all of the World Day of Prayer to be held in the church on February 25th; also a tea to be held in the Sunday School Hall next week.

The treasurer's report was given by Mrs. Diamond.

Mrs. Fairfield of Fenelon Falls, gave a brief history of the Presbyterian Church.

Mrs. Shaw read the Scripture lesson.

The topic of study was "India." Mrs. Fleming gave a splendid talk made more interesting by the use of a map. She stressed the great need of prayer and also asked for prayers for Christians and missionaries in Formosa.

After the singing of a hymn and prayer, a social time was spent, with refreshments being served by the ladies in charge.

'Button' Once Useless Gadget But Story Is Different Today

By A. HENDERSON

"Button, button, button, who's got the button?" is an old time game with which many are familiar. It is a game that may be played by many, or by one, but mostly by two, principally by the heads of a family, and at most inopportune times. It may be a cuff button, a collar button, a shirt button, or a button used for more strategic purposes. With a snap and the swiftness of a jet propelled rocket it disappears from view beneath the chiffonier, or the bed, or behind the door; any place in fact but out in the open, necessitating the most ungraceful of postures in its reclamation, not to mention the distressing words which often accompany this feat, nor the agitation of the would-be-helper who rushes for that treasure store, the old button can, hoping to repair the damage, or at least to stop the flow of verbal fireworks.

GREAT VARIETY OF BUTTONS

Buttons, this year, appear to be most prominent, judging from the great variety displayed in the stores. There are large buttons, medium buttons, small buttons, tiny buttons all fashioned from different materials, and in most intriguing designs. Most are useful for the purpose of holding garments together and in place. Others again are purely for ornamental purposes; while some are both useful and ornamental as those adorning the uniforms of the Army, Navy, and Airforce, and state dignitaries.

As early as 1525 a book covered with crimson velvet and known as "Froissart's Chronicles" was embellished with 'tin tokens of sylver and gylt.' In the 15th century buttons were used as fastenings. Previously, the word 'button' was used to designate something useless or trivial, as "Wouldn't give a button for it."

Buttons are not only made from tin, silver, bronze and gold, but from glass, wood, mother-of-pearl, horn, vegetable ivory, paper, milk cassein, and now from plastics, which may be tinted any color or shade to match or enhance the garment on which they are to be worn.

DESIGNATE OFFICIAL STATUS

Some buttons have distinct patterns and bear mottoes, and in rare cases, portraits. Others are worn as a sign of membership of a society or political party; among the most honored are those designating the Loyal Legion of United States worn by officers of the Civil War. The Chinese during the time of the Empire wore a button on their hats denoting the rank; the grade in rank being shown by the color and the material as those of the Mandarin dynasty. It is alleged that Napoleon wore buttons in the form of golden bees on his military uniforms.

TWO CLASSES

Buttons worn on clothing fall into two classes according to the manner in which they are attached to the garment: the first being those attached by a shank either of metal or a tuft of cloth; and the other class, those rounded or concave being pierced by two, three, or four holes through which the thread may be passed.

These two classes are quite different in manufacture, according as they are one or two pieces. Those having shanks were made by needlework with the aid of a mold. In 1807, B. Sanders, a Dane, introduced a new method of button making at Copenhagen. His buttons were made of two discs of metal locked together, enclosing a cloth filling or pasteboard. This type is readily produced by machinery, and also shows faces of silk, brocade or velvet with shanks of metal, which later gave way in 1825 to shanks of canvas.

In 1827 at Easthampton, Massachusettes, Samuel Williston, in partnership with Joel and Joseph Hayden, of Haydenville, started a mechanical manufacture of buttons. At Birmingham, England, now the centre of the button industry, buttons were made from brass in 1689, and in 1745 Matthew Boulton, Sr., brought in improvements, and in 1767 steel buttons were produced with facets, selling for 140 guineas per gross, around $500 in Canadian money. The export trade was fairly large with profits on a modest scale from $15,000 to $20,000 per year; with the workman earning from $10 to $20 per week.

Button parades are now yearly events in Birmingham, England, led by the Pearly Button King and Queen, wearing gorgeous apparel heavily embroidered with pearl buttons in most lovely and ornate designs.

MADE BY SKILLED WORKMEN

At one time each button was fashioned by hand by skilled workmen, but this gradually gave way to the use of stamping devices which both shaped and placed the design.

Ivory buttons are the oldest known. Horn buttons were first made in 1777. In the middle of the 19th century, Emile Bassot invented a method of making buttons from cattle hoofs, which had been softened by boiling. Mother-of-pearl buttons are made from the pearl oyster shell, cut by tubular drills and then shaped and polished by machinery. Vegetable ivory buttons are easily dyed.

Glass buttons, porcelain buttons, and imitation precious stones buttons come from Czechoslovakia. Fancy buttons are principally manufactured in England with linen and metal types predominating. Germany also manufactuers the Galath and fancy types, as does France.

Buttons made from vegetable ivory come from Italy. Vegetable ivory is a product of the corozo nut found in South America. Certain types of mother-of-pearl come from Japan, but the better quality is obtained from Australia where a superior class of mother-of-pearl shell is found.

NIGGERHEAD SHELL BUTTONS

During the last ten years of the 19th century, Niggerhead shells, found along the Mississippi River, were also used in the manufacture of pearl buttons giving a great impetus to the button industry. The first vegetable ivory buttons were made in the United States, at Leeds, Massachusettes, in 1880.

Thus, when glancing over the varied and attractive buttons displayed for sale, one may experience the added pleasure of a metal travelogue in viewing these often unnoticed but most necessary adjuncts to every day life, and in fancy visit those places of the world where the button has evolved from a mere 'token' to become an assets of usefulness and beauty.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

HER ALCOHOLIC HUSBAND KEEPS HER IN A "LIVING HELL"

Admittedly, it is no easy thing to decide what attitude a wife should take toward a husband who is an habitual drinker.

Intelligent people today have come to realize that the true alcoholic is a sick person, rather than a depraved or deliberately mean one who wants to go his own way regardless of the havoc he is wreaking upon his family.

Obviously, if a wife has this conception of her husband's drinking, she wants to give him every help she can, in the hope that he may eventually recover from his dreadful disease. For the sake of a possibly happy future, she is often willing to put up temporarily with the situation, rather than walk out and leave her husband to struggle alone.

All this is very well, if the husband has any sincere desire to be cured of drinking. In most cases, where he seriously wishes to stop, he will find it possible to do so eventually, even though it may be a long time, and he may go through many relapses, before the goal is achieved. The organization known as "Alcoholics Anonymous" has thousands of members who can verify this statement from their own experiences, and who stand ready, at any moment, to help others.

It is something else again, however, when the husband has no idea of trying to help himself, or to let anyone else help him. When such an attitude is complicated by definite abuse of his family, then it is very questionable whether or not a wife should continue to put up with him. In fact, to leave him might prove the one thing that would shock him into a realization of how he is wrecking his life, and bring him to the point of really wanting to do something about it.

To leave a husband who is supporting her, even though sketchily, however, a wife must, naturally, have some way of getting hold of enough money to take care of herself and any children there may be. She must either have money of her own, be able to go out and earn money herself, or have relatives who will come to her aid. If none of these three avenues of escape is open to her, and she has come to the point where she can endure no more then about the only re-course left for her is to take the husband to court, obtain a legal separation from him which will forbid him to annoy her, and a court order requiring him to pay her a stipulated sum each week. The problem then becomes one of getting the money from him regularly, something that is often difficult to do.

Such legal action, however, is all I can see for a woman who tells me that she and her two children are kept in a "living hell" by the husband who comes home drunk and violently abusive every pay day. Apparently her sole reason for staying with this man is an economic one, as she says she is completely dependent on him for support. Hence, she can see nothing ahead of her but dogged and hopeless endurance of the situation, although, she says, her "nerves are shattered."

I wonder if this distraught wife has thought of the possibility that her shattered nerves might miraculously mend themselves if she were free of the terrible strain under which she now lives. I wonder if she knows that it might be possible to have her children cared for, through some social agency, until she gets on her feet and is able to find work and care for them herself.

This is something that I think she should definitely talk over with someone in her own community who would be able to tell her how she might go about it. She might consult a family welfare service, or write a letter to The Al-Anon Family Groups. The latter is the family division of Alcoholics Anonymous.

I am sure, if she will do either of these things, she will be helped to find a way out of her trouble.

Women's Institute

MARMORA W.I.

MARMORA. — The monthly meeting of Marmora Women's Institute was held on Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. M. Kouri. The good attendance included one visitor.

The president, Mrs. Hogarth Sabine, occupied the chair.

The treasurer's report given by Mrs. Percy Gordon, disclosed a fine bank balance.

Five dollars was voted to the Navy League and $10 was given to Marmora Branch 237, Canadian Legion, as a donation towards their welfare work.

It was decided to send a plant to a sick member.

Mrs. P. Gordon, as program convener, took over for the rest of the evening. Mrs. H. Sabine read a story with the title, "The Legend of St. Valentine," Mrs. M. Kouri followed with a humorous reading. In a contest put on by Mrs. Gordon, Mrs. P. Gray, Sr., was the winner.

Refreshments were served by the hostess.

QUESTION:

I would like very much to have a recipe for head cheese. My husband is Hungarian and I make what he calls Kocsonya from a pig's head which after cooked is put into small dishes to settle and thicken like jello. Now I'd like a recipe for the kind that you wrap up and can slice later.
—Mary T.

ANSWER:

Nowodays farm housewives usually mold headcheese in glass bowls, but in former days it was quite common to stuff it into large beef casings or a thoroughly cleaned hog stomach. Is that what you mean by wrapping it up to slice later? If so here is the

HEADCHEESE

NOTE — Veal shanks may be used by those who are squeamish about cooking the head, or pork and veal shanks.

The head should be shaved clean, the snout skinned, and nostrils cut off just in front of the eyes. Cut out the eyes and eardrums. The fattest part of the head should be used for lard. When the head is thoroughly clean, soak it in water for two hours to extract blood and dirt. When you are satisfied that it is clean cover it with cold water and gently boil, covered, until meat falls from bones. (If desired tongue may be cooked with the head.) Carefully remove meat, and most of the soft cartilage and rind and chop finely. Strain the liquid and reserve it. Weigh the meat. To every ten lbs. of chopped meat add 6 1-2 cups of the liquor, 1-2 cup salt, 1-2 oz. freshly ground black pepper, 1-8 teaspoon cayenne pepper (optional), 1-2 teaspoon powdered cloves. Mix very well indeed. If the meat is to be stuffed into casings it should be boiled again in the left over liquid in the casings until they float. Casingsful of headcheese are then chilled in cold water. Store in clean, cool place with clean board on top to press. If not to be stuffed into casings, pour into glass bowls, cover and keep cold. Store and use this as you would fresh cooked meat.

QUESTION:

Pardon me for taking up your time again. . .but I noticed Mrs. A. S.'s suggestion regarding my trouble with milk curdling when boiled with brown sugar. I believe that the white sugar with the syrup might even remedy that, but I still want to be able to use only brown sugar and milk. Your suggestion that it didn't matter in making maple cream for you beat it smooth—I wonder about that — you should see the strings. However I haven't tried it so can't really say. The same curdling applies also when I try to make butterscotch pie in fact anything which calls for brown sugar and milk. I do make a caramel pudding to which I add boiling water after the sugar is caramelized before adding milk and I have no trouble there. Also I have asked other ladies and they seem to think they have no trouble in combining these ingredients. Is there something wrong with me?—Mrs. Geo. B.

LETTER:

. . .In regard to milk curdling when brown sugar is added, it has happened several times to me while making butterscotch pie. So I tried making my filling then adding the brown sugar last. It stopped curdling.

I would like to know why my crust in lemon pie always gets soggy after I put it in the oven to brown the meringue.—Gina.

ANSWER:

When the brown sugar is added directly to the milk before milk has been mixed with other ingredients or before mixture is thickened I think it will curdle every time. Try what Gina says —add sugar last. To Gina I would like to say have pie crust and filling both cold before pouring filling into crust or if desired after crust is cold brush it with egg white and bake for 3 or 4 minutes. This coats crust and prevents filling making crust soggy. Thank you for your suggestion Gina.

Beauty

BEAUTY MEANS MORE THAN APPEARANCE

Every woman should have a sense of humor. The girl with the perfect profile, the roses-and-cream complexion the smart, shaggy hairdo and a head full of nothing may catch the eye but she does not hold one's attention.

For today, let's forget about rouge, demountable eyelashes and the latest good-looks whimsies. Instead, let's think about the qualities that make a girl charming and beloved.

What is the secret of a popular girl's success? She gets along happily with her fellow creatures. No chip on her shoulder. She has infinite tact. She would never, under any circumstances, hurt another person's feelings. She knows that if one is to be nice to others, one must have nice thoughts about them.

The young lady who is not popular should cultivate an observing eye. If she notes an unpleasant quality in another girl, let her ask herself if she has it. A loud voice for instance, is not becoming. The habit of interrupting when others are talking is a poor one, too.

To be charming is more essential to happiness and social success than external loveliness. Charm appeals to the heart and the mind. The pretty face and svelte figure may appeal only for the moment.

Good looks can be bought at the beauty shop, but charm is of one's own making.

To be interesting, a girl should have varied interests. She should read good books. They will help her to cultivate the art of thinking. If she hasn't been in the habit of reading, they may open a new world to her. The mind, like the body, needs exercise and good literature will inspire it.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

FEBRUARY 12 . . . THE BIRTHDAY OF A GREAT GENTLEMAN

George Baker, in his famous poem "Lincoln," pays this perfect tribute to a great gentleman:

"A nature modeled on a higher plan,
Lord of himself, an inborn gentleman."

And Emerson's thought-compelling tribute:

"Lincoln's heart was as great as the world, but there was no room in it to hold the memory of a wrong."

CONCERNING RETURN ADDRESS ON ANNOUNCEMENTS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Recently my sister was married in "a country to the south of us," she had her wedding announcements engraved there, and sent me quite a large package of them to mail to some of her relatives and friends here. They were all addressed and ready for stamping. Mother and I thought it would be wise to write her new name and return address on the back of the envelopes so that relatives and friends would be informed about this. But when I wrote her that I had done this (really I was quite proud of my practical point of view!) she wrote back that she was "terribly embarrassed" about this, because she had always understood that it is absolutely incorrect to write return addresses on the envelopes of wedding announcements. Do you think it was right for her to put me "in the doghouse" for what I did—was it so wrong?
— Perplexed Sister

Under usual circumstances it is considered unnecessary to put return addresses on wedding announcements (or inviattions), and of course it gives a better appearance not to have the return address on them. However in unusual circumstances when (as in your sister's case) there is an obvious reason for putting the new name and new address on the envelope, to inform relatives and friends, this procedure is wise and practical and acceptable.

FIRST NAMES FOR MUCH-OLDER FRIENDS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

For about four years my husband and I have been extremely devoted to a man and wife so much older than we are that it has always seemed the right thing for us to call them "Mr." and "Mrs." Lately we have been on two motor trips with them and really have been with them as much as we've been with our younger friends. As a matter of fact, we enjoy them even more than we do many friends of our own age, for they are so full of the joy of living and so delightfully accustomed to social ways.

About two weeks ago we were very surprised to have them ask us to call them by their first names, and although we have been trying to get up the courage to do so, we feel very self-conscious, and find we don't call them by any name, thus "avoiding the issue." But now we would like to know what you think we should do.
— Jessica

I think that you should do what these dear good friends of yours have asked you to do . . . call them by their first names. For this is the natural way between such intimate friends, friends of any age. And although you may feel self-conscious the first two or three times, this feeling will drop off presently and you will find the first-name-intimacy very heart-warming.

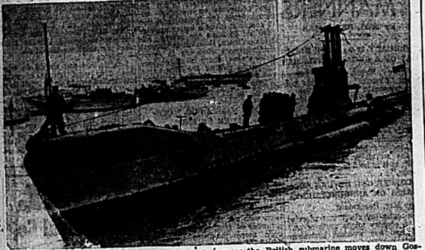
CANADIANS ON SUBS



Canada has sent 170 naval men to Britain to learn submarine techuiques. Here Canadians in training man harbor stations aboard HMS Atheas as the British submarine moves down Gosport harbor for exercises at sea. (CP from National Defence.)

ESCAPE TRAINING

100 Canadian Seamen Learn How to Live, Work in Subs

By RON EVANS

Canadian Press Staff Writer

GOSPORT, England (CP)—More than 100 Canadian seamen at this bleak Hampshire naval station are learning how to live and work together—underwater.

Vanguard of 200 volunteers, drawn from all provinces, they're the first Canadians to take submarine training as a unit with the Royal Navy. After completing their courses, which range from three months to a year according to rank and duties, they'll be assigned to duty in British submarines.

THREE VESSELS

Most will serve in three vessels to be based under British command at Halifax, serving as "clockwork mice" in the training of Canada's anti-submaring vessels and aircraft.

All the Canadians are stationed at HMS Dolphin, the Royal Navy's chief submarine base, on the west side of Portsmouth harbor. Dressed in dungarees and wearing Dolphin tallies on their caps, the RCN men are distinguishable from the British sailors on the base only by the small maple leaf on their sleeve insignia.

Royal Navy instructors also find little difference between their Canadian and British pupils.

EAGER TO LEARN

"There's one thing," said chief engineroom artificer Norman Tubb of Farnham, Surrey, "the Canadians are dead keen to learn—and that's half the battle won."

This enthusiasm was voiced by Ab John Turnbull, 31, of Stratford, Ont., who explained why he volunteered for submarine training: "It's a new experience for us with a chance to see England too. And, if Canada ever does decide to start a sub service, we'll be in on the ground floor."

So far about 130 Canadian ratings have arrived at Dolphin. They were flown from Canada in November and January.

Their initial seven weeks' training is spent ashore, learning the mechanism of submarines. In quonset hut classrooms scattered around the base, they study electrical, engine, torpedo and radar equipment. Then they go to sea in a submarine for a three-day training cruise.

For the three dozen petty officers on the course, initial training extends over 10 weeks. This group includes POs Ray Spencer, 26, of Dartmouth, N.S., and Norman Martin, 33, of Victoria, both veterans of two years' service in the Korean war.

THIRD DIMENSION

"We find the men adapt themselves fairly easily to submarines," said RN Lt-Cmdr. R. W. Garson, "but there are two basic things they must learn.

"They all have experience in two dimensions on surface vessels. Now they have to learn to operate in the third dimension—below the surface. Secondly, every man on a submarine must be at least familiar with every other man's job. He must be able to take over the other fellow's duties in a pinch, because his life may depend on it."

An important phase of training takes place in a high, concrete tower which dominates the base. Here, in a narrow, 100-foot tank, the men learn the free ascent system of escape from a damaged submarine.

The system, introduced at Dolphin only four months ago, involves rising from a sunken sub equipped only with a life preserver and a pair of goggles. Trainees make ascents from 15-, 30- and 60-foot levels and finally from the bottom of the tank.

GREAT SPORT

"It's great sport," grinned AB Ken McNorgan, 20, of London, Ont. one of a group of Canadians making their first ascents.

The switch to Royal Navy administration and discipline has meant little change for the Canadians, who put in a regular 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. day during training.

"I guess the break for tea and a bun in the morning and afternoon is the biggest difference," said AB Ernest Read, 24, of Vancouver.

The three submarines, Astute, Ambush and Alderney, which will form the 6th squadron based at Halifax, are all "A" class vessels, alomst 300 feet long and carrying 60-man crews. The first will go slipping down Hasler creek, bound for Canada, in March. The other two will follow in April and June. The squadron will be based at Halifax for about 2½ years.

Bulletins From Birdland

OWL CORNER

With a swish, two very large birds rose from the evergreens at the rear of the suburban home. The startled milk driver nearly dropped his basket of bottles. Neither one was black, so they could not be crows.

He laughingly told of the episode. Later that February day the man of the family saw what looked like a huge moth circling one of the trees and landing almost out of sight among its branches.

Four big birds were seen the following day, and from then on at least two, and at times as many as six, spent the hours of daylight resting in the tall evergreens. Great discussion arose as to their identity.

They must be some sort of owls, but what kind? Bird books were studied, specialists invited to come and observe. This was a regular owl corner. Unless disturbed, they were hard to see, and when they flew off in fright the big birds soon were out of sight. If only they would make some sound!

EAR TUFTS

The ear tufts stood up, unlike those of a short-eared Owl, which are rarely visible. Could these be great horned? No, because they were definitely no bigger than crows and their ears started too near the middle of their heads.

The yellow eyes were surrounded by reddish disks that had more black close to the eyes than showed in pictures of the great horned.

And what about the plumage? These birds had a rather slim appearance for owls, whose soft feathers are always fluffed out. And the coloring

The truth was that these six were not all exactly alike. One, especially in flight, looked very pale indeed. When an observer sat facing the window from which an excellent view could be had, it was evident that the streaks on the underparts of all ran vertically, not horizontally as on the great horned owl.

FITS PERFECTLY

What do long-eared owls look like? Let us find some pictures. Ah! Here they are, and the description fits perfectly, both for looks and actions. One book tells us the wing tips are sometimes nearly white. "In winter they are gregarious, (we read in another) and flocks of 3 to 6 to 25 occupy communal roosts—usually in a grove of dense evergreens. They are strictly nocturnal, seldom flush, and are too quiet to attract much attention."

Our long-eared owls continued to use these same trees from February 18 (or before) until March 22. We are eagerly awaiting that date to find out if they will return to their old roosts. The chances are that they will.

SHIP SINKS NEAR SAFETY

MOBILE, Ala. (AP)—A small snapper schooner seeking refuge from a weekend storm sank with the probable loss of four men, the coast guard said Wednesday. The 38-foot Oceanic of Pensacola, Fla., foundered a few miles from haven at Dauphin island, at the mouth of Mobile bay in the Gulf of Mexico. The coast guard said the sail-rigged schooner with auxiliary gasoline engine apparently went down Saturday night.

Garden Notes

Gloxinias from Seed

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

An indoor garden hobby can bridge the days to outdoor garden time. Gloxinias offer a colorful array of blooms to grace the home. They may be used in the bulb or in pernnial borders but they must be started soon if you would have them bloom in May. You can buy the tubers, but they will grow almost as quickly from seed.

Select a large bulb for the tubers, a little smaller for seed planting. (Bulb pans are low, wide, red clay pots, eight to ten inches across).

Put a layer of coarse gravel or cinders mixed with half a cup of crushed charcoal in the bulb pan. In the center place a small clay pot which has been corked to hold water.

Put the rim of the inner pot almost level with that of the outer pot. Fill in the sides with a good soil mixture composed of two parts of top soil, one part of peat moss, and half a part of sand. You can buy potting soil from a florist, and nurseryman.

Plant the tubers and have one inch of soil over them. Firm the soil around them gently.

For seeds the top half inch of soil should be sifted with half of its quantity of vermiculite (expended mica).

Fill the inner pot with tepid water and allow it to seep through the porous clay sides. When the soil is thoroughly damp set the bulb pan aside for a day or to and allow the soil to settle. Seeds should be sown thinly. A glass cover will trap the moisture and produce a humid atmosphere for germination.

The pot should remain in a warm place. Light is not necessary until the seeds have sprouted above ground. Sprouting may take 10 to 14 days. Each day take off the glass top for a half hour or so to provide ventilation.

When the seelings are well above the soil remove the glass cover and gradually accustom the shoots to longer and longer periods of sunshine. Water the shoots from the centre pot whenever the soil surface shows signs of drying out but do not keep them soggy wet.

If the seedlings are an inch apart they may remain in the bulb jar until they are ready for transplanting into six-inch pots. Use potting soil with some well rotted manure or, one teaspoonful of complete plant food or one plant food tablet added. Handled this way you may expect bloom 4½ months from the date the seed was planted.

More Canadian Art, Color To Be Put Into Stamp Issues

By H. L. JONES

Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—The post office, with Canadian artists already designing many of its postage stamps now is giving thought to getting more Canadian native art and more color into the issues.

Canadian stamps now carry pictures of polar bears and pulpmaking plants as typical Canadiana. Canada's Indians and the Eskimos and where and how they live. And these stamps may come out in multi-colored issues instead of the single or double colors of today's stamps.

Canada's stamps once were designed mostly from photographs. But Governor - General Massey, then chancellor of the University of Toronto, recommended in the 1951 Massey royal commission report that Canadian institutions should encourage this country's artists.

POPULAR COMPETITION

The post office then announced a competition for artists, asking them to submit stamp designs. Payment was $300 or more for suggested subjects in industry, the outdoors and animal life.

The competition paid off. It now is a continuing affair from which postal officials hope to build a "bank" of designs into which they can dip when a new stamp is needed.

They are considering more color and broadening the range of subjects to include not only the natives themselves but the works of art produce. Officials envisage these being produced in a four-color natural range.

PRAISE AND SCORN

The post office stamp designs have earned a lot of praise over the years.

The department was proud of three wild life stamps issues in 1953. The two-cent polar bear in blue, three-cent moose in brown and the four-cent bighorn sheep in black drew acclaim from stamp collectors and from editors of stamp magazines.

The polar bear was designed by John Crosby, an artist at the National Museum, Ottawa. The other two were by Emanuel Hah, Toronto sculptor.

A follow-up series showed a beaver, a walrus and a sea bird, the gannet.

QUEEN'S PORTRAIT

But the department got plenty of criticism about two issues of Queen Elizabeth stamps. One was the four-cent Coronation commemorative of 1953 and the other a regular issue bearing the Queen's likeness on one to five-cent denominations.

People complained the portraits didn't look like the Queen. They said her cheek was shrunken in the three-quarter portrait; in the profile portrait her upper lip was too short.

Post office officials said the difficulty stemmed from the fact that a line-engraving process, rather than a photo-engraving, was used.

In the line process every stroke, dot or feathery touch is cut by hand on a "master die" of steel from which the stamps ultimately are printed.

Subsequently, a new regular issue was put out in the one to five-cent category and, while it also was line-engraved, the portrait of the Queen was much improved.

ABSTRACT ART

The post office entered the realm of slighfly-abstract art in 1952 and still feels pleased about the venture. The stamp was a 20-cent brown forest products issue created from a design by A. L. Pollock, Toronto industrial artist. It showed a paper - making plant with a Douglas fir tree in outline to one side. From the tree a scroll extended across the stamp to an outline of the plant.

Public reaction was favorable. Officials were pleased that no one wrote them to point out that no Douglas fir is twice as high as the chimney of a paper plant, as it appeared on the stamps. They said it apparently was accepted for what it was, a simple design telling a lot even though it was abstract.

The department didn't have such a happy time with its fur resources stamp, a 10-cent brown showing an Indian woman drying beaver skins in front of a wigwam. Scores wrote in pointing out that the skins were bigger than the woman and that a man peering around the wigwam appeared to be nine feet tall.

Officials said the stamp's faults resulted from its lack of perspective.

CAMPBELLFORD

St. John's United S.S. Holds Fine Hobby Fair

CAMPBELLFORD — St. John's United Church Sunday School held the most successful hobby fair of its career this week, when children from the age of five years and older displayed their handiwork and hobbies.

The Hobby Fair, which is an annual event, was convened by Dr. Betty Bright, and was held in the new auditorium of the church.

Hobbies and crafts were arranged on tables about the large room, and consisted of everything from stamp and coin collections to electric trains and wood carvings.

Teen-age girls of the Sunday School displayed oil paintings and sewing. In the baking section, a boy took an honorable mention with a birthday cake he had baked.

A program of entertainment, designed to appeal to all age groups featured movies, clowns and vocal and instrumental numbers. Dr. D. M. Smith, pastor of St. John's acted as master of ceremonies. Dr. Smith and Dr. Betty Bright presented prizes to the winners of the various classes.

JUDGING

The result of the judging was as follows:

Class competition— Dr. Betty Bright's class; Mr. W. Gunter's class; tie between Miss Barbara Smith's class and Mr. M. Sayer's class. Judges: A. L. Whitfield, Rev. G. Whitehorne, Miss Lillian Benor and James Thompson.

Birthday cake contest — Darlene Lloyd, Lenore Gay, Helen Archer. Honorable mention, Ileen McKelvie and Jim Darrington. Judges: Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Craighead.

Bird house — Douglas Jacques, Sharon Miller, Gary Holmes.

Whittling—Bill West, Jimmie Scriver, Ernest McEatheron. Judges: A. G. Watson, Ray Connor, W. Henson.

Photography — James Bright, Francis Barton. Judges W. W. Reid.

Mrs. R. E. Fox presented an interesting display of ceramics and demonstrated this handiwork during the evening.

MY GARDEN IN WINTER

My garden in winter
Lies buried neath the snow,
Where in the sun of summer
The bright red roses grow;
Now, flowers unresponsive
To winter's trumpet call,
Are sleeping oh! so deeply
While soft the snow-flakes fall.

My garden looks all dreary
Beneath the cold, gray sky,
No fragrance from its blossoms
Reaches the passer-by;
But when the spring returneth,
When damp the dewy moulds,
The flowers of my garden
Will shine like stars of gold.

The heart's cold winter garden,
When fate and fortune frown,
Shows nought of bloom nor fragrance
Where sorrow's snows come down,
But with the heart-soil softened
By sorrow's storm and rain,
The flowers of the spirit
Will bud and bloom again!

—HELEN B. ANDERSON.

How eagerly the starlings and the sparrows pick up the fragments of food that are thrown out in the snow! One wonders, when the snow lies so deep, how they manage to exist. But the nuthatch seems more fortunate as it picks its food from the trunk of the apple tree.

Everyone is enjoying the warmer weather of the past week and social activities are receiving more attention.

Mrs. Leona Whyte, Trenton, spent Monday the guest of Miss S. E. Blakely, East Wellington.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Orr, Belleville, were recent guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Vandewater.

BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION

Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Palmer were at home to a party of friends Friday evening in celebration of the 90th birthday of his mother, Mrs. D. Spafford, who resides with them. About forty guests were entertained. Games and contests were enjoyed and music was furnished by Mr. Hilton Reynolds, violinist, and Mrs. Norma Callow at the piano. A delicious lunch with birthday cake was served by Mrs. Palmer, assisted by Mrs. Inez Ingram, Mrs. Don MacDonald and Mrs. Vernon MacDonald.

Mrs. Spafford received many gifts, flowers and cards for which she sincerely thanked the guests. All unite in wishing Mrs. Spafford many happy returns.

WMS MEETING

The February meeting of the WMS of Wellington United Church was held in the church school roon on Tuesday afternoon with a goodly attendance. The president, Mrs. Gerald Stoneburg being on holiday with her husband in Florida, the meeting was conducted by Mrs. Hamel with Mrs. E. Maybee pianist, and opened with the hymn "O Brother man fold to thy heart, thy brother", followed by prayer. Mrs. Barton Cronk read the minutes of last meeting and the roll call. Following business items Mrs. L. Bryant and Mrs. F. Harris were heard, the latter referring to the organizing of the local WMS in 1891 by the late Mrs. G. D. Platt. Mrs. J. L. Ross read a fine poem. "Patchwork" which stressed the value of our work though seemingly small. The last stanza follows:

"But we know that in God's temple, all our work shall find a place
Though we mourn because our neighbors build with greater power and grace,
But when through out patient life-work shines our Heavenly Father's love
It will glow with matchless beauty and be fit for heaven above."

An inspiring devotional was conducted by Mrs. Frank Harris and a chapter of the Study Book on India was ably presented by Mrs. Clarence Hicks. At the close a social hour was enjoyed with refreshments.

From W. Deacon of The Globe and Mail we learn that Wallace Havelock Robb of Abbey Dawn has been heard in recital at Toronto and St. Catharines. Louis Blake Duff of Welland, when introducing Mr Robb at St. Catharines, presented the poet with an address and a recital gown. Symbolic of poetry. Mr. Robb accepted the tribute in the name of Canadian poetry. We congratulate Mr. Robb on the honor he received, and recall with much pleasure our visits to Abbey Dawn at the Poets' Festival and the hospitality of the host and hostess. I have his beautifully bound book of poems, The Door of Dawn, as a prized keepsake.

ST. VALENTINE'S DAY.

When February comes round once more
And storms beat wildly at the door,
Our hearts grow warm in spite of cold
In memory of a Saint of old —
Good Valentine, who taught that love
In earth below or heaven above,
Is greatest of all gifts Divine —
O thanks to you St. Valentine!

And as each year the time comes round
We keep the day with joy profound,
And Cupid speeds his little darts
In many a happy maiden's heart;
No room for hate on this fair day
When Love o'er hearts holds kindly sway.
What need to murmur or repine?
The day is yours, St. Valentine.

BANCROFT

'Building a Better You' Topic At Lions' Club

BANCROFT — District governor Nostrand Sprague, of Trenton, paid his official visit to the Bancroft Lions on Monday evening.

In his speech, following the business session, the governor chose as his theme, "Building a Better You." He asked each member to consider whether his name would be recorded in the Lionism's Hall of Fame, and quoted the story of the ten financial wizards who controlled a vast part of the world's economy. All came to an untimely and violent end, their empires vanished and the benefits they left to humanity were doubtful, if any. How could these men compare with Pasteur, Edison, Braillie and Banting?

"Life," continued the speaker, "is rich and satisfying only if the world is made richer because we have been here. The great and unselfish men who labored to bring Lions International into being were conscious of this great wisdom.

"Lionism had made men of little wisdom wise beyond their years, brave beyond all fears, and men of little vision, alert to new careers."

Introduced by Reg Wallis, the governor was thanked by Jack Follis.

A commemoration gift was presented by Art Hewitt.

VOTE URGED

TORONTO (CP)—The board of control Wednesday recommended that a plebiscite be taken at the next municipal election on the question of fluoridation of the city's water supply. The move will have to be approved by city council.

Rawdon

THE WEATHER

RAWDON — Sunday was an ideal day with the thermometer registering 40 degrees. For the past week it had been extremely cold with thermometers registering all over Rawdon township anywhere from 18 to 28 degrees below zero and it was reported even lower than that at odd places.

Friday at midnight it was 18 below. On Saturday it still stayed cold and then the weather man turned on the heat and Sunday was an ideal day. This Canadian climate seems to enjoy extreme weather. Everyone was delighted to have a warmer day after weeks of intense cold.

On Friday evening Rawdon Young People's Union enjoyed a skate at the local arena as the guests of Eggleton Young People. Following the skating party the group repaired to the school house at Madoc Junction where all enjoyed a sing-song and the Eggleton group served refreshments.

Mr. Jack Bush contributed a vocal solo at the funeral of Mrs. Arthur Brown at Carmel United Church last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Sid Williams entertained Mr. and Mrs. Morley Ayrhart on Sunday.

Born — at the Sine Maternity Home, Harold, Ontario, on Friday, February 4th, 1955, to Mr. and Mrs. Earl Redcliffe, Bonarlaw, Ontario, a son, Richard Earl.

Carmel W.A. catered for the Hoards' livestock sales last Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Clancy entertained Wellman's W.A. at their home last Wednesday evening. All enjoyed a potluck supper, after which Mr. Bill Cairns showed his interesting pictures.

Miss Doris Sine is holidaying in Kingston with Mr. and Mrs. Earl Ruttan and Marie.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy MacMullen visited Mr. Edward Montgomery, Foxboro, on Sunday evening. Mrs. Montgomery spent a few days in Belleville General Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Osborne, of Campbellford, visited Mr. and Mrs. James Menzies on Sunday.

Mrs. Milton Shaw, Ivanhoe, spent a few days last week at Mount Pleasant.

Several members of Rawdon Y.P.U. attended the skating party at the arena on Monday evening, sponsored by South Hastings Y.P.U. district.

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION

The Rawdon, Marmora and Stirling Council of Christian Education is beginning a series of Lenten studies this week. The first meeting was Wednesday evening at the Free Methodist Church, Marmora. Rev. K. J. Crawford taught the New Testament and Rev. A. Packman conducted a class on the theme "Our Pupils and How They Learn."

Memos Tighten Hold On Fourth Spot With 7-3 Win Over Peterborough

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

IT HELPS.

That was better!

The Memos came through with an important victory over those pesky Petes last night, albeit they had to go all out to do it—and at that it was not the best brand of senior "B" hockey seen here this season. The Petes iced but 11 men, including one helluva good goalie by the name of Donlevy, while their offensives made our Mr. Parisi come up with another brilliant performance.

The victory gave the Memos a nine-point edge over the threatening Brockville Magedomas and eased the way to the fourth spot berth. Down Kingston way, the Goodyears blighted the Clinton Comets' chances with a 7-4 defeat. On the other side of the ledger things don't look so bad since our side, as of this morning, is only four points behind the Whitby-Cornwall combination at present tied for top slot with 50 points. Kingston has 49. Tonight at Brockville the Magedomas take on the tough Whitby Dunlops and if they lose their chances of ousting the Memos is decreased by quite a margin.

The Memos came up with a neat exhibition with Arnie Dugan, Vern Goyer and Hub Macy standing out. Coach Frank Boucher shook up his front lines and put Vern Goyer up there with Davy Jones and Keith MacDonald and the trio showed plenty of power and punch. It was one of the most effective lines of the night and "Jumbo" looked more at home in a forward position than behind the blue line. The big fella is always poison in front of an opposing net and last night he proved it.

However the battling Petes must be given credit because hopelessly out of the playoffs, they proved beyond a doubt that they are not stepping stones to a playoff berth. They were without Chum Fryia and Gus Leonard, two of their better players, but Coach Redmond's remnant put up a plucky fight.

THIS IS THE LIFE!

Should you by chance happen to come from this village and one winter's day find yourself rambling along the beach near Stuart, Florida, you might notice a long, gauntish figure reclining gently, dozing eyes dreamily watching a fishing line.

Recognition will give you a jolt for he will be one, Lawrence "Gilly" Goyer, member of a well known Belleville sports family, who, we are told, used to score the "mostest goals" with the "leastest effort."

"This 'Gilly', writes this department," is the life. The weather is beautiful, the gals are likewise, so is the fishin' and you can go jump in the lake with your ice, snow and flannel underwear."

Gilly, who is employed in his working hours with Bruce Jose, of Stuart, Florida, spends most of his spare time fishing, or watching baseball games. He is a regular attendant at a nearby baseball school, operated by Eddie Miller, former major league star. Gilly says he has seen some outstanding games, especially those between colored teams.

As a matter of fact, the former Belleville hockey star did a little scouting on his own. He was in touch with a colored pitcher who tips the beam at six feet four, a southpaw, who is not averse to coming to Belleville this summer, providing the arrangements are satisfactory.

"Tell Vern and Jack Carson about this boy," he writes, "and tell them to get in touch with me. This guy would stand them clubs up there on their heads."

"It's been like an old Belleville week down here," he goes on. "I've seen Grant Ashley, "Boiler" Lloyd and Morley Smith, and it was good to talk to them."

Gilly is in his element with the excellent fishing down thataway. "It is 84 in the shade here today—and that makes for good fishing. You won't believe how good it is unless you see it. The sailfish were hitting today and we caught six. They make you throw them back although you can keep one if you wish."

POWER PLUS

The Whitby Dunlops are taking no chances on lack of power preventing them from repeating their successful championship drive of a year ago. They have dug the veteran golaie Les Colvin, out of the mothballs and the young-old veterans came up with a brilliant exhibition in the Dunlops' 7-2 defeat of the Kingston Goodyears the other night. Manager Wren Blair also has Jack Thaler back in harness after injuries, while Bill Appleby and Jud Wilson, two of last year's champion Truckmen have rejoined the squad. The quartet fitted quite neatly into the Dunlops' scheme of things the other night and from here in they should be a tough club to beat.

A group record was set the other evening in Peterborough when Ed Shamlock, playing coach of the Clinton Comets, refused to leave the ice, even at the request of a local gendarme and Referee Jim Crombie promptly called the game at the 13-minute mark in the third period and awarded it to the Petes who were leading 5-2 at the time.

The Clinton coach has been reported to the OHA and that august body may hang a year's suspension on him. Shamlock has been given the game heave-ho here and in other group centres for too much criticism of the officials during the season. While some of the officiating has been been open to ciricism, we have never felt the officials used discrimination. No matter what uniform a player wears, if he opens his mouth in complaint, it's a minor, and if he yawns with it he gets a misconduct. All clubs in this group can vouch for that.

The Clinton coach has been around hockey long enough to know the rules, and he definitely invited trouble not only to himself but his club when he refused to obey the official edict.

P. Jones, DeGray Pace Pack In Important Victory Quest; Extend Lead Over Brockville

By GEORGE H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

A gallant, short-handed crew of Peterborough pucksters bowed to the victory-hungry Belleville Memos 7-3 here last night in a hard-checking but cleanly-fought senior "B" battle.

The victory, first in four starts for the Memos, strengthened their hold on fourth place in the group standing, giving them a nine-point advantage over the fifth place Brockville Magedomas. The Memos have six games to play with the Magedomas eight left.

The Petes, with eleven men on the roster, were down 3-1 in the first period after tying the count, were outscored by the same margin in the second heat and battled the Memos all even at one each in the final chapter. They never gave up fighting and were always in the hunt. Donlevy came up with a brilliant exhibition in the nets as the Memos outshot the Petes 45-24 on the night's play.

Referees Maurice Walsh and Kenny Partis handed out but ten penalties, all minors, six going to the Petes. Play became a bit rugged in the third heat as tempers started to flare, but no damage resulted.

Peter Jones and Ted DeGray paced the Memos' attack with two goals each, with Vern Goyer, Erwin Duncan and Arnie Dugan getting the rest. Goyer, playing up front for the first time in many games, came up with an outstanding performance. Hill, McMaster and Toody Greenlaw were the Petes' snipers.

The Petes started fast and had the Memos hemmed in their end for the first minutes. Then Collins drew a tripping penalty but the Petes' defence staved off the Memos' drive. Peter Jones opened the scoring at 3.24 when his shot appeared to hit a Petes' skate and trickle over the line.

PARISI GOOD

Play went rink-end and Hill broke into the clear but Parisi outguessed him on the doormat. The Petes staged a power drive at eleven minutes and Hill tied the count from Collins' pass.

Keith MacDonald got the gate for holding but no damage was done. Collins got a costly heave-ho at 14.30, when the Memos slammed home two goals in 36 seconds, Erwin Duncan scoring the first on a pass from brother Edwin and Ted DeGray slamming home Hub Macy's pass.

ONE FOR THREE

The Memos ripped to the attack, opening the second period with DeGray finally scoring on assists from the Duncan twins after Donlevy had kicked out three close-in shots. Continuing the attack, Arnie Dugan scored a beauty on a passing play with Peter Jones and Red Doran and three minutes later Vern Goyer culminated a three-man drive with MacDonald and Davy Jones to make it 6-1.

The Petes fought back furiously after MacDonald got the gate but the Memos' fort held. Redmond was sentenced with no damage done, then Parisi drew a penalty for interference.

The Petes took over and McMaster cut the margin to four on a power play with Floyd and Redmond. Wilson and Hill both went off at 19.39. The Memos outshot the Petes 14-10 in this period.

The battling Petes, despite the fact Armstrong drew a penalty early in the period, carried the play to the Memos in the third chapter, but the Bouchermen rallied quickly and swarmed around Donlevy in the Petes' net. How that man kept the puck out of the net at this point had 800 fans guessing. Finally the Memos' power paid off when what looked like a screen shot whizzed past the Petes' goalie at 9.18 to give the Memos a 7-2 lead. Peter Jones was credited with the goal with Jake Wade and Arnie Dugan, former Petes' buddies getting assists.

The Petes never gave up the fight. They roared back and Parisi was given a busy time until the drive culminated with Toody Greenlaw driving the puck past him on a drive with Collins and Hill.

Play ripped up and down the ice with the checking heavy and both goalies rising to heights. The Memos took over in the last few minutes and a penalty to McMaster at 18.53 took the sting out of the Petes defence, but at that the Memos were held off the score sheet.

The teams:

Peterborough — Goal, Donlevy; defence, Redmond, McMaster; centre, Hill; wings, Greenlaw, Collins; subs, Kennedy, Floyd, Huneault, Twist, Armstrong.

Delaney Wins Upset Verdict Over Saxton

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—Ronnie Delancy of Akron won an upset decision over welterweight champion Johnny Saxton in a 10-round non-title bout at the arena Friday night. The referee and both judges gave the unranked local fighter the nod.

The fight was scored on the basis of 10 points for the winner of each round, and up to nine points for the loser.

Referee Eddie Atlas had a score of 100-92. Judge Harry Minto tallied it 97,96, and judge Sam Taormina had Delaney winning 98-93.

There were no knockdowns. Delaney, a southpaw, got in his best licks in the third round when he landed with three rocking lefts.

Toronto's famous "kid Line" was going strong in the NHL when statistics 21 years ago today showed Charlie Conacher leading point-getter with 40 points. He finished that season with 52 points. Second place with 46 was taken by his line-mate Joe Primeau, while Harvey Jackson wound up seventh with 38.

ASSUMPTION TRIUMPHS

WINDSOR (CP) — Assumption College Purple Raiders kept their faint championship hopes alive in the senior Intercollegiate Basketball League race Friday night, defeating University of Toronto 69-63. It was Assumption's third win in five conference starts, and Varsity's first loss in four games.

Guelph Moves Into First-Place Tie, Bounce Back to Whip Marlies 7-2

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Guelph Biltmores, back in their winning ways, have moved into a first-place deadlock with St. Catharines TeePees in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A league.

The unpredictable Bilts, who returned after Christmas to take first place from the St. Michael's College Majors, only to lose it to the TeePees, bounced back Friday night on a 7-2 win over Toronto Marlboros before 3,000 Guelph fans.

In other games Barrie Flyers continued their winning streak, defeating Galt Black Hawks 3-1 in Barrie, while St. Michael's edged the last-place Kitchener-Waterloo Canucks 3-2 at Kitchener.

Veteran left - winger Bill McCreary tallied four goals for Guelph, three of them squeezed into 17 minutes of the second period. Tom McCarthy, with two, and Bill Graham, with a goal and four assists, were the other Bilt marksmen.

Ross Sneddon had put Marlboros into a 2-0 first period lead on two fast goals before Guelph exploded for four in the second and two in the third period.

The loss left the Marlboros in fourth place, nine points behind the two league leaders and six points back of the third-place Majors. Hamilton with 44, Galt with 40, Barrie with 34 and Kitchener with only 16 follow in that order.

Barrie had only 600 fans on hand as they broke a 1-1 first period tie with two goals in the final session to mark up their 17th win in 40 games this season.

John MacDonald, Ed MacQueen and Bob Barlow counted for the Flyers while Floyd Smith tallied the lone Hawk goal.

TOUGH GAME

In one of the toughest games played this year before one of the smallest crowds—384, St. Michael's handed the Canucks their 34th defeat as against seven wins. Nineteen penalties were called, 11 against the Majors.

Dick Duff scored the winning goal at 9:05 of the third period after he made it 2-1 in the second. Vigor Gendron scored the game's opener in the first frame for the Majors.

Hank Martin and Howie Young tallied for Kitchener while goaltender Claude Dufour turned in a brilliant performance in the Canuck net.

Colorful Warwicks Spearhead Canada's Hopes for Crown

PENTICTON, B.C. (CP)—Think of the Penticton Vs and you think of the Warwicks.

The three brothers—Bill, Dick and Grant—are the heart, head and drive of this rags-to-riches hockey club which will represent Canada in the world championships in Germany Feb. 25-March 6.

The success story of the Vs began in 1951 when Dick Warwick became the first of the Regina-born brothers to join the embryo Penticton team in the Okanagan senior amateur loop.

BAD START

Made up largely of castoffs and misfits that first season, Vs finished the 60-game schedule in last place and Dick called in brothers Bill and Grant.

The Warwicks had taken different paths after learning their hockey in the hurly-burly of open-air rink skirmishing in Regina.

After playing junior hockey on the Prairies, Dick moved to Nanaimo, B.C. where he played in an amateur league for four seasons before joining Penticton.

Only 5 ft. 4 in. and 140 pounds, Dick is the smallest and the youngest of the trio. He is 27.

Bill, 29, is a stocky, hard-hitting player. When Dick's call came he had been kicking around the minors after a short fling in the NHL. He had gone from Hershey to Providence to Philadelphia, Springfield, Fort Worth, Cleveland, Denver, Ottawa and Halifax.

Grant (Knobby) Warwick has had the most successful career of the brothers.

He was with Regina Rangers when they won the Allan Cup from Sydney Millionaires in 1941 and in the fall of that year moved to the NHL with New York Rangers.

Only 21, he played the full schedule, got 16 goals and 17 assists, and won the Calder Trophy as the rookie of the year. Grant stayed three years with Rangers before going to the minor leagues.

Both Bill and Grant by this time were tired of shunting around and Dick's call was quickly accepted. They joined the club and the brothers started a restaurant in Penticton that has become one of the most popular eating places in the Okanagan.

The Warwicks formed a high-scoring "brother line" and the Vs went in to national fame in the 1952-53 season.

LOST TO DUTCHIES

They got to the Allan Cup final but lost to Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen in five games.

Grant was made playing-coach the following season and the Vs set out again to win the Allan Cup. They made it.

After winning the OSHL last spring, Vs met Nelson Maple Leafs of the Western International League for the B.C. title.

Down 3-1 in the best-of-seven series, Vs caught fire, tied the fifth game and went on to win three straight.

Hard-hit by injuries, Vs braced themselves for a tough series with the flashy Winnipeg Maroons in Penticton for the western Canada title.

Maroons held the upper hand most of the way in the bitter series that saw three games end in 4-4 draws.

Winnipeg needed a tie in the seventh game to win the cup and was tied 1-1 with less than 10 minutes remaining when Bill and Dick Warwick scored within 15 seconds. Vs went on to win the eighth game and the series.

Then came the Sudbury Wolves. The Wolve took a 3-1 lead in games in the best-of-seven Allan Cup final and had the crown almost in their pockets in the fifth game with a 5-2 lead and 10 minutes to go.

Vs scored three goals in three minutes and 20 seconds to force overtime. They scored the winner with 15 seconds left in overtime.

That spelled the end of the Wolves. Vs went on to win the Allan Cup and subsequently were named to represent Canada in the world championships.

Sawchuk's Job in Jeopardy, Mr. Hall May See To That

By THE ANADIAN PRESS

Terry Sawchuk's shaky nerves may get shakier.

He won't be in the nets for Detroit Red Wings when they meet Toronto Maple Leafs tonight because he needs a rest. But the move to ease his National Hockey League fatigue may not have the all-shooting effects. Glenn Hall may see to that.

Hall is the 23-year-old netminder from Edmonton Flyers of the Western League whom the Red Wings have elected to ride with while Terry seeks peace and contentment far from flying pucks.

Sawchuk was benched last Wednesday for the first time in his brilliant five-year career in big-league hockey. The Red Wings insisted that he will be out for only a three-game rest and "nothing more."

NO TELLING

There's no telling what will happen if Hall puts the whammy on opposing snipers. It could mean Sawchuk's bread and butter will be in jeopardy. Hall, who allowed only 136 goals in 19 games for an average of 2.77 goals a game with flyers, flew into Toronto Friday.

The last time he saw NHL action was in the 1952-53 season when he spent six games with the Wings and was scored on 10 times. He had one shutout. He has built a hot reputation in the Western League and could make it rough for Terry.

The second-place Red Wings will be going for their 30th victory of the season and a chance to pick up two points on the league-leading Montreal Canadiens. In the only other game tonight, the fifth-place New York Rangers take on the fourth-spot Bruins at Boston.

Three games are scheduled for Sunday night. Canadiens are at New York, Leafs go to Boston and the Red Wings meet the last-place Black Hawks at Chicago.

Raiders Edge Varsity 69-63

WINDSOR (CP) — Assumption College Purple Raiders survived a spectacular late - game rally by University of Toronto Varsity Blues to win 69-63 in a thrilling senior Intercollegiate Basketball League game here Friday night. Raiders led 40-33 at the half.

The loss was Varsity's first in four conference starts. Assumption, co-champions of the league last year with University of Western Ontario, has won three games and lost two.

Each team scored 22 field goals in the tussle and Assumption gained its winning margin by posting a 25-19 count from the free-throw line.

Don Fawcett, Varsity's pint-sized guard, was the night's leading scorer with 19. George Joseph hooped 16 points for Assumption.

Canuck Skaters Hit Stride

VIENNA, Austria (Reuters)—Sheldon Galbraith, one of the trainers with the Canadian figure skating team here for the world championships, said Friday: "All our skaters are coming into their stride nicely., They started with hard spells of training after they arrived, but now they are going to ease off in the next three days before the championships open."

As he spoke, Norris Bowden and Frances Dafoe, current world champions, were performing a free-skating routine to an enthusiastic audience of about 5,000 Viennese.

"Their skating today shows unity and continuity," Galbraith said. "Of course, they are not showing all they can do. There are good prospects that they will retain the title."

Donald Gilchrist, the Canadian judge and manager of the team, arrived here by plane Friday night from Washington, where he works at the Canadian embassy.

"I am not in the picture yet really," Gilchrist told a reporter, "but I am told the skaters are all shaping up well."

Otto Gold, the former Czechoslovak champion, is here as trainer for the Canadian hope in the women's event, Carol Jane Pachl of Ottawa, herself of Czech origin. Marcus Nikkenen of Finland is also with the Canadian team as trainer.

Johnson KO's Paul Andrews

Each fighter weighed 175 pounds.

The end came unexpectedly although Johnson was giving Andrews a good boxing lesson with his talented left hand until he threw the explosive right.

Andrews' six - foot-three frame was stretched full length on his back from the force of the Philadelphia boxer's blow. Trying to get up, he pulled himself to a sitting position at seven out couldn't rise before referee Al Berl counted 10.

The clever Johnson's accurate left hooks had piled up a wide margin in the early rounds as Andrews often missed and floundered.

JAPS CANADA-BOUND

LONDON (AP) — A group of Japanese scientists who visited British atomic installations last week left here by air for Canada Friday.

Maroons Spoil Mercs Chances; Beat 'Em 6-3

CHATHAM (CP) — Chatham Maroons once more played the role of "spoilers" with a 6-3 triumph over the third-place Owen Sound Mercurys here Friday night in a senior A Ontario Hockey Association fixture before 1,800 fans.

A win for the Mercs would have shunted them back into second place, one point in front of the Windsor Bulldogs.

Dick Kotanen, Maroons' defenceman, was the spearhead in the Chatham attack scoring one goal and assisting on three others.

The Maroons led all the way: 2-1 at the end of the first, 4-1 at the close of the second and then added two more in the final stanza.

Goal-getters besides Kotanen for Chatham were: Paul Oliver, Cliff McArthur, Danny Blair, Frank Borello and Ken Schultz.

Ted Reid, Jerry Reid and Bill McComb notched the Mercury tallies.

Maroons, playing with only 12 men, outshot the Mercs 35-31 in one of the best two-way games of the season.

Gaels Defeat Marauders 77-61

KINGSTON (CP)—Queen's Golden Gaels defeated the winless McMaster Marauders 77-61 in a senior intercollegiate basketball game Friday night.

Queen's record now is four wins and three losses. McMaster has five losses in five starts. Gaels led all the way with the half-time score being 35-27. Paul Fedor topped Queen's scoring with 21 points and Bob Purcell added 19. McMaster's high scorers were Burt Raphael with 15 and Bob Jackson wit 12 points.

Penticton Gets Big Sendoff

PENTICTON, B.C. (CP)—Thousands of noisy fans will try to top a long history of noisy celebrations here today when the Penticton Vs leave on the first leg of their trip to the world hockey championships in Germany.

Feature of the sendoff will be a horn-honking car caravan, incorporating several hundred automobiles, that will snake over the three-mile route from the city to the airport.

The Vs, present holders of the Allan Cup, symbolic of amateur hockey supremacy in Canada, will leave Vancouver by Trans-Canada Air Lines at 9 p.m. tonight and arrive in Dusseldof at 1 p.m. Monday.

When the Vs arrive in Vancouver they will be guests at an annual newspaper-sponsored, athlete-of-the-year banquet. Playing coach Grant Warwick is one of the contenders for the award.

Rosburg Leads Tucson Open

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Birdies on the final two holes gave Bob Rosburg of San Francisco the lead in the $10,000 Tucson open golf tournament at the end of 36 holes with a seven-under-par 133 Friday.

Rosburg played at the height of a desert sand storm that subsided after he was finished. A group of three finished one stroke behind. They were Bud Holscher of Santa Monica, Calif., Tony Holguin of Midlothian, Ill., and Fred Wampler of Indianapolis.

Several name players quit. Jimmy Demaret of Kiamesha Lake, N.Y., twice winner here, dropped out because of 'flu.

Ratchford May Replace 'Teeder'

TORONTO (CP)—Mike (Butch) Ratchford of the Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds, leading scorer in the Northern Ontario Hockey Association, may be called on to replace injured Ted Kennedy in the Toronto Maple Leaf lineup tonight when the Leafs meet the Detroit Red Wings here.

Kennedy, the Leafs' captain, was released from hospital Friday where he was treated for an ankle injury, suffered in a game Wednesday.

Teeder says his ankle still hurts him but will give it a special skating test this morning after which Leaf manager Hap Day will decide whether his star centre is fit for action.

The Greyhounds, a Leaf farm club, played in Sudbury Friday night and Ratchford headed for Toronto immediately after the game to be on hand in case he is needed.

Solunar Notes

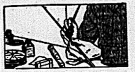
Winter Tackle Repairs

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT.

(Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Solunar Tables.)

Since the introduction of nylon lines, plastic leaders, and glass rods, the annual job of refurnishing the tackle kit has been reduced considerably in its proportions. The new line finishes, while they do tend to harden somewhat, do not oxidize to a useless state of "gumminess" as did the old linseed oil finishes.

Plastic leaders do not disintergrate with repeated wettings and dryings as did the old gut leaders. To be sure, they do become "tired" with use and they should be tested for tensile strength before being recoiled for incorporation in the leader pack.



Glass rods, unlike bamboo rods, are both waterproof and weatherproof. Thus, the finish on a glass rod need not be renewed except for appearance-sake. However, there are several things on every rod which should be checked from time to time.

Modern ferrules, regardless of the metal from which they are made, will pick up grease and dirt through the course of a season. Then they join with reluctance and seem to be in need of refitting.

USE SOLVENTS

Don't make the mistake of using fine sandpaper or emerypaper for tis job. Abrasives remove metal which cannot be replaced. Best way to restore the fit of ferrules is to clean them thoroughly with a grease solvent such as lighter fuel or lacquer thinner. After all, those ferrules fitted when they were new and clean; they should fit again after they have been re-cleaned.

After the ferrules of your rods are attended to, take a look at the guides and the guide wrappings. Guides have the distressing habit of developing cracks and flat spots. As often as not the edges of these places are sharp, sometimes to the keenness of a knife blade which, naturally, damages any line which passes through such a guide. These guides should be replaced.

At your sporting goods store or your fly-tyer's supply house you can secure new guides and also wrapping thread, either in nylon or silk, in a great variety of colors; also, color preservative and spar varnish in small, handy bottles. Replacing guides and guide wrappings is easy to do and it insures the uninterrupted use of the rod during the active season.

REVOVATE REELS

One of the chores that is a "must" on the agenda of any angler is the renovation of his reels before the start of each season. Reels inescapably collect dirt and grit; over the winter their lubrication tends to become dry. This is a deadly combination for the destruction of reel bearings and bushings. After all, dust and grit are of themselves pretty efficient abrasives.

So make it a point each year to take down each reel, right to its component parts, wash and clean these parts in grease solvent. Then reassemble the reels and lubricate them with new oil grease. That way your reels will last a surprisingly long time.

Fly lines should be uncoiled, limbered up by passage through a piece of soft leather or cloth, and dressed with a reliable line dressing. Do not use deer fat or any dressing that contains either animal or vegetable oils. These will oxidize and damage line finishes. Avoid the liquid line dressings, as the solvent in most of these will damage line finishes. Instead, use a petroleum-base dressing that is put out by one of the recognized companies.

If your lines are double-taper, often it is a good plan to reverse the line before replacing it on the reel, placing the used tapered end next to the backing.

Next inspect your casting and spinning lines, testing them for tensile strength and wear. Nylon and monofilament do not disintergrate readily but fatigue does set in after the line has been used too long.

Last but by no means least, inspect the hook points on every fly and lure in your kit. Dull and rusty hooks will lose more fish for you than any other one cause. With a hook hone, a fine stone or a fine file, sharpening a hook is an easy job. Also, it is an important one.

If you are like most anglers, the probabilities are that you carry entirely too much equipment in your kit. I know that I do. Thus, I find that my annual "spring cleaning" results in three desired ends: it puts my equipment in usable shape; it helps to eliminate non-essentials; and it refreshes my memory so that I can locate any item on short notice.

Toronto Rink Represents Ontario In Canadian Curling Championships

GALT (CP)—Andy Grant's Toronto Royal Canadians have earned the right to represent Ontario in the Dominion championships in Regina by winning the 18th annual Ontario Curling Association single rink championships. The Canadian championships will be held early in March.

Grant's rink, the fourth Toronto foursome to win the Ontario championship, shaded Gord Gilbert's Chatham rink 7-6 Friday night in a thrilling finish. Grant chalked up a 6-1 record in the eight-rink round-robin series.

Gilbert had the game tied on the last end but Grant pulled off a spectacular shot to gain the victory. Grant's last stone rubbed a guard and skidded into the rink ahead of Gilbert's second stone, cutting the Chatham rink down to one shot which left them one down on the game.

Kitchener Granites, skipped by Carl Asmussen, were tied with Grant going into the seventh round. Asmussen lost his chance for the Regina trip when he was defeated on the last end by Jack Mitchell's Thornbury foursome, 11-7.

Grant has lost only once in his last 27 games in open competition. His rink inciddes his son, Ray, who leads for him, Earl Hushagen, second player, and Walter Derrett, third player.

He has won 12 games in a row, six of them in the Oshawa bonspiel, eight in a row in the Canada Life Trophy, six straight in district playoffs and the first game of the playoffs here.

Grant lost the second game of the Ontario playoffs but resumed his winning ways with five consecutive triumphs.

Asmussen lost on the last end of his game with Thornbury. Mitchell was three up coming home. Asmussen had two stones in the ring and needed only to remove Mitchell's one rock to score three and tie the game, but he was light with the last stone and pushed Mitchell's stone in to score. The final was 11-7 for Mitchell.

In other games Friday night, Al Jones' Guelph rink beat Peterborough's Burritt Harriso 6-5 to finish in second place with a 5-2 record. Ross Tarlton's Hamilton four scored a 9-7 win over Col. W. Timmerman's Ottawa rink.

Carter, DeMarco Fight To Furious Draw

BOSTON (AP)—Lightweight boxing king Jimmy Carter and Boston welterweight contender Tony DeMarco battled to a furious 10-round draw Friday night in a non-title bout that lured 12,163 fight fans to Boston Garden.

DeMarco weighed 142¾, Carter 138¼.

Carter, 31-year-old New Yorker, who ruined the ring careers of New England favorites Tommy Collins and Georgie Araujo, had his work cut out for him against the rugged 23-year-old Bostonian who is the No. 6 contender for Johnny Saxton's welter crown.

Carter stung Tony with a wicked right uppercut in the ninth round —the champion's biggest session —and had him in a bit of trouble, but couldn't put him down.

DeMarco came up with a furious finish to take the final round. There were no knockdowns.

Hotelmen Pick Up Tab At Big Dinner

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Hotel Association will pay actual cost of the meal served at the $25-a-plate sports celebrity dinner for crippled children Feb. 17 in Toronto, it was announced Friday night.

The Ontario Sports Writers and Sportscasters Association, sponsors of the event, said it received word from hotel officials that they would pick up the meal check, about $5,000, as they did at the 1954 dinner.

R. W. Hewitson, chairman of the committee in charge, said this action will make certain that all proceeds, estimated at about $20,000 will go to the Ontario Society for Crippled Children.

Guests at the dinner include Marilyn Bell, Toronto swim star, and 19 other athletes from the United States and Canada.

Olson Won't 'Tiger-Hunt' Says Jones

CHICAGO (AP)—Ralph (Tiger) Jones says middleweight champion Bobo Olson won't have to hunt him in the ring in their non-title bout at Chicago Stadium Wednesday night.

"I'll be stepping right into him from the start, and if I get a fair shake—I think I will here in Chicago — I'll be the uncrowned middleweight champion," asserted Jones, an early 4-to-1 underdog.

If Jones should emulate his upset of ex-middleweight champion Sugar Ray Robinson, an 8-to-1 favorite, at the stadium Jan. 19, unquestionably he would be matched against Olson in a title fight.

"I know Olson's style," said the 26-year-old Jones, "it's a lot like mine."

Jones, who has a 33-12-3 record, will weigh 161 against Olson's expected 165 in the overweight bout which will be on television.

McGill Leads Fight Tourney

MONTREAL (CP)—McGill boxers Friday night won seven semi-final bouts to lead four teams into the final round of the Canadian intercollegiate boxing championships.

Queen's University and Ontario Agriculture College, Guelph, each won four final berths while the defending champions, University of Toronto, placed three men in the finals, scheduled for tonight.

Six of the 18 semi-final bouts were won by default. OAC was forced to forfeit four weight divisions and Queen's and Toronto each forfeited one. All bouts were scheduled for three rounds.

Ameche Signs With Baltimore

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Alan (The Horse) Ameche, for four years No. 1 fullback for the University of Wisconsin, an all-America performer last fall and a bruising line cracker who ended up as the top United States ground gainer of all time, signed Friday to play football with Baltimore of the National Football League. He was the Colt's first draft choice.

The contract is for two years. Terms were not disclosed.

Ameche said last month he had received two offers to play with Canadian grid teams. Ameche said then, and Friday, he preferred to play in the United States.

Star Milers Race Tonight

NEW YORK (AP)—Wes Santee, Gunnar Nielsen and Fred Dwyer will be back on the Madison Square Garden saucer tonight to see if they can again lower the world indoor mile record.

Two weeks ago, it was Santee who dropped it to 4:03.8. Then last week, Nielsen trimmed it to 4:03.6, while Santee and Dwyer wrestled 10 yards from home.

Most of the experts think Santee will win this one—the Baxter mile of the New York Athletic Club meet.

ANNOUNCE PLAYOFFS

MONTREAL (CP)—The Quebec Junor Hockey League Friday trimmed six games from its regular schedule and announced plans for a six-game semi-final playoff involving the loop's three clubs. The series will pit Montreal, Trois-Rivieres and Quebec against each other twice. The regular schedule ends Feb. 20. Semi-finals open Feb. 24.

"C-I-L Singing Stars" Contestants—Sunday

Lyric soprano Andree Fortin of St. Raymond, Quebec, and bass baritone Cecil Semchyshyn of Winnipeg will be presented on C-I-L Singing Stars of Tomorrow on Sunday, Feb. 13. It will be the first time either of them has sung for a Canada-wide audience. The well-known Canadian writer Greg Clark will also be heard in another story written specially for the program which is broadcast Sunday evenings at 9.00 p.m. on CJBQ.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Your judgment is probably better than mine. So, I will give you a case in which you can exercise your opinion. It is with the north hand shown here:

♠K 8 5
♥10 6 3
♦A 9 4
♣K 7 6 3

Your south partner opened with a bid of one club. What is the first response that comes from you in north? Rule says it should be two clubs, which is why my bid would be two clubs.

Your hand contains three tricks in a suit bid or three tricks in a no-trump bid. With a choice between these two you might come to the conclusion that you would rather say one no-trump.

Your response of one no-trump would not be wrong so far as the values are concerned. You have enough for this. But you also have support for clubs and the three tricks as assist raise would show.

The order of preference of bids is takeout first to a new suit, assist partner's suit with adequate support and tricks enough as a second choice, bid no-trump with enough as third choice.

Lacking a biddable suit of your own for a takeout you are left with two honest choices; assist and no-trump. The order of preference rule says the assist comes first. Which is why I advocate it.

This is a hand in which you may not go wrong by using your judgment instead of following rule. Replying first with no-trump, you still have enough to raise in clubs later.

But why break a very good standard rule when it answers the same purpose as a deviation? After an assist you have convinced yourself that I am some kind of a fuss-budget without imagination. Fact is that I believe a bridge pair does best by avoiding exceptions when rules apply.

Time enough to use judgment when no rule does the job for you.

Story of Mary Todd, Lincoln To Be Told on G.E. Theatre

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—A TV producer named Mort Abrahams feels as though several million people are watching over his shoulder as he works this week.

Abrahams produces the General Electric Theatre on CBS. This week he's putting on a sequence from the Irving Stone best-seller, "Love Is Eternal," the story of Mary Todd and Abe Lincoln. And Lincoln students being as numerous and particular as they are, Abrahams can't afford to take chances.

"We're making sure that everything is as accurate as possible," he said between rehearsals. "I have read most of the standard Lincoln works and we've gotten splendid help from Stone, whose research is phenomenal. The story takes place in the Lincoln house in Springfield, and Stone gave us pictures and blueprints from which to build our set."

The sequence Sunday night will show Lincoln at 40. It is 1849, when he had ended one term in the House of Representatives. He had campaigned hard for Zachary Taylor and expected a plum job when Taylor won the presidency. But the Whig party turned its back on Lincoln.

"Lincoln was terribly discouraged," Abrahams says. "He considered taking the governorship of the Oregon territory, which would have meant political and personal oblivion for him. His wife Mary talked him out of it."

Teresa Wright will play Mary Lincoln on the show, and Richard Boone will be Abe. The latter stars on "Medic," and bears a remarkable likeness to the railsplitter.

Henry Stelfox at 71 Has Acted As Alberta Warden Since '09

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Indians in the Rocky Mountain House area of Alberta say Henry Stelfox is a true conservationist. The 71-year-old pioneer recently was awarded the Grandall Conservation Trophy, Canada's top award of its kind.

Born at Lymm, Cheshire, England, he came to Canada in 1907 after spending about four years in South Africa. Then he began his pioneering.

From Banff he rode horseback 200 miles north to Battle lake where he filed a homestead and put up the first building between Calgary and Edmonton to be erected by a white man.

His talents were quickly recognized. By 1909 he was appointed an Alberta game guardian, a position he has held ever since. He became a justice of the peace, an Indian agent and was elected councillor of Battle Lake municipal district.

Fearing the beaver was heading toward extinction in this region, he campaigned to obtain full protection for the animal.

Complete government protection was given in 1916. Later steady poaching began to make inroads and by 1936 the region was again practically stripped of its beaver. Then Stelfox persuaded the government to import the busy rodents.

Stelfox induced the provincial government to establish a fish hatchery near Rocky Mountain House. He helped stock streams and lakes, chiefly with rainbow trout. Specimens up to 15 pounds were taken from stocked waters during the spring of 1954.

His efforts added impetus to the general demand for protection of buffalo.

Stelfox was the first in the area to introduce the ring-necked pheasant, getting the necessary stock and managing hatches on his farm. Ducks that winter around warm springs also find Stelfox a friend.

His work among Indians began more than 40 years ago when he pleaded with federal authorities to assist a small band of Stoneys stranded at Buck lake.

The Cree and Chippewa bands in the area were finally induced by Stelfox to accept treaty in 1946. He subsequently set up a reserve for each band, about 45,500 acres in all and about 750,000 acres of trapline territory.

He also helped the Indians to conserve their forests and game.

Mr. Stelfox plans to write books on birds and fur-bearing animals in the Rocky Mountain House region.

Varsity Blanks McGill 4-0

TORONTO (CP) — Goal tender Hugh Curry earned the first shutout in the senior Intercollegiate Hockey League this season as University of Toronto Blues defeated McGill University Redmen 4-0 Friday night before 2,403 fans.

The win kept Toronto's undefeated streak intact. The first-place Blues have won eight games and tied one in nine starts for a total of 17 points. Paul Knox, Ross Woods, Dave Stephen and Dave Reid were the goal scorers.

Marlies, Teeps Meet for Title

MONTREAL (CP)—The champions of the Ontario section of the Laurier Trophy competition will be decided Sunday in a regular Ontario Junior Hockey League game between St. Catharines and Toronto Marlboros, the trophy trustees announced Friday.

St. Catharines and the Marlboros wound up their trophy schedule deadlocked for first place. The winner of the sudden-death game will meet Quebec Frontenacs, the Quebec section champions, for the trophy.

AT THE McCARTHY

NEWTON HITS THE BEACH

In magnificent Technicolor, one of Somerset Maugham's most gripping stories come to the screen . . . "The Beachcomber."

And here in the title role is Robert Newton, filmdom's most exciting character. It is a part in which he can truly revel . . . the drunken outcast of a wealthy family living for his monthly remittance on a South Sea Island. The carefree, violent, moody "Honorable Ted," a man of swift passions and lovable humor. Newton makes it his finest screen role, lighting the film with his superb portrayal.

He is partnered by lovely Glynis Johns and handsome Donald Sinden. Miss Johns brings a demure, yet sturdy quality to her part of a missionary's sister. She is the prim girl who finally reveals a warm, welcoming heart beneath her cold exterior. In her scenes with Newton—particularly the tense sequences when they are about to face the ordal of sacrifice—she shows a rich human emotion that adds enormously to the picture's atmosphere.

"Cruel Sea" Sinden, who is now one of Britain's top leading men, collects further laurels as the island's resident. His smooth sense of comedy is allowed to peep through even during the film's most dramatic moments.

"The Beachcomber" proves once again how eminently suitable is Maugham's material for the screen. It proves too that Britain's studios are on the top rungs in the international world of film entertainment. "The Beachcomber" starts Monday at the Odeon McCarthy theatre for three days.

FINDS STRUCTURAL DEFECT

LONDON (Reuters)—An official court of inquiry today reported that structural failure caused the crash of a British Comet jet airliner a year ago. It recommended "more study" of aircraft construction before the grounded Comet fleet takes to the air again.

AUCTION NAP'S STORY

LONDON (Reuters)—An unfinished love story by Napoleon is to be sold here next month by Sotheby's, London fine arts auctioneers. The manuscript is the only known relic of Napoleon's youthful aspiration to be a novelist.

No Bowl Play For 'Irish'

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP)—Despite Army's move to follow Navy into post season football competition, Notre Dame will continue its ban on bowl play.

Rev. Theodore Hesburgh, Notre Dame president, Friday told The Associated Press:

"There will be no change in our anti-bowl policy. We are concerned with the scholastic welfare of our players, who are students as well as players, and we just can't afford to extend the football season."

BIRTHDAY CARDS? NO! WHO'S GOT A BIRTHDAY?
TWO OF MY FRIENDS MRS. GADDER AND MRS. KLINKER. I THINK I GOT THEIR CARDS MIXED. IT WOULD BE AWFUL CALM DOWN. WHAT'S SO AWFUL?
I'M AFRAID I SENT THE WRONG CARD TO MRS. KLINKER
WELL WHAT OF IT? NO HARM DONE
YES THERE IS SHE'S TERRIBLY GOOD AND I THINK I SENT HER A CARD SHAPED LIKE A COCKTAIL SHAKER THAT I MEANT FOR MRS. GADDER
FORGET IT. PROBABLY GAVE HER THE BIGGEST THRILL SHE'S HAD IN HER LIFE

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars,

For Sunday, February 13, 1955.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — A spirited day with many pleasant and useful matters and activities under favorable stars. However, no one should seek laborious work that could wait until a work day. Pray, have good fun.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—Relaxation, wholesome hobbies, catching up with due correspondence and neglected reading among offerings honored today. First enjoy religious services, thought of God, family.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—A day for constructive thinking and acting. Little confusion or obstacles indicated unless you produce or incite them. Be your genial, ingratiating self and you, yours will be happy.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Outlook is agreeable, promising for domestic and family associations, usual problems, and for spiritual gain. Necessary tasks need not be irksome but don't overdo or worry.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — Sunshine, good humor in the air, even if you have to supply most of it. You will benefit more, be more content if you start your day at church. Take due time for chores, rest.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo) — Ideal setup for your tastes, those you love, matters pertaining to the general good. Writings, study, conferences, music, the arts, literature, home interests among the good things sponsored.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Notations to Taurus in your category today. Can be productive, restful, also interesting, gay period, depending upon what you do and program obligations. Don't neglect prayer, family.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — You could cram this day with exciting things to do, or you can go easily about usual routine. If there are extra tasks, don't complain, think of all the privileges we enjoy.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — Advice to slow up haste helpful now. Neither worry nor apprehension should be given any leeway. Look about you for the little things that make a day really worth while.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — Do what you do to the best — but it must be the best — of your ability, and then trust in God. When we go to meet God He hurries forward to welcome us. Enjoy some quiet

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — He who rushes on without reviewing occasionally will not gain the most headway, but will achieve a few headaches. Know when you are right, and stand by your principles.

February 21 to March 21 (Pisces) — Here is a day for thoughtful reminders, doing minor tasks well, giving children, the unfortunate, and your neighbor the benefit of the doubt and a boost. Smile the while.

YOU BORN TODAY possess more talent and possibilities than you realize. You do not push yourself forward, yet often come up with the right answer or most efficient way when others don't know you are thinking about the matter. Speak up where you have a good suggestion, also be the good listener in a required spot. Develop tact, system for fullest use of assets. Don't take just anybody's suggestions either: avoid unscrupulous schemers, and those who lazily impose upon another's generosity. Pray daily for guidance of the gifts God gave you. Birthdate of: St. Augustine of Hippo, one of Four Great Fathers of the Latin Church; David D. Field, advocate of legal field reforms, father of Cyrus Field, Atlantic cable fame; Duke de Talleyrand, Fr. statesman.

Fall Fairs Excel In Entertainment Says Director

TORONTO (CP) — The modern fall fair in Ontario excels in entertainment.

That's the word from F. A. Lashley, superintendent and secretary of the Ontario Association of Agricultural Societies.

Speaking Wednesday at the annual meeting of the organization, he listed some of the attractions he has seen.

He said the North Bruce and Saugeen fair and the Drumbo fair had square dances involving tractors. Ridgetown staged an antique display, plus demonstrations on flower culture, baking, rug-making sheep shearing and wheat flailing.

Thorndale had a chariot race and Huntsville a tug-of-war for women.

Other features: Norwich, antique kitchen display; Galt, safe driving competitions; Southwold and Dunwich, soap box derby.

Mr. Lashley added that preliminary reports from 185 fairs showed that this emphasis on entertainment paid off last year in higher gate receipts in the case of about 50 per cent of the fairs.

URGE HOUSING

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's co-operative unions Thursday urged the government to grant them greater freedom to build low-rental housing projects and to guarantee advance payments made to fishermen by marketing co-operatives. The requests were in a brief submitted to a committee of the cabinet by the Co-Operative Union of Canada and Le Conseil Canadien de la Co-Operation.

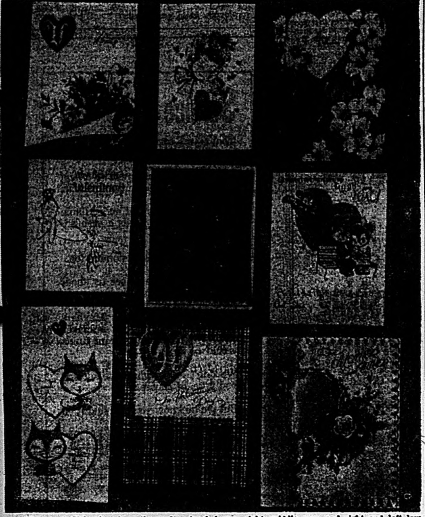
NEW CARDS, OLD SENTIMENT



This year's Valentines have the modern touch but the old sentiment is still there. Cards at right and left of top row are in the French language but won't have much currency because Montreal dealers say French-Canadians have never really adopted the custom of exchanging Valentines. There are many family-type cards for Mother and Father this year (centre, top row; right, middle row, and right and left lower row.) The new "Slim-Jim" type of card (left, middle row) became popular at Christmas. Card at left, middle row, has modern design and sentiment while the card with vivid red lips against a black background carries the message "Ain't you sweet." The plaid card (bottom row) is another modern-type card with cloth pressed on semi-gloss paper. (CP Photo).

Nfld. Is Most Romantic Spot In Can. on St. Valentine's Day

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Newfoundland is the most romantic spot in Canada on St. Valentine's Day.

In St. John's, sales of cards and candy start weeks before the big day and the lacy-love type of greeting card outsells the others.

Children's cards are one of the province's biggest sellers and heart-shaped boxes of chocolates also are popular. Stores say business has never been so good.

P.E.I. LIKES HUMOR

The wits predominate in Charlottetown where demand for heart-throb cards is low. Comic cards are sought by wisecrackers and children's cards are popular.

Elsewhere in the Atlantic provinces romance is a bit stunted. Halifax doesn't get romantic until three or four days before Feb. 14.

French Canada is traditionally even less enthusiastic about the day. Big card firms put out a comparatively narrow range of French-language cards because Quebec has never really adopted the custom of exchanging valentines.

Practical gifts of cosmetics and stockings are popular in Quebec City, with teen-agers and young married couples doing most of the buying.

WEST IS ROMANTIC

Love springs eternal in the west as far as valentine buying goes. A Toronto card firm executive said the lacy sentimental valentines, disdained in Ontario, often go over big west of the Great Lakes. They range from $2 to $5.

Early in February Winnipeg reported that sales of cards, flowers and chocolates were very good.

In Ontario card preference is for humor with many modernistic art cards on the market. The long and narrow "Slim-Jim" card, so popular at Christmas, has scored in the valentine field this year.

This year there is a large variety of cards on the market.

CARDS AT $7.50

In the high-price field a $7.50 satin-heart card embedded with an engagement-ring box is popular. Another $5 card trimmed with satin and lace has a string of pearls attached.

Inspiration for all the sweetheart cards and the lush sentiment of the day comes from a third-century saint who probably never wrote any love songs.

Actually there were several saints named Valentine. The one most closely connected with the old tradition is a man who was beheaded in Rome, Feb. 14 in the year 270. He is said to have been a match-maker who secretly heard the marriage vows of young lovers. In this he incurred the wrath of the emperor who had banned wartime marriage by Roman soldiers.

HEIR ACQUITTED

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Although George Hormel, 27-year-old meat packing heir, was acquitted of charges of possessing marijuana, the sedan in which he was arrested was forfeited to the state of California Friday. The forfeiture was under a state law which provides for seizure of any vehicles involved in narcotics cases. Hormel was arrested last September and police claimed they found marijuana cigarets above the sun vizor of his car.

INCREASED SALARIES

OTTAWA (CP)—Salary increases for most of Ottawa's 253 high school teachers were announced Friday by the Ottawa collegiate board. The increases, retroactive to last Jan. 1, will cost $101,500.

Bishop's View On Remarriage Meets Opposition

LONDON (AP)—The Archbishop of Canterbury and a group of his own churchmen differ over the Church of England's ban on conducting weddings for divorced persons.

The archbishop, Most Rev. Geoffrey Fisher, said in an official pamphlet published Thursday that the ban is necessary to make couples think more seriously before marriage.

Dissenting clergymen promptly answered with a statement asserting that the pamphlet did not prove second marriages are necessarily sinful or fall short of the Christian ideal, and that therefore the church should change its stand.

The ban on church marriages for divorced persons has long been debated here by both church officials and laymen. It applies equally to both innocent and guilty parties in a divorce.

The archbishop said the church's duty is to give guidance to the divorced so they may be restored to its sacramental life.

"But that does not mean the church should remarry them. That would be asking the church to compromise the one way in which it can give clear testimony to our Lord's standard for their sakes. . . ."

Dr. Fisher admitted that in some cases second marriages have been "abundantly blessed."

"For this reason, I do not find myself able to forbid good people who come to me for advice to embark on a second marriage. . . . If they remarry, they will never again be able to bear a full clear witness to our Lord's declaration of what marriage is. . . . They must decide whether this lasting spiritual loss is, in their judgment outweighed by a call of God to seek spiritual gain in a second marriage."

SEE NO SIN

The dissenting statement was issued by Rev. C. O. Rhodes, a director of the Modern Churchmen's Union, an organization of clergymen and laymen which seeks to liberalize the Church of England's views on divorce.

WEST HUNTINGDON

Meddlesome Maid' Presented By Local Talent

WEST HUNTINGDON — The play entitled "The Meddlesome Maid," which is being presented by talent from West Huntingdon under the sponsorship of the Sew and Chatter Club is being well received. It was first presented in the town hall, Ivanhoe, and in spite of the sub-zero weather the hall was filled with every one enjoying the efforts of the players.

Those taking part in the play were:

Charles Wright, Charles Winthrop; Mrs. W. Grant, Margaret Winthrop; Mrs. George Ashley, Dolly Darling; Melbourne Moorcroft, Robert White; Mrs. Russell Sills, Edna, the maid; Alex. McCurdy, Sam Bryant; Mac Sarles, Carlyle Howerd; Mrs. Mac Sarles, Mrs. Fraser; Mrs. Elmer Wilson, Mrs. Rita Griffin; Bill Grant, Richard O'Neil.

The play was directed by Mrs. Lindsay Sills and Mrs. Alex. McCurdy assisted by Mrs. John Lainson and Mrs. Mac Sarles. Mr. Philip Carr was chairman for the evening.

The entire action of the play takes place in the living room of the Winthrop home in a summer resort town. The wit, humor, mystery, suspicion and misunderstanding, spiced with a little romance here and there, makes this play a most enjoyable evening's entertainment.

Mr. Gerald Taylor and Mr. William Grant entertained between the acts.

Already a number of places have booked the play for future engagements.

WARNS OF THREAT

MANCHESTER, Eng. (Reuters) Treasury chief Richard A. Butler warned here Friday night that a dangerous increase in imports over exports in the first month of 1955 has intensified a threat to Britain's economy. The chancellor said exports for January were roughly $75,000,000 above the average for 1954, but imports rose $150,000,000.

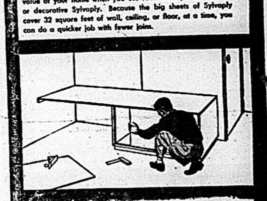
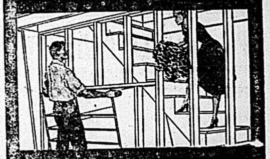
How the family grows! Converting your attic to sleeping quarters for the youngsters can help to solve your space problems; it's a worthwhile project that can add greatly to the value of your home when you use real wood panels of plain or decorative Sylvaply. Because the big sheets of Sylvaply cover 32 square feet of wall, ceiling, or floor, at a time, you can do a quicker job with fewer joins.



Built-ins, cupboards, and other home improvement projects like this cost less to build with easy-to-finish, self-framing Sylvaply in 5 or 7 ply thicknesses. Sylvaply saws as clean as other woods with power saw or hand saw, nails close to the edge without splitting. And the system of simple glued and nailed butt joints possible with Sylvaply does away with tricky joinery details.



There are just dozens of spots around a house that can be quickly turned into useful storage space with Sylvaply. Because Sylvaply is an engineered wood panel, you can do home improvement projects easily and at low cost. Easy to saw and nail, easy to finish Sylvaply requires only simple carpentry for cupboards or built-ins like the handy under-basement-stairs storage cabinet shown above.

In addition to regular 4 feet by 8 feet panels, you can now buy handy sizes for those small jobs and repairs . . . Makes "doing-it yourself" easier than ever. "Take Home" panels are available at your lumber dealers in sizes from 12 by 36 inches up. Carry them home or slip them in your car trunk.

435,000 Chum Salmon Eggs Deposited Near Hudson Bay

WINISK, Ont. (CP)—About 435,000 chum salmon eggs recently were tucked into frig beds with two-foot blankets of ice near this southern Hudson bay community in the hope they will wake up next spring as a useful food supply.

Ontario department of lands and forest biologists made the bed on the floor of the Winisk river and its tributary, the Mishimattawa, working through two feet of ice and three feet of water.

The Winisk flows into Hudson bay about 500 miles north and slightly east of Port Arthur. Winisk is on the southern shore of the bay, about 400 miles southeast around the coast from Churchill, Man.

The fish and wild life division of the department, at the suggestion of federal officials, set out to discover if chum salmon could live in waters as cold as Hudson bay.

INDIANS HELP

A survey last summer showed average temperature in the bay was 27 degrees Fahrenheit at 30 fathoms. The chum have been found in the cold waters of the Mackenzie river on the west coast.

The Winisk river was chosen after investigation last summer when Indians living nearby said it did not freeze to its bed.

Cam Currie, wild life management officer at Sioux Lookout, flew to the mouth of the river with thee other men last month. They spent two weeks in 40-below-zero weather, chopping 13 holes in river ice. They dynamited below each hole to loosen gravel and clear off silt. Each hole was protected by a small tent.

When the beds were prepared, Harry Speight, department pilot, and Cy Berry, flight engineer, flew the eggs from Port Arthur hatchery. More than 500,000 were left to hatch for distribution next summer in rivers entering the bay.

At Winisk, the eggs were stored temporarily in the church basement during three days of careful planting. Half went to the Winisk, the rest to the Mishimattawa.

MAY RETURN

The waters will be watched during the next five years to discover whether the experiment succeeds. The chum normally return in two to four years to the river in which they are spawned. Officials said there is some question as to whether the instinct to return operates in planted fish.

The fish could be a new source of food for Ontario and the rest of Canada, officials say. In west coast waters, they usually grow to an average 10 pounds but specimens up to 45 pounds have been taken.

Eartha Kitt Reported Ill

NEW YORK (AP)—Eartha Kitt, star of "Mrs. Patterson," was reported ill Friday ,and the lack of an understudy in the play created a problem.

Miss Kitt left the stage of the National theatre Thursday night eight minutes after the curtain went up.

The Negro entertainer's press agent, Virginia Wicks, said Miss Kitt "collapsed" and "has been a very sick girl for six weeks."

The play, which opened Dec. 1, is scheduled to close here in three weeks and go on a national tour.

For Monday, February 14, 1955.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—May be some difficulties in some matters, getting things started smoothly. Watch for misrepresentation; do not blame any one or thing quickly. Doing best you can will count heavily.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Though there may be a rainbow in the sky, mind your step, don't toss caution to those four winds. Go it calmly, with tact, and you can come out that way. Expect to meet contention.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—News likely and connections from unexpected sources, may be important to your achievement. Better be eager today than slow; be not listless and miss out. Be a true Geminian.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Zodiacal aspects encouraging to a point. Your attitude, and how you react under pressure will help say whether you are going to be on the receiver's end of gains or otherwise.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — Some loose ends from previcus days to clear up before you cn forge ahead? Then be cheerfuly prompt. Don't be lacking in nterest and smile the while, it btains good reactions.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo) — Seek the new and nusual where it is also useful. Be on guard for unexpected inluences, you can employ time vell. Have friendly relationships, let annoyances go unnoticed.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — A period when suely we all should join in and asist one another. You know whs is expected of you, pitch in and on't be surprised at some obstales. Great day for United We Stand.

October 24 to Novembei 22 (Scorpio) — Perhaps some diturbances. Take shrewd precaution, don't be too sure of things you may regret. Overlapping will finally fade and you who teep yourself discreet and able will profit.

November 23 to Decembe 22 (Sagittarius) — Run-of-millday. Means you who are wide avake will get along, others will drift here or there. P.M. asects brighten especially after 3 p.m. Domestic affairs need watching.

December 23 to Januar 2 (Capricorn) — Check on your backlog, what have you le un-done that could have been takei care of. There is still geater progress in manufacturing cien-s, buildiding than many realize.

January 22 to February 20 (quarius) — Changing of con-urations. There is much for ur advancement if you are eping up to par. Things that trigue mentally, dare the imination and ambition are high ots now.

February 21 to March 20 (isces) — Don't try the imposble or unnecessary. Don't tread olishly where lions fear to go. And don't worry if when you advise, people do the opposite. Aren't we all like this at times?

YOU BORN TODAY: Your planet Uranus indicates that your innate caution and sense for management can do remarkably well for you where you permit. You are not the showily go-getter type, but can be highly progressive if you but awaken to your advantages. An exhilarating year ahead, but it will mean little without your full co-operation, steady effort and pepped up thinking. You will get a "lift" from worthy friends and associates. You are sincere, fun-loving, fit in easily with mixed groups. Use every media and talent you have rightly and achieve success. Birthdate of: Sir Israel Zangwill, Jewish leader, author; Stuart Irwin, actor.

Chiang Expects U.S. Aid To Hold Quemoy, Matsu

Nationalist Leader Voices Determination to Keep Isles

By SPENCER MOOSA

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP)—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek expressed his determination today to hold the rest of the Chinese Nationalists' offshore islands and made it plain he expects the United States to help him fight for them if the Chinese Communists attack.

"In no case," he said, would the strategic islands Quemoy and Matsu be abandoned.

Chiang met newspaper men at Nationalist headquarters here after the Reds' Peiping radio triumphantly announced "liberation" of the Tachen islands, evacuated by the Nationalists last week with the aid of the U. S. 7th Fleet. Peiping boasted it placed Red soldiers "on vantage ground for liberating Taiwan (Formosa) and other islands off the China coast."

(A later Chinese Communist broadcast, heard in San Francisco, charged that inhabitants of the Tachens, Yu Shan and Pishan islands had been "abducted" by Nationalist troops "assisted by American armed forces.")

NO INTENTION

Contrary to some reports, the Nationalist defence ministry announced it had no intention of evacuating Nanchishan, 140 miles north of Formosa and now the main northern Nationalist outpost.

The ministry said a small number of dependents and civilians had been removed and more would be removed, but that no troops would be withdrawn.

Nanchishan is 23 miles from the mainland. When reporters visited the island last year about 2,000 civilians were there. The size of the garrison was not reported.

Chiang faced the largest press conference held here since the Nationalists fled the mainland in 1949.

Chiang referred to Quemoy and Matsu specifically in written replies to seven questions submitted by reporters.

T.N. Morrison New President Of Editors

MONTREAL (CP)—T. N. Morrison of the Welland Tribune Sunday was elected president of the Canadian managing editors' conference, succeeding Irenee Masson of Quebec Le Soleil, who held the position for two terms.

Other officers elected in the final day of a three-day meetings were: W. H. Vaughan, Windsor Star, and L. N. Smith, St. Catharines, Standard, vice-presidents: and M. McIntyre Hood, Oshawa Times - Gazette, secretary-treasurer.

New directors include: C. M. Fellman, North Bay Nugget; G.W. Craw, Peterborough Examiner.

Randolph J. Churchill of the London Free Press was unanimously voted an honorary life officer of the conference on the motion of Mr. Hood, who outlined his services as one of the original members nine years ago, first secretary, director for three years and president for three years.

Minister Demands Cancellation Of Hockey Match

HORNEPAYNE, Ont. (CP) — A United Church minister raised a protest Sunday when he demanded cancellation of a hockey game, skating and a curling match on the ground that they contravened the Lord's Day Act.

Eli Martel, coach of Capreol juveniles who were scheduled to play Hornepayne Panthers, charged the minister, Rev. H. A. Davies, had himself been curling last Sunday.

"What kind of dirty trick is this?" asked Martel after a town constable arrived at the arena with instructions from Mr. Davies to cancel the game. He added:

"They knew two weeks ago we were coming. This is a 600-mile round trip for us and we wouldn't have come had we known only one game was to be played."

Capreols defeated Panthers 8-5 Saturday night.

Hornepayne's mayor, William Woodhouse, came on the ice and told the Capreol team and the grumbling spectators that he had nothing to do with the cancellation but that legal action had been threatened and police had to enforce the law. Residents of the town, 150 miles northwest of Timmins, said they plan to hold a protest meeting next week.

Pierre Pflimlin Abandons Efforts To Form Govt.

PARIS (AP) — Pierre Pflimlin abandoned his efforts to form France's 21st postwar government today and President Rene Coty asked Christian Pineau, a right-wing Socialist, to try. Pineau said he would decide after conferring with his political associates.

Should the Socialist decline, former premier Rene Mayer was expected to be City's next choice. It was Mayer's split with Premier Pierre Mendes-France, like him a leader of the Radical Socialist (Moderate) party, which caused the overthrow of the Mendes-France government on a vote of confidence Feb. 5.

There was considerable doubt that Pineau would accept the president's request. The Socialists have refused to participate in recent cabinets, although they voted solidly for Mendes-France.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO. (CP) — Synopsis: A weak disturbance centred over Lake Michigan this morning produced snow over most of Ontario during the night. This storm is expected to move east across the lower Great Lakes today.

111-Year-Old Toronto Church Gutted by Fire

TORONTO (CP)—Fire of undetermined origin Sunday destroyed the 111-year-old Anglican church of St. George the Martyr in downtown Toronto. No one was injured.

The blaze, believed to have started in the furnace room of the church, spread quickly through the church and an adjoining parish hall. Firemen battled flames for more than six hours before bringing the outbreak under control. Damage was estimated at more than $100,000.

The white stone Gothic church, first opened for service in 1845, was one of the oldest Anglican churches in the city. Recently it has been used for an early morning Lutheran service conducted in German as well as for Anglican services.

CBC AND UNION REACH AGREEMENT IN NEGOTIATIONS

Across-the-Board Hike Given Workers

OTTAWA (CP) — The CBC and its technicians' union, under labor department stimulus, have reached agreement in a wage-contract dispute that had threatened a strike in the publicly-owned corporation's Canada-wide radio-TV operations.

Both sides gave ground as negotiating committees for the CBC and the National Association of Broadcast Employees and Technicians (CIO-CCL) found a basis for settlement Saturday and worked out details Sunday.

The union accepted an across-the-board increase of five per cent, retroactive to last Aug. 1. Originally it demanded a sliding scale ranging between $9.50 and $84 a week.

In running negotiations earlier last week the CBC had refused to make any wage offer, standing by the majority report of a federal conciliation board recommending against any increases.

APPROVAL SEEN CERTAIN

Settlement terms must be approved by the CBC management and the union's 775 CBC members, but this is regarded as certain. The agreement was to be submitted to NABET membership and the CBC board of governors this week.

The agreement, announced jointly after a CBC-NABET meeting Sunday, also provides:

1. The contract will run until July 31, 1956, a long-term contract for the CBC in return for wage concessions.
2. Pay ceiling for men in the main operating group covered by NABET will be increased to $88 a week from the present $80. This did not mean an automatic raise.
3. At least 50 men in this group are to be promoted to a higher wage category by next April 1.
4. The work of supervising operators will be reassessed by the CBC, with pay increases if warranted.
5. There will be "improvements" in scheduling of work shifts in promotion travelling arrangements, meal periods and holiday work.

Dulles to Make Official Visit To Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — John Foster Dulles, U. S. state secretary, will make his first official visit to Ottawa March 17-19, it was announced today.

Government House said the American policy-maker will be the guest of Governor - General Vincent Massey who will give a dinner in Mr. Dulles' honor March 18.

External affairs officials said undoubtedly Mr. Dulles will hold discussions on world problems with External Affairs Minister Pearson and probably with Prime Minister St. Laurent.

Veterans Battle Newcomers as 27th Oscar Derby Starts on Home Stretch

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The contest of two film veterans versus two newcomers shaped up today as the 27th Oscar derby started down the home stretch.

The trouper and the lady—Judy Garland ("A Star is Born") and Grace Kelly ("The Country Girl")—were considered the leading contenders for the best actress award. Competing with them are Audrey Hepburn, "Sabrina"; Jane Wyman "Magnficent Obsession", and Dorothy Dandridge, "Carmen Jones".

Miss Dandridge, whose torrid Carmen won critical acclaim, was the first Negro to win a nomination for the top acting Oscar.

Filmsters tabbed the male race as a battle of Bing and Brando. Bing Crosby was nominated for his second Oscar because of his job as the alcoholic actor in "The Country Girl". Young Marlon Brando, named for his role as the punchy dock worker in "On the Waterfront," also loomed as a heavy favorite.

The rest of the field: James Mason, "A Star is Born"; Humphrey Bogart, "The Caine Mutny", and Dan O'Herlihy, "Adventures of Robinson Crusoe".

"On the Waterfront" won top honors in the Academy nominations Saturday night. The hard-bitten dock union expose drew 12 mentions, including a record five in the acting categories. The film had three nominees in one field alone—best supporting actor.

They are Lee J. Cobb, Karl Malden and Rod Steger. Also nominated were Edmond O'Brien for "The Barefoot Contessa" and Tom Tully for "The Caine Mutiny."

"On the Waterfront" was nominated for best picture, along with "The Caine Mutiny," "The Country Girl," "Seven Brides for Seven Brothers" and "Three Coins in the Fountain."

This was the first year the nominations were packaged in a show for a network TV audience. The locale moved swiftly from the four points of origination — NBC-Burbank Studios, Ciro's, Romanoff's and the Cocoanut Grove. Jack Webb proved a glib and affable emcee.

The big show comes March 30 when the final awards are presented on the stage of the Hollywood Pantages theatre. The event also will be televised nationally wth Bob Hope in charge.

CONVERTIBLE UNVEILED BY U.S.

The newly developed XV-3 Convertiplane, made for the U.S. army under a joint army-air force contract, is unveiled during a brief rollout ceremony at Fort Worth, Texas. Near the tips of its stubby fixed wings, the XV-3 features combination rotor-propellers which operate as helicopter rotors for takeoffs and landings and tilt forward for cruising and high-speed flight. Canadian Airways Get Ready To Supply DEW Radar Line

OTTAWA (CP) — At least two Canadian flying services are believed girding themselves for what may be the biggest air cargo lift in Canadian civil aviation history—supplying builders of the DEW (distant early warning) radar line in Canada's Arctic.

Associated Airways in Edmonton and Maritime Central Airways in Charlottetown each will take delivery from an Ottawa flying company of three huge York transport aircraft within the next few weeks.

"There may be more later," an official of Spartan Air Services Ltd., the Ottawa company ferrying the four-engined Yorks to Canada from England, where they are built by the Avro Company, said Sunday night.

It is understood that Canadian flying companies with the types of planes required for long hauls into the Arctic will form a pool to carry freight for the United States contractor building the $250,000,000 DEW line.

Few of the smaller companies, however, are believed to have planes large enough to handle the heavier equipment that will be required. With addition of the long-range Yorks, capable of carrying eight tons of freight, to their fleets, Associated and Central, however, will be able to handle almost anything that can be carried by air.

The first of the big planes, developed shortly after the war by Avro and used extensively in the Berlin airlift, arrived here Friday. The Spartan official said his company's pilots will be flying more over in the next few days.

Spartan is already at work on a $500,000 contract for a three-month aerial survey of the Arctic area where the aircraft-warning line will be located.

Western Electric Co., the American management contractor also gave the Foundation Co. of Canada, Montreal, the job of constructing the eastern half of the line, under Canada-U.S. agreement that Canadian workmen using Canadian equipment will do most of the building.

The DEW line of radar stations is expected to be completed in about two years.

Two U.S. Airmen Rescued After Jet Crash in North

By WALTER GRAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG (CP)—Two United States airmen who parachuted to safety after they were blasted unconscious into space when their Stratojet bomber exploded 35,000 feet over northern Saskatchewan Saturday, were flown here Sunday night.

Lt.-Col. Kenneth G. McGrew, 33, and his co-pilot Capt. Lester E. Epton, 33, both of Riverside, Calif., were rescued during the weekend in a combined operation by the RCAF, USAF, RCMP and civilian forces.

Today, these same forces were scheduled to continue the search for the two remaining members of the six-jet medium bomber which was on a routine training flight over the Arctic.

However, search officials said they doubt if they will find Maj. Robert D. Dowdy, 31, and Capt. Thomas L. Pittman, 34, also of Riverside, Calif., alive.

SAW FLARE

The two survivors said Sunday night they did not see any other parachutes open after the plane plunged to earth. However, some searchers said they saw a flare about 50 miles from the plane's wreckage Saturday night.

McGrew suffered a bruised and cut face. Epton's feet were frostbitten and he too suffered bruises and cuts to the face.

From their hospital beds the two men described their ordeal to newspaper men.

The $2,565,000 plane, left March field at Riverside Friday afternoon accompanied by a similar aircraft, on a routine training mission over the Arctic. The planes, capable of flying 600 miles an hour, were on the return leg when two engines on the right wing of McGrew's aircraft caught fire.

IT EXPLODED

"We put out the fire in the two engines okay, but then I noticed the fuselage was burning," Epton said. "We were making preparations to abandon the ship when it exploded."

McGrew said he "came to" as he was dropping to earth, his parachute blossoming out above him. He did not remember opening the 'chute.

Search for Brothers

AJAX, Ont. (CP)—Provincial police started a search Sunday for two young brothers who left their home early Saturday and disappeared.

Bobby King, 13, and his brother Peter, 14, left this town 22 miles east of Toronto. Police traced them to Washago, 80 miles north of Toronto, but lost the trail there. They have no money, their parents said.

Move Being Made To Keep Medical Graduates Home

OTTAWA (CP) — The Medical Council of Canada has begun a move which by 1958 will require medical graduates in Ontario and some other provinces to serve in Canadian hospitals for at least one year of their interneship before being licensed to practise.

Dr. J. F. Argue, council registrar, said the move is being made in the face of high salaries in United States hospitals which are leaving Canadian hospitals short of internes.

In London, Dr. J. B. Collip, dean of medicine at University of Western Ontario, said efforts have been made for some time to get students to stay voluntarily in Canadian hospitals.

He said 15 of 60 graduates from UWO last year went to the United States to intern.

He said salaries vary in Canada from $10 to $75 a month. United States hospitals pay their internes from $200 to $300 a month.

Escape Injury

CENTRALIA, Ont. (CP) — Two airmen escaped injury Sunday when their single-engined aircraft crash-landed in a farmer's field near the RCAF station here after a break developed in the oil line.

Pilot of the privately - licensed plane was LAC J. A. Caseault of Quebec City. His passenger was AC1 J. B. Tranquada of South America.

Centralia is 25 miles northwest of London.

EAST CANADA'S STORMY WEATHER HEADS FOR SOUTH

Maritimes-Montreal Trains Are Delayed

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Storms that raged through eastern Canada during the weekend are expected to give way to warm, subsided weather soon.

New Brunswick's worst storm since hurricane Hazel will be followed by more normal weather, but not until Tuesday.

Meanwhile, the cold centre that swooped in from the Arctic over Manitoba and Quebec blew itself down the east coast of the United States and into the gulf of Mexico.

Heavy snow fell in eastern Quebec Saturday as a blizzard, powered by 90-mile-an-hour winds, smashed over the Eastern Townships and Quebec City. Drifts from 10 to 15 feet disrupted communications, blocked highways and stranded trains.

VILLAGE THREATENED

At Leeds, Que., a factory and three homes were destroyed Saturday in a storm-whipped fire that threatened for a time to wipe out the Eastern Townships village of 400 residents. No one was injured in the three-hour fire that caused an estimated $175,000 damage.

Leeds, situated 60 miles south of Quebec City, has no firefighting equipment. Fire extinguishers and bulldozers were used to quell the outbreak during what was described as the worst storm this town has experienced.

Below-zero temperatures in the Prairies were expected to disappear as warm air moves in from the Pacific. Highs of 24 and 22 above were forecast for today in Saskatoon and Regina while Winnipeg may warm to eight above from eight below.

In New Brunswick, trees toppled, telephone and power linnes collapsed, and barns and chimneys tumbled under winds of p to 80 miles an hour. Shipping was tied up along the coast.

Negroes Request Immigration Act Be Amended

TORONTO (CP) — A group of about 100 Toronto Negroes urged the federal government Sunday to amend the Immigration Act "so that British subjects from all Commonwealth countries shall be treated equally under the act, regardless of their race, creed or color."

The group, sponsored by the Negro Citizenship Association, said certain sections of the Immigration Act permit discriminatory treatment of non-white British subjects.

These sections had been arbitrarily used to exclude British subjects, particularly West Indians, from Canada.

The group also asked Premier Frost to establish a special division of the department of labor to administer Ontario's fair practices legislation.

The resolution stated that legislation is not being effectively administered "as evidenced by the long delays involved in the enforcement of the Fair Accommodations Act at Dresden."

BUCS' PREXY TO WED

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — John W. Galbreath, Columbus real estate man and president of Pittsburgh Pirates, says he will leave today for Florida to marry Mrs. Dorothy Firestone, widow of Russell Firestone, son of the founder of Akron's Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. A widower, Galbreath said the wedding will be next Thursday.

Once Suspected by Reds of Spying, U.S. Judge Gets Visa to Visit Russia

NEW YORK (AP) — Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas, once suspected by the Russians of "spying" on them because he climbed a mountain in the Middle East, has been granted a visa to visit Russia next summer.

The report, according to a New York lawyer just back from Russia, came from no less an authority than the new Soviet No. 1 man, Nikita S. Khrushchev.

The attorney, Marshall Macduffie, returned Friday night from a visit to Moscow during which he interviewed Khrushchev Feb. 1, shortly before the shakeup in which Premier Georgi Malenkov resigned and Khrushchev emerged as the strong man in the Soviet regime.

Khrushchev and Macduffie became acquainted many years ago when the American was working in the Ukraine with the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration.

Macduffie said that they discussed the question of Americans visiting Russia, and Khrushchev told him that "we hardly refuse any requests."

Fear 29 Perish On Africa-Bound Belgian Airliner

Big Plane Vanishes Sunday, Probably Into Sea Off Rome

ROME (AP)—Ground, sea and air searchers combed a fog-shrouded arc north and west of Rome today, seeking the wreckage of an Africa-bound Belgian airliner feared to have crashed with 29 persons aboard.

The 21 passengers included Marcella Mariani, Italy's 19-year-old, hard-luck beauty queen of 1953 who was making her first flight.

The four-engined DC-6 of Sabena Airlines vanished early Sunday night after reporting it was over Viterbo, in west central Italy 40 miles north of Rome. The pilot said he expected to land at the capital's Ciampino airport in 20 minutes, but radio contact was broken in the middle of a transmission from the plane four minutes later.

FEAR SEA CRASH

Sabena's Rome manager, Alfred Blum, and a high police official said they believed the plane had crashed into the Tyrrhenian sea off the old Roman port of Civitavecchia, 30 miles northwest of the capital, or in one of the many small lakes in the area.

"I fear there are no survivors," Blum said.

The aircraft had fuel to keep it in the air for only three hours after its last report.

Farmers south of Viterbo reported seeing a flash and then a blaze in a sparsely populated district of rugged hills, but searching police and volunteers working throughout the night found no trace of wreckage or of fire.

Of the 21 passengers, four were to get off in Rome and the rest were heading for Africa. The plane was on a run from Brussels to Leopoldville, in the Belgian Congo.

The Italian beauty queen, tall, shapely brunette, won the national title in December, 1953. Soon after she was stricken with appendicitis the day before she was to leave for the "Miss Europe" contest in Paris. A rival Italian beauty took her place.

PRINCE U. S.-BOUND

AMSTERDAM (AP) — Prince Bernhard of the Netherlands left for New York Sunday night by KLM plane for an unofficial two-day visit. The husband of Queen Juliana will meet prominent Americans who are to attend a conference on economic and social problems of the Western democracies, which the prince hopes will take place in a European city within eight weeks.

Margaret Arrives At Antigua For Two-Day Visit

ST. JOHN'S, Antigua (Reuters) Princess Margaret arrived here today aboard the royal yacht Britannia for a two-day visit after a 300-mile cruise from Bridgetown, Barbados.

The British Princess, on a month's tour of the Caribbean, received a welcome to this tiny island Sunday night in a radio message from Governor Sir Kenneth Blackburne.

But the happy folk of this rum and arrowroot producing island are worried. The flags and decorations they ordered from Britain were delayed and they have had to make do with materials already here. Antigua has been ransacked for flags and decorations to brighten the white-washed homes and public buildings.

Killer Shark Grabs Man Just 10 Yds. Off Shore

By L. L. LECK
Canadian Press Correspondent

SYDNEY, Australia (CP)—The theory that once a shark kills a human it begins a death patrol in the same area was strengthened recently when a 12-foot grey nurse shark grabbed a man just 10 yards from the shore at Castlecrag Sydney harbor.

The shark fatally mauled the man, a new immigrant, Bruno Aloysius Rautenberg, and tried to drag him into deep water as a rescuer stabbed at the shark with a length of pipe.

Three weeks ago a 12-foot grey nurse shark fatally mauled a 13-year-old boy at Balmoral, just two miles away from the scene of the latest tragedy. Until then Balmoral was thought to be shark-free.

STRENGTHEN EVIDENCE

The two attacks will strengthen evidence prepared by a leading Sydney surgeon, Dr. Victor Coppleso, on killer sharks. Dr. Coppleson has published the results of his research in the Medical Journal of Australia.

His research shows that once a shark attacks a human the danger in that area is constant. The shark usually discloses its presence in the area after the first attack by its ferocity. This sometimes includes attacking dogs near the shore and tearing fish from lines.

Often there is a cessation of attacks after a particular shark has been caught and an area is free from attacks for a long period.

PARENTS SUE HOSPITAL

CHICAGO (AP)—A mother and father sued Edgewater hospital Friday for $25,000 damages for allegedly cremating their baby's body without permission. As a result, "the blessing of the remains by the Catholic church" was denied, Edward Wojcik, 30, and his wife, Wanda, 28, related. The Roman Catholic Church views cremation as a pagan rite.

CITY & DISTRICT NEWS

MEAN TEMPERATURE MUCH LOWER

It doesn't have to be told but there's no harm keeping the records straight.

Mean temperatures in the city during the first ten days of Februrary this year were real mean—compared with the same period last year.

In 1954 mean temperatures during that time was 25.2. Today the city pump house reported average temperature for the first ten days this February was 14.5.

FLASH COLD SPELL HITS DISTRICT DURING WEEK-END

Snow flurries scudded across the Quinte district today in the wake of a flash cold spell that hit the area over the week-end.

Reversing a warmer trend earlier in the week, temperatures slipped to zero Saturday morning and never climbed higher than 10 degrees above during the day. Lowest reading registered at the city pump house Sunday morning was 1.6 below at 8 a.m.

Snow brushed the area shortly after 2 a.m., this morning lifting the cold air. By 11.30 a.m., the mercury had risen to 22 above, followed by a heavy snowfall.

WOMEN DRIVERS IN TEST RACE

Mrs. Alice Ferguson, left, and Mrs. Vivian Petura of Toronto are the only women's team among the 60 entrants in the 1,400-mile British Empire Motor club driving contest. About half of the contestants, numbering about 120 teams of two, started from Montreal, the other half from Toronto, and took a winding route, through the Laurentians. The idea is not who goes the fastest, as exceeding the speed limit means automatic disqualification, but who can navigate the difficult roads and register at a given time at prescribed check points along the route. (Central Press Canadian).

Belleville Entry To Present Joan of Lorraine

One more day to go and Belleville, for the first time, will be host to the biggest non-professional theatrical event of 1955 in eastern Ontario.

Today, the eve of the Eastern Ontario Drama League Festival, sees preparations completed for the event which will feature four full-length plays and three one-act entries. The festival adjudicator, Britain's Andre Van Gyseghem, arrived in town today and tonight will meet members of the press from the cities whose dramatic groups are contending for festival awards—Ottawa, Peterborough, Belleville and Hull, Que.

Belleville also will have the privilege of raising the curtain on the festival with the presentation of its theatre guild's production of Maxwell Anderson's "Joan of Lorraine."

The entry will be an exciting one for city theatre fans, who will recall the guild's presentation of the play last month. A refreshing excursion into a popular theme, the production aroused a great deal of comment among playgoers at the time.

"Joan of Lorraine" tells the story of the medieval French heroine who became a legend in her lifetime, waging war against the enemies of her race, both on the battlefield and in the court of the Dauphin of France, whom she attempts to have crowned.

In it Anderson contrasts the legend of Joan with a play-within-a-play technique, telling the story of the actors rehearsing for "Joan of Lorraine", linking both stories on the same philosophic themes.

Belleville's entry will be followed by that of Peterborough's Little Theatre group presenting "Noah" by Andre Obey, Wednesday. Next presentation after that will be "The Moon in the Yellow River" by the Ottawa Little Theatre Inc., Friday.

Le Theatre Du Pont Neuf of Hull, will close the festival Saturday night with "Marlbrough s'en va t'en Guerre", in French. English translation of the play's text will be available to the audience. Three one-act plays will be presented at a matinee performance Saturday afternoon.

Police Blotter

A break-in at Goldie Fitzgibbon's Shell service station at the corner of Front and Pinnacle street was reported to police over the week-end. Police said one of the doors leading to the service station building had been jimmied and the filing cabinet rifled. Cash in excess of $50 was reported missing.

Provincial Police reported a break-in at the Marsh Hill public school. The intruder forced entry into the school building, looked around and then apparently left without taking anything.

A gasoline pump in the Oak Hills district was also broken. Name of the owner and other details were not secured.

In the city Mr. and Mrs. G. Poitras, William street, were watching T.V. when they heard a racket outside in their alley. The householder investigated and found a stranger in the alleyway, who made himself scarce, when the owner appeared. It is believed the man was planning to steal the car from the garage.

Thefts from milk bottles in the Stone street area was reported. Several householders reported money having been taken. Juveniles were believed by police to have been responsible.

Two Children Burned to Death, Trapped in Home

BRIGHT, Ont. (CP)—Two children were burned to death Saturday night when trapped by flames in the attic bedroom of their two-storey frame home in this Woodstock district village. Four other persons escaped serious injury.

Dead are Mary Sherman, six, and her sister Laura, three.

Their mother, Mrs. James Sherman, 5, saved the life of a third child, 10-months-old James. She grabbed the baby and ran barefooted in zero weather to a neighbor's home.

Mrs. Sherman's 73-year-old husband tried to climb the wooden ladder to the attic sleeping quarters, but was driven back by heavy smoke and flames. A neighbor, Lorne Zehr, helped lead him to safety.

LED FROM HOUSE

A boarder suffering pneumonia was also led from the burning building. Verne Davis, 58, was taken to hospital at Kitchener for further treatment to his illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherman and their baby son were treated at hospital for minor burns and later released.

The fire was believed started by an over-heated stove pipe running beneath the ceiling to the chimney.

The house was destroyed. No damage estimate was available.

SIGNS MAY GO

TORONTO (CP)—Decision on a set of regulations that would clear all metropolitan Toronto streets of overhanging and unduly garish signs was deferred Wednesday for two weeks. The Metropolitan Roads Committee decided to allow outdoor advertising firms to make further representations to the committee. A similar proposal that cleared overhanging signs on downtown Yonge street was put into effect last year.

ROBERT ARNOLD PORTT
(Shannonville R.R. 2.)

While cutting trees on his wood lot with his son, Mayhew Portt, and the hired man, Percy Maracle, Robert Arnold Portt, well known and highly respected farmer, residing on No. 2 Highway, a short distance east of Milltown, was crushed to death by a falling limb late Saturday afternoon.

Mr. Portt was standing by a big tree, which was being cut down. Apparently a big limb had previously broken off from the tree but was still frozen to the main trunk. When the tree started to fall, the limb flew off the tree striking Mr. Portt on the chest and shoving him against a pile of logs severely crushing him. He died in the bush before medical aid could be summoned.

In the death of Mr. Portt, Tyendinaga township has lost a fine citizen and successful farmer. He took an active part in the civic, social and fraternal activities of the community, was a kind friend and neighbor and his sudden death will be sincerely regretted by a wide circle of friends. He was born near Shannonville, 60 years ago, and had resided at or near his place of birth his entire life. He was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Henry Portt.

He was an active member of Trinity Anglican church at Shannonville and fraternally was identified with Craig Lodge, A.F. & A.M. No. [illegible]01, Deseronto. He is survived by his wife, the former Anita Elizabeth Gallagher, two sons Vincent Thornton Portt, of Belleville; Merle Mayhew Portt, at home; one brother, Thomas Henry Portt of Tyendinaga, and two sisters, Mrs. Bayton (Winnifred) Milligan; Mrs. Joseph (Anne) Simpkins of Winnipeg.

Resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home. The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this edition.

MRS. WELLINGTON FITCHETT
(Moira R.R. 1)

Following a lengthy illness, Mrs. Bessie Fitchett, of Huntingdon township, passed away early this Monday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Freeman Howes, Moira R.R. 1, first concession of Huntingdon. She was in her 87th year.

Mrs. Fitchett was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Garrett and was born near Gilead in Thurlow township. She had resided in the locality all her life. Her husband, Wellington Fitchett, predeceased her in 1949.

She was a member of the Roslin Presbyterian Church and when health permitted was very active in the work of the church. She was a member of the Woman's Missionary Society.

Surviving are three daughters: Mrs. Freeman (Helen) Howes, Roslin; Mrs. T. E. (Margaret) Emmons, Dunnville, Ont., and Mrs. Henry (Jessie) Morton, of Thomasburg; one sister, Mrs. Margaret Leslie, Queensboro; one brother, William Garrett, Toronto; ten grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

The funeral arrangements appear elsewhere in this edition.

MRS. GEORGE E. SOBLE
(Ameliasburg)

Following an illness of one month, Mrs. Shirley Ann Soble of Ameliasburg Village, died in the Belleville General Hospital early this Monday morning. She has been in ill health since the birth of her baby in the hospital on January 2nd.

The late Mrs. Soble was born in Belleville 18 years ago, being the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Gillespie and has resided in the city all her life with the exception of the last nine months when she moved with her husband to Ameliasburg. She was well known and highly respected in the community.

She was a member of Ameliasburg United Church and surviving are her parents, her husband George E. Soble, one son David Russell Soble, six weeks' old, and three sisters, Mrs. Bert (Marjory) Bolton of Belleville, Mrs. Jack (Lillian) Johnson of Hamilton and Mrs. Gerald (Joan) Woodward of this city.

Resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home. The funeral announcement will be made later.

MRS. ROBERT JOHN GAY
(R.R. 1, Ivanhoe)

Mrs. Eva Geraldine Gay, died suddenly Saturday, at her home, R.R. 1, Ivanhoe. She was in her 70th year.

The deceased was born in Humberstone, Ont., the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hanna, and lived in Niagara Falls, Ont., prior to moving to Ivanhoe 16 years ago.

She is survived by her husband, Robert John Gay; a daughter, Miss Jane Gay, at home; and two sons, Robert, of Long Branch, and William, at home.

Also surviving her is a brother, LeRoy Hanna, of Niagara Falls.

The deceased was a member of Grace Gospel Church, Niagara Falls, and attended West Huntingdon United Church. She was a member of the Women's Institute, and the Woman's Missionary Society.

Resting at her late residence, R.R. 1, Ivanhoe; the funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

Slippery Tracks Throw Vehicle Out of Control

Slippery railway tracks which apparently threw her vehicle out of control were believed responsible for a motor accident on Pinnacle Street over the week-end which saw a car driven by Betty Whalen, 147 Pinnacle Street, crash into the rear of a parked car.

The Whalen auto was north-bound and ran into the rear of a parked car owned by George F. Lang, R. R. 1 Deseronto. Damage to the Whalen auto amounted to about $250 and to the Lang car about $60.

Cannifton Road and College Street was the scene of another accident with damage to both cars amounting to about $350.

Kenneth W. Burley, 210 Dundas Street was south-bound on Highway 37, when as he entered the intersection a car driven by Roy J. Messervey, Gordon Street, pulled out from a service station and the two vehicles collided. Damage to the Burley auto amounted to $200 and to the Messervey car about $150.

Short Circuit In Engine Wiring Causes Blaze

Short circuiting of wiring on an engine at Chisholm's sawmill at Chisholm's Mills set the motor afire early today and a bucket brigade of mill workers went into operation to put out the flames.

The fire started as the mill was being readied for the day's operation and although workmen were successful in extinguishing the fire, the motor still continued to smoke and Belleville firemen were called as a precautionary measure.

The blaze was put out before it spread to the mill building and the only damage was to the engine which was put out of commission until repairs were made.

Kremlin Leaders Seek to Improve U.S. Relations

LONDON (Reuters)—The Kremlin has launched a drive to influence the American public in favor of a "normalization" of relations with Russia.

The new-style approach, in which frank talk replaces propaganda attacks, has been used in a series of interviews given by top Soviet leaders to American news executives visiting Moscow.

Chief personalities behind the new drive are Nikita S. Khrushchev, Russia's "party boss" and Marshal Georgi K. Zhukov, Soviet army chief who has just been appointed defence minister.

They and other Soviet leaders have given personal interviews during the last week to American news executives William Randolph Hearst, Jr., and J. Kingsbury Smith.

Kremlin leaders have not used the "man to man" approach for nearly 20 years. The Stalin interviews were always carefully prepared written answers to questionnaires submitted by newspaper men well in advance.

NOT ACCIDENTAL

Therefore the new approach, reflecting highest Kremlin policy, is not accidental.

In interviews, first Khrushchev and then Zhukov have declared their desire for better relations with the United States.

Khrushchev has declared "there is much that is good in America." He said a few days ago that Russia wants to "normalize" and even "improve" relations with the United States and to develop trade with her.

He jocularly brushed off, but did not entirely exclude, the possibility that he might one day visit the United States.

Zhukov has declared 'it is my sincere wish to improve mutual relations between our two countries. I would like to visit the United States, and if relations were to improve, I would do so with pleasure."

Canada's Lumber Industry Stole Show in Domestic, Export Trade During '54

CONFLICTING TALENTS

All Donald Elliott needs is the nod from the conductor of the Connaught School band at Ottawa and he'll be off for the neighborhood rink and a hockey session. What happened to the trombone when he makes a dive for the hockey stick and skates under his chair is anybody's guess. (CP Photo).

MONTREAL (CP)—The Canadian lumber industry stole the show in domestic production and export trade in 1954, W. J. LeClair, secretary-manager of the Canadian Lumbermen's Association, told the 47th annual CLA convention today.

"While many were bemoaning the loss of exports markets, Canada's lumber trade skyrocketed to unprecedented levels to provide one of the brightest spots in the country's economy," he said.

The 2,000 lumbermen and observers gathered for the three-day convention also heard a plea by president K. O. Roos for closer collaboration between the industry and the federal and provincial governments.

Mr. Roos suggested federal assistance especially for research, education and development of export markets. He felt such aid warranted because of the importance of the industry in Canada's economy and the large amount of indirect taxation it pays into federal coffers.

WOULD PUSH RESEARCH

He also asked that the federally-controlled forest products laboratories of Canada intensify their research on utilization of wood and wood products.

He suggested provincial governments turn back into forest development the money they obtain by direct forest taxation.

He urged lumber manufacturers and wholesalers to undertake a comprehensive market survey, that strengths and weaknesses may be discovered, and he proposed that retailers give salesmen comprehensive training courses on lumber and lumber products.

Further, the lumber industry and the federal and provincial governments should get together with the pulp and paper industry on a program of forest road construction, he said, and there should be a close study of the economic problems of the sawmill industry.

Resumes of the addresses of Mr. LeClair and Mr. Roos were issued to the press in advance of delivery.

Secretary-manager LeClair cited figures to show production in 1954 reached a record high of 7,250,000,000 board feet, up more than 50,000,000 feet over 1953. He predicted another banner year for 1955.

SAFE IS STOLEN

EAST CANADA'S

Estimated damage to the province was $100,000 but no deaths or injuries were reported. Temperatures continued to remain around zero.

CNR officials at Montreal said today trains from the Maritimes, due in Montreal Sunday morning, were expected to arrive this afternoon and that the tracks apparently had been cleared.

Most of the trouble was in a 15-mile stretch between Bic and Port Pic, two Rimouski county county communities about 160 miles east of Quebec City, officials said.

Nine trains—four heading for the Maritimes and five en route to Montreal—had been tied up between Riviere du Loop and Rimouski during clearing operations.

Railway spokesmen said all passengers on the stranded trains remained aboard, among them Otto Strasser, a former Nazi leader who broke with Hitler in the 1920s. Mr. Strasser was held up at Mont Joli, about 350 miles northeast of Montreal, and is expected to arrive here this afternoon to board a plane for Germany.

SHANNONVILLE

Agricultural Society Headed By Percy Moore

SHANNONVILLE. — Percy Moore was named president of the Shannonville Agricultural Society at the annual meeting held recently at the home of Sidney Fitzgerald.

The new president, who formerly filled the role of vice-president, succeeds Edward Lazier, who was president for the past two years.

First vice-president is Leslie McLaren, with Clarence Hagerman as 2nd vice-president.

Kenneth R. Vivian was re-elected as secretary-treasurer.

Everett Stratton and Kenneth Juby were again appointed as auditors.

Directors named were: Lorne Lazier, Harry Sine, Harold Osborne, Elmer Vivian, Robert Little, Sid Fitzgerald, Arnold Mitchell, Charles Long, Herbert Houston, James Lazier, Raymond Clarke, Arthur Long, Edward Lazier, Jack Sherman, Floyd Goodfellow, Lorne Weese, Robert McFarlane and Morris Reid.

Gratifying reports for the fair of 1954 were given by the chairmen of the various committees.

Splendid progress had been made in improving the fair grounds and constructing new buildings and bleachers. There were larger exhibits and more prizes than ever before.

Delegates were appointed to attend the 55th annual convention of the Ontario Association of Agricultural Societies, held at the King Edward Hotel, Toronto.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting and a social hour enjoyed.

TWO U.S. AIRMEN

Epton said he did not remember being thrown from the plane. He was also knocked out by the blast and regained consciousness as he plunged earthwards, his parachute unopened.

"My first impression was that I didn't have my parachute on me, then, that the parachute had not opened. I waited for a while until I started to breathe regularly. Apparently my oxygen mask was whipped off me when I left the plane. I pulled the cord at about 15,000 feet."

He landed about 1½ miles away from McGrew.

HAD RADIO

They wore cover-alls overr the uniforms and flight boots. A radio transmitter and rubber life raft were strapped to their legs.

The accompanying plane radioed the Rivers, Man., air base and its message sent the huge search into operation. The second Stratojet continued on to California.

Within a couple of hours a Saskatchewan Government Airways ski-equipped plane landed at a nearby lake and rescued McGrew.

More than three hours after he landed, Epton heard search planes overhead. He put his radio transmitter in action and within a half-hour had made contact with one of the planes.

Cpl. Charles Cooney of Winnipeg, a member of the first para-rescue team, jumped from an RCAF Dakota.

Within a few hours, the second team—Nursing Sister Marion Macdonald of Vancouver, Sgt. T. P. Mcnenamon of Saint John, N. B., and LAC E. A. Thompson of Winnipeg—parachuted to Epton's aid.

On her return to Winnipeg Sunday night, the slight, blonde nurse whose jump Saturday was her 43rd and the rescue her second successful mission, said it was a "rugged go."

The para-rescue team constructed a tent out of a parachute from Epton and built a huge fire. Miss Macdonald gave the flier a sedative and he slept soundly in a sleeping bag in the 20-below cold.

Early Sunday morning an ing a Mountie and two trappers landed at Mossy lake, about four miles from the rescue party. Later, the team pulled Epton to the plane on a toboggan. The plane arrived in The Pas early Sunday night and Epton and McGrew were placed aboard an RCAF Dakota and flown to Winnipeg.

Two German Girls Reunited With Parents

TORONTO (CP) — Two young German girls, travelling alone, were reunited with their parents at Malton airport Sunday after a 45 hour journey from Berlin.

After a separation of six months, Heilla and Heidi Koch, aged seven and 10, stepped off a plane into the arms of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Koch of Midland, Ont.

Mr. Koch, head draftsman at a Canadian name plate company, attributed the family's happy reunion to the generosity and good fortune he has encountered in Canada.

He and his wife, Anna, a trained nurse, both found jobs eight days after arriving in Toronto last August.

Company executives learned the Kochs were saving to bring their children to Canada from Germany and advanced the money for their passage.

COMFORT IN JAIL

OAKVILLE (CP)—Oakville's jail now offers almost all the comforts of home. The police committee recently authorized the expenditure of $300 for wool mattresses for the once-bare steel bunks; a reading light and a new coat of paint for each cell.

Muscular Dystrophy Creeping Disease With No Known Cure

By MAX B. SKELTON

PORT ARTHUR, Tex. (AP) — Raymond Waller is 18 years old, but he weighs less than 35 pounds. He awaits death patiently.

Raymond has muscular dystrophy, a creeping disease for which there is no known cure. A simple complication such as a common cold could bring death any day.

Yet Raymond's bright eyes, smile and sense of humor aid visitors in forcing tears away.

Raymond is one of more than 200,000 Americans who are victims of the crippling disease that involves a baffling malnutrition of muscles. Most are children.

CHOSEN POSTER BOY

As the poster boy for the American National Muscular Dystrophy Research Foundation, Raymond is an example of what the creeping disease can do to the human body.

At the age of four he was a healthy, bright-eyed youngster. Muscular dystrophy began to appear three years later. By the time he was 14 his body was little more than skin and twisted bone.

He has been unable to raise his head in three years. He has been bedridden five years. He can move only his hands.

But he still has those bright eyes.

Mrs. Louise Waller adopted Raymond when he was nine months old. When he was 7 she told him of the strange disease that was beginning to cause him to fall while at play.

On his 13th birthday, while preparing to blow out candles on his cake, Raymond made a wish that he once again could walk. He failed to blow out all the candles. That night he told his mother of his wish and, with tears in his eyes, added:

"I know now I'll never walk again."

CAUSE UNKNOWN

Muscular dystrophy is not contagious. Its cause is not known. It strikes the young and the old. Its progress is slow frequently unnoticeable in its early stages.

The disease itself is not fatal. Death results indirectly from the gradual disappearance of breathing muscles. Muscles gradually turn into a mass of fat or just disappear. Eventually, there is not sufficient strength to fight off a cold or lung and thrat congestion.

OLDEST PENSIONER

As he looks forward to his 100th birthday, Timothy P. Leger of Moncton, N.B., is the oldest pensioner of Canadian National Railways. Born at Memramcook, N.B., Feb. 18, 1855, he joined the railroad in 1883. He was a car inspector when he retired in 1916. He says his health has never been better and he can read without glasses. His favorite pastime is checkers. (CP Photo).

NEWSPAPERS' CIRCULATIONS GROW

"Editor and Publisher" reports that total daily newspaper circulation in the United States went over 55,000,000 during 1954 for the first time. The year's increase in circulation, 600,000, was the largest annual increase since 1950.

These figures cause the Ottawa Journal to recall that when radio became popular "the wise men looked ahead and saw that probably in five years all but the hardiest newspapers would be dead and gone." When this forecast proved wrong, the coming of television enabled the prophets to double their bets. "Even the hardiest newspapers were seen in the crystal ball to be doddering against the wall," says the Journal.

It adds: "It just ain't so."

Those figures from "Editor and Publisher" offer adequate proof as far as the United States goes, where, as the Journal says, "television towers are about as common on roof tops as chimneys." And, of course, the same increased circulation of newspapers has occurred in Canada.

This situation may prove surprising to the experts. It should not, however, surprise newspapermen. One can become addicted to news, just as easily as to whisky or cocaine. The results, however, are much more pleasant.

Probably nobody reads the evening newspaper more avidly than a newspaperman. Almost certainly he is not content to scan his own newspaper, but must also read the same news, reported in a slightly different manner, in another newspaper.

Radio and television, with their newscasts, have done the same thing for the general public that his daily work does for the newspaperman. The appetite for news has been whetted.

That, we suggest, is the most important impact of newscasts on newspapers. The Ottawa Journal suggests another one. "It is now our business," it says, "not so much to rush out the first bulletins of news—which can be conveyed by radio—but to get all of the news and assess it and make it understandable. Analysis and interpretation and background are increasingly our responsibility. It isn't by any means an easier task, nor a less important one."

Radio and television, far from competing with newspapers, have actually co-operated with them. They have stimulated the demand for the product which newspapers sell to the public and, by relieving newspapers of the duty of rushing the first reports of vital events to the public, have made it possible for them to devote more time to the much more important task of telling all the story and telling it accurately, in a manner which provides a permanent record.

AN AFRICAN "INDO-CHINA?"

Will the tragic story of Indo-China be repeated in North Africa?

Will France, refusing to agree to reasonable terms, practically force the Arab nationalists into the waiting arms of the Communists?

That is one of the frightening possibilities of the fall of Mendes-France and his government, if we accept some of the views of Volney D. Hurd, chief of the Paris news bureau of the Christian Science Monitor, a newspaper which is noted for its incisive interpretations of international trends.

Mr. Hurd does not compare the situation in North Africa to that in Indo-China, nor does he mention the possibility of Communist influence in the area. But he does say that "in its wish to defeat ex-Premier Mendes-France the French National Assembly has risked bringing down France's whole North African empire."

Many dispassionate observers, he says, believe that only a program of compromise can prevent chaos in North Africa. In the past few years nationalist terrorism and police repression, reacting one upon the other, have steadily mounted. Mendes-France had endeavored to reverse this tide. When he took office an agreement for reforms in Algeria, made eight years ago, had never been put into effect. It was the same type of refusal to recognize the necessity for change which won the Viet Minh such popular support in Indo-China, support so widespread that today many reliable observers expect that the Communists will win a free election when one is held in that divided land.

Mendes-France tried to keep French promises in Algeria. He sought to bring peace to Tunisia and appeared to have won the confidence of many nationalist Arabs. He also endeavored to bring stability to Morocco.

The ousting from office of a man in whom they have acquired confidence would, of itself, have been deeply disturbing to Arab nationalists in Africa. But to have this man deposed specifically for his African policies was a double-edged blow.

"If such negotiations (for a settlement of the Tunisian question) were so difficult even with the Tunisians' new friend—a French premier with an honest program of freedom and reform—no prospects but failure would seem likely with the kind of government which will most probably succeed M. Mendes-France's, a government built from an Assembly with no real majority and headed by a conciliatory premier, chosen for his lack of dynamism as a reaction from the Mendes-France regime." That is how Volney D. Hurd of the Christian Science Monitor sees the situation. It is difficult to quarrel with this appraisal.

VALENTINE CHOICES

To tell to her your love precisely
A mink coat does it very nicely,
And every florist here proposes Orchids, carnations white or roses.

Love gifts are various and many,
And candy serves as well as any.
No word of censure will be spoken
Should perfume be the lover's token,
A card that bears a message
tender
From one who loves will not offend her.
She will be happy to receive it
And even happier to believe it.

She merely wants to know you love her
And that today you're thinking of her.
A word of love; Oh, don't delay
it!
It makes no difference how you say it.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

FEBRUARY 14th, 1935

Miss Marion Chambers, of Corbyville, spent the weekend with Mrs. W. Clapp, College Hill.

The Rev. L. M. Sharpe, Mrs. Sharpe and Mr. and Mrs. Reed of Wilton, were the week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Ketcheson, fourth line of Sidney township.

Mr. Joseph E. Shortt, general secretary of the local YMCA, Mr. Newton W. Thompson, repreesnting the International Y's Men's Club and Mr. George H. Griffin, representing the local Y's Men's Club, have returned home from Toronto where they attended the National Council of the YMCA for Canada.

Mr. R. L. Brown and Mr. Harry Post of the Hydro staff attended the Leafs-Maroon hockey game in Toronto on Saturday night.

Mr. Ernest Fitzgibbon is visiting his sister, Mrs. Earl Landon, in Oshawa.

Mr. George O'Brien spent the week-end with friends in Peterborough.

Mrs. Arthur Sills, of Toronto, was a week-end guest of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Tucker, Trent Road.

This is St. Valentine's Day and it is also the birthday of Mr. J. V. Jenkins, proprietor of Hotel Quinte. Mr. Jenkins' full name is James Valentine Jenkins and today many friends are expressing good wishes to him on the 83rd anniversary of his birth.

30 YEARS AGO

FEBRUARY 14, 1925

Mr. H. E. Fairfield owing to pressure of business has not the spare time necessary to regularly discharge the duties as a director of the Chamber of Commerce and has asked that he be relieved from office. In his place the directors have appointed the well-known druggist, Mr. Charles T. Dolan.

At a meeting of the Tweed Board of Trade the following officers were elected: President, S. G. Way; vice-president, William O'Keefe; members of council, Reeve Rollins, W. E. Wager, George Stokes, John Quinn, J. L. Newton, W. A. Donnelly, M. Martin, M. Sayers, E. Wright and P. McIlroy.

Neighbors and other friends of Mr. R. C. Embury joined with him in celebrating his 72nd birthday when they surprised him at his home on Cedar Street and made a presentation to him, accompanied by an address, expressing congratulations and good wishes. The gift was a handsome carving set. The address was signed on behalf of the givers by Messrs. John Bean, Cephas Martin, Manley Tufts, John Frawley, Anthony Farrell, Harry Freeman, Fred Fairman, Walter Corham.

40 YEARS AGO

FEBRUARY 14, 1915

Mr. and Mrs. S. Way, Hillside Street, spent Sunday with friends in Tweed.

The Rev. A. M. Hubly observes today the tenth anniversary of his pastorate at Emmanuel Church in this city.

The Rev. R. C. Blagrave, rector of Christ Church, has been invited to become rector of St. Luke's Anglican Church in Peterborough; he has, however, decided to remain at Christ Church.

At the annual meeting of the North Hastings County Orange Lodge which was held at Monteagle, the following officers were elected: R. Robinson, W. M.; John Rutledge, D.M.; D. Fuller, chaplain; J. F. Tait, secretary; William Price, treasurer; R. Vickers and Jas. Quirk, lecturers; G. Paton, D. of C.; committee, A. Woodcock, J. McLean, W. Young and G. Twa.

50 YEARS AGO

FEBRUARY 14, 1905

—Mr. and Mrs. John Griffin have returned to their home at Bradford, Pa., after spending six weeks here with friends.

The annual meeting of the congregation of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was held last evening and the meeting was opened by the minister, the Rev. R. S. Laidlaw. Mr. W. P. Hudson was appointed chairman and the reports submitted were highly satisfactory. The following were elected to the Board of Management: John Bell, K.C., Dr. Farley, William McGie, J. A. Laidlaw, Arthur McGie, H. C. Hunt, Lieut.-Col. S. S. Lazier, Lt.-Col. W. N. Ponton, Thos. Stewart, D. M. Waters, H. Macdiarmid, William Webster, W. C. Reid, W. P. Hudson, W. J. Campbell and Judge Lazier.

The Rev. R. H. Leitch has been invited to remain as pastor of Holloway St. Methodist Church for another year.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

There really out to be another name than music for what is called modern and atonal music. After listening to a symphony hour recently which consisted of two or three very modern compositions which, though played on musical instruments, bore no possible resemblance to music as it has been established over three centuries, I suggest that this new creation be called mooxiel, or muckix, or some such name. If the Eskimos hadn't already taken the word mukluk for their boots, mukluk would have been the ideal word. For it conveys the idea of something sort of mucked up with an element of pot luck about it: the pot luck a modern atonal composer must rely on when he starts out to create one of these compositions. His chief problem is to avoid harmonious sounds; and as you follow him, you can see how narrowly he misses creating a harmony time after time. But with the simple device of throwing in a handful of horn or a few pinches of fiddle, entirely off key, as you would chuck a monkey wrench, he escapes all harmony, all melody, all tone, or whatever the professors call it.

I am assured that there is quite a community in the musical world which claims to understand modern music. But since it is a community of experts or specialists speaking strictly to one another, is there not some justification for requiring that they speak to one another in private, and do not impose their specialty on the public, as on radio? The Doukhobors, for example, are a special community. And it is only when they parade naked in public that we interfere with them. They can do what they like in hired halls.

To one of my intellectual friends, I went groaning.

"Art," he explained, "reflects the mind and spirit of itts age or epoch. This is true of the Parthenon in Athens, and say, the sixteenth centurn Dutch painters. Artists, working from an inner compulsion they do not understand, merely reflect, like mirrors, but the image endures. At present, the mechanical and technical mind and spirit of our age is sharp and clear. Both the intellectuals, the philosophers, political leaders, thinkers, are in the state of dire confusion which modern painting, music and literaturee depict."

So that's it

Mukluk, sure enough.

Statistics Treacherous

(The Printed Word)

A statistician, according to an old fable, drowned while wading across a river that had an average depth of four feet. This is a reminder that, unless their use is combined with common sense, figures can be thoroughly misleading, although David Lewis, national chairman of, the CCF, doesn't seem to know about it.

Mr. Lewis has told a party rally in Ottawa that 70 per cent of Canadian families live on less than the minimum income required for the basic needs of shelter, food and clothing. The nation's prosperity, he says, is an illusion. His reasoning is based on the claim of the Toronto Welfare Bureau that, to supply its basic needs, a family must have a minimum income of $65 a week. Mr. Lewis, of course, was using these statistics to prove that Canada needs socialism.

Common sense requires that both these estimates must be regarded with some suspicion. It does not seem possible that a Canadian family with an income of $65 a week can do no more than purchase the absolute essentials. Nor does it seem possible that 70 per cent of Canadian families have income of less than $65 a week.

Canadian prosperity is an illusion, says Mr. Lewis. Yet in recent years, Canadians have been spending more than a billion dollars a year on new homes, a like amount on new cars, about seven billions on taxes, hundreds of millions of dollars per annum on such luxuries as television sets, liquor and travel. Canadians are healthier than ever, living longer than ever. None of that indicates that 7 out of 10 families live on starvation pay.

Mr. Lewis should never attempt to wade a creek that has an average depth of four feet. His heirs might discover the fallacy of using statistics without combining the figures with common sense.

Horsepower Malarkey

(Philadelphia Bulletin)

Maybe you're one of these fortunate persons with a brand new super-duper eight with guaranteed 260 horespower.

Well, don't brag too much about it, for there's lot of malarkey in that 260 stuff, say in-the-know automotive engineers.

They get that 260-figure by running the motor on a testing block, under controlled temperatures, with special oil, special muffler and tailpipe, special or no radiator, no fan or air cleaner, special spark plugs, no fluid transmission or different friction.

These things, plus a few other gimmicks, can account for a full 100 horespower. So now you're down to 160. But you've nothing to gripe about, because that's still 159 more than your grandpappy had—if he was lucky.

This Poet Hit Jackpot

(Edmonton Journal)

The maxim that it doesn't pay to write poetry was seriously challenged the other day in Texas.

A hold-up man entered a Fort Worth bank and shoved a note into the cashier's cage. Written on it was the following deathless verse:

This is a stickup.
Don't get funny,.
Open the cash drawer
So I can get money.

The cashier complied, and handed over probably the largest sum ever received for a single poem.

Fortunately the bard was soon afterwards captured by the police, and the unprofitable nature of poetry was re-established.

Not Improved In Condition

(Toronto Saturday Night)

A friend of ours swears that this tale is true—although he has a chronic dislike for customs regulations of any kind, and may well be prejudiced. It seems that an American came to Canada on a business visit and died. His associates had the body embalmed, placed in an expensive casket and sent it on its way back to the United States. It got to the border and there it stayed while customs men went into a huddle. The tariff law concerning caskets was explicit, but what about the corpse? Was it an animal product, a vegetable extract, a food receptacle? Happily, a solution was found before the deceased became a permanent monument on the border. The body was classified as "an article of American origin not noticeably changed or improved in condition", and the complicated machinery controlling exports and imports moved back into high gear.

How to Clean Chimneys

(Manchester (Eng.) Guardian)

The Lancashire village in which I lived as a boy never prided itself on being mean, but, on the other hand, all the methods of chimney sweeping practised there seem to have been at least as economical as any so far described in your columns. One, which I remember as a source of great delight to all the children, was the short, sharp and simple system of firing a shotgun up the flues. It was necessary of course to give your neighbors warning that no mayhem was being committed on your premises, but after that you simply fired the shot and collected the soot for your raspberry canes.

An alternative method, not very popular even then, and now, I believe, happily extinct, was to tie a hen's legs together and drop it down the wide chimney opening that most of the cottages had instead of chimney pots. The frantic fluttering of the poor bird's wings dislodged as much soot as any sweep's brush.

The third, and by far the most common practice, was to set fire to the soot by burning great quantities of newspapers and old fat piled high in the kitchen grate. The early hours of Sunday morning was the time most often chosen for this extremely anti-social form of economy on the ground that this was the time of all the week when police vigilance was at its slackest.

The village had a chimney sweep—he was also the local blacksmith—but none of the working people ever thought of calling on his services any more than they thought of sending their washing to a laundry.

Good Writer Lonely Soul

(London Free Press)

Ernest Hemingway, American novelist who won the Nobel Prize for literature this year, says the good writer must be a lonely soul. He is a man forever doomed to attempt new horizons and to seek higher degrees of perfection.

This successful novelist admits that there are organizations for writers which help to palliate his loneliness, but shrewdly adds: "He may grow in public stature as he sheds his loneliness, but often his work deteriorates." He concluded his address: "I have spoken too long...A writer should write what he has to say and not speak it."

It is a useful warning to the younger writer who must be willing to endure the pangs of creation alone if he is to scale the heights, and when and if he arrives on that glittering summit he will find it lonely also.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

BUT AFTER DEFEAT—VICTORY

Think of the defeats that stand out as great turning points in the history of nations. Bunker Hill was a defeat and was for a long time looked upon with chagrin and disappointment, yet that defeat had more glorious results and a more wide-reaching influence in the history of our country than almost any of our military victories. The famous Battle of Thermopylae was a defeat, but it has thrilled the ages because it was a moral victory. Some months ago we considered the anniversary of Pearl Harbor. Our proud nation was prostrated as the result of that catastrophe, yet out of it came preparation and determination which eventuated in victory.

And so it is with life every day. In our moments of wishful thinking, we often imagine how happy we would be if we could just go on from one victory to another, each mounting above the other in magnitude and significance. Yet if we look back over our lives, we find that perhaps our greatest lessons have been learned from our defeats. There come times in the lives of every one of us when there must be readjustment, reappraisal, and very often the re-routing of our lives along different highways.

We can never develop courage unless we are compelled to hope and believe in the possibility of something the reality of which is beyond our sight.

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

WHO DOESN'T WANT TO FEEL BETTER

A periodic drinker solemnly declared that between binges he never touched liquor nor wanted it but that from time to time he just felt the need of a stimulant . . .

Dr. Brady

I assured him alcohol is not a stimulant . . .

Well, he continued, then just say I drink when I want to feel better.

For that matter, everyone who doesn't feel just fine and dandy would like to feel better.

But it is not at all logical to imagine a drink or any number of drinks can make one who is tired, blue, discouraged, weak, sad or unhappy feel better. Not really. Not any more than a hypodermic of morphine or heroin or a sniff of cocaine or a barbiturate tablet can.

To be sure, the cocktail or highball or straight liquor does not deprave or pervert character as quickly as these other "sedatives," sleeping pills or narcotics do. Still, we must remember, alcohol is a depressant, a narcotic, and in no circumstance a stimulant.

When the drinker takes a drink "because he wants to feel better" he or she really wants the narcotic because it is an intellectual depressant. A drink or two or three drinks—enough to make any one unfit to drive a car—first depress the highest cerebral centres (intellectual) and then the lower cerebral centres (motor, emotional, animal.)

When the highest cerebral centres are depressed, dulled or slightly stupefied the individual is less aware of his or her worries, anxieties, incompetence, deficiencies, and so, for an hour, more or less, the poor soul imagines he "feels better," when in fact his perception is for the time being in abeyance. When the narcotic effect of the alcohol wears off he or she will feel as bad or a little worse than before, and so . . .

For that matter, who doesn't feel the need of a stimulant occasionally? And who doesn't want to feel better?

That is not a rhetorical question. There's a good logical (physiological, psychological) answer, namely, the well nourished individual. I means to say that one in A-1 or optimal nutritional condition doesn't feel the need of a stimulant. He or she feels just fine and dandy and not only doesn't want to "feel better" but doesn't want to miss anything by dulling or benumbing consciousness or sense of well being even for a little while or as company for the misery of those who urge him or her to have just one narcotic with them.

How does one keep feeling fine and dandy?

For the most of us the answer is so simple that we refuse to take it seriously. But that is because most of us are thirty years behind the times. Physicians and laymen alike are impervious to the newer knowledge of nutrition. Nevertheless, if I can get in a word while the amateur and professional psychologists are drawing breath, let me say that malnutrition or, as we call it nowadays, nutritional deficiency, is the chief cause of drinking.

This applies, I believe, to occasional, social, moderate or habitual indulgence and to chronic drunkenness, alcoholism, dipsomania or whatever you prefer to call addiction to alcohol.

If my view of the drinking question or my attitude seems harsh, unsympathetic or fanatic, I'm sorry. I confess I hate drinking with all my heart and —oh, oh, maybe we had better leave it at that. At the same time, I hope you will understand, I weep for the victims of drink, especially for the children, the wives and other loved or ought-to-be-loved ones.

New Sounds Not Feared

(Christian Science Monitor)

It is marvelous and intricate combination of electronic tubes and electrical circuits still more esoteric called a "sound synthesizer" promises some of the qualities of dynamite. Dynamite, you know, can remove stumps or burrow a tunnel through a mountain for road or railway. And it can also blow up a bank vault or demolish a fortification.

The sound synthesizer, say the physicists and the engineers who produced it, can duplicate any known sound, from the human voice to the music from a symphony orchestra—and some unknown sounds, too, no doubt.

It's the known sounds that have us worried. Contrary to the reasoning of Shakespeare's Hamlet, who had rather "bear those ills we have than fly to others that we know not of," we'll take a chance with sounds we've never heard.

The crooner, the torch singer, the hoarse feminine "vocalist," the throaty tenor with a catch in his voice—these we already know. What more could sounds we know not of do to us?

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ANTI-AMEN

How refreshing it is to listen to anyone who knows what he wants and what he likes, not merely surrendering to the easy way of agreeing with everyone—known as an "Amen" person. It is always stimulating to meet and converse with a person who knows his own mind and who has the courage to express exactly what he thinks, regardless of the opinions of others.

On the other hand, it is unintelligent to oppose everything just to be "different," or to get the reputation of an anti-Amen person—and oppose things without "rhyme or reason." There are urgent problems in the world, many of them almost at our very feet, that need our thoughtful consideration and support, not our thoughtless opposition.

One of the very greatest faculties of the mind is its reasoning power. Instead of saying no or yes to a proposition without full consideration, take the time out to give intelligent thought to it and then give your decision. Whether right or wrong, you will have exercised an honorable function of the mind, and unconsciously set yourself apart as one of God's happy agents!

It was Stevenson who once said: "To know what you prefer, instead of humbly saying Amen to what the world tells you you ought to prefer, is to have kept your soul alive." Not only that but your self-respect thereby will have been preserved and nourished.

Constructive thinkers often have to wait a long time for their ideas to get the proper attention. Many of them are in their graves before fame and just recognition become theirs. But like Truth itself great deeds march on. Were this not true we could boast of little, for progress is made up of dreams, and the final triumph of ideas that others have initiated. How precious is freedom, and how wonderful it is that we can think as we please and express our opinions without being shot because of them

STIRLING

Sidney T.F. Agriculture Holds Banquet, Hears Talk on Farming

STIRLING — John Kane, president of Sidney Township Federation of Agriculture, was in charge of the annual banquet held Friday evening in St. Paul's Sunday school rooms, with approximately 180 in attendance.

The dining room was attractively arranged in Valentine colors with lighted tapers and bowls of luscious red apples. The members of River Valley Women's Institute, under the leadership of Mrs. Ross Bush, president, served a sumptuous meal, which included cheese on the menu.

The head table was seated with the officers, directors and the wives of the S.F.A. and a few special guests. The Rev. A. Packman gave the invocation.

During the program, Misses Grace and Joanne Heasman, with their mother, Mrs. George Heasman as accompanist, contributed two vocal duets. Mr. Douglas Pyear, a past president, rendered a vocal selection with his mother, Mrs. Arthur Pyear, as accompanist.

THANKS TENDERED

Mr. Kane expressed thanks to his directors for all their co-operation during his term of office.

Mr. A. O. Dalrymple, Agricultural Representative, introduced Professor Ralph Campbell, who is well known in this district. Ralph received his education at King George High School, Stirling, and was top student in the fifth form when he took 13 subjects and received eleven firsts and two seconds.

Later, he served overseas and received his D.F.C., then on to Toronto University, where he graduated in Economics and won a Rhodes Scholarship at Oxford, England.

Ralph is now a professor at O.A.C., Guelph, and head of the Economics department.

SMALL NUMBER FARMING

Ralph spent a few minutes in recalling other days and then gave a brief summary on the theme, "What's Been Happening in Agriculture During the Past Ten or Fifteen Years?"

One of the most important things is the declining number of people who are actually in farming. He explained that at the time of Confederation about fifty per cent of the population of Canada was engaged in agriculture. By 1901 this number was reduced to 40 per cent and when 1930 rolled around, about one-third of Canada's population was engaged in farming.

Since the beginning of 1940 this quota has dropped steadily and now in 1955 only approximately 17 per cent of the population of Canada is engaged in farming. Thus, the fewer people in agriculture must be bound together in a strong far-seeing agricultural group with a good organization.

DECLINE IN ACREAGE

The second point was the decline in acreage. In the past ten years the province of Ontario has lost seven per cent of farm land out of agriculture. Some of this land has been taken over for housing and while this seven per cent has not all been choice land, still it was used in agriculture and this loss of land has created a different picture for agriculture.

The other side of this decline are tremendous changes in agriculture that have taken place and today the increased production is a big factor. "We now produce in Canada about 55 per cent more than in pre-war days, in spite of the decline of people and acres." It is hard for farm people to realize the big increase in agriculture as the production per person is now an increase of over 50 per cent.

"Some may ask why all this increase, and the answer is 'mechanization.' Today Canada has three times as many tractors as were in use ten years ago, and twelve times as many combines.

"All this tremendous increase in machinery, as well as the increased use of better and more fertilizer, together with better varieties of seeds, and better animals has had its influence in this higher production.

FINDING A MARKET

"The biggest problem today is to find a market. There are surplus supplies, and it is hard to consume all that we produce. The farm organizations are now in the field of market, and they will need to study this subject from every angle in order to better their department."

The speaker gave a graphic picture of price supports, and buying of surplus products as carried on by the United States government. He explained their huge storage problem, and the cost per day was startling. The large amount of money that is spent for farm products by the U.S. is one of their ideas in order to keep farm products at a decent level. Over there, wheat production is on a quota system and farmers must abide by that law or pay the price for overproducing.

The speaker felt the system used across the border was not suitable for Ontario and other measures must be decided upon. He felt price supports were ideal in an emergency but should not be a permanent fixture.

FARMER RECEIVES 45 PER CENT

From the consumer's point of view very often they do not realize that the farmer receives about 45 cents out of every dollar. The other 55 cents goes to middlemen, wholesalers, and others who engage in the sale of the product from farmer to consumer.

If too much food were dumped on the market, prices would go down, then farmers might go out of that particular commodity and then when scarcity came, the prices would soar, so over a period of time an even price is the best idea for both consumer and producer.

"The federation has always stressed self-help and a good constructive study of the various problems. The co-operatives in 1938 sold over $200,000 worth of products and by 1952 this had increased by 75 per cent. By promotion and good leadership they have given a better understanding between those who buy and those who sell, "Co-ops" have given much to agriculture."

This year the four dairy groups are paying for economic research in milk products, and the speaker gave an interesting account of this phase of agriculture.

STUDY GROWTH

"Marketing boards have shown steady growth and today there are 29 farm producers in Ontario who sell through this medium. These have all been organized in the past fifteen years."

In his closing summary, Professor Campbell spoke of the small percentage of money that is given by the government to agriculture in comparison with the amounts given to other groups. He stressed efficient production and effective marketing.

Mr. George Carlisle, of the county federation, voiced grateful thanks to the speaker for his informative address.

FINANCIAL STATEMENT

Mr. Burton Hubble, secretary-treasurer, gave a full financial statement and said they still had over 150 name plates for mail boxes and the S.F.A. are now accepting applications for same.

Mr. James Campbell voiced thanks to River Valley Women's Institute for the cuisine and complimented the ladies on the appetizing meal and the Institute president replied.

Mr. Earl Sayers, Hastings County Federation, spoke briefly. He urged each farmer to spend some time in figuring his cost of production and making plans for next year's crop. He felt time thus spent was most profitable.

Mr. Earl Wrightman spoke briefly and said: "Individually, we couldn't exist, but collectively we can." He invited everyone interested to attend a joint meeting of Sidney and Rawdon township in Stirling on February 21, when the deputy Minister of Agriculture will address the gathering.

Reeve Harry Morrow of Sidney, brought greetings from his township and extended congratulations to president Kane and directors.

Mr. Harley Hamilton, president of Foxboro Co-op., spoke briefly.

23 DIE IN CHICAGO SKID ROW

Flames nearly envelope firemen fighting a roaring blaze in a crowded hotel in Chicago's slums to rescue dozens of persons. Of 245 persons who rented cubby-holes in the hotel, 23 died, dozens of others were injured or burned as they jumped from windows to escape the smoke and heat. Two firemen were injured. Hillier South

HILLIER SOUTH — There was good attendance at Sunday School Rose Hall last Sunday. Mrs. A. Wanamaker had charge of the devotional exercises. Mr. C. Clapp led the Bible class with discussions on the lesson. Great interest is shown in the Sunday School work.

Mrs. Clark Clapp was a recent caller of Mrs. A. C. Pettingil. Glad to report Mrs. Pettingil improving in health.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Lancaster and Roberta spent Sunday evening with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Wannamaker.

Mr. and Mrs. Murray Danford are expected to return home from their honeymoon this deek-end.

All regret that Mrs. W. Bowers has been ill. She underwnt a serious operation last week-end at Trenton hospital. Her many friends trust she may soon be restored to health.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Wannamaker were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. N. Dafoe.

Mrs. L. Channel and family have been with her sister, Mrs. Gordon Jackson.

Mr. and Mrs. E. James visited their daughter, Mrs. Gordon Lloyd and Mr. Lloyd, Sunday last.

Madoc Junction

MADOC JUNCTION.—Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Stapley visited Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Stapley of Campbellford on Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Fitchett spent Monday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. Kirkey.

Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Ashley were dinner guests on Monday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Morgan, Foxboro.

Mr. Clarence Fitchett is attending the annual convention of the Ontario Association of Agricultural Societies being held this week in the King Edward Hotel, Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Kirkey and daughter, Miss Shirley Kirkey, of Belleville, were Sunday supper guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Murney Kirkey.

Mr. and Mrs. Murney Kirkey visited relatives in Belleville on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Clarke and Annamae were Sunday supper guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Ashley.

Mr. and Mrs. P. Reynolds and boys were Sunday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. Haynes, Gilead.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Poole, Trenton, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. G. Moorman.

FIRE GUTS FACTORY

OTTAWA (CP) — Fire Sunday night gutted a two-storey building in west-end Ottawa housing a costume jewelry factory. The two-hour blaze, its origin as yet undetermined, left only the brick walls of the Fleming-Leech Ltd. factory standing despite efforts of firemen from four Ottawa stations. A company official estimated damage at $75,000.

NIXON STUCK

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Vice-President Richard Nixon of the United States and his wife visited Mexico's ultra-modern University City Friday and much to the consternation of their hosts got stuck for 10 minutes in an elevator. The elevator stalled between the first and second floors.

TV's FATHER IS NO TV FAN

Dr. Vladimir K. Zworykin, New York City, regarded as the father of modern television through his creation of the iconoscope, first practical tube for picture transmission, shows the old type iconoscope to pretty Doris Byers, Toronto, while he holds newly perfected tube as a comparison of size. Dr. Zworykin, honorary vice-president of RCA, while visiting Toronto to give a lecture on television transmission, admitted he was not a television fan. "I'd rather read," he said. Special Mention

NEW YORK (CP)—Fred Thompson of the Toronto Globe and Mail, who discovered evidence which saved an innocent man from prison, Sunday received special mention in the 1954 Heywood Broun Award of the American Newspaper Guild (CIO).

Anthony Lewis, Washington Daily News reporter, won the $500 prize for a series of articles helping to clear a United States Navy employee, Abraham Chasanow, of security risk charges.

Working with G. Arthur Martin, Toronto barrister, Mr. Thompson accumulated facts in the case of Paul Cachia, 21, twice convicted for a robbery of which he said he was innocent. When these facts were presented at a new trial, Cachia won his freedom after serving 28 months of a four-year sentence.

WINTER BLOOM

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Great is the fuss some bridge partners try to make over a flock of supporting trumps. It is nothing to get over-heated about. Stop to consider and you will cool down to a peaceful condition.

Your partner in south opened with a bid of one spade at a time when you were dealt the hand shown here:

♠K J 8 6 4
♥9 6 3
♦K 7 5

What is your first response? It should be two spades, a simple assist and nothing more either now or hereafter. When you raised to a bid of two spades you said your all in this deal.

You will find some partners whose temperature rises with the number of their supporting trumps above three. Some of these have been known to jump to four spades because of their trump length.

Get yourself a stub of pencil and start figuring the help for an opening spade bidder. Counting the shortage in clubs that will be ruffed once, this responder can produce three tricks.

Does it look to you as if the long trumps could produce more? Hardly likely. The long trumps here will simply fall on the trumps that opener could also take; simply waste material here.

An opening one bidder does not promise a minimum of more than five tricks. In some systems, even less. With three tricks in north, the pair can bank on no more than eight tricks at the start.

If opener has more than five tricks it is he that can go up in the partnership number. So all the responder should do is give his one raise and leave the rest to opener.

You have seen some partners jump to four spades with such a hand. The contract makes the ten tricks needed. But not because the reply was right. It found opener with the additional tricks needed.

You might get something that looks like blood out of a beet. But some bridge players try to get it out of a white parsnip.

AT THE McCARTHY

A SACRIFICE FOR NEWTON

In "The Beachcomber" which commences today at the McCarthy theatre for three days, that exciting British actor, Robert Newton, is sentenced to be trampled to death by a secred elephant, which is indeed an unhappy ending but perhaps no worse than being hanged as he was in "Oliver Twist" where he gave a memorable performance as Bill Sykes.

In the new film version of Somerset Maughan's "The Beachcomber", Newton plays a worthless outcast of a noble family. Beautiful Glynis Johns plays the missionary's sister, with whom he falls in love.

"The Beachcomber" is thrilling, moving and sometimes awe-inspiring, but contains those moments of rare humor that go to make great motion picture entertainment. All the exotic splendor of the south sea islands has been magnificently captured by the Technicolor camera. None of Somerset Maughan's famous story of a strange love on a tropical island has been lost in this new film version. This is the story of a man who has lost his grip on life and who recovers it through the love of a woman who sees a warm heart beneath his rugged exterior. Robert Newton is unforgettable as the man who chases his own particular devil from his soul; and Glynis Johns was never more convincing as the girl who slowly warms to love under a tropic sky. "The Beachcomber" is a fine adaption of a great novel but more than that it is great movie entertainment.

'A Star Is Born' Film Cast $3,500,000 More Than Budget

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Judy Garland is faced with an old show business dilemma: what to do for an encore?

And if one comes up, who's going to back it?

"A Star Is Born" generally is conceded to be the best movie ever written about Hollywood—and Judy gave it a real Oscar performance.

But there are some who say that this perfectionist comes high, too high for money-conscious Hollywood producers. Some studio sources say her behavior during the shooting of "Star" aged Jack L. Warner 10 years and currently is giving the studio accountants an anxiety complex.

BUDGET FAR EXCEEDED

Warner Bros. agreed to finance the musical version of the oft-filmed story for Judy and her producer husband, Sid Luft. They set a budget of $2,500,000 and a time limit of five months.

The picture finally cost $6,000,000 and took almost a year to finish. When David O. Selznick burned down Atlanta for "Gone with the Wind" it was cheaper than Judy's "Born in a Trunk" musical number in "Star."

A $6,000,000 picture usually must make $12,000,000 to break even—the advertising, exploitation and distribution costs double the production cost.

But this one got the greatest exploitation sendoff in recent Hollywood history. An unimpeachable studio source estimated it will take $15,000,000 for "Star" to break even. Few pictures gross that much.

Had "Star" been made within budget, it would be a box office smash already. As it is, it may yet make it but the Warner ulcers will have to bleed a little longer.

MONTH'S WORK DITCHED

Why did "Star" cost so much?

Judy admits she's a perfectionist but won't admit to temperament. She claims a change in screen processes cost a month's delay right at the start.

"You know there was a little thing called Cinemascope that came along just as we started this picture. We scrapped a month's work that was shot in standard size and started over again."

What caused the delay?

Most stories had Judy sulking in her dressing room while hundreds of players and crew stood idly by on the set. This, she denies emphatically.

"I caused three days' delay in one year—and it was illness, not temperament."

One possibility for an encore might be the Judy Garland story itself. It has the makings of a better Hollywood script than "Star," complete with every box-office ingredient save cowboys and Indians.

Her "Born in a Trunk" number could be autobiographical, for her Vaudeville parents put her in the act at the age of two in Grand Rapids, Minn.

IN PICTURES AT 13

She was in pictures at 13 and never knew a normal childhood. She's 33 now, mother of two lovely children.

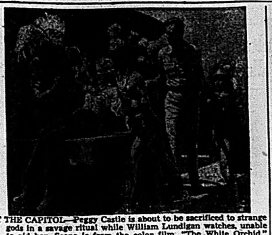
Judy's second marriage, to director Vincente Minelli, ended in divorce like her first to composer David Rose. She started dating Luft and they were married.

If ever a couple married with two strikes on them, it was Judy and Luft.

"I know the gossips gave us not a year, not six months—but 15 mnutes together at the most," she recalls.

Judy, they said, was washed up. Luft, once married to actress Lynn Bari, had made a few quickie movies but was mostly known for his frequent brawls in Sunset Strip nightspots.

But surprisingly Judy and Sid proved good for each other. They seemed to stabilize themselves. It was Luft who engineered Judy's dramatic comebacks at the London Palladium, the Palace in New York and now in the movies.



AT THE CAPITOL—Peggy Castle is about to be sacrificed to strange gods in a savage ritual while William Lundigan watches, unable to aid her. Scene is from the color film, "The White Orchid," thrill drama opening tonight at the Capitol Theatre through United Artists release. On the same program the added thrills in "The Snow Creature". Both hits are first district showings.

AT THE BELLE — Steve Forrest, MGM's newest star personality had a dramatic role in "Prisoner of War" now playing at the Belle Theatre. The other MGM feature on the program is "Crest of the Wave", starring Gene Kelly in a totally different role. Both features are now playing at the Belle Theatre.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

ISN'T THIS WIFE'S PROBLEM HER OWN FAULT?

[illegible]member that column I wrote [illegible]ently about the stingy husband? My suggestion was that women might work out such a problem by finding a way to earn pin money for themselves.

Among the letters which have come in from readers in comment on that column is a wryly bitter one from an obviously disillusioned wife. Nowhere does she say that the story she tells is her own, but there seems no question that it is.

Here is what she says:

"Just couldn't resist a comeback on a recent write-up which suggests that a wife with a stingy husband make her own pin money.

"Just what gives, after a wife makes her own pin money, planning to use it for clothing children and herself, only to have it taken away by a husband, stating that some is to be used for paying bills? All the while, darling husband continues to treat the boys, [illegible] also, you secretly find, in that [illegible]-so-secret compartment of the wallet, extra greenbacks not really needed for bills. Yet the sweet little wife with a house full of children can seldom buy them even an ice cream cone, to say nothing of a pair of much-needed nylons for herself.

"This pride-filled housewife accepts the situation. She also accepts the fact that children do not stay children forever, and the fact that as soon as this happens, out must go the sweet little wife, not only to earn pin money, but her own living plus that of her children. Yes, she has experienced this already, and tackled the problem of earning, but was fool enough to listen to the sad, sad pleading of the lonely, lonely husband and return to the life of barely existing.

"Now the fast-growing children beg for the other life, when mother gladly supplied money for shows [illegible]ce a week, with popcorn dimes [illegible]boot. But, instead, mother is constantly on her feet, day in and day out. She does not beg or plead. She makes no complaints, is always the loving wife, while inside feelings and pride burn beyond repair."

Now admittedly, this letter is somewhat confused and incoherent, but the point seems clear enough. To translate it into simple language, here, evidently, is a wife with one of those stingy husbands, who earned money to spend as she pleased and then had it taken away from her, and who finally rebelled and left him, taking the children with her. Then, because her husband begged her to return, she went back to him, only to take up again the same kind of life from which had fled. Now, burning inwardly with bitterness and resentment, she simply endures it, with no hope for the future.

Whether or not this woman wishes me to give an opinion on her problem, she does not say, but I [illegible]ll give one anyhow. Moreover, [illegible]oubt if she will like it very much.

For my opinion is that she has no one but herself to blame for the miserable life she resents so bitterly; that she is living it of her own choice and her own free will. Unless I have completely misunderstood her, she walked out on her husband once, which put her in the position of being free to choose whether to continue living an independent life or go back to him. She chose the latter, and now she gripes against her own decision.

To me, that makes no sense. Once a person has made a choice between two alternatives, it is up to him—or her—to abide by it with good grace. If the choice proves to have been the wrong one, it is usually possible to go back to the other alternative. So why doesn't this woman pack up again and leave a situation she so resents?

I am sorry to appear unsympathetic, but frankly, I can't find myself too sorry for this wife, for I feel it lies wholly within her power to do something about her problem if she really wishes to. If I am wrong, I hope she will write again and set me straight.

Non-Soggy, Non-Watery Non-Weepy Lemon Pie

By Mary Moore

Recently it seems to me I have been hearing more than the usual number of laments from readers over soggy pie crusts, watery fillings and weepy meringues—all difficulties with lemon meringue or banana or cocoanut cream pies.

It so happened that one of the first desserts of any importance that Marianne made for Herbie was a lemon meringue pie. It was made too soon before dinner time and the filling ran a little when it was cut at the table. Otherwise the flavor and pastry were fine—but—Marianne was not happy, so we have been trying to perfect her lemon pie technique ever since.

The one she made last night for my sister's birthday party (she's no cake eater) pleased Marianne (and me) mightily, for the crust was not soggy and was tender, the filling did not run, the meringue did not weep. I did not do one thing toward this pie but I did watch every step Marianne made and this is what she did.

MARIANNE'S LEMON MERINGUE PIE

(10-inch—6 generous servings)

Pastry— 1 1-4 cups unsifted flour, 1-3 cup plus 1 1-2 tablespoons quality shortening, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 3 level tablespoons cold water. Cut shortening into flour and salt with pastry blender until fine, sprinkle water over 1 tablespoon at a time and cut in with knife. Shape into ball with hands, roll out on floured board to 1-8 inch thickness. This amount exactly fits 10-inch glass pie plate and allows enough pastry to make fluted edge. Bake at 450 deg. Fahr. about 12 minutes or until it begins to be tinged with gold.

Filling—In top of double boiler melt 2 tablespoons butter then add 9 level tablespoons flour (measure this with the measuring tablespoon not by 1-2 cup measure), 1 cup sugar, 1-4 teaspoon salt. Stir well then add 3 egg yolks. Stir well, then stir in 2 cups boiling water and cook, stirring, over boiling water until thick. Cover and cook 5 minutes, stirring frequently. Remove from heat and add juice of 1 1-2 medium lemons. Stir and allow to cool a little. While both pastry shell and filling are still warm pour half of the filling into the shell and let stand while you make meringue—To the 3 leftover egg whites add 6 tablespoons sugar and beat until stiff. Add 1 teaspoon vanilla. Pour remainder of filling into pie shell. Spread with meringue being sure to touch edges of crust all round, to seal it. Bake at 325 deg. Fahr. about 20 minutes, or until delicately tinged with gold all over. This pie should be made at least three hours before serving time, so that it is thoroughly cold, to slice perfectly.

QUESTION:

. . .I have requests (from customers) for drippy syrup tarts . . would you have a recipe for them? . . .this market scheme has sure helped since hubby was laid off work a month ago.—M.A.M.

ANSWER:

You are a prize trouper, little friend. All power to you. See how you and your market customers like these

BANBURY TARTS

(Syrupy type.)

One cup dried fruit (this may be all dates or raisins or a mixture of them with some walnuts and figs—the nuts are recommended but you will have to charge more for the tarts), 1 cup medium brown sugar, 2 tablespoons corn or maple syrup (increase this a little if tarts are not syrupy enough to please you), 1 tablespoon flour, 1 beaten egg, juice of 1 lemon, grated rind of 1 lemon. Number of tarts this will fill depends on size of your tart tins. Fill 2-3 full and bake at 400 deg. Fahr. until edges of pastry are delicately tinted with gold.

Beauty

DON'T BE FAT AT FORTY

Forty is an attractive age, but it can also be a dangerous one. It's about this time of life that a woman becomes less active and her figure is apt to take on weight. It's not only a good-looks drawback but a health menace.

Swimming is fine for slimming the hips. And horseback riding is also recommended by instructors of physical education. Walking will slim the mid-section, but it has to be done at a brisk pace. American women, are not walkers. The idea does not appeal to them. Transportation is too convenient.

The best answer to the weight problem seems to be indoor exercise. There is a simple one that does wonders for the hips. Try it if you are having difficulty zipping last year's skirt.

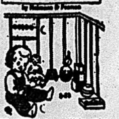
Lie on your back on the floor, feet together, arms at sides. Raise the right leg, cross it over to the left and stretch, toes pointing as far to the left as possible. Keep your shoulders on the floor. Let your back do the twisting and your hips the rolling. Next, the right leg back to the first position and lift the left leg. Then roll the body over to the right, stretching the leg as far as you can. Repeat.

Begin with five-minutes by the clock night and morning. Increase the time gradually. If you feel fatigued, relax, take half a dozen deep breaths, then at it again.

It isn't enough to exercise. You must diet too. Cut down on butter, cream, rich sauces, pastries, fried foods. Your diet can include lean meat, fish, poultry, fruit, vegetables, buttermilk and cottage cheese.

Mother's Helper

by [illegible]



IF YOU take a little extra trouble with that playpen, your baby may be happy in it even after he can walk. Reserve certain toys to be had only in the playpen, and put them in as neatly as you'd plan a shop window. Do this before you're ready to put him in, and make it a real event.

GOOD MANNERS

CORRECT SIGNATURE ON CARD ENCLOSED WITH WEDDING PRESENT

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. My husnad's niece is to be married, and we are giving her a large silver platter, the wedding gift she told us she wanted when we asked her about her preference. My husband insists that on the card to be enclosed with the gift, we write, "Uncle John and Aunt Margaret," his name to come first because she is his niece. Is this correct? (He will read your answer.) Then a friend of his suggested that we write "Mr. and Mrs. John Brown" on the card. I was really amazed at this . . . I never heard of signing a formal name like that to your own family. Is this correct?

Will you please give my daughter some suggestions as to what is proper for her to say to the groom and to the bride when leaving the church after the wedding? — M.

1. "Ladies first" is the rule for the signature on the card . . . Aunt Margaret and Uncle John. If, as he may be, and correctly may be, your husband wishes to sign the card, he might write, "Dearest love to you, Joan dear, and every good wish to you both. From Aunt Margaret and Uncle John."

And you'll be right to pay no attention to the advice of the one who told you to sign the card "Mr. and Mrs. John Brown" . . . If you did this, I'm sure your husband's niece would be as "amazed" as you were at this form of signature! The signature of a letter or card should be the informal name or names ("Aunt Margaret and Uncle John") . . . never the formal name.

2. The basic rule to remember is that we offer our "best wishes for your happiness" or some words of similar meaning, to the bride; to the groom, we offer our "congratulations" . . . never should we congratulate the bride or offer her our "congratulations." To the bride we might say, "It was a beautiful wedding, Betty! Best wishes to you . . . and may every happiness be yours." To the groom we might say, "Congratulations, Bob, deepest congratulations. You and Betty are a grand couple . . . every good wish for your happiness, always." (Naturally just what you say to the bride and groom depends on how well you know them, or either one, and how much time you have before the next guest in the line must be received.)

Maureen O'Hara Dresses To Suit Own Taste

By DOROTHY ROE

NEW YORK (AP)—If you want to arouse instant admiration in any man, just wear a red dress with a low - cut neckline, advises red-haired Irish movie star Maureen O'Hara.

The lovely Maureen tossed out this bit of advice during a flying trip to New York in connection with the premiere of her new picture "The Long Gray Line," in which she co-stars with Tyrone Power. Since the story deals with an Irish immigrant, it's up the O'Hara alley.

SHOCKED FANS

The Dublin-born beauty had her hair in pincurls and was innocent of makeup as we chatted in her hotel room. Maureen always does her own hair, she confided, and she also understands the technique of the "theatrical wash," in which you dunk handkerchiefs or white collars and cuffs in the washbowl and paste them on a mirror to try, in lieu of ironing. She giggled as she recalled her departure from Hollywood.

"I washed my hair just before I dashed out to catch the plane for New York," she said, "and I had it up in bobby pins, with a scarf around my head. After we were aloft, a couple of male passengers kept peering at me, and one said: 'I'm never going to the movies again. You're supposed to be a glamour girl.' The scarf had slipped and they were shocked by the bobby pins, poor dears."

Maureen has been exposed to high fashion since early childhood. Her mother, until recently, was owner of the Margaret Blyth Co., a custom dressmaking establishment in Dublin. Now both parents have moved to California to be near their daughter and two sons, who also are acting in movies.

PLEASE THE MEN

"Mother and I don't agree on fashion, however," says Maureen. "She always is conscious of the current trend, but I like to suit myself, and to heck with styles.

"I believe that if you find something that suits you and that gathers masculine compliments, you ought to stick to it. I don't care whether a dress is last year's silhouette or not, if I look well in it.

"And let me tell you there are very few men who know the difference between an Empire and a long torso silhouette, and they care less. They just know if you look pretty when you walk into a room."

Maureen believes the only way to judge the success of a dress is to try it out on a man. If it draws his compliments, it's for her. Says she:

"Never take a woman's word on how you look. She's thinking about what is in style, but a man thinks about how you look."

Maureen isn't disturbed by the current Parisian alphabetical silhouettes. She comments:

"God is a much better designer than Dior. He designed the woman."

Welsh Girl Surprised at Speed Of Everything in America

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Few visitors arriving in New York by ship bother to bring along their own lifeboat anymore.

But Janet Jones, a young lass from Wales, did. Stepping ashore clad in a red cloak, an 18th-century-style Welsh dress and a high-topped black beaver hat, she took one look at busy Manhattan and exclaimed:

"Aeth a fy ngwunt I fwrdd yn symyd mor gyflym!"

This, as any Welshman would grasp instantly, meant:

"It takes my breath away—everything moves so fast!"

GOODWILL TOUR

Miss Jones—a name as common as Kim in Korea or Smith in North America—won over 1,100 other contestants to become the national hostess of Wales. She is here for a seven-week, coast-to-coast goodwill tour of the U.S. and Canada. With her she brought a corgi, a coracle, a collection of wooden love spoons, a black Bible made from a block of coal, a 5½-foot harp, and a walking stick which once belonged to the Welsh statesman David Lloyd George.

The corgi turned out to be an underslung, mystified, homesick lady dog named Ceri, and pronounced "Kerry."

"The word corgi means cur or mongrel," explained Janet, who is 21, pretty, auburn-haired and blue-eyed.

"The corgi has been honored in Wales since Howell the Good passed a law in 916 exempting the breed from taxes because they kept the pastures free of lurking wild animals. The corgi has been adopted by the Royal Family."

The coracle turned out to be an ancient-type Welsh boat made of wicker and cowhide, so light even a girl could pack it on her back.

Now about those wooden love spoons?

"In the old time," said Janet, "instead of giving the girl of his choice an engagement rin, a Welsh boy would come to her with a spoon he had carved. The more beautiful the carving, the more he loved her.

"If she accepted the spoon, they were engaged. That is where the term 'spooning' came from. If she turned down the spoon, it was love's labor lost.

"Very occasionally the old custom is still followed. It is much easier today to buy an engagement ring. But I'd much rather have a love spoon myself.'"

NEAR LLANFAIR, P.G.

However, Janet made it quite clear she expects no love spoon on this trip.

"I'll be much too busy to look for a husband," she said.

Miss Jones, daughter of a Presbyterian minister, comes from a Welsh village only 50 miles from the town with the longest name in the world. It is—here we go, kids, look out for the vowels:

"Llanfairpwllgwyungyllgogerychwyrndrobwllllantysilliogogcgoch."

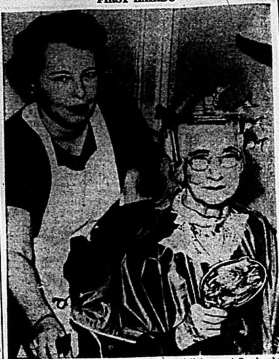
Miss Jones, believe it or not, can pronounce this in less than five seconds from a standing start.

"In English," she said, "it means 'St. Mary's church, in a hollow of white hazel, close to a rapid whirlpool and St. Tysilio's church, and near a red cave.'

"But the people who live there simply call it Llanfair, P.G."

Even so, after all these centuries, the town still has a population of only 1,200.

FIRST HAIRDO



Rose Clark who celebrates her 100th birthday next Sunday has her first hairdo to celebrate the centenary of the House of Providence. The house was built by the Sisters of St. Joseph in 1855 in Toronto. The same year Miss Clark was born at Downeyville, near Lindsay, Ont. Giving her the hairdo is Mrs. Margaret Rose. (CP Photo).

Women's Activities

W. M. S.

5th LINE THURLOW — The Women's Missionary Society held its February meeting at the home of Mrs. W. Clare with a large attendance. The president opened the meeting and conducted the business. It was decided to have a quilting in the near future.

Mrs. W. Hodgen took charge of a worship service based on the theme "Happiness and Kindness."

Miss Livingston read the Scripture lesson and a meditation on the same was given by Mrs. Hodgen.

Mrs. E. P. Yorke conducted the program, consisting of readings by Mrs. Bertrand, "Someone Prayed," and Mrs. Carman Huffman gave a reading "Let Us Give Bibles," while Mrs. Hodgen gave a reading on "Neighbors." A solo was contributed by Mrs. Fred Yorke and Mrs. C. Martin played an instrumental, "Sabbath Chimes."

Some membership dues were paid and some W.A. business discussed. It was decided to hold a concert on the 18th of March, instead of the 17th as previously announced.

Mrs. Clare and helpers served bountiful refreshments.

CANNIFTON W.M.S.

Mrs. L. S. Throop was hostess for Cannifton W.M.S. for its February meeting, which was opened by the 1st vice-president, Mrs. F. Furmidge.

Business was conducted by the president, Mrs. J. Williams, and a welcome was extended to all. The Easter meeting will be in form of an open meeting with Mrs. Middleton as guest speaker.

Mrs. W. Brenton and her group were in charge of program. The worship service, taken from the "Missionary Monthly" with Mrs. Philip, Mrs. F. Putman, Mrs. D. Brenton and Mrs. W. Brenton, taking part.

Mrs. A. Holgate gave a Christian Stewardship reading. A solo by Mrs. F. Furmidge, was enjoyed by all.

Mrs. Philip had charge of the study book dealing with "Evangelism in India" and those taking part were, Mrs. F. Putman, Mrs. W. Brenton, Mrs. Cole, Mrs. R. Pound and Mrs. D. Brenton. There are three types of evangelism: educational, personal and visitation. Sometimes whole villages become Christian through one person. This is called mass movement evangelism.

Some of the best Christian work has been done by these people Christianized through mass movement. It is impossible to be a Christian and not be missionary-minded.

Refreshments were served and a social half hour spent.

NEW Esso EXTRA GASOLINE STOPS cold weather stalling

Ice in the carburetor has been proven to be a major cause of stalling. New Esso Extra combats the formation of ice anywhere in your car's fuel system. So, when you stall, don't blame it on a cold engine or carburetor adjustment until you've tried New Esso Extra.

As gasoline vaporizes in the carburetor, it has a refrigerating effect. Condensation from the intake air freezes. Ice crystals stop the fuel supply . . . and your car stalls. Avoid this with new Esso Extra.

Editors Discuss Handling Of Religious Events

MONTREAL (CP)—How well are Canada's newspapers covering religious news?

Three clergymen, representing Protestanism, Catholicism and Judaism in Canada, talked the matter over here in what was said to be the best panel discussion heard in the nine-year history of the Canadian Managing Editors' conference

All stressed the need for complete freedom of the press, but told the 70 delegates to the three-day conference that within this freedom there lie certain responsibilities.

Rabbi Reuben Slonim of Toronto, Rev. Norman Rawson of the United Church, Montreal, and Roman Catholic Canon G. Emmitt Carter, also of Montreal, chatted good-naturedly with newspaper men attending the conference after a frank discussion of newspaper handling of church news.

POINTS TO DANGER

Canon Carter started the discussion by saying it is the newspaper's job to serve the ideal of truth "by being itself." No Clergyman wants the press to become an "extension of the church," Canon Carter said.

There was always the danger, however, of popularizing evil and making "scurrilous" attacks on religious organizations.

Rabbi Slonim found that churches themselves fill up newspapers with excess wordage on church doings and fail to recognize the partnership between church and press.

Mr. Rawson said he thought service clubs and other groups get far better coverage than churches, which represent by far the biggest group in any community.

What's news at Inco?

THE BEAM OF A POLICE OFFICER'S FLASHLIGHT picks out a burglar who has been caught by sound waves he couldn't hear. These sound waves are sent out by the Alertronic Alarm—a new device in which small rods of nickel play a vital part.

INCO NICKEL RODS SET OFF ALARM BUT BURGLARS CANNOT HEAR IT

IN THE DEAD OF THE NIGHT a burglar is stuffing silver into a bag. Suddenly he is pinned in the glare of a flashlight. The police have him . . . trapped by a sound he couldn't hear. The Alertronic Alarm has done its job.

The heart of this device is two slender rods of pure nickel that change their length when magnetized, causing a diaphragm to vibrate and send out sound waves so high-pitched they cannot be heard by human ears. But the slightest movement by an intruder disturbs the sound waves and sets off the alarm.

Inco research and development teams in cooperation with industry have been in the forefront of the world's metallurgical developments since 1921. The knowledge and experience gained are among Inco's greatest assets. Inco research points the way to Inco's future!

Nickel helps report fires

Even the heat of a wad of paper smoldering in an ashtray will disturb the sound waves and set off the Alertronic Alarm.

It also drives mice crazy

So high-pitched are the sound waves that mice—who can hear them—are driven to an insane helter-skelter dash for safety.

This is only one of hundreds of uses of ultra-sonic waves—uses that range from finding fish in the sea to aging cheese.

Rearmament Far from Popular Among West Germans of 1955

By HANNS NEURERBOURG

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP)—The one-legged young war veteran flushed in anger.

"In a uniform I have no honor," he shouted toward the rostrum.

"My father was killed in the war," yelled a teen-ager. "Now we get 30 marks a month pension from the state. And you want me to become a soldier?"

Then rose a third. He smiled hesitantly.

"Perhaps you'll laugh at me. But I am in favor of conscription. I don't like wearing a uniform but I would do it to protect a kind of state where a discussion like this is possible."

FAR FROM POPULAR

Thus began another of the "discussion evenings" now being staged throughout Western Germany by public groups to debate rearmament. Young men crowd these meetings. They know that they will be the soldiers of tomorrow if the Paris treaties for German rearmament go into effect.

Usually there are more boos and heckling than applause when representatives of the West German defence commission step to the platform to describe its plans for "democratic" armed forces.

Rearmament is far from popular among Germans of 1955. According to a recent poll, 71 out of 100 citizens do not want to don a uniform again, although only 50 per cent are completely opposed to rearmament.

Opposition has grown since the European army project was killed by the French National Assembly last August. Many young Germans favored the European Defence Community only because it embodied the ideal of European unity.

UNIONS LEAD OPPOSITION

The sharpest anti-rearmament feeling is expressed by the Socialist-dominated trade unions. The West German Trade Union Federation's youth committee, representing 625,000 workers up to 25 years of age, has voted "against rearmament of any kind whether in the Soviet zone or in the federal republic."

Agitation against rearmament is intense among university and high school students, too. Some German teachers say privately that the "no uniform" feeling arises partly from Allied "re-education" immediately after the war, in which militarism was blamed for Germany's catastrophe.

Concern over public opposition to rearmament prompted Interior Minister Gerhard Schroeder to assert in a newspaper article:

"German youth should be aware that neither in the West nor in the East is there a friendly oasis where the problem of defence readiness does not exist.

"Nobody wants to make our youth believe that the training for military defence is not a personal sacrifice. But we also must tell the youth that this sacrifice is as heavy abroad as in our country. There is not a single constitution in the world which leaves the decision on defence preparations to the 18-to-21-year-olds. This is a decision to be made by the parliament elected by the whole people."

Cannifton

CANNIFTON — Mrs. Doug Windsor and her sister were in Toronto over the week-end doing some shopping.

The Cannifton - Corbyville euchre club held its weekly euchre in Corby's cafeteria with eight tables playing. Prizes were won by: ladies, Elsie Philp, Mrs. Drummond and Jean Lywood; men, Bruce Walsh, Mrs. Dafoe and Marg Colden. The lone hand by Mrs. Drummond, and the draw by Bruce Walsh.

Manpower Ceilings for Canada's Armed Forces Have Been Revised

OTTAWA (CP)—Increased emphasis on continental defence—and consequently the RCAF—is shown in a revision of manpower ceilings for Canada's armed forces.

The over-all ceiling remains unchanged at 120,000, excluding 3,000 officer cadets and apprentices. But among the three services the air force gains in manpower at the expense of the army and the navy.

RCAF strength now is authorized at 51,000, the army's at 49,000 and the navy's at 20,000. This is an increase of more than 1,000 for the RCAF from manpower ceilings set about four years ago. It is a drop of 1,000 for the army and a slight decrease for the navy.

The new ceilings are contained in an order-in-council passed Jan. 17 and tabled in the Commons Friday by Prime Minister St. Laurent.

MANPOWER FIGURES

At Dec. 31 last, the actual manpower figures for the services were: Navy, 18,806; army 49,447;

The manpower ceilings are permitted to vary from one to three per cent either way so that there will be no necessity for the army, now slightly beyond its authorized ceiling, to cut its strength.

Actually, the army's strength has varied little in the last two years while those of the navy and air force have climbed steadily. Last spring, more than 50,000 names were on the army roll-call.

Manpower ceilings are important to the services because all planning stems from them, such as the number of weapons required, stockpiling, housing and recruiting.

Lonsdale

LONSDALE —Mrs. Mary Nash and family, of Read; Mr. Tom Walsh, Mr. Frank McGuinness, also D. J. McHenry enjoyed television on Saturday evening of last week at the home of Mrs. Mary Nash and Leo.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Jenkinson and family of Belleville, were Sunday afternoon callers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Reid.

Mr. Frank McGuinness, also Mr. George McLellan spent Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. McGuinness of Indian River.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Macdonald, and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Cook, of Shannonville, attended the funeral of the late Edward Levecque at Read Church on Saturday.

Miss Luella Reid returned home on Tuesday evening after spending a couple of days in Belleville visiting friends.

Miss Joan Macdonald is confined to her home with the 'flu.

Before Freedom of Press Became Established Press Had To Contend With 3 Restrictions

Free public opinion and free discussion are recognized as foundations of democracy. The way in which this principle has become woven into the unwritten constitution of the United Kingdom, and hence passed on to Canada, is discussed in the following article—one of a Canadian Press series on matters affecting freedom of the press. Written For The Canadian Press

By FRANK FLAHERTY

Freedom of the press is part of the constitutional and cultural heritage Canada received from the United Kingdom. Eminent jurists both in Canada and in the United Kingdom have pronounced it an essential part of our system of democratic Parliamentary government.

Since the British constitution is unwritten it contains no precise definition of this freedom. Neither does the British North America Act under which the British constitutional system became officially implanted in Canada.

That act says Canada shall have a constitution "similar in principle to that of the United Kingdom." The implications of this were pointed up by Mr. Justice L. A. Cannon of the Supreme Court of Canada in a judgment delivered in 1938 on laws passed by the Alberta legislature.

FREE FOUNDATION

"At the time of Confederation," he said, "the United Kingdom was a democracy. Democracy cannot be maintained without its foundation: free public opinion and free discussion throughout the nation of all matters affecting the state within the limits set by the criminal code and the common law."

Freedom of discussion and freedom of the press became part of the British constitution only after a series of struggles waged in Britain over three centuries—from the time of the invention of the printing press, down to the time when the constitution took its present form, an executive responsible to a Parliament possessing unlimited powers but, in turn, dependent on the free vote of all citizens.

Before freedom of the press became established the press had to contend with three different forms of restriction.

First there was control over printing. When the printing press came to England the authorities were afraid of the consequences which might result from the public learning too much from the new medium of passing information from man to man. Printers were licensed by the government. A printer who printed things the government did not like could lose his licence.

MILTON'S PROTEST

It was against this system that the poet John Milton wrote his classic protest, "Areopagitica". Said Milton: "Give me liberty to know, to utter and to argue freely according to conscience, above all other liberties."

Milton's protests were ineffective at the time. The British licensing laws were not allowed to lapse until 1692, long after his death.

Another phase of the struggle was for the right of the press to information on public affairs, specifically the right to report debates in Parliament. Parliament at first did not take kindly to letting reporters tell the world what was said within its walls. Parliament itself was engaged in a struggle with the king and didn't want the king to know what was said in their sessions because the king still possessed powers to discipline members who did not behave as he wished.

LONG STRUGGLE

The struggle of the press for the right to report Parliamentary proceedings went on in the second half of the 18th century and was characterized by numerous arrests, fines and punishments inflicted on reporters and editors of the pioneer newspapers and newsletters. The press had its champions within Parliament itself and there were numerous debates before it became accepted that newspapers have a right to report Parliamentary debates without regulation or censorship.

Almost coincident with this development came the extension of the franchise and the change in the British political system from the rule of the few to the rule of the many.

The third handicap imposed on the early British press was taxation. Prior to 1861 paper used in printing was heavily taxed. This tax served to make newspapers high in price, was an interference with the public's right to know which may have had some consequences in American history.

The untaxed newspapers of the American colonies flourished while the British press was held back. The colonial press publicized and gave full support to the ideas of the revolution.

The late Prof. Harold Innis says:

"The prominent role of the newspaper in the American Revolution was recognized in the first article of the Bill of Rights, (forbidding Congress to abridge freedom of the press). The movement towards restriction of the press by taxes in the latter part of the 18th and early part of the 19th century in England was paralleled by an insistence on freedom of the press in the United States."

PAPER TAXES ABOLISHED

Britain became a popular democracy only after the press was freed by the abolition of the taxes on paper. The principle of self-government for the overseas parts of the Empire became established around the same time. Historically, the establishment of Canada as a free democracy and its subsequent growth under the Parliamentary system is linked with and, in large measure, due to the freeing of the press from the triple curbs of:

1. Government control over printing;

2. Parliamentary control over access to information on public affairs;

3. Excessive and discriminatory taxes.

The question now troubling many believers in democracy is whether that freedom is secure or whether it can or should be reinforced by some written law or rule. Those who want freedom defined by a written law have to face up to the question of whether a definition may not restrict freedom.

Lord Kenyon, an eminent British judge, once described the liberty of the press in England this way:

"A man may publish anything which 12 of his countrymen (a jury) think is not blamable, but he ought to be punished if he publishes that which is blamable."

DEBATABLE POINT

That statement would imply that freedom to publish is part of the common law of England. If it is that and not part of the constitution, as Mr. Justice Cannon seemed to think, it can be changed and restricted by act of Parliament. The Parliament of Canada and the legislatures of the provinces can and often do change the common law. They could do it simply by defining more things that may be "blamable", telling a jury what to find "blamable".

If freedom of the press is part of the unwritten constitution clearly it can't be restricted by Parliament or a provincial legislature. So far as Canada is concerned it can't even be restricted by a change made in the British constitution since it is laid down that Canada shall have a constitution similar to that of the United Kingdom—at the time of Confederation.

This view found support in at least one official statement from the government of Canada. At the second General Assembly of the United Nations the Canadian delegate said:

"The people and the government of my country believe that freedom of information and freedom of the press are not only basic freedoms in themselves but are essential to the exercise of the other basic freedoms. Democracy implies that the ultimate responsibility for government policies is determined by the people.

BASIS OF JUDGMENT

"Unless the people have free and unfettered access through their independent news media to significant facts and opinions, wherever these may originate throughout the world, the people would be limited and impeded in their efforts to judge wisely the issues they are called upon to face. This would be a very serious limitation on the efficiency of what we call democracy."

As the role of the state in economic and social affairs increases, attacks on freedom of the press tend to take a new line. It is sometimes alleged that privately-owned newspapers do not and cannot be expected to give the public the real facts, that state intervention or state control is necessary to protect the public's right to know.

This view was so strongly held by a section of the British Labor party that the last British Labor government set up a royal commission to report on how a free press in the United Kingdom was doing its job.

The commission reported in 1949 and found no case for state ownership or control of the press. Its significant finding was "in our view free enterprise in the production of newspapers is a prerequisite of a free press." ..

HEART STOPPED DOCTORS REVIVE "DEAD" PATIENT

Little five-year-old Christine Jarl owes her life to the seven-hour effort made by doctors and nurses of the hospital in Owen Sound, Ont., to revive her after her heart stopped beating. Shortly after her tonsils were removed she showed signs of failing vigor. Rushed back into the operating room, doctors massaged her heart by hand, and continued a series of injections and oxygen treatments that in seven hours had her back to normal. — Central Press Canadian.

7,500 Chrysler Workers Vote To Strike if Talks Break Down

WINDSOR (CP)—Union leaders, armed with the right to call a strike of 7,500 workers whenever they think it necessary, today will ask the Chrysler Corporation of Canada to resume contract negotiations as soon as possible.

Earl Watson, chairman of Local 195, United Automobile Workers (CIO-CCL) said the union will ask the company to try to speed up peace talks, which have been going on for several months, to avert a possible strike.

A general membership meeting of the Chrysler unit of Local 195 Saturday voted by secret ballot to give the union executive authority to call for strike action to enforce new contract demands if they decide such a step is needed.

Mr. Watson said the vote was 88 per cent in favor of giving the executive the deciding power. He said about 1,800 of the 7,500 Chrysler workers attended the meeting.

The membership meeting, which was closed to the press, also voted by show of hands to reject a company offer which included a three-cent hourly wage increase, he said.

Chrysler officials declined to comment Sunday on the results of the union meeting, but a spokesman said he expected the negotiations will continue as usual.

Company and union negotiating teams have been meeting regularly for several months to try to arrange a new contract. The union is seeking a 15-cent hourly wage boost, plus fringe benefits including increased medical and hospital grants, new seniority concessions and revised shop procedures.

The company has not yet made public any offer to the union. The Chrysler workers average wage now is $1.71 an hour, according to a union statement.

Saturday's meeting was addressed by George Burt, Canadian director of the UAW, Mr. Watson and other union leaders.

Mr. Burt said after the meeting that he is "very hopeful" the company and union will reach an amicable settlement. He said, however, he asked the workers to support the strike threat motion to "strengthen the union's hand at the negotiating table."

DETROIT (AP)—This is a very special St. Valentine's Day for Mrs. Elizabeth McDonald. It's her 100th birthday.

Mayor of Montreal Requests Editors to Shun Sensationalism

MONTREAL (CP)—Mayor Jean Drapeau, who is rarely out of the headlines in this city, told delegates to the Canadian managing editors' conference Sunday they should steer clear of sensationalism.

"One must be careful," added the dapper little mayor, "that the search for the unheard of and striking news might not become a search for the sensational at all costs, and that this in turn becomes what is commonly called yellow journalism."

Mr. Drapeau addressed the editors and their wives at a city hall luncheon that wound up the three-day convention.

The mayor said the first duty of the press still is to give the public the truth, but cautioned that the precept should not be taken too literally.

"IN PERSPECTIVE"

"Not only must events be published, but this must be done by giving each its place, space and display according to its importance, in the perspective of the current conceptions among us."

The 38-year-old lawyer, who came out of political obscurity last October to head a civic reform slate, said that many Canadian cities, Montreal included, had witnessed the rise in recent years of publications "unworthy of the name newspaper". They featured "a complacent display of all the turpitudes which are the bane of large conglomerations" — large populations.

Saturday, the editors turned their attention to crime.

Commissioner L. H. Nicholson of the RCMP, in a bid for what he called a square deal in reporting of crime news, said that newspapers must be careful not to make criminals heroes to the public.

NEWS TREATMENT

They should not be given the idea they were "big men" by seeing their names in front-page stories, except if the news was of unusual importance.

Many a drug addict had probably taken his first "shot" because of publicity given the drug traffic in this country.

The commissioner said the press sometimes made the police look bad by publishing defence counsels' statements out of context, although the remarks might have been perfectly valid and understandable to judge and jury in the court room.

Director Hilaire Beauregard of the Quebec Provincial Police and T. O. Leggett, acting director of Montreal police, both asked newspaper men for care in handling police news. Montreal assistant director of police Pacifique Plante said in the past a few newspaper men in this city had been lax in reporting vice. He said the situation has been "corrected" and the reporters "punished".

HAD BEEN DEALT WITH

Asked to name the reporters, he said he was referring to "only a few reporters" and that what they had done was not known to their superiors. They had since been dealt with "severely."

Earlier Ben Bassett, foreign news editor of The Associated Press, said a "daring" approach is required in news handling coupled with background and explanatory writing. John Knecht, foreign editor of Le Monde, Paris, reviewed the newspaper situation in France.

Jack Wasserman of the Vancouver Sun and Andre Robert, of Montreal, under the chairmanship of R. D. Owen of the Kingston Whig-Standard, argued the newspaper side in the discussion of police-newspaper problems. Wasserman recounted instances of police-newspaper men clashes in Vancover during a number of years.

Gravedigger Confesses

DETROIT (AP) —A former gravedigger has confessed the vicious rape-slaying two years ago of Joan Gillespie, 18-year-old junior college student, police said Sunday night.

Insp. Edward Reilly said Richard Ballingall, 34, of Detroit, admitted the crime in a statement after hours of grilling.

Ballingall originally was arrested for investigation of the death of his common-law wife. Police said he has a record of morals offences.

RAWDON

Growth of Indian Church Outlined at W.M.S. Meeting

RAWDON — Mount Pleasant-Rawdon Woman's Missionary Society convened on Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Douglas Campbell with 16 members and eight visitors in attendance.

The president opened with the keyword "Hope," and read an extract from "Missionaries Reporting", re Miss Muriel Bamford, missionary nurse at Banswara, India, who gave a graphic description of her work in the mission hospital, and the need for new and better equipment.

At present their beds are all shapes, sizes, lengths and widths. Mrs. Ed. Richardson contributed auto-harp music and accompanied the hymn "What a Friend We Have in Jesus."

Mrs. Percy MacMullen gave her report. The president read an article re "Membership in the Auxiliary," as found in "Facts and Figures" of the 29th annual report. Another article was read re "The Baby Band Gift Boxes," and their assistance at Memorial Hospital, India, also re the supply work in Korea.

The treasurer reported five annual fees paid and $13 for January. Mrs. Will Potts, Community Friendship secretary, thanked the ladies for their work in 1954 and stressed friendliness to strangers.

The Citizenship secretary presented a brief message on "helping others."

INDIAN CHURCH GROWTH

Mrs. Burton Sharpe outlined "The Growth of the Indian Church." It was pointed out that Christianity ranks with the oldest religions in India, according to legend, St. Thomas was the first missionary in India. Today there is a great upsurge of national consciousness and a renewed sense of destiny. Some of the younger poets have written that "the wise men of India have not as yet seen the star, nor the manager of Bethlehem."

NUMEROUS MISSIONS

There have been numerous mission fields in India carried on by various denominations, however, the Presbyterian missions operated fields at Madras, and on January 25th, 1877, special work was begun at Indore. Here was established the first mission, printing press, church, school, and later a Christian college and today Indore Christian college stands as a monument to those pioneers who journeyed to that land many years previous.

The United Church of Northern India stretches from Assam to Bombay, and is doing a splendid piece of work. When independence came to India, it resulted in two nations, India and Pakistan, and this has created problems.

The Lutheran churches, the Disciples' Missions, the Salvation Army and Faith missions have all contributed to India's betterment and many Canadians are serving in these various groups. However, the work of the United Church is quite inadequate and there is a great deal of unfinished work waiting to be done in order to build up a great missionary society in India.

WORLD DAY OF PRAYER

The World Day of Prayer will be held on Friday, February 25 at Mount Pleasant United Church with all the organizations on the circuit uniting. The program is adapted from a service prepared by Rev. Jorgelina Lozada of Buenos Aires, Argentina, and is based on the theme "Abide In Me."

Mrs. Ira David presided over the devotional with Mrs. Will Jeffs accompanying the hymns on her guitar and contributing a vocal selection.

Mrs. Will McAdam read the Bible lesson. Mrs. Roy Thrasher offered prayer, especially for the missionary, Miss V. K. Metheral of Indore hospital. Mrs. Ed. Richardson gave a musical selection. Mrs. Raymond McConnell read a paper prepared by Mrs. John Mulheron on the theme, "St. Valentine, the Monk and His Acts of Love." The service closed with "Jesus the Very Thought of Thee."

W.A.

The W.A. president conducted a brief business meeting after which the hostess and her assistants served refreshments and was tendered a vote of thanks for hospitality.

Rossmore

ROSSMORE — Mrs. W. Mason, of Lindsay, returned to her home Sunday after spending a week with her daughter, Mrs. J. Empey, of Rossmore.

Mrs. Root entertained the members of the Euchre Club Wednesday night. Four tables were in play. A pleasant evening was spent and prizes awarded according to score.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Westfall and children of Calgary, left for their home Wednesday after spending a month with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Empey.

Sympathy of the community is extended to Mr. Lord, who was involved in a motor accident on the bay bridge road recently.

TEMPORARY HEAD OF RAILWAY UNION UNTIL SEPT. CONVENTION

Now temporary head of Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees (CCL), the country's largest transport union, British-born William J. Smith of Montreal is expected to be confirmed for a three-year term at September convention in Ottawa of 35,000-member union. The brotherhood's chief negotiator with the railways in the postwar series of contract disputes, Mr. Smith, seen above, was chosen for the top job by the CBRE's executive as interim successor to Harry A. Chappell, 51, who died on Feb. 4 of a heart attack. The new president started with the CNR at Toronto in 1920 as an engine wiper.—Central Press Canadian.

C.W.L. Holds Euchre Party

MARYSVILLE—A euchre party was held in Marysville parish hall on Wednesday with 29 tables in play. Prize winners were: Ladies, Miss Madeline Kohoe, Mrs. Loft, Miss Wilma Brant; men, Leon McGuiness, Peter Whalen and Joseph Coffey.

The party was convened by Mrs. J. V. McAuley, Mrs. Dan McHenry and Mrs. Vernon Pascoe.

CAMPBELLFORD

Lions Club Sponsors Eye Test Week

CAMPBELLFORD — Children of Campbellford's public and separate schools are undergoing the first organized eye test conducted in this town during this week. The test is being conducted by the Lions' Club, who are using an Ortho-Rater, an eye analysis machine, rented from Leonard Morrison of Peterborough.

Students of Grades two to eight are being given the opportunity to avail themselves of the test. Parents were asked to give their permission for their children to be submitted to the test.

Club member Harold Peters is responsible for organizing this survey. He is assisted by Bruce Wallace and Les Baker. The men have been working in the library at the public school during the past week, and expect to finish the public school students this week. They will start the survey in the Separate school and if time permits, will take the machine to rural schools in the Campbellford area at the end of the week.

The test takes from six to ten minutes for each child, and the results are charted on a printed card. These reports will be assessed by two optometrists, Paul J. Coughlan and Arthur K. Loucks.

Officers Named For Corporation

STIRLING. — At the council meeting the following officers were appointed with a fixed remuneration.

Foster Wannamaker, superintendent of streets $1600, and care of municipal buildings, $400; J. A. Hamilton, care of cemetery, $1050; G. B. Faulkner, garbage, $1700; Dr. E. A. Carleton, medical officer health, $300.

Several accounts were ordered paid which included $5 to the I.O.D.E. for their decorating expense of the community hall.

A by-law was passed for an estimated street expenditure of $9000.

Fire chief Earl Fox and fireman Bruce Bell deputized council re better pay for all members of the fire brigade. It was decided on motion that Fire Chief Earl Fox be paid a salary of $150 and that voluntary firemen received $2 for first hour on duty and $1 per hour for additional time.

The council authorized the payment of $60 to the fire brigade as they have attended two fires to date this year.

Clerk Mallory was instructed to write re indemnity for firemen and their families in case of injury or death.

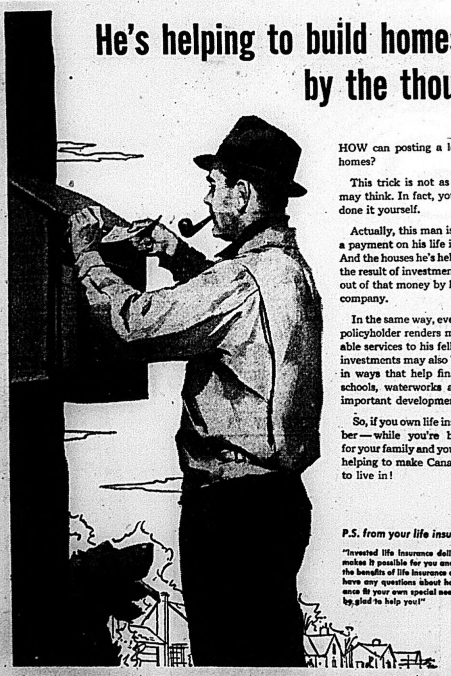
He's helping to build homes by the thousand!



HOW can posting a letter help build homes?

This trick is not as difficult as you may think. In fact, you have probably done it yourself.

Actually, this man is simply mailing a payment on his life insurance policy. And the houses he's helping to build are the result of investments made for him out of that money by his life insurance company.

In the same way, every life insurance policyholder renders many other valuable services to his fellow-citizens. For investments may also be made for him in ways that help finance new roads, schools, waterworks and many other important developments.

So, if you own life insurance, remember — while you're building security for your family and yourself, you're also helping to make Canada a better land to live in!

P.S. from your life insurance man

"Invested life insurance dollars earn interest that makes it possible for you and your family to enjoy the benefits of life insurance at such low cost. If you have any questions about how to make life insurance fit your own special needs, give me a call. I'll be glad to help you!"

Blue Cross works best when it's needed most . . .

here's why

To really fill your needs, a hospital plan must simplify admission to hospital, travel when you travel, continue when you change your job or retire, and above all . . . it must provide maximum benefits, without red tape, when you are hospitalized.

Because Blue Cross is a non-profit extension of hospital service, it has all these desirable features. That is why Blue Cross is the accepted Plan for prepaying unexpected hospital expense.

- Over 1,900,000 enrolled in Ontario alone.
- Over $2,000,000.00 in "Service" benefits provided every month.

Enquire about

Blue Cross Surgical-Medical "In-hospital" benefits for employed groups of six or more.

Blue Cross Non-Group enrolment for those not employed or employed where there are less than six on the payroll.

Blue Cross is offered by the hospitals' own Association in Ontario. No red tape when you enter hospital.

Blue Cross employs modern efficiency for low-cost operation. Less than 6% of income covers all administration. The balance protects subscribers.

Your certificate is good throughout North America. Blue Cross co-operates with 82 other Plans in Canada and United States.

Change of employment or retirement does not cancel your Blue Cross protection.

Toronto Pilot Jumps from Jet Near Picton

TRENTON (Special) — "Just exactly what was supposed to happen happened."

That was the way Flt. Lt. G. E. Gilroy, 24, of Toronto, a member of 400 City of Toronto Auxiliary Squadron, who bailed out of his disabled Vampire jet aircraft near Picton on Saturday, described his experience. He is the first known Canadian pilot to escape from the cockpit of the British made jet trainer using regulation procedure. Last summer another pilot was thrown clear in a midair crash over North Bay. He too pulled the release on his parachute and landed safely.

Gilroy was flying at 3,000 feet returning to the Trenton air base from the air to ground firing range at South bay. Suddenly the engine of his aircraft failed, known as a flameout in air force language. His efforts to relight the burner were in vain so he decided to abandon the aircraft when he realized he was too far away from the closest landing field to land safely.

"I pulled the lever to release the canopy," he related, "trimmed the aircraft to fly nose down and as I rolled the machine over on its back the nose lurched upwards and I fell clear." The pilot, when his parachute opened watched the plane plummet earthward and crash and burst into flames.

After he was safe on the ground Gilroy, a student at University of Toronto, found that he lost his shoes when he hit the slipstream. He abandoned his 'chute and walked in stocking feet for three quarters of a mile across fields covered with ice and snow to a farmer's house.

Gilroy apparently suffered no ill-effects from his unique experience, for he was duty pilot with the squadron flying out of Station Trenton yesterday.

Strangler Strikes Again, Fails Given Beating

TORONTO (CP)—Police investigated a complaint that a man followed a woman home Saturday night and grabbed her by the throat.

They said three other men caught the assailant, beat him and let him go after the woman said she did not want to have him charged.

The complainant was Mrs Hazei Agrew 53. She was unharmed.

Police said they do not consider the woman's attacker was connected with the strangling of two women last fall and an attempt to kill a third.

AEC Will Test Better 'Trigger' For H-Bomb

By BILL BECKER

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — An improved atomic trigger for the H-bomb may be the first device to undergo test in the Atomic Energy Commission's new series scheduled to start Tuesday.

The pre-dawn shot, 32nd at the AEC's Nevada test site, will be "a major effort" for the AEC Livermore, Calif., laboratory which specializes is hydrogen weapons planning.

The disclosure was made by Dr. Alvin C. Graves, veteran U. S. nuclear weapons tester, on the eve of Operation Teapot, fifth and most exacting series the AEC has held here in four years.

The opening test also is scheduled to include army participation. Several hundred troops will take trench positions about 4,000 yards from ground zero.

FROM TOWER

The device probably will be detonated from one of the AEC's higher towers, in line with the new official concern for radiation fallout in surrounding communities. The higher the atomic fireball, the less dust sucked off the desert floor and less danger of contamination within the immediate area.

Barring a change in weather, the first shot is set for about 5:45 a. m. (8:45 a. m. EST) on Yucca flat, larger of the two AEC proving grounds. The other is Frenchman flat.

Despite the smaller nature of th devices to be tested here, there is no underestimating their importance. Every test in this series, AEC Chairman Lewis L. Strauss said Sunday, has been deemed necessary from the standpoint of national security.

Soviet leaders have been boasting in recent days of their rapid progress and their early development of very powerful weapons," Strauss told a press conference. "We have no alternative but to keep our strength at peak levels. The consequences of any other course would imperil our liberty, even our existence."

D.D. Poulton Pays Official Visit to Lodge

MADOC—On Wednesday night D.D. Bro. Poulton paid his official visit to Madoc Lodge I.O.O.F. No. 179. After the close of the regular meeting the Odd Fellows entertained the Oakdale Rebekah Lodge to commemorate Wiley Night.

Bro. John Bristol gave an interesting talk on the life of Wiley, who was the founder and organizer of Odd Fellowship throughout the Dominion and dates back to the 17th century.

D.D. Poulton gave an instructive talk on "Odd Fellowship". Sister Nina Embury, D.D.P., of District No. 4, gave two readings, "The Admonition of Grand Master, Bro. Newton Foster," also one of Sister Meta Priestly's, president of the Rebekah assembly.

Refreshments were planned and served by the brethren.

Dancing followed, music was furnished by Messrs. Hagerman, Wannamaker and Bronson.

Nehru Favors Attendance Of Nationalists

LONDON (CP) — Indian Prime Minister Nehru came out today for Nationalist China's participation in any international conference on the Formosa issue. Britain, holding a similar view, urged a quick ceasefire as the prelude to such a parley.

France lined up with Britain and the United States in criticism of Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov's proposal for a 10-power conference that would exclude Chiang Kai-shek's Chinese Nationalists.

Nehru made his position clear as he headed home from a two-week visit in London. He told reporters a Formosa conference is still under consideration. It "obviously cannot exclude any party concerned," he said.

Russia's proposal, which would seat Communist China at the conference table along with the 'big four' and the five Asian "Colombo powers" but not Nationalist China, has drawn a negative reaction in Washington and London.

FEELS HOPEFUL

Replying to a question, Nehru said he felt more hopeful about the world situation.

The main reason for this was the success of the Geneva conference last year.

That conference dealt with questions which were more difficult than the present problems, and yet it found a way out, he said.

Woman Flung From Rear Seat Of Taxi Cab

TRENTON (Special) — Mrs. Fred Bonter of Lorne Avenue, Trenton, was flung from the rear seat of a taxi hit by a truck at the Lorne Avenue and Wilkins Street intersection Sunday morning. She was found unconscious lying on the boulevard on the east side of Lorne Avenue in front of the taxi, which was thrown against the curb on the northeast corner of the intersection. A medical officer S/Ldr. K. M. Douglas, passing the accident, stopped and gave the injured woman first aid. Suffering head lacerations and concussion she was rushed to the Trenton Memorial Hospital by Weaver's ambulance.

A spokesman at the hospital today reported that Mrs. Bonter had still not regained consciousness but her condition seemed to be improved. She is under the care of Dr. J. W. Farley.

Mrs. Bonter and her neighbor, Mrs. Alex Craddock of Wragg Street, were on their way to the morning service at King Street United Church when a pick-up truck driven by Charles Brown, 57, of 235 Dundas Street West, Trenton, collided with the taxi in which the women were riding. Mrs. Craddock was not injured. The taxi driver, Gerald Holnbeck of Trenton and the truck driver and his wife also escaped.

Police reported that the taxi proceeding north on Lorne Ave. at Wilkins Street was struck by the truck travelling east on Wilkins Street at Lorne Avenue.

PUCK HITS WINDSHIELD

An unfortunate accident Saturday may cost three local boys $25.

Police Clash With Rioters In Johannesburg

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—Armed police clashed at midnight with Negro rioters brooding over the government's plan to evict non-whites from the city's western areas.

A police car broke up a gang of stone-throwing young Negroes and the youths fled, finding shelter in a nearby shop.

Police then tried to pry a way in with bayonets and stabbing spears. After hand-to-hand fighting three of the Negro youths were taken to hospital with head injuries.

The clash followed reports that the African National Congress is split over tough rank-and-file demands for a shooting match against the government's mass move schemes.

CALL OFF STRIKE

First result of the reported split was disclosure of a congress decision to call off a one-day strike throughout the Johannesburg area.

A congress leader said the hoodlums had been threatened with expulsion if they try any rough stuff in a situation already dangerpecked.

Fifteen Died Violently In Eastern Canada

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Four men and a woman were killed by cars as they walked along darkened highways during the weekend. They were among 15 who died violently in eastern Canada.

Many of the deaths were caused indirectly by snowstorms that swept much of the east.

Between midnight Friday and midnight Sunday, 11 died in traffic mishaps, two were killed in fires, one man froze to death and a boy was drowned, a Canadian Press survey shows.

Eleven met violent deaths in Ontario and four in Nova Scotia.

CHILDREN DIE

In Bright, Ont., near Woodstock, two children were burned to death Saturday. Mary Sherman, six, and her sister Laura, three, died when trapped by flames in their attic bedroom. The fire was believed caused by an overheated stove pipe.

Thomas Renaud, 69, of Belle River, Ont., near Windsor, was fatally injure dSunday night when struck by a car as he walked along Highway 18.

Henry Starling, 79, of Hamilton, also died of injuries suffered when hit by a car while crossing a street early Sunday.

Mrs. Charles Chapman, 73, of Gateway, near North Bay, was killed Saturday night when struck by a car while crossing Highway 11

In Toronto, Issar Bogdanow, 50, was fatally injured when knocked down by a car as he crossed the Lakeshore boulevard Sunday night.

At Kitchener, George Bain McCrae, 87, a resident of the Waterloo home for the aged, died when hit by a car in front of the home Saturday night.

Near Clinton, Ont., 35 miles northwest of Stratford, Mrs. Percy Jackson, 80, of Toronto died in a two-car collision during a snowstorm. Four others were injured, one seriously.

In the same snowstorm and only 10 miles west of Clinton, Murley Milley, 27, of Sarnia was killed and two others injured when two cars collided near Bayfield.

James A. Clark, 38, of Burlington, was killed Saturday when his car left the Queen Elizabeth way and crashed into a tree near Port Credit, about eight miles west of Toronto.

A level-crossing accident at Brampton, 20 miles northwest of Toronto, took the life of Mrs. Charles Barlow, 62, of Brampton and severely injured her husband.

FIRE HITS TOBACCO

COURTLAND, Ont. (CP) — A $40,000 fire Sunday swept through a barn packed with 200 tobacco bales and a quantity of lumber on the farm of Paul Balciunas near this village 20 miles south of Woodstock. The blaze was believed caused by faulty wiring.

Turning Hearts Into Dollars Aim of Merchants

NEW YORK (AP) — Turning hearts into dollars is the big aim of merchants this week.

And each year more manufacturers get the notion that St. Valentine would make a good salesman.

Book publishers are taking newspaper ad space to plug titles with the words "heart" or "love."

The drive to revive the nightshirt is filling the papers and magazines with pictures of that onetime favorite, bedecked with designs and colors that would have frightened grandpa, and plugging Valentine's Day as the right time to take the plunge.

The men's tie foundation is pleading with every lass to buy her man a cravat—and so soon after Christmas, too!—and has some ties with love motifs emblazoned on them.

Many Christmas bills, alas, still aren't entirely paid. And the memory of the cost of generosity still lingers on in the mind, if not the heart, of the juggler of the family budget.

Merchants are aware of this. But each year they try a little harder to overcome it.

Britain Proposes UN Postpone Cease-Fire Talks

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) Britain proposed today that the UN suspend its efforts for a ceasefire in the Strait of Formosa to allow interested governments time for consultations.

British delegate Sir Pierson Dixon spoke after Russia had told the 1-nation UN Security Council that no useful purpose would be served by UN discussions of a cease-fire.

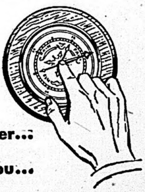
Dixon said the British government had been engaged in consultations with other governments and stands ready to discuss any concrete proposals to end the difficulties.

He added:

"The council should not try today to push matters forward. The wisest course is to adjourn without taking a final decisino."

TCA ROBBED

NEW YORK (CP)—A young gunman escaped with $200 Friday after holding up a clerk in the Trans-Canada Air Lines office on East 58th street. William Murray, the clerk, said he was alone in the office when the man came in, produced a gun and ordered Murray to put the money in a paper bag he brought with him. Murray complied with $200 from the cash drawer.



Securities...
the Weather...
and You...

Few of us know why we get the kind of weather we do. But for meteorologists who have spent a lifetime studying it, the weather holds few surprises.

As investment advisers we, too, have spent years accumulating experience for our own kind of meteorology. We've been studying investments with all the care that the weatherman gives his charts and records. As a result we've a pretty good idea what to expect from the business climate.

The average investor, on the other hand, doesn't always have the time or the information to give his securities the attention they deserve. Without assistance, it is only the occasional person who can both plan and manage his investment program successfully. It's a big job and an important one . . . and that's where we come in.

We have been planning programs and assisting investors with their securities for many years. We think we can help you too . . . whether you are an experienced investor or just a beginner. Just drop in, write, or give us a call.

Three Children Die in Blaze At Saskatoon

SASKATOON (CP)—Three children died here Sunday when fire swept their basement home. Their parents and four other children escaped.

The three were Ike Fehr, 7, and his brothers, Willie, 4, and Davie, 3. Their mother, Mrs. Cornelius Fehr, suffered first- and second-degree burns. Hospital officials said she was "still not out of danger."

Mr. Fehr suffered burns to the neck and arms when he kicked in a window to save four of the children and Mrs. Fehr. A spark from a kitchen stove apparently started the blaze.

Prices for Peas And Corn Set

HAMILTON (CP)—The Ontario vegetable growers' marketing board today announced agreement on prices of peas and sweet corn for 1955. Tomato talks were adjourned without agreement.

Sweet corn price was set at $25 a ton. Peas cut under a tenderometer reading of 85 will sell at $150 a ton; 86-95, $108.50, 96-120, $98.50; 121 up, $88.50.

Seed prices remain at 35 cents a pound for sweet corn and $7 a bushel for peas.

BROCKVILLE HOT!

The Brockville Magedomas, showing a surge of stretch-drive power, came up with three important points over the week-end to narrow the gap betweeen them and the Memos to six points. The Magedomas edged the strong Whitby Dunlops Saturday night and were held to a tie in Clinton on Sunday. Cornwall ripped back into the group lead yesterday with a sparkling 9-2 victory over the Dunlops.

The Colts top the league with 52 points; Whitby follows with 50, then Kingston with 49, Belleville 46, Brockville 40, Clinton 36 and the Petes 21. The Memos go to Peterborough tonight and this is one they cannot afford to lose for those Magedomas are hot on their trail. The Kingston Goodyears are not in the clear either in a group in which anything can happen.

GET 'EM GANG!

Go get 'em, V's!

You may or may not be the best team Canada can produce to bring back the world puck bacon—but we're all behind you one hundred per cent.

Show 'em over there that we still breed hockey players over here—the type that can adapt itself to unfamiliar rules—and still come out on top.

Show 'em that Canada does not need its top professional hockey players to win an "amateur" world championship. Show 'em that a lot of the sceptics in your own country are wrong. And show 'em that a lot of others are right

You carry with you the best wishes of a nation of hockey players, the best the world can produce—regardless of so-called world championships.

Show 'em that you are the gentlemen you are—unless the going gets tough. And if the Russkys or other foreign clubs want to play that way, show 'em that you too, are versed in the arts.

Show 'em that the fuzz on your famous peaches are iron whiskers—and that other teams will have to look sharp—be sharp—and act sharp.

Show 'em that your marksmanship is not the result of target practice in slave labor camps. Show 'em that your speed afoot is not achieved through the medium of the hunter and the hunted. Show 'em that you can take it—even if you are not allowed by the rules to "dish it out", so to speak.

You won't be alone over there. There are a lot of expatriate Canucks—and others—who will be rooting for you. And don't forget there are fifteen million plus of "us guys" over here who are pulling for you all the way.

GOOD SHOW!

The next week or so is being devoted to the aid of those gallant youngsters, the crippled kiddies of Ontario. Coming up next Sunday is the colorful stage and screen extravaganza, "Variety Night" at the Capitol Theatre, which will offer the cream of Canadian vaudeville talent and outstanding screen fare. The sensational attraction will be emceed by Monty Hall, well known radio master of ceremonies and is easily one of the best stage bills ever offered to a Belleville audience. That's Sunday, February 20 at the Capitol Theatre, starting at 9 p.m. All the proceeds go to Variety Village, a school where crippled youngsters are taught to become self-supporting through the media of trades, professions, etc.

BIG DINNER

Thursday night we'll be contributing our financial mite to the big Sports Celebrities dinner at the Royal York, sponsored by the Ontario Sportswriters and Sportscasters' Association. This venture, with donations, is expected to toss nearly $30,000 into the crippled kiddies' pot. World famous sports figures will be on hand at the dinner, as well as "Little Timmy,' 'an eleven-year-old symbol of the crippled youngsters. A number of Belleville sportsmen are taking in the big show.

It is not exactly a sportswriters' affair as those big-hearted gentlemen of the Ontario Hotelkeepers' Association have generously offered to pick up the dinner tab. This means the entire proceeds will go to the kiddies. And helping make this possible are the Belleville members of the association, which include Jack Yanover, Queens Hotel; Walter Allore, Belvedere; Paul Haggis, Crystal; Gerald Jenkins, Hotel Quinte; Barney Parsons, Docter's; Ben Yanover, City, and Archie Ingram, Canadian.

BATTLE OF THE BLUES.

Then on March 1st the Battle of the Blues is on tap at Memorial Arena when the puck-chasing laddybucks of the police and police departments join in the annual hockey joust in aid of the Shrine Club's Crippled Children's Fund. Reports from both camps say that the respective squads are practicing hard, and this year's classic will be the daddy of them all.

Dit Clapper and Roy Conacher, former National League luminaries, will be on hand to do the whistle-shrilling, while Danny Cox, another National Leaguer, who recently made his home in Belleville, in connection with the Brewers' Warehouse, will be around to lend a hand. The tickets cost but a quarter, less than a package of fags, so how about buying one and help bring some happiness to a kiddy not so fortunate as yours and mine.

Credited With Goal and Assist In Blues' Win Over Canadiens; Wings Take 2 Over Week-End

By JIM BATABLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Hockey's wild man is back.

Belligerent Bill Ezinicki, whose best meal ticket in the National Hockey League is his craving to 'cream" opponents with body-checks, returned to the big-leagues during the weekend. And what a return!

The 30 - year - old jarring left-winger, who once forsook hockey to seek fame in golf, gave New York Rangers some badly needed oomph as they tied the Bruins 5-5 at Boston Saturday and whipped the league-leading Montreal Canadiens 4-1 Suday.

Ezzie, called up by Rangers from their farmhand Vancouver Canucks in the Western League, didn't knock anybody senseless but he injected some scoring power into the top New York line. He was playing with ace rightwinger Danny Lewicki and centre Bones Raleigh all weekend.

HOW THEY DID

Here's how they did in the scoring departmet:

Ezinicki: One goal and an assist; Lewicki: Two goals and four assists; Raleigh: Two goals and three assists. Total: 13 points.

It was one of the most productive set of engagements for the fifth-place New Yorkers. But they remained in fifth place with 43 points, 13 behind the fourth-place Bruins who now hold the last Stanley Cup playoff berth.

In three other games, the second - place Detroit Red Wings scored midway in the third period Saturday to defeat the third-spot Maple Leafs 2-1 before 12,980 fans at Toronto. The Leafs came back with a 3-3 deadlock against Bruins in Boston Sunday night while the Red Wings lambasted the last-place Black Hawks 5-1 at Chicago. New York coach Muzz Patrick said of Ezinicki before the games:

"His main job will be to hold Maurice Richard (of Canadiens) in check. We'll leave Ezinicki more or less on his own when he goes out on the ice."

HELD HIM OFF

Ezinicki scored once against Canadiens. Defenceman Bill Gadsby tallied twice and Lewicki got the other one. Centre Ken Mosdell fired the only Montreal goal at 6:15 of the first period to give Canadiens a 1-0 lead. It was his 21st of the season and stood up until 13:34 of the second session when Ezinicki came through.

Rangers came from behind with two third-period goals at Boston Saturday. Raleigh scored two goals in that engagement. Lewicki, Aldo Guidolin and Ron Murphy handled the others. Lewicki's performance gave him a total of 26 goals.

ONE PENALTY

Ezinicki got an assist and one minor penalty in that game—his only penalty in both games.

Leo Labine scored twice for Bruins. Doug Mohns, Real Chevrefils and Eddie Sandford scored singles.

Centre Earl Reibel broke up the Detroit-at-Toronto game Saturday. He whipped the puck past goaltender Harry Lumley on a breakaway at 7:22 of the third period to give Red Wings their 30th win of the 1954-55 campaign. Glen Skov picked up the other Detroit goal.

Rightwinger Eric Nesterenko scored the only Toronto goal at 12:38 of the second period. It sent Leafs into a 1-0 lead but the Red Wings tied it up with Skov's goal 23 seconds later.

WERE BEHIND

Leafs were behind the eight ball in Boston Sunday night. They were trailing 3-0 going into the final period and then caught fire. Rookie Brian Cullen scored the tying goal at 18:23. Lumley was out of the nets and Leafs had sent six attackers against Boston goalie John Henderson. It was Cullen's third goal this season.

Parker MacDonald and team captain Ted Kennedy were the other Toronto marksmen. Labine scored twice, running his season's total to 23. Defenceman Leo Boivin got the other Boston marker.

Five Detroit men were in on the scoring at Chicago before 5,860 customers. They were Reibel, Ted Lindsay, Gordie Howe, Marty Pavelich and Marcel Pronovost. Larry Wilson tallied for Hawks, who were never in contention.

Oldtimers Name 'Hank' Fenn 1955 President

Members of the Belleville and District Oldtimers Hockey Association at a reorganization meeting held Sunday, named "Hank" Fenn as its first president. Vice-president is "Toots" Holway with Dick Beare given the secretary-treasurer post.

Executive members are Captain Ben Bowen, Trenton; J. B. Hough, Stirling; Buck Hulin, Madoc; Bill Canning, Johnny Hibbard and Bob Scott all of Belleville. Ed. Thomas, one of Belleville's best-known hockey names, was appointed honorary president.

Several suggestions as to activities were discussed and it was decided to hold four smokers a year, first to take place on either March 8 or 10. "Toots" Holway was named chairman of the entertainment committee and he selected a strong body to assist him.

It was also suggested that the association raise funds to equip a deserving hockey-playing youngster whose family cannot afford to get him the gear necessary. A committee will investigate the matter.

Membership dues were set at $2 per year, and it was decided that all ex-players who are not now in active competition are eligible for membership.

Jack Devine acted as chairman for the meeting prior to the election of officers and paid tribute to the memory of the late Bill Green who had done outstanding service for the organization and kept it alive. President Fenn said outstanding debts of the association had been cleared up thanks to donations from members.

There was a somewhat lengthy discussion regarding the playing of an Oldtimers hockey game in conjunction with other attractions to be held on a special night. This was laid over for further study and possible action.

Penticton, Ready for Anything Left Sunday for Germany

MONTREAL (CP)—The Penticton Vs, ready for "anything the Russians or the other teams toss against us", left Sunday night for Germany to represent Canada in the world hockey championships.

The Vs, headed by the three Warwick brothers, Grant, Dick and Bill, were confident of victory as they boarded a Trans-Canada Air Lines plane for London. From there, they will fly to Dusseldorf, arriving this afternoon.

"We feel we can win," said Grant, player-coach of the team. "We're certainly going to do our best."

"We can adjust our style of play to anything the Russians or the other teams toss against us," he said. "We have been practising without using bodychecking — the European style—and we've played against teams in our own league the same way."

IRVIN PLAN

Warwick, a former National Hockey League player, didn't think too much of a plan advanced by Dick Irvin, coach of the Montreal Canadiens, to reinforce the team with NHL players.

"We've got a good club. We've a few players who could play in the NHL, but I don't think it would be fair to our club for me to name them. Besides, what would Irvin think if somebody raided his club?"

The team expects to play four exhibition games before the championship round gets underway Feb. 25. One will be in Berlin, one in Paris and two in Czechoslovakia, likely in Prague.

The Vs will have their own interpreter when they meet Russia. Mike Shabaga, 32-year-old former American League performer, says he'll be on the alert against the Russians.

"I'll know what they're talking about," he said. "I can speak Ukrainian. They won't fool me."

W. B. (Baldy) George, past-president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, was among the group that met the players at the airport. He said he thinks the Vs, Allan Cup champions, will beat Russia by eight goals—"say 8-0 or 10-2."

"I said last year that if the Lyndhursts (Toronto Lyndhursts) had played against the Russians as they did against some of the other teams we would have won. It was one of those games when a team isn't right."

"The Vs are stronger. They were named by the CAHA. Last year we had practically no offers outside the Lyndhursts."

George plans to leave next Sunday to join the Vs.

Week-End Stars

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Earl Reibel, Detroit, who scored the winning goal as the Red Wings defeated Toronto 2-1 Saturday.

Leo Labine, Boston, who scored four goals during the weekend, two against New York and two against Toronto.

Don Raleigh, New York, who scored two goals and assisted on another against Boston Saturday.

Ted Lindsay, Detroit, who scored one goal and assisted on three others as the Red Wings defeated Chicago 5-1 Sunday.

Brian Cullen, Toronto scored the tying goal and assisted on another as the Maple Leafs and Boston tied 3-3 Sunday.

REMEMBER WHEN

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

More than 14,000 hockey fans at Toronto cheered as Ace Bailey and Eddie Shore clasped hands during a National Hockey League benefit game 21 years ago tonight for Bailey, who had suffered a fractured skull in collision with Shore at a game in Boston two months earlier. In the benefit game Toronto Maple Leafs beat the All-Stars 7-3.

'Dogs' Bite Indians, Lose to Mercs, Cling to Senior League Second Place

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Coach Murph Chamberlain's pre-season prediction that his Windsor Bulldogs would end up at least in second place in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League had a shaking up during the weekend.

The Bulldogs dropped from second place Saturday when they lost Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen 5-0 before 4,613 Kitchener fans. But they bounced right back Sunday, defeating Stratford Indians 4-1 in Windsor.

Meanwhile Owen Sound Mercurys had a short stay in second place after dumping the last-place Niagara Falls Cataracts 8-3 in Niagara Falls Saturday. In the only other game Stratford dropped Chatham Maroons 8-5.

Windsor's win came in one of the most rugged games this season. It included 45 minutes in penalties, two of them misconducts, and a major to Stratford.

Gary Collins bagged two goals for the Dukes. Glen Cressman, Ken Girard, Ron Casey, Billy Harris and Gary Aldcorn rounded out the total. Mitch Plata and Cec Hoekstra scored for St. Catharines.

Ken Gribbdns scored for St. Michael's at 3:16 of the second period and the 1-0 margin appeared mountainous at the midway mark of the third. But Brian Kilrea counted for the Cubs at 14:39 to give Hamilton a share of the two points.

Golf Body Instals Prexy, Names Dates

TORONTO (CP)—B. F. (Spike) Kearns, president of Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen, Saturday was installed as president of the Ontario Golf Association at the association's annual meeting.

At a meeting of the board of directors held before the full gathering, a proposal that dues be increased by 25 cents to $1.25 was struck off the agenda and put forward to the next annual meeting. The increase had been proposed to help meet cost of staging the Ontario Open championship without a sponsor.

Dates of the Open to be played over Cataraqui at Kingston were fixed for June 24 and 25. The Ontario Amateur championship will be played at Westmount, July 6, 7, 8 and 9 and the parent-and-child championship will be played over at Toronto, Aug. 24 and 25.

The Ontario junior championship will be a match-play three-day event staged in July on dates yet to be set.

MEMBERSHIP BETTER

Manager Harold Banks said in his annual report that membership of the association last year increased by 14 clubs to a total of 126. He described the year as "not very successful" financially, but predicted an improvement in 1955.

Retiring president Paul Robert of Toronto said the association in future will devote a large part of its program to junior development. A special committee including members of the Professional Golfers Association's Ontario zone was being set up to encourage junior golf in the province.

Vice-presidents are: Wes McKnight, Scarboro; H. W. Davies, Cataraqui; A. Hinton, Scarboro. Governors are: Jim Boeckh, Toronto Lambton; Jack Nash, London; E. A. Rossiter, Windsor Roseland.

Soccer Body Names Officers

TORONTO (CP)—Arthur Arnold of Hamilton was re-elected president of the Ontario Football Association Saturday for his eighth consecutive term.

Bob McDonald of Hamilton was elected vice-president and Billy Simpson, secretary - treasurer at the association's annual meeting. All were by acclamations.

The association finished 1954 with a $357 deficit. Most of the loss of income was due to the visits of Chelsea and Glasgow Rangers.

Twenty - eight delegates from Sault Ste. Marie, Sudbury, North Bay, Peterborough, London, Belleville, Chatham, Kingston, Windsor, Hamilton and representatives of the Southern Ontario League, the Eastern Ontario League and the National League attended.

McGill Takes Boxing Crown

MONTREAL (CP)—McGill University took the Canadian intercollegiate boxing championships Saturday night, winning four of the nine bouts staged at McGill's third annual athletics night.

The Redmen piled up 19 points, nine more than Guelph's Ontario Agricultural College. The defending champions, University of Toronto, finished third with nine points while Queen's University was last with seven.

Three points were awarded under the intercollegiate system for a win and one point for a loss.

Eric Lindsay started McGill rolling when he won by a decision over Bob McFadden of OAC in the opening bout in the 130-pound class.

BEATS SIMMONS

John Fawcett, McGill team captain who came here this year from California where he was state college champ, took the 140-pound class with an impressive decision over Erskine Simmons of Queen's. He dropped Simmons in the first round for a mandatory eight count and held an edge the rest of the way.

Hard - punching Denny Repole outslugged John Mothersill of Queen's in the 155-pound class for McGill's third victory. Mothersill's nose bled from a second-round blow and Repole worked on the cut to tie up the match.

In the 165-pound class, McGill's Pierre Raymond outpointed OAC's Bob Girvan.

Royals Move In Second Place

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Royals moved into undisputed possession of second place in the Quebec Hockey League as a result of the two games played Sunday.

Montreal and Quebec were tied in the second slot previous to the afternoon's play but the Aces and Shawinigan Falls Cataracts fought to a 1-1 overtime draw while the Royals defeated Valleyfield Braves 5-3.

Shawinigan Falls, with 58 points, has a comfortable six-point cushion between themselves and the Royals. Quebec trails Montreal by a single point and is in third place with 51 points.

Chicoutimi and Valleyfield round out the five-team loop. The Sagueneens have 41 points and the Braves, 37.

Teepees, Bilts Win Sunday; Share Top Spot

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

St. Catharines TeePees were without one of their top forwards. Toronto Marlboros welcomed back one of theirs.

That just about told the story Sunday as the Marlboros walloped the TeePees, league-leaders of the Ontario Hockey Association junior A League, 7-2 in Toronto.

The TeePees, who share first place with Guelph Biltmores, were without their big centre, Hank Ciesla, the leading scorer in the OHA Junior A. Ciesla is still out with an elbow injury. Marlboros, on the other hand, seemed to be inspired by the return of Gerry James, rough rightwinger who had been sidelined with a fractured cheekbone since Jan. 18.

CLOSE TO MAJORS

The victory for the fourth-place Marlboros hoisted them to within five points of the third-place Toronto St. Michael's Majors. The Majors fought Hamilton Tiger-Cubs to a 1-1 tie in the first game of Toronto's Sunday doubleheader, watched by 8,050 fans.

In Saturday action the TeePees overcame a shaky first period to take an 8-4 home-ice victory from Kitchener-Waterloo Canucks, while the Biltmores defeated the Black Hawks 7-4 in Galt.

As a result of the weekend games St. Michael's trail Guelph and St. Catharines by four points. Hamilton is fifth, fourth behind Marlboros, and Galt sixth, five behind the Tiger-Cubs. Barrie Flyers and Kitchener, both out of the playoffs, trail.

FIVE GOALS

Marlboros broke open a fairly-close game Sunday by exploding with five goals in an 11-minute span in the third period. They led 1-0 after the first period and 2-1 after the second but the TeePees tied the score early in the third before the Marlboro onslaught.

Canadian Stars For Michigan

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP)—John Moule, a Canadian running for University of Michigan, raced to the best collegiate mile of the year Saturday to lead the Wolverines to an 80-34 track victory over Notre Dame.

Moule, a senior from Hamilton, Ont., clipped off the distance in four-minutes 9.9 seconds and finished 20 yards ahead of Notre Dame's Bill Squires.

His time eclipsed the meet record of 4:18.8 set by Michigan's twin distance greats, Bob and Ross Hume, in 1944.

Canadians Tie Italian Team

BOLZANO, Italy (AP) — The RCAF Flyers, hockey team of the air force in Germany, played to a 4-4 tie Saturday night with the Canadian-bolstered Bolzano team.

All eight goals were scored by Canadians. Bolzano scorers were Harold Kewly of North Bay, Ont., Bernardo Tomei of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Gar Vasey of Midland, Ont., and Ernesto Zorizi, of Sault Ste. Marie.

Many Italian hockey teams have Canadians of Italian origin in their lineups. Friday night the RCAF team lost 8-4 to the Milan club of the Italian Hockey League and in that game 10 of the 12 goals were scored by Canadians.

KHANS CLASH

NEW YORK (AP)—Hasha Khan defeated his brother Azam in an all-Pakistan final for the U.S. pro squash championships Sunday. The scores were 15-11, 11-15, 14-16, 15-6, 15-7.

Dwyer Whips Santee, Nielsen

NEW YORK (AP)—Fred Dwyer, the little armed forces miler from Villanova, watched Wes Santee and Gunnar Nielsen race themselves right into the ground, then went on to win the Baxter mile in the New York Athletic Club games Saturday night in 4:06.2.

While Santee and Nielsen, who have alternated winning the four previous mile races of this indoor U.S. track season, watched each other, Dwyer hung back. Both Nielsen and Santee were tuckered out before the three-quarter mark, and lost ground with every stride in the final lap.

Nielsen was second about 65 yards back, with Santee a couple of feet behind.

WINS SKI TITLE

MOUNT ORFORD, Que. (CP)—Andee Bertrand of Laval University Sunday successfuly defended his senior A title at the annual Quebec provincial ski championships. Bertrand amassed a total of 197.8 points, placing first in the downhill and fourth in the slalom.

Race to Wire In American Loop

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It looks as if the American Hockey League race will go right down to the wire with the contending teams closely bunched at the top of the heap.

Only five points separate the first four teams today with five weeks remaining. Pittsburgh leads with 56 points, followed by Springfield with 54, Hershey with 52 and Buffalo with 51.

Pittsburgh bowed to cellar-dwelling Providence 3-2 Sunday night on Pete Kapusta's goal in the opening minutes of the third period. The victory broke the Redds' nine-game losing streak.

Springfield and Hershey both gained ground on Pittsburgh. Springfield downed Cleveland 4-2 and Hershey turned back Buffalo 7-5 to snap the Bisons' seven-game winning skein.

Jim Anderson's goal broke a 2-2 tie midway in the final period and Danny Summers added the clincher in the last minutes to provide Springfield's margin of victory. A pair of goals by Dunc Fisher and a goal and three assists by Jim Robertson sparked the Hershey triumph.

CAPTURES EPEE CROWN

TORONTO (CP)—John Andru of the University of Toronto Fencing Club won the Ontario senior epee fencing championship here Sunday with a 3-2 tie-breaker win over last year's champion Joe Demeter, of the Three Musketeers Club, Toronto.

Weddings

WILLS—SKEY

The Anglican Church of St. Timothy, Toronto, was the setting for a candlelight ceremony of interest, when Rev. Henry H. Marsh officiated at the marriage, Friday evening, of Miss Mary Louise Skey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Russell Skey, to Mr. Henry Philip Wills, son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Henry Wills, of Belleville.

The bride's graceful Victorian-style gown was fashioned with long-sleeved bodice of French Chantilly lace and bouffant skirt of tulle, over white satin. Her fingertip veil was held by a coronet of seed pearls, and she carried a cascade of coral carnations and white hyacinth petals.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attended by her sister, Miss Patricia Skey, maid of honor, and Mrs. Rolph Corson, Jr., sister of the groom. They choose gowns of pale blue crystaline, with V-shaped drapery over the shoulders, and waltz length skirts of unpressed pleats. Their small matching headbands were enhanced with pearls, and they carried cascades of shaded pink sweetpeas with freesia.

Mr. William Wills of Belleville, was best man for his brother, and the ushers were Messrs. Rolph Corson, Jr., and Dean Dignam of Toronto; Thomas Mulock of Newmarket; Myles Morton and Robert Lyall, of Belleville.

After the reception at the Granite Club, Mr. and Mrs. Wills left by motor for Florida. On their return they will live in Belleville.

Women of the Moose

Thursday evening the Women of the Moose held their first meeting of the month in the Moose Lodge rooms on Victoria Avenue, with Senior Regent M. Calberry, presiding.

The guide, Connie Pringle, and assistant guide, Florence Carufel opened the ceremonies and pro-tem chaplain Gladys Ritch gave the opening prayer. The roll of officers, escorts and chairman showed a good representation.

March 20th, being set aside by all Moose Auxiliaries as "Baby Village Day at Mooseheart," funds will be raised to help these children, by having a supper on this date. There will be an open meeting and all memberse are asked to be present and to invite their friends and neighbors. Visitors from Lindsay, Peterborough, Port Hope and Brockville, will attend.

Posters are to be made by members to be judged for "Baby Village". Thank-you cards were received from Ruth Mintz, Mary Peoples, and Alma Haley.

Congratulatons were sent to Mary Meens on arrival of baby girl.

The chairman's meeting is to be held at the home of co-worker Ida Lake, the first Thursday in March.

On Saturday, March 5, a dinner will be served by the Women of the Moose in the Moose Hall, the price to be set at a later date. An invitation is extended to the public.

PRESENTATIONS TO BE MADE

The first meeting in March, cups will be presented to three outstanding cadets of the year of the R.C.S.C.C. "Quinte" from the Women of the Moose.

A lovely crochet centrepiece donated by Pearl Way was won by Marie Thrasher.

The next meeting will be on February 24.

A euchre was held after the meeting the winners being: Sheila McQuaid, M. Calberry; lone hands, Nora Potts.

Refreshments were served and an enjoyable evening was had by all.

Self-Taught Farm Girl Wins Award

FAIRVIEW, Alta. (CP) — News that a self-taught Fairview farm girl has won an international prize for literature cheered this Peace River town today but the winner herself could not be told about it.

Marie Jakober, 13, was at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Simon Jakober, 25 miles west of Fairview which is about 300 miles northwest of Edmonton.

The Jakober family has no telephone and the house is in an isolated district that can be reached only over bad roads. It was thought here that the Jakobers might not learn the news until their next trip to town, possibly next Saturday, marketing day here.

Marie's poem, "The Fairy Queen," that won the gold medal for the annual competition run by Shankar's Weekly, of New Delhi, India, is only one of a number of the girl's literary efforts. She has won several prizes in local competitions.

Marie's poem was one of 24,000 contributions of literary work and drawings submitted by children of 56 countries.

Shankar's Weekly, published by India's famed cartoonist, Shankar, runs the competition annually.

Marie, like her two older sisters, has obtained much of her schooling by correspondence courses Schools are few in the area, largely devoted to wheat growing, and many of the children take their school work by mail. She has a younger sister and a brother.

ANGLICAN CHURCH W.A.

FRANKFORD — The senior W.A. members of Frankford Anglican Church recently held their monthly meeting in the parish hall, with Miss Dench presiding.

The Scripture was read by Mrs. E. E. Ketcheson from 1st. Col. 9: 21.

The secretary, Mrs. C. Cooney, read the previous minutes and the treasurer's report was given by Miss Dench in the absence of Mrs. Milne. A sum of money was given Mrs. Cooney to start a school bale. A discussion was held on the work o fa missionary from Pakistan which was taken from an article in the monthly book.

Preparations for the World Day of Prayer was discussed. It is to be held in the Anglican Church hall on February 25th.

Rev. H. C. Secker closed the meeting.

SHANNONVILLE W.A.

The monthly meeting of the W.A., of Shannonville United church was held at the home of Mrs. Malcolm Little last Thursday afternoon with 26 ladies and two children present. Mrs. K. R. Vivian welcomed all and expressed pleasure at the good attendance. Mrs. Vivian gave a short reading.

Mrs. Everett Stratton, group leader, took charge of the devotional and read the call to worship theme for the month being "The Friend." Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Russel Wescott from Luke 10 and 1st John.

Mrs. Orval Stratton read the "Lesson Thoughts". Mrs. Saul McFarlane gave a reading on "Community Friendship"; Mrs. F. Doxtator gave a reading about Matthew, the tax collector, who became a devoted disciple of Jesus.

Cards of thanks for remembrance at Christmas were read from Mrs. L. Curl and Carter Gilroy. Mrs. Allen MacDonald sent thanks for the card and chocolates she received. Mrs. Claude Clarke expressed thanks for the card sent to Claude.

The secretary read an appeal for the March of Dimes. A donation was voted to this worthy cause.

Aprons were displayed and some cut out for members to make.

Mrs. Vivian thanked the hostess for opening her home for the meeting.

Mrs. Little assisted by the group in charge, served refreshments and a social time was enjoyed.

There are 28 paid up members to date.

Next meeting is to be at the home of Mrs. Ross Shelter, on the evening of March 10.

Christ Church Guild Plans Activities

The regular meeting of the Christ church Guild was held in the parish hall last Tuesday, Mrs. A. Wonnacott, president, presiding.

Mrs. E. Hickey gave the devotional.

It was decided during the meeting that a rummage sale would be held in March, and the spring tea in May.

At the close of the meeting, an auction was held and refreshments were served by the committee of Mrs. C. Ling, Mrs. C. Bishop, Mrs. H. Wright and Mrs. A. Wonnacott.

The door to friendly service

THE TORONTO-DOMINION BANK

Our name is changed . . . our facilities are greater . . . but you'll find the same personal service

What changes do you see, when you visit The Toronto-Dominion Bank?

Perhaps you'll notice very few changes—other than the new name. You will of course enjoy the same warm welcome and friendly service you knew at the former Banks—The Bank of Toronto and The Dominion Bank. But as you start doing business with Toronto-Dominion, you will soon discover the many advantages this amalgamation can mean to you.

If you are a depositor, you will be interested to know The Toronto-Dominion Bank now has 452 branches right across Canada. This can mean a great deal to you when you travel. Or if you move to a new locality, there will probably be a branch of this Bank situated close to your new home.

If you are a businessman, The Toronto-Dominion Bank has the resources to serve any business. It can help you with increased credit facilities at home or abroad—it can supply faster service on business and credit reports. Its larger branch representation, and its London, England and New York offices, can serve you many ways.

Yes, you will find some changes at The Toronto-Dominion Bank—a new name and broader facilities. But one thing is still the same and will never change—the spirit of friendly service, the courteous, personal attention that makes The Toronto-Dominion Bank such a pleasant place to do business.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 15 1955

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Asking in credit of past performances will get little; but review to use the experience to avoid further mistakes. Some uncertain aspects for business, personal affairs. Be alert.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—You will be better off today staying on soundly conservative side. Your active mind needs occasional rest, a vital food. Intimate matters ask especial care in planning, handling.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—Wide open day, one that can be good or not so, according to your attitude and effort. Spark work with smart practical thinking and your chances are more than even to make headway now.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—The studious, willing worker moves forward. Planet vibrations on upgrade, influences argue for the busy-beaver if also reasonably cautious person. Personal, family matters can improve.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo)—The early and steady will get the jump on others. Wait-and-see folks will regret delay where immediate decisions are needed. Know the true merits of both procedures. Take sane precautions.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — Maybe less stimulating or helpful than you thought at first. What you see on surface in spots is different. But don't make anything difficult by anticipation or enlarging. Don't force.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) —Mixed influences, mixed opportunities. Irritating conditions could be squelched if you concentrate immediately and don't let them bother you. You are capable, tackle resolutely.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — May be slight disrupting of plans, outsiders intervening in opposite force against your wishes. All calls for restraint, with optimism. Forecast of better advantages ahead.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — Voice opinion with cheer; be duly concerned how others and your community are faring: They influence future gains, losses, happiness. Incorporate experience with sound analyzing.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — Business, professional matters, personal affairs can move forward in conjunction with other fundamentally constructive effort. Today's decisions hold the future in the balance.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — At some point, likely after an uncontrolled thought or act, emotional factors may tend to create situation you will have to handle especially carefully. Watch this trend; correct errors.

Feb. 21 to March 20 (Pisces) —Your work, position could be impaired if you are not constructive and don't exercise thoughtful judgment, management. You who have to travel, be sanely cautious, don't rush unthinkingly.

YOU BORN TODAY: Possess a wide variety of fine characteristics, but may need to correct a tendency to be discouraged at times, or become inactive, static. Keep usefully busy always; choose companions who encourage you and who are high principled. Try original propositions, too. You can create and improve for business and personal advantage. Seek and accept advice from right sources, use your own good intuition, too. Thank God for what you have.

Birthdate of: Galileo, Ital. astronomer, philosopher; Elihu Root, famed Amer. lawyer, statesman; John Barrymore, actor; Chas. L. Tiffnay, noted merchant.

Little Benny's Notebook

Pop was lighting his ferst cigar after dinner, and ma said, You hear a lot about the high cost of living nowadays, William.

That's a fact, there's always something new about it, pop said, and ma said, But still and all, William, if you keep a sharp lookout, you can still find real bargains, and I'm thinking of necessities, not luxuries, she said.

I'd just as soon think of luxuries, if it's just a case of thinking, pop said, and ma said, For instance I was passing through Hookbinders household department, and I happened to notice a special sale of garden hose at 3 dollers and 29 cents for an 18 foot length.

I hope you happen to notice something like that when we happen to need a new length of garden hose, pop said, and ma said, That's the exact thought that passed through my mind like a flash in Hookbinders at the time. Still, William, just speeking of the principal of the thing, it's an argument agenst all the talk about high prices that you hear on every side in such bitter tones, she said.

It's also true that one man's necessity is another man's luxury, such as a gold inlay in a perfectly good tooth, or a new wreath of garden hose when you alreddy have an old wreath that still squerts youthfully, pop said, and ma said, That's so true, William. After all, a spare length of garden hose would hardly have more than an ornamental value if there was no real positive pressing use for it, she said.

Werse than that my dear, it would be actually in the way, pop said, and ma said, Well yes, I really believe I'm sorry I bought it now.

Not being quite the end of the subject.

CRITICIZES YALTA

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Polish Congress has asked the Free World to "renounce the treaty of Yalta and make good the tragic errors committed at the end of the war." In a statement marking the 10th anniversary of the Yalta conference, Feb. 4-11, 1945, the congress said the conference by Churchill, Roosevelt and Stalin resulted in the abandonment of Poland to Russia.

20 KILLED

FREETOWN, Sierre Leone (CP) Governor Sir Robert Hall Sunday toured parts of Freetown where 20 persons were killed in bloody riots during the weekend. Everything was quiet after an all-night curfew. Hundreds were wounded in battles between police and striking workmen Saturday.

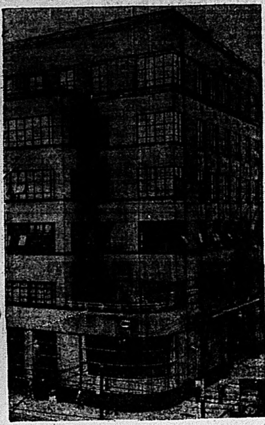
MONTREAL FINANCIER BUYS TORONTO PAPER



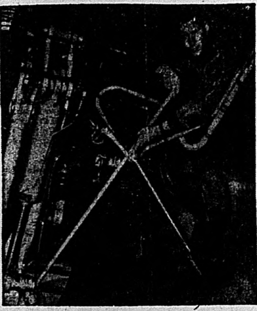
R. HOWARD WEBSTER

New owner of Toronto's Globe and Mail, largest circulation morning newspaper in Canada, is R. Howard Webster, 45-year-old Montreal bachelor financier. His bid, made to the executors of the estate of the late publisher C. George McCullagh, is believed to have been $10,900,000, highest of 11 bids tendered for the paper. With the paper goes the William H. Wright bluiding, above, called the most modern newspaper plant in Canada. In a message to the present editor-in-chief, Oakley Dalgleish, Mr. Webster said: "I have no intention of making any changes. It is the finest newspaper in Canada." — (Central Press Canadian Photos.)

CERTIFICATE OF NARROW ESCAPE

To qualify for entrance to the Turtle Club you have to be saved from death by a safety helmet. The membership of the club is, therefore, small and there is no waiting list of applicants. Two of the latest members admitted to the organization are Lawrence Champoux, centre, and Frank Rupnik, two woodsmen of Port Arthur, Ont., who qualified when falling trees struck their helmets. E. E. Sparrow, left, chairman of the Ontario Workmen's Compensation Board, presented them with their Club Certificate at the Lumbermen's Safety Association convention in Port Arthur. (Central Press Canadian).

HUNG BY HEELS 4,000 FEET UP



Air Force Sergeant Floyd A. James, of Cave City, Arkansas, who hung from the wing of his C-124 in zero weather to keep the plane from crash-landing with 31 persons aboard, is shown pointing to the landing gear which he repaired in mid-air during the flight from Alaska to Wright-Patterson air force base in Dayton, Ohio. James was held by the ankles for 12 minutes in the sub-zero temperature to do the repair job, at 4,000 feet. (Central Press Canadian).

CAMPBELLFORD

School Costs Subject of Debate In Town Council

CAMPBELLFORD—The Campbellford Town Council held their regular meeting this week, in a lengthy session. One of the important subjects discussed throughout the evening was school expenditures. Mr. W. C. Tatham presented a statement of the proposed expenditure of the Public School Board for 1955. He said that as far as good business administration would permit, the board would seek approximately the same amount of funds each year, with no expected large increases, or declines in expenditures. The budget this year forecasts a reduction of about $3,265, which will mean a reduction in levy to be raised through taxation of about $2,650.

He stated that the absense of pupils from school, and there was a great deal of this during November, tends to reduce the legislative grant, and urged that parents send pupils to school if they are able to go.

Mr. W. Roy Loucks, chairman of the N.E. Northumberland High School Area Board, stated that the levy for '55 would be $57,000 as compared with almost $37,000 last year. He pointed out that the district had a sum of money last year coming from the former area of about $6,000 net, and that the budget this year would have to raise this, together with about $15,000. The main concern of council in this matter was the apportioning of this expense between Campbellford and the townships of Percy and Seymour.

If the new assessments throughout the country are followed in apportioning the expense, Campbellford taxpayers' share would work out to about 47.2 per cent, while Seymour would contribute about 31.2 per cent and Percy township about 21.6 per cent. Under the former assessments, Campbellford paid about 32, Seymour 38 and Percy about 30 per cent.

CLERK AGAINST SPLIT

The clerk-treasurer, Mr. Ibey, argued very strongly against the proposed figures on the three-way split of the increase among the three municipalities, and stated a municipality is liable as the equalized assessment bears to that of the whole district. He claimed that there is no equalized assessment except that under which the expenses were formerly apportioned.

Mr. Loucks stated that he is not in a position to apportion the expense between the municipalities, but he called attention to the fact that if they levied on the previous basis, and were incorrect in so doing, they would be $9,000 short.

Mr. Loucks spiked rumors that a new wing will be needed on the Campbellford high school, saying that 1956 is expected to be the peak year in attendance and that the school could handle the increase. He said that additional storage space was neded.

In reply to a question from Reeve D. R. Maybee, Mr. Loucks said that the board paid two-thirds of the cost of maintenance of Warkworth High School, but said that the board made use of two-thirds of the school. He said, too, that next year it might not be practical to teach Grade 13 in Warkworth, as they anticipate only two or three pupils in the grade.

Mr. Don Bennett spoke to Council on behalf of the Citizens' band and asked for a grant, saying that they needed five additional uniforms and some capes. Councillors Tatham said that the finance committee had anticipated a grant of $250, but Deputy Reeve Rutherford said that it should be $500, so the matter was left to be considered with the budget.

PRESENTS REPORT

Deputy Reeve Rutherford presented his report on road signs to be erected in conjunction with the Service Clubs and the Chamber of Commerce. Council agreed to purchase two of the four signs to be erected and to pay their share of installation. The signs are $68.25 each and are of the "Scotch Light" variety.

Reeve Maybee, the treasurer and the road foreman, were delegated to attend the Good Roads Convention on Feb. 22 and 23.

Salaries were reviewed and the wage rate set for workmen on the roads was raised from 70 to 75 cents per hour. The foreman, Mr. W. Blake, is to receive $50 per week, and Mrs. Helen Potts, assistant to the clerk-treasurer, $35 per week. Each of the policemen received increases of $200 per year.

The salary of Mr. H. H. Townsend, assessor, was increased from $1,500 to $1,800 per year.

Council discussed the salary of Mr. E. M. Ibey, the clerk, and he was finally engaged at $3,500.

Presentation of the 1952 and 1954 public speaking awards was made by Mayor Locke to Constance Collins and Mary Wilson prior to the meeting.

14 DIED AT BULLFIGHT

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Fourteen persons were reported killed and about 165 injured Sunday at Hunucha, Yucatan, when a grandstand collapsed during a bullfight in the town square.

Mustangs Win Four in Row

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—University of Western Ontario Mustangs ran up their fourth straight victory in the senior intercollegiate basketball race with an 86-72 win Saturday night over University of Toronto Blues.

A crowd of 1,200 fans watched Western gain control 52-37 at half time in a free-scoring contest.

Coulter Osborne of Western was top scorer of the game with 18 points. Don Fawcett was best for Blues with 14.

Minor Hockey

Close games featured the opening of the bantam and pee wee playoffs at the Arena on Saturday morning. In the bantam section, the Maple Leafs shaded the Rangers 3-2, the Black Hawks nudged the Red Wings 2-1 while the Canadiens downed the Bruins 4-1. Pee Wee action saw the Rangers edge the Leafs 3-2, the Hawks win over the Bruins 5-2 while the Red Wings and Canadiens played to a 2-2 deadlock. All series are best-of-three affairs with the second games scheduled for next Saturday morning.

BANTAM

Scoring champion, Bernie Boulter, fired the Leafs third goal to give them a one-game lead over the Rangers while Lattimer and MacDonald also scored. Morton and Phillips drew assists. Davies netted the first Ranger goal on a pass from Stover with L. Davis scoring the other unassisted.

Ivo Regent and Murphy fired the Hawks markers with Moore picking up one assist. Musgrove from Champaign was the Red Wing scoring play. Three penalties weakened the Wings attack.

L. Westfall sparked the Canadiens to their victory with two goals while R. Hull and Maverty also scored and assists went to Skelly and Harvey. J. Boulter potted the lone Bruin goal with Brawley assisting.

PEE WEE

Rodney Turner, Peter Weston and Jimmy Jarrett each fired one goal for the Rangers with Graydon Scott assisting on two. Jimmy Woodcock and D. Blakley also drew helpers. Paul Zakos ripped home both Leafs goals with Ino Graham assisting on one.

Bob Duggan led the Black Hawks to victory with two goals and one assist while Hubert Pointer, Dennis Hull and Stu Muirhead also scored. Assists went to Hull with two, Sinclair and Pointer. Joe Ervine had a goal and assist in defeat with Ron Smith firing the odd Bruin goal.

Pt. Anne Enters Round Robin

Three district clubs will take part in an OHA intermediate "C" round robin, it was decided at a meeting held on Sunday in Stirling. The teams are Point Anne, Campbellford and Marmora, all Trent Valley Hockey League entries.

Point Anne opens the "robin" on Wednesday night with Campbellford to meet Marmora on Friday. On Feb. 23rd Marmora again tackles the Pointers and the Bradshaw-Anderson crew go back at Campbellford on Feb. 26th. On the 28th Campbellford tackles Marmora. The final game of the round robin sees Marmora at Campbellford on March 5.

The two top teams will play off for the right to enter the OHA intermediate "C" playdowns.

Big Seven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Canadiens scored only one goal during the weekend but continue to dominate the National Hockey League's point - getters, with five of their snipers holding down the top spots in the scoring race.

The four leaders could not add to their scoring totals.

Kenny Mosdell in fifth place, scored Montreal's only weekend goal as the Canadiens dropped a 4-1 decision to New York Sunday.

The leaders:

Russia Gets Skating Events

LONDON (AP) — The world speed skating championships—first big world event ever held in Soviet Russia — will be raced in Moscow's Dynamo Stadium next Saturday and Sunday. Two Americans will compete.

And if all goes well and the four-event championships go off without incident, the Soviets say they hope to stage dozens of other international meets of all kinds.

The ultimate aim is to impress Western athletic officials favorably so that the 1965 Olympic Games will be awarded to Russia. The games probably would be held near Moscow on a bed in the Moscow river near the foothills of the Leninskye Gory. Preparations for construction of a big athletic area already have begun.

Entries in this weekend's championships include practically all of the world ranking skaters. The United States will have Don McDermott of Englewood Cliffs, N.J., and Johnny Werket of Minneapolis.

They are the first American athletes to go to Moscow since before the war. They are expected to do well in the sprints but are not considered serious challengers for the world championship title since the emphasis is on distance events.

LONG SHOT TAKES IT

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP)—Leaving the heavily-backed Determine and Poona II to trail in dismal defeat, Joe W. Brown's Gigantic, a long shot, came up in the stretch to win the $60,000 San Antonio Handicap at Santa Anita Park Saturday.

Imbros, stable mate of Determine, managed to grab second, while Rex Ellsworth's Correspondent finished third in the field of 14 horses.

Gigantic returned $85.50 for a $2 win ticket, $22.90 to place and $11.30 to show.

Tommy Bolt Wins Tucson Open

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Tommy Bolt of Houston, Tex., calmly scored two birdies in a row to win the $10,000 Tucson open golf tournament with a 14-under-par 266 Sunday.

Bolt went into the final nine holes trailing young Bud Holscher of Santa Monica, Calif., by one stroke and being pressed from behind by Art Wall Jr., of Pocono Manor, Pa. He won $2,000.

Holscher and Wall finished in a tie for second and collected $1,200 each on scores of 269.

Al Balding of Toronto and Rudy Horvath of Windsor, Ont., who had been among the early leaders, fell behind in the final rounds and finished out of the money.

CANADIAN THIRD

SARANAC LAKE, N.Y. (CP) — Canadian champion Pat Underhill of Peace River, Alta., Sunday took third pace with 60 points in the North American senior women's outdoor speed - skating championship. Blonde Pat Gibson of West Allis, Wis., the new United States national outdoor women's champion, won all but one event, piling up 140 points. Jeanne Robinson of Detroit was second.

Wolves Take League Lead

LONDON (AP)—Wolverhampton Wanderers stormed to a 6-4 victory over Huddersfield Town Saturday and toppled Sunderland from the top of the English League first division standings in one of the soccer season's highest scoring days.

Winger Johnny Hancocks was the star of the Wolves' win with three goals. Huddersfield's Johnny Glazzard also netted three.

Sunderland lost the first division lead—and at the same time its season's unbeaten home record—as Charlton turned in some high-class soccer for a 2-1 victory.

Eleven first division matches produced a total of 59 goals. Leicester routed West Bromwich Albion, last year's cup winners, 6-; Manchester City chalked up a 5-0 away victory over neighbors Manchester United; Cardiff City defeated Everton 4-3, and Chelsea also wound up 4-3 winner over Newcastle.

BIG DAY AT FRONT

It was a feast day all round for the forwards with the league's 45 games producing 178 goals.

Centre forward Arthur Rowley slammed in three goals in Leicester's victory over West Bromwich and helped his team to two valuable points in the battle against relegation to the second division.

Sheffield Wednesday, defeated 3-1 by Portsmouth, appears headed for a drop in the second division. Wednesday is bottom with only 14 points from 29 matches. Leicester is next to the foot with 20 points, Blackpool has 21 and Arsenal 24. The two bottom teams at the end of the schedule are demoted.

Marauders Bow To McGill 72-60

MONTREAL (CP)—Weak shooting from the foul line plagued McMaster University Marauders Saturday night as they dropped a 72-60 decision to McGill in a senior intercollegiate basketball game.

It was the sixth loss in as many league starts for the Hamilton college team. The Redmen have won two and lost three of their league games. Leon Duplessis of McGill led the scorers with 19 points while Russ Jackson was the top point-getter for McMaster with 18.

Take Ontario Badminton Titles

WOODSTOCK (CP)—Don Smyth and Marj Shedd of Toronto won the men's and women's titles in the Ontario badminton championships Sunday.

Smyth, 1954 Canadian singles champion, defeated B. Wescott of Toronto 12-15, 17-14, 15-12. Miss Shedd, last year's Canadian women's titlist, downed Joan Hennessy of Toronto in straight sets, 11-7, 11-3.

Smyth teamed with B. Purcell of Toronto to defeat B. Brewster, Woodstock, and G. Thorpe, Burlington, for the men's doubles 15-10, 15-12, 18-18.

The women's doubles championship was won by Miss Shedd and Miss Hennessy who defeated B. James and J. Warren of Toornto 15-7, 15-10.

Miss Shedd teamed with B. Purcell to take the mixed-doubles title, defeating M. Cunningham, Kitchener and G. Thorpe, Burlington, 15-8, 15-10.

In the semi - final, Smythe crushed Pete Ferguson of Woodstock 15-6, 15-1. In the other men's singles event, Wescott got by Jim Carnwath of Woodstock, 15-12, 7-15, 15-0.

Miss Shedd defeated Aveleigh Hepworth of Woodstock 11-6, 11-2 in women's singles semi-finals, and Miss Hennessy edged Daphne Walker of Toronto 11-8, 11-12, 11-8.

Varsity Breaks Track Records

TORONTO (CP) — Three intercollegiate indoor track records were broken Saturday as University of Toronto trackmen defeated teams from the University of Western Ontario and McMaster University in an exhibition meet.

Norm Williams set two records while Dick Harding set the other. Both are from Toronto.

Williams ran the 50-yard high hurdles in 6.3 seconds, one-tenth of a second better than the Canadian indoor mark set in 1937 by Larry O'Connor. He did the 50-yard low hurdles in six seconds flat, cutting a tenth off his previous record.

Harding sprinted 300 yards in 34 seconds to lower the former mark of 34.5 which he also held.

TRIUMPHS IN SQUASH

DETROIT (AP) — Agile little Henri Salaun, a transplanted Frenchman who now lives in Boston, won his first United States national amateur squash rackets title Sunday, defeating Ernie Howard of Toronto, 15-7, 15-6, 15-11.

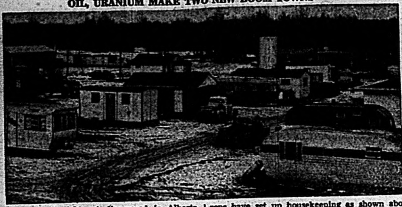
OIL, URANIUM MAKE TWO NEW BOOM TOWNS



Biggest oil field yet discovered in Alberta Pembina is making a boom town of Drayton Valley, 90 miles from Edmonton and closest townsite to the oilfield. The town's 5,000 new citizens have set up housekeeping as shown above, in trailers and shacks. But the residents, believing the boom is there to stay, are making plans for a permanent, well designed town.

In Ontario, another boom town is duplicating the problems of Alberta's Drayton Valley. Blind River, centre of what may be one of the world's richest uranium deposits, has more transient prospectors and mining engineers than it has permanent residents. But with guaranteed uranium prices, the town is laying plans for a 10,000 population within five years. (Central Press Canadian Photos.)

HULL, England (Reuters) A—large crowd, mostly women, stood in bitter cold outside the fishermen's chapel at Hull Sunday, during a memorial service for 40 men lost when two local trawlers capsized in an Icelandic gale three weeks ago. Two services were held one for each trawler.

TO HOLD EXERCISE

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian Army's first peacetime divisional exercise will be held this summer at Camp Gagetown, N.B., the army said Friday. The training concentration of more than 10,000 soldiers will culminate in exercise "Rising Star" Aug. 7 to 14.

NEW TRAINING CENTRE

TOKYO (AP)—The U. S. Army said today it will begin a new program of training Nationalist Chinese officers at Far Eastern installations rather than send them to the United States. The first contingent of 25, mostly of field grade, is to arrive at Okinawa Tuesday. Army technical schools in the United States have been training Nationalist Chinese officers for several years.

Vial Brought To Canada In Kitbag

BEARDMORE, Ont. (CP) — Angus MacDonald said Sunday he brought a vial of radioactive powder from Germany in a kitbag full of wartime souvenirs.

The 30-year-old logging contractor said his kitbag came to Canada in the hold of the liner Queen Mary, along with hundreds of other kitbags. It was then shipped to Montreal before MacDonald picked it up and took it to his parents' home in Milan, Que., with other souvenirs.

He said reports that he brought the five-inch vial containing a white powder into Canada in a rifle barrel were "completely ridiculous."

"It's much too big. I didn't smuggle it anywhere. I just took it along and nobody even asked me about it."

MacDonald said the vial crossed the U.S. border four times last summer while he and his wife, Ann, visited her parents in Calder, Sask. Three weeks ago he handed it over to police after discovering the substance was radioactive.

The vial is at the General Hospital in Port Arthur.

Hospital tests are expected to take several days National Research Council officials said Thursday they believed the vial may contain uranium.

However, reports in this town, 80 miles north of Montreal, say the substance has no commercial value. It is believed the material is a product of heavy water experiments made by German nuclear physicists.

Friend... or Foe?

The alert young women on constant watch as Fighter Control Operators at the RCAF's powerful radar scanner stations are a vital part of Canada's defence team.

Movements of all aircraft within range are monitored in the control and plotting rooms by these operators.

An unidentified plane is spotted on the screen. Is it friend or foe?

Through the marvels of modern electronics, RCAF jet fighters are swiftly and unerringly directed to investigate and intercept.

This is interesting and important work for young women. They are given thorough training. They receive the same pay as men. Food, clothing, medical care, supervised living quarters and recreational facilities are provided.

Charge Toronto Youth Murdered By Cafe Owner

Fight Over Cup of Coffee Ends in Fatal Stabbing

TORONTO (CP)—Jean Szentandrassy, 41, today was charged with murder in the stabbing of Joseph Major, 23, after an argument Monday night over the price of a cup of coffee at Szentandrassy's restaurant in west-central Toronto.

Police said Major, a relative of Szentandrassy's wife, Helen, was stabbed under the heart with a boning knife.

Szentandrassy is a native of Belgium. He came to Canada in 1953.

Police said Major, born in Hungary, was passing the restaurant about midnight with three companions. They said the owner accused Major of refusing to pay for a 10-cent cup of coffee he bought last week.

Major's companions told police that when the two men started shoving, Szentandrassy went back into the restaurant and came out with a five-inch boning knife.

Dancing Ghosts Wire Their Hats For Princess

ST. JOHN'S, Antigua (AP)—Antigua's popular dancing "ghosts" wired up their hats today to flash lighted crowns and welcome signs for Princess Margaret, here on her month-long tour of the British West Indies.

The "ghosts" are actors who wear white sheets and tall illuminated hats. The spooks come in two sizes, long and short. The long ones dance on stilts, the short ones on their own legs.

The unique spectral throng will be a feature attraction at a pageant on the Government House grounds tonight. The show was arranged to follow a state dinner in honor of the Queen's sister, who arrived here Monday from Barbados in the royal yacht Britannia.

Britain Plans Dozen Atomic Power Stations

LONDON (Reuters)—The government today announced a 10-year provisional program for building 12 atomic power stations in Britain at an estimated cost of £300,000,000.

The program when completed will provide between 1,500 and 2,000 megawatts (million watts) of industrial power a year, equivalent to that produced by 5,000,000 to 6,000,000 tons of coal.

The first of the commercial nuclear poser stations, as opposed to experimental ones, will not begin operation for at least five years.

NEW ERA

In an official white paper the government said the coming of nuclear power marks the beginning of a new era. It is vital Britain should "apply nuclear power commercially with all speed if we are to keep our position as a leading industrial nation."

The plan provides for the building of two stations to be started about the middle of 1957, which would start working in 1960-61, and building of two others in about 1958-59.

The white paper said it is expected it will be possible to extract as much heat from one ton of nuclear fuel as from 10,000 tons of coal.

First reactors to be built will run on uranium and will produce a valuable by-product, plutonium.

COST FAVORABLE

Cost of electricity from the first nuclear power stations should be about three-fifths of a penny a kilowatt, about the same price as coal-produced electricity.

The atomic power stations would be built by private industry for the state-run electrical authority, which would own and operate them. The atomic energy authority, which is responsible for atomic development in Britain, would give technical advice.

BAN FAIRS IN PARKS

TORONTO (CP) — City council Monday decided to prohibit the use of city parks for service club carnivals and fairs in 1956 to preserve the appearance of the parks.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: The light snow which blanketed the province Monday is now affecting only eastern Ontario and will end there this morning. Skies will gradually clear today, but a new disturbance beginning to develop over the Dakotas is likely to give a little more snow to the lower lakes regions tonight or Wednesday.

Toronto Man Stabbed at Party

TORONTO (CP)—Paul Milanowski, 33, drove to his rooming house Monday night with stab wounds in his stomach following an argument at a party. He then callezd police and was taken to hospital in an ambulance.

Police arrested Marion Ewanski, 28, of Toronto on a charge of wounding with intent to maim and Laverne Doxsee, 23, of North Bay, as a material witness.

They said Milanowski was wounded with a paring knife when an argument started at a gathering attended by Milanowski, a girl friend and another couple.

'Mile of Money' Sends Boy, Age 3, to Hospital

MONTREAL (CP)—Jackie Murphy, a three-year-old boy from Antigonish, N. S., undergoes tests today at the Children's Memorial Hospital to determine whether an operation can cure his congenital heart condition.

The child and his mother, Mrs. Joseph Murphy, arrived here Monday night on a Trans-Canada Air Lines flight from Halifax.

Their trip was financed by the Antigonish Gyro Club who invited townspeople to contribute to a "mile of money" down the main street.

Get $3,000 Damages

HAILEYBURY (CP) — A Kirkland Lake man today was awarded $3,000 damages and costs by the Ontario Supreme Court here on behalf of his 20-year-old son, injured last June when the youth's motorcycle was struck by a car at Kirkland Lake.

Carl Lorenz and his father, Robert, sued Eli Ansara, also of Kirklane Lake. The youth suffered internal and shoulder injuries in the accident.

DEMOCRATS WANT GOVT. TO STATE FORMOSAN POLICY

Defence of Quemoy And Matsu Issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Hubert Humphrey, Minnesota Democrat, says Chiang Kai-shek's broad hint that he expects the United States to help defend Quemoy and the Matsus makes it essential that the Eisenhower administration state its policy clearly.

Humphrey disclosed in an interview that he has written to State Secretary Dulles asking for a public statement of the "precise position and policy" of the administration toward these islands just off the Red China coast.

Chiang told correspondents in Taipei Monday that "in no case" would Quemoy and the Matsus be abandoned, and made it plain that he expects U. S. forces to help the Nationalists defend them in the event of Chinese Communist attack.

The administration has declined to make a public commitment, although it has been reported willing to help with defence of the islands if there should be an attack as conditions stand now. President Eisenhower has said he will reserve to himself any final decision.

PRELUDE TO WAR?

One analyst who asked that his name not be used said an all-out attack on Quemoy and the Matsus could be regarded as preliminary to an assault on Formosa and the nearby Pescadores.

Humphrey said that "of course" it might be necessary for American air power to be used against a possible Communist attack on Quemoy, lying in the mouth of Amoy harbor, or the Matsu islands, just off the port of Foochow.

"We certainly would not want to wait until the Communists had landed on the beaches of Formosa.

"And if we spotted a submarine obviously advancing on Formosa with an intent to shell it, of course we would be justified in attacking that submarine."

Three Men Given Ten Years Each For Bank Robbery

WINNIPEG (CP) — Three men who robbed a branch of the Toronto-Dominion Bank Monday of $31,000, were each sentenced today to 10 years for armed robbery.

Samuel Ronald Sedan, 25, Fred Gordon Bush, alias Eugene Austen Hartson, 27, of Calgary and Mitchell Herman, 32, of no fixed address all pleaded guilty to the theft.

Hartson and Herman also pleaded guilty to a charge of house breaking and each received concurrent two-year sentences.

City police said Hartson and Herman were also wanted by RCMP in Alberta in connection with an armed robbery at Herronton.

Big X-Ray Machine

TORONTO (CP)—A $62,000 x-ray machine, capable of six pictures a second, arrived at St. Michael's Hospital from Sweden Monday.

Officials said the machine allows surgeons to trace the patient's blood flow in preparing for surgery.

General Electric Research Wizards Succeed in Manufacturing Diamonds

SCHENECTADY, N. Y. (AP)—Man-made diamonds exactly like nature's own were announced today, a scientific dream come true.

They cost at least twice as much to make as natural diamonds, but in time may be greatly reduced.

These artificial diamonds are no threat, as yet anyhow, to the value of real diamonds, nor do they offer any immediate hope for cheaper diamond necklaces or engagement rings.

Diamond is the hardest known material. Hundreds of pounds are imported annually to cut steel, dig through rock to find oil, make precision tools, perform scores of tasks. War or blockade could not cut off the man-made supply.

Success in creating diamonds was announced by scientists of the General Electric research laboratory. One process does it by creating pressure and heat equal to that 240 miles deep within the earth.

The biggest diamond made here yet is only one-sixteenth of an inch in its longest dimension. It weighs only a fraction of a carat, and it takes 140 carats to equal one ounce.

Man-made diamonds have long been a scientific goal, and a goal of pseudo-scientists with get-rich-quick dreams.

Radar Defence Screens Not All Defensive Measure Says P.M.

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian government views radar defence screens not as a purely defensive measure but also as a strengthening of the deterrent effect of the H-bomb.

Prime Minister St. Laurent informed the Commons Monday that he placed that additional aspect of the early warning system before other Commonwealth prime ministers at the recent London conference. He made these other points as he reported to the Commons on the conference:

1. He doesn't believe Canada now can take on additional defence commitments.

2. The hydrogen bomb, as a deterrent to war, is a "wasting asset" and peace must ultimately rest "on a better and more lasting foundation."

The prime minister spoke of the early warning system after John Diefenbaker (PC—Prince Albert) asked about press reports of the conference referring to a "more equitable distribution in defence efforts" among Commonwealth members.

Mr. St. Laurent said he told the other prime ministers of how H-bomb developments had brought home the need for Canada and the United States to build an early warning system, largely in Canada.

The view he expressed at London was:

"We felt that it was necessary to have that early warning system as one of the components of the deterrent effects of these weapons so that any potential enemy would realize that even a surprise attack would not make retaliation impos-

Lower Loan-Interest Rates May Follow Lending Cut

OTTAWA (CP) — The general public eventually may be able to borrow money at lower interest rates as a result of the Bank of Canada's decision to reduce its charges on loans to chartered banks.

The chartered banks normally do not get many loans from the central banking agency, but the so-called "bank rate" for such loans has a tendency to set a general pattern for lending charges in the Canadian money market.

The reduction to 1½ per cent from two, announced by the bank Monday, was the first since it was lowered to 1½ per cent from 2½ in 1944. The rate was increased to two per cent in 1950.

The central bank said the decline will bring the bank rate in closer relation to the general rate for short-term loans.

Similar action was taken recently by the United States Federal Reserve Board, which reduced its bank rate to 1½ per cent from 1¾. The Bank of England, however, boosted the rate in Britain to 3½ per cent from three as an anti-inflationary measure.

Chartered banks officials apparently were not surprised by the move, regarding it as in line with the government's and the central bank's recent "easy money" policy.

When the bank rate was raised in 1950 it was a signal for lending agencies to increase charges and tighten up on loans generally to curb inflation that followed outbreak of the Korean war.

Now, with the world demand for goods generally reduced, inflation has ended. An "easy money" policy has been adopted to encourage lending in efforts to stimulate sales, production and economic expansion. Increased employment is to be anticipated as a result.

While there seem to be indications the government is encouraging a general reduction in interest charges, there is no indication there will be any sharp, sudden changes.

Rather, the shift may be gradual over a number of months. Conditions may change in that time, influencing a fresh policy change.

Martin Says Hydrogen Bomb Biggest Factor in Civil Defence

ARNPRIOR, Ont. (CP) — The hydrogen bomb, with a force of 20,000,000 tons of TNT, has become the greatest single controlling factor in civil defence planning, Health Minister Martin said today.

It has changed CD preparedness, he said. From now on, while not abandoning any of the preparedness action already taken, Canada's plans must include steps for the evacuation of large cities, traffic control and plans for feeding, housing and clothing evacuees in reception areas far from their homes.

The task was not insuperable.

The minister addressed top civil defence chiefs gathered at the Canadian CD college here to study defence against hydrogen warfare and other matters.

Mr. Martin's statements were included in the text of his speech issued to the press before delivery.

He said the force of the modern H-bomb, 1,000 times as powerful as the atomic bomb used in 1945, almost staggers the imagination. The possibilities of damage to human life and property from blast, fire and radioactivity added new dimensions to civil defence.

"As a result," he said, "future civil defence planning must plase greater emphasis on planned evacuation of large cities, traffic control and the development of plans for the feeding, housing and clothing of people in reception areas as much as 100 miles away from their homes."

Experiments already had shown that with proper planning large cities could be evacuated in a relatively short time. Each city would present its own pecular problems and must have its own individual plan. Test evacuations are planned shortly in Calgary and Vancouver.

"When one considers all the uncertainties as to the possibility, the timing, the nature and the scale of any future enemy attack," he said, "it is easy to understand the frustration and lack of enthusiasm that surrounds civil defence in some parts of the country."

He was pleased with the word that Victoria, B.C., and Peterborough, Ont., which considered disbanding their CD organizations, had reversed their decision and "re-established civil defence on a firmer basis than ever."

He hoped Montreal, where withdrawal of civic support had been recommended, would reverse its stand.

Girl Enclosed In Valentine Given Fiancee

EDMONTON (CP)—William Blyzniuk of Edmonton has what probably is one of the largest Valentines ever given a guy by his sweetheart.

A five-foot, 45-pound heart, with a hollow inside, was delivered to his door Saturday. When he opened a hatch in the front of the wood-and-cardboard heart, out stepped his fiancee, Ethel Halyung of Lethbridge.

Miss Halyung confessed that she rode the express truck from Lethbridge to Edmonton and climbed into the Valentine only a few blocks away from her boy friend's home to be carried inside by two puffing delivery men.

Eden to Open CNE

TORONTO (CP) — Sir Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, will open the Canadian National Exhibition Aug. 26, officials said today.

A spokesman said Sir Anthony will be accompanied to Toronto by Lady Eden.

WILL OPEN SHOW

TORONTO (CP) — R. Douglas Stuart, United States ambassador to Canada, will open the Canadian National Sportsmen's Show to be held here March 11 to 19, Loyal M. Kelly, general manager, said today.

INCREASED TAX RELIEF TURNED DOWN BY HOUSE

CCF Motion Defeated By Vote of 86-60

OTTAWA (CP) — CCF member Stanley Knowles thinks it unfair that repairs to business properties should get a better break on income tax than repairs to people.

He pressed that argument in the Commons Monday as support for his resolution to end the income tax rule permitting deduction of medical expenses only in excess of three per cent of total income.

The member for Winnipeg North Centre said taxpayers should be allowed to deduct medical costs "from the first dollar."

The Commons defeated his resolution by a vite of 86 to 60, with only Liberal members voting against it.

His analogy to business property repairs was a new argument to bolster the resolution he has presented for four years to eliminate the floor on medical deductions.

BUSINESS ANGLE

Mr. Knowles said there is no floor on deductions for repairs to business properties, machinery and fishing equipment for income tax purposes.

Humans should be given as much consideration, he said, quoting a recent speech by Health Minister Martin stating that health is the greatest national asset.

Wife of Man Who Fled Reds Denounces Him

COPENHAGEN (Reuters) — Maria Cimpu, wife of a defected Romanian legation chauffeur, told reporters today she would have killed her husband if she had known "he wanted to steal the money and flee."

Mrs. Cimpu was speaking at a press conference arranged by the Communist legation so she could answer a charge by her husband, Jon Cimpu, that she is being forcibly detained in the legation.

"I never want to see him again," she said through an interpreter. "I only want to go back to Romania."

Before the conference began a Danish foreign office official handed to the Romanian charge d'affaires, Alexandru Cirila, the sum of nearly $800 which Cimpu is accused of taking away.

Strasser Says Europe Favors Neither U.S. Capitalism Nor Communism

MONTREAL (CP) — Dr. Otto Strasser, who recently regained his German citizenship after a five-year fight, said today Europe favors neither United States capitalism nor Soviet communism.

The 57-year-old former Nazi leader told a press conference "not one government in Europe, except that of Spain and Turkey, would last without U. S. financial aid and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization."

Strasser arrived here today en route to Germany from Paradise, N. S., where he had lived for 12 of his 18 years in exile. He said he hopes to board a plane for Switzerland Thursday to spend one month with his wife and two children before going to Munich.

Strasser, who broke with Hitler in 1930, said he believes most European powers would not support NATO if it wasn't for U. S. financial aid.

He said he does not favor the re-arming of West Germany under NATO because the German government failed to make any demands from the Western powers.

Strasser, who fled Germany in 1933, said the trend toward nationalism and socialism is extremely great in Europe, adding that he will attempt to "unify these under a Christian order."

Strasser said he now could start a political party in Germany, including branches in about 500 cities and towns, but that he will spend the next five months studying the political situation before making any definite move.

He plans to open a political school to train a corps of political officers.

Strasser, a former newspaper publisher, also said he will soon start a newspaper, probably in Frankfurt. Before he fled Germany he and his older brother Gregor, who was killed by Hitler in 1934, published three dailies in Berlin.

Demand Release Of Five Prisoners Held In Romania

Communist Chauffeur Dies Trying to Resist Raiders

BERN, Switzerland (AP) — A gang of Romanian anti-Communists resistance fighters barricaded themselves in the Romanian legation here today after a 2 a.m. assault which killed the legation chauffeur and drove the entire staff into the street.

The chauffeur, Aurel Setu, died in hospital at mid-day. The invaders had knifed him and struck him down with a volley from sub machine-guns as he tried to resist the attack.

His removal to hospital was delayed several hours while Swiss police sought permission from the Romanian charge d'affaires to enter the legation grounds.

ONE ESCAPES

One or more of the invaders was believed to have escaped in the pre-dawn darkness with documents stolen from the legation files. One was caught while trying to get away. He was carrying documents, a sub-machine-gun and hand grenades.

The leader of the gang told Swiss police in good German that any police assault on the legation would be met by deadly gunfire. "We have nothing to lose but our lives," the unidentified leader said. A strong police force armed with rifles surrounded the buildings while officers tried to persuade the gang to surrender.

The leader said the gang would occupy the legation buildings until five political prisoners, including Gen. Adia Aldea and a Bishop Sudeju, are released by the Romanian government.

The chauffeur's death made each member of the gang liable to life imprisonment under Swiss law. There is no death penalty in Switzerland.

The Bucharest government has formally demanded the invaders' arrest and their extradition.

The Swiss cabinet held an early-morning emergency session after receiving word of the attack, but later advised police against any immediate attempt to storm the legation.

GIVEN SHELTER

A Swiss government communique said charge d'affaires Emeric Stoffel, his other aides and their families living in the legation were "safe and sound." They were sheltered in nearby buildings.

The communique described the invaders as "several unknown armed persons." They were believed to number four or five men, presumably Romanians.

"They entrenched themselves in the building and refused to evacuate it as long as five Romanian personalities at present held under detention in Romania are not freed," the communique said.

Switzerland has granted asylum to many thousands of political refugees from Eastern Europe since the Second World War, but today's attack was the first serious act of violence against Communist diplomats.

Police headquarters said a press conference would be held later to give details of the attack. No eyewitness reports were available immediately.

CROWDS GATHER

The Swiss diplomatic directory lists a staff of seven officials, six of them married, for the Romanian legation. Legation employees of non-official rank are not given.

The legation, consisting of the chancellery and the charge's residence, is located in a large park on the western edge of the city. Long before dawn large crowds collected at police guard points nearby.

Hurricane Hazel Becomes Hilda For This Year

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — The United States weather bureau said Monday it has picked out names for its 1955 Atlantic coast hurricanes. They're using the names of women again.

First one, which occurred last month, was called Alice. Then in consecutive order will follow Brenda, Connie, Diane, Edith, Flora, Gladys, Hilda, Ione, Janet, Katie, Linda, Martha and Nelly.

The bureau picked them because they like the names short and snappy for communications use.

PIPELINE BLAST KILLS 3

SEOUL, Korea (AP) — The United States Army's fuel pipeline exploded today in a mighty blast that killed three Korean children and injured two other children, an American soldier and four Korean soldiers. Another American soldier suffered minor burns and an army truck and three houses were destroyed in the fire that followed.

All-Canadian Plays Needed To Have National Theatre Says Festival Adjudicator

"Amateur theatrical companies in Canada must pester playwrights to write all-Canadian plays if there is to be a national theatre," said Andre Van Gyseghem, British actor, director and producer in an interview this morning.

Mr. Van Gyseghem is in Belleville to adjudicate the Eastern Ontario Regional Drama Festival being held in the Collegiate auditorium this week.

"Until there are native playwrights there cannot be a national theatre," he said. "Since there is almost no professional theatre in Canada it is up to amateur groups to develop a national theatre.

"One way they can do this is to pester playwrights for Canadian plays. They should even try to wean writers from television if necessary," he said.

"I think that one of the prime purposes of these drama festivals is to give Canadian playwrights an opportunity to have their work produced for critical analysis, and to encourage young playwrights to write for the Canadian stage.

"There is certainly enough material in Canada to write about. The country is jammed with problems, conflicts, and exciting history. There is, however, no one writing plays about it all."

SUGGESTS GOVT. ASSISTANCE

Mr. Van Gyseghem suggested that government assistance to amateur and professional theatre groups might be one way to stimulate Canadian theatre.

"The Minister of Education might appoint drama instructors or directors for each county as he does in England," he said. "It is the director's job to teach fundamentals in each county and to raise the standard of acting and production."

"This type of program is very good, of course, if you think that theatre is important to your community. If you don't then it all seems rather unnecessary, doesn't it?"

"What do I think of amateur theatre in Canada? I think the standard leaped up in Montreal," said Mr. Van Gyseghem after adjudicating four festivals in the Maritimes. Belleville's festival is the sixth of 13 he will judge in Canada.

ANDRE VAN GYSEGHEM

"The standard of acting is poor in the Maritimes," he said. "Their greatest problem is diction. Everyone seems to be talking through clenched teeth. They had no tuition in voice projection, diction or enunciation. Possibly the blame lies in the scarcity of capable and qualified directors."

"The standard was well up in Montreal, though," he said. "The performances were of an exceedingly high calibre."

Mr. Van Gyseghem also termed the presentation of two full-length French language plays by Canadian playwrights, the "highlights" of his Canadian visit to date.

"They were powerful plays," he said. "Both playwrights are very clever people."

Visual presentation of all plays judged to date impressed Mr. Van Gyseghem.

"The technical aspects of production in Canada are very good. Companies go to a great deal of trouble with costumes and sets. The sets in Montreal were very interesting indeed. I should think that the visual aspects of production are better here than in England. Sets, artistically, are quite good."

"The standard of acting, however, falls down somewhat. But how could it be otherwise," he said, "with most players devoting only spare time to the theatre here, while in England they spend all their time at it."

How does Mr. Van Gyseghem adjudicate a play?

"I use a system current in the British Drama League," he said. "It includes 40 percent for acting, 35 percent for production, 15 percent for presentation and setting and 10 percent for choice of play. The last two items vary somewhat with originality of treatment often receiving 10 percent of the marks."

"This is only a rough guide," he said. "A system of judging plays, of necessity, has to be rather flexible."

What does he think about the choice of plays for the Eastern Ontario Regional Drama Festival?

"A very interesting choice. I am looking forward to the festival here," he said. "I know the three English plays and they have great possibilities. I am reading them again. The French play, "Marlbrough" I haven't seen before, but I am reading it, too."

Mr. Van Gyseghem's adjudication of each play will take "not more than 20 minutes" following each presentation. He will make his final adjudication Saturday evening and award festival prizes.

He will adjudicate festivals in Yorkton, Edmonton, Vancouver, Winnipeg, Welland and Toronto following the festival here.

What does he think of television and its effect on actors?

"Television will ruin actors for the stage if they stay in it long enough," he said. "It is the same thing with movies. You simply don't have to use your voice in either medium."

"My interest is in the stage. The stage demands voices with power, depth and control requirements which TV and movies dispense with by the use of microphones. James Mason is an example of what I mean. He was developing as a stage star, when he was wooed by the movies. You will recall what the critics said about his voice, when he tried to play a major classical role at Stratford last year?"

Mr. Van Gyseghem, who has toured the British Isles, Scandinavia, Holland and the Middle East as director and star of theatrical companies is making his first visit to Canada.

"I am thoroughly enjoying my visit," he said this morning. "I am delighted to meet so many interesting people."

"Life here is much easier than it is in Britain. If you have ever seen a British kitchen or walked to a lavatory in winter you would know what I mean," he said.

"Having laundry back in 24 hours, and having vegetables clean packaged and frozen in the stores is convenience that we just don't have at home."

Special Program Being Arranged For Opening

The official opening of the Quinte Secondary School on College street is being held Wednesday evening when members of the taxpaying public are invited to attend and inspect the new school.

A special program has been arranged by members of the Bay of Quinte District High School Board. Mr. L. S. Beattie, superintendent of secondary education, will officially open the new school.

Police Court

Clifford Fitzgibbon, Turnbull Street, was given two years' suspended sentence by Magistrate T. Y. Wills in city court today following conviction on a charge of theft from the Cecil Holway service station.

Fitzgibbon was charged with the theft of $30 from the cash register, while the service station attendant was serving a customer with gasoline. He was ordered to pay restitution and also court costs of $21.

Obituary

WILMOT HODGEN

The funeral of Wilmot Hodgen was held from the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home on Monday afternoon. The service in the chapel was conducted by Rev. L. S. Throop, assisted by Rev. R. F. Dark of Foxboro. These two conducted the committal rites when entombment was made in Victoria cemetery vault.

The bearers were: Wilfred Chappelle, Clayton Hamilton, Harold Stewart, Wilfred Badgley, Harry Haines and James Huffman.

MRS. PATRICK J. LEE

In failing health for some time, Mrs. Emma Catherine Lee, 233 John street, in this city, died in the Kingston General Hospital late Monday evening. In the death of Mrs. Lee, a link with the past history of Belleville has been broken. She was a resident here for fifty years.

When health permitted she took an active part in the social, civic and church life of this community. Especially was this true of her church affiliation. She was an active and devout member of St. Michael's church and took a great interest in the work of the parish. She was a member of the Altar Society, the Benevolent Society and the Catholic Women's League. She enjoyed a wide circle of friends and her home was always open. Her friendly smile, wise counsel and Irish wit, will always be remembered by her many friends, who will sincerely regret her death.

The late Mrs. Lee was born in Hastings, 75 years ago, being the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Walsh. After her marriage to Patrick J. Lee, she came to this city, where her husband was for many years a car and carriage dealer for McLaughlin Carriage Company and later General Motors.

She is survived by five daughters, Miss Maude Lee of New York City, Mrs. Eugene (Stella) Brennan of Rochester, N.Y.; Miss Helen Lee at home; Mrs. Joseph (Patricia) Pigeon of Stratford; Mrs. Stewart (Margaret) Laturney of Winnipeg; three sons, Edward Lee, manager of Barnes Wine store in this city; twin sons Frank Lee of North Bay and Squadron Leader Frederick (Ted) Lee, R.C.A.F. of Belleville, Illinois; two sisters, Mrs. Harry (Anola) Lewis of Dallas, Texas; Mrs. Harrison (Mary) Cook of Princeton, N.J., and two brothers, John Walsh of Peterborough and David Walsh of Hastings. Her husband, Patrick J. Lee, died in 1920.

Resting at the Funeral Residence of George F. O'Brien. The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this edition.

GEORGE THOMAS (DODE) BOWEN

Suffering a heart attack, George Thomas (Dode) Bowen, formerly of this city and resident in Detroit, Michigan, died in the Eastside General Hospital in Detroit on Monday afternoon.

He was born in Belleville 66 years ago, being the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Bowen and lived here for many years. He was educated in this city and took an active part in the sporting life of the city in his younger days, being a member of several good hockey teams. He was in the West when the First World War broke out and enlisted with the 50th Battalion from Calgary, Alberta. He served overseas with the unit and was severely wounded. His bravery was rewarded with the decoration of the Military Medal.

Returning from overseas he went to Detroit and joined the Parke Davis Drug Company and was in their employ for thirty-three years. He enjoyed the friendship of a wide circle of friends both here and in Detroit, who will sincerely regret his death. The late Mr. Bowen was an active worker with boys during his residence in Detroit and was given a life membership in Boys' Hobbycraft Club for his interest and ability through the years.

The late Mr. Bowen was a member of Tabernacle United Church while in this city and fraternally was a life member of Moira Lodge, A.F. & A.M., No. 11. Surviving is one sister, Mrs. William (Edna) Wonnacott, of this city. His wife, the former Mabel Palos, died some years ago.

Resting at the Grant Funeral Home after Wednesday noon. The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this edition.

McFarland Suit Against City Listed for Trial

Listed for hearing in Supreme Court at Picton this week before Mr. Justice Moorehouse is the action of the H. J. McFarland Construction Company against the City of Belleville requesting payment of their bill for street resurfacing in the city last summer.

The amount of the McFarland bill is $25,478.51 which the city declined to pay claiming poor workmanship. Included in the above bill is an amount of $662.78 for stone which was stock-piled by McFarland's at the completion of the resurfacing job on direction of City Engineer Charles Mott.

The resurfacing job on Belleville streets was the subject of considerable discussion last autumn by members of city council, it being claimed that dusty materials had been used, also that bare patches had been left on streets. Mayor John Both spearheaded the criticism of the resurfacing job.

A firm of Kingston consulting engineers was retained by the city to make a report on the street resurfacing and following receipt of the report council voted to request McFarland's to patch bare spots in the streets and to delete the amount charged for stone which had stock-piled, whereupon the city would pay the bill. McFarland's refused to comply with the city's request and is suing for payment of the entire bill.

City Solicitor R. A. Pringle noted McFarland's action against the city would in all probability not be heard until the latter part of the week. Ahead of it on the court docket is another action expected to take most of the week.

WILLIAM C. DAFOE

(Thurlow)

Following a lengthy illness, William C. Dafoe, 78 North Park street, died at his home late Monday afternoon. He was born in Yankee Town, U.S., 86 years ago being the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Dafoe and has resided in this district for the past 57 years.

The late Mr. Dafoe was well known and highly respected in the community and his death will bring sincere regrets from a wide circle of friends.

A member of Calvary Temple, he is survived by his wife, the former Sarah Jane Hudgins, one son, Earl Dafoe, at home, and one brother, Ollie Dafoe of Foxboro.

Resting at the Grant Funeral Home, North Front street. The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this edition.

PROPOSE THREE-YEAR DUTY

TOKYO. (AP) — Red China's Peiping radio today broadcast details of a proposed new conscription law to draft 18-year-olds for at least three years. A Chinese-language broadcast said the bill provides that "all male citizens of China have a duty to be enlisted at 18 regardless of racial, tribal, vocational, social background, religion and educational background differences" because "to defend our fatherland is a divine duty of all citizens of China."

Modern Queen's Motel Opens At Herchimer Avenue Today

The most modern motel between Toronto and Montreal opens for business in Belleville's east end today.

The 24-unit Queen's Motel, located on the north side of No. 2 Highway at Herchimer Ave., is the last word in tasteful, spacious accommodation for the travelling public.

Opening today are two separate 12-unit buildings on the west and north sides of the motel compound. A restaurant to seat 80 persons and capable of serving full course meals to three times that number, will be opened April 1st.

Halls running the full length of each building provide easy access to rooms and adjacent parking space.

Each building has its own heating and air conditioning units. Each room is heated by radiant heat from pipes imbedded in the concrete floor which is overlaid by rubber matting and wall-to-wall carpeting.

Appointments in each room include two double beds, floor to ceiling windows and drapes, exhaust-type air conditioning, free 17-inch television, comfortable lounge chairs, over-all lighting and special bed and desk lamps.

Attached bathrooms, finished in pink tile, include bath and shower. A large closet in each room is complete with a luggage stand that can be used as an extra chair. Dressers are topped by a full length vanity mirror. Cots, available for children, make each room capable of accommodating an entire family.

CAN CONVERT TO SUITES

Rooms at each end of the building have connecting doors for conversion into suites. Pictures include colored prints of Dutch and French paintings and an illustrated tourist map of Ontario.

West wing units have been done in a warm brown motif featured throughout the furniture, walls and drapes. North wing rooms feature grey. Interior decorating is by Eaton's and all furniture has been custom-built for the Queen's Motel.

A central television mast in the motel compound serves all sets in the rooms.

A telephone switchboard in the main lobby of the restaurant building relays all incoming and outgoing calls.

Surfacing of drives and parking lots and landscaping of the entire grounds will be completed in the spring.

FINE RESTAURANT

The restaurant building, from its ultra-modern steel and stone canopy, to its walk-in refrigerators, promises to become one of the district's smartest eating establishments. It will include soda and coffee bars, as well as a complete menu of full course meals available from 7.00 a.m. to midnight, in a well lighted, airy atmosphere.

South side windows that reach to the ceiling give an excellent view of the bay. The kitchen has been designed to take care of the needs of a much larger establishment.

Room for expansion of the motel's facilities is available at the rear of the property.

Jack Yanover, owner of the Queen's Motel, and manager Art Black, proud of what has been accomplished to date, are looking forward to completion of landscaping and drives later this year.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Stock market trading was on the quiet side today and price movements were irregular.

Gains, however, were sharper than losses. Industrials and western oils led the market's strength while base metals eased and golds were mixed.

Steels, liquors and financial institutions were strong but other industrial sections developed no trend. Canada Life boomed up $17.50 to $170 in light turnover.

Asbestos and Great Lakes were off $1 or more at 1 p. m.

Strong among western oils with gains as great as 30 cents were Calgary and Edmonton, Central Explorers, General Pete, New Superiod, Peace River Gas and Prairie Oil.

Teck-Hughes dropped 20 cents to $3.50 in golds and Opemiska. Anacon, Faraday and East Sullivan were easier among mines.

PRODUCE MARKET

TORONTO (CP) — Churning cream and butter print prices were unchanged here today.

The egg market was very firm with offerings light for a good demand.

Quotations provided by the Dominion department of agriculture: Eggs, graded, in fibre cases: A large 40; A medium 39; A small 34; B 32; C 26. Wholesale to retail: A large 45; A medium 44; A small 39; B 37; C 31.

Butter solids: Ont., first grade 61-61⅛.

Grade A hogs were 26-26.25; sows 1.9

Lambs were steady to the week's decline at 21 for good feedlot ewes and wethers; common and medium lambs were generally 14-17; good light sheep 8-10; common and heavy sheep down to $3.

Slippery Roads Given as Cause For Many Mishaps

Slippery snow covered pavement was given as a contributing factor in a rash of minor highway accidents which occurred in the Belleville district Monday afternoon and night.

All but two of the mishaps were of a very minor nature and no injuries were reported as result of any of the accidents.

Yesterday afternoon a car driven by Lambert O'Connor of Toronto slid into the rear of a parked house trailer on highway No. 2 near Shannonville, doing about $500 damage. Everett Dillabough of Merrickville had parked his car and house trailer along the highway and O'Connor slid into the trailer when his brakes failed to hold on the snow covered highway. Provincial Constable J. Fullerton investigated.

At Cannifton a car driven by Marjorie Steele of Kaladar went out of control and slid off the highway into a stone fence. The car was damaged to the extent of about $300. The driver and her passenger, Mrs. J. M. Bence, also of Kaladar, escaped injury. O.P.P. Constable Harry Mackenzie investigated.

4 District Men Compete In Winter Rally

Two district teams were entered in the British Empire Motor Club "Winter Rally" — Canada's equivalent of the world famous Monte Carlo rally in Europe. The rally was held last week-end. Jim McCaw of Kingston and formerly of Belleville, and Doug Phippen of Kingston, driving a French Renault, were forced out due to a clutch failure near Alexandria, Ontario. Bob Barlow and Jim Graham, of Belleville, in an English Jaguar, completed the course after some difficulties.

The rally, defined as an endurance trial for cars and drivers over a route that is considered just passable, covered nearly 1,400 miles. Over sixty cars were entered, and about half of them completed the run. They started in Toronto and drove over back roads to Lindsay, Madoc, Kingston, Smiths Falls, Alexandria, Hawkesbury, Lachute, Montreal, Maniwaki (about eighty miles north of Ottawa), Ottawa, back to Kingston, Barry's Bay, Huntsville, Sundridge, Parry Sound, Gravenhurst, Bracebridge, and to the finish in Toronto. Road conditions included much ice and drifting snow often piled higher than the cars. Certain speeds had to be maintained and any infraction of the highway laws brought disqualification.

The two local teams were composed of members of the St. Lawrence Automobile Club of Kingston. Final results of the rally will not be known for several days.

Appeals for Support of CAS And TB Body Heard in Council

Appeals for the continued support of the Children's Aid Society and for the Hastings County Tuberculosis Association were heard at city council Monday evening as delegations from each organization addressed the meeting.

Appearing for the Children's Aid Society were chairman Fred J. Wilson and Bruce Kerr, director of the local society. W. Harry Rollins spoke on behalf of the T.B. Association.

Mr. Wilson stressed the importance of protective and preventive work in the C.A.S., noting that it was far better for a child to remain in his own home if at all possible. He noted that with the customary grant received from the city and with what the society would receive from the community chest a full time worker in this field would almost be assured for Belleville.

Mr. Kerr noted that it was costing $2,300 per month for children in the care of the C.A.S. A trained worker would prevent some children coming into the care of the society. He cited the success of such a worker at Hamilton where the number of children had been reduced by 100.

Mr. Rollins asked continuance of the city grant for the T.B. Asation had been asked this year to conduct a mass X-ray survey of the county. This would cost about $7,000 for the X-ray of approximately 77,000 persons. Children under 14 were not X-rayed.

Last year the Association had spent $4,056.71 and at the present time 40 patients from the county were at Kingston and another ten were at Hamilton and London sanatoriums.

APPOINTMENT LAID OVER

The matter of appointing a new member to the public utilities commission to replace the late Urias "Sandy" Lummiss was laid over until the next meeting. A letter from Oswald H. Scott, manager of the local utility commission, was read to council asking for the naming of a replacement.

Council also approved for the borrowing of $323,000 to be used by the utilities commission for additions to the local waterworks system, no funds to be provided until the work is approved by the municipal boards.

Alderman Art. Keegan was named as chairman of a special Victoria Parks committee composed of members from the Harbor commission, parks board and yacht club. The committee supervises the expenditure of a special grant made by the city for the

It was pointed out, however, that the committee has no authority to spend any money until it receives approval of council.

Council concurred in a city of St. Thomas resolution which asked for a change in the preparation of voters' lists. City Comptroller Harold Bateman said the change suggested would greatly simplify the preparation of lists.

A letter from Raymond Reid, one of three discharged city public works employees was read to council. The letter presented Mr. Reid's side of the matter which had led to the discharge of the three men. The matter in question was the maintenance of the city bulldozer, which had broken down late in the fall allegedly for lack of proper care.

CLAIMS FAULTY WORK

Alderman Ben Safe as chairman of public works said the three men had been discharged because their work had not been properly done. He said it was possible others also should be discharged. He noted, however, that the men had not been told they could not appear before the committee to explain their side of the matter.

Alderman Keegan, along with Aldermen Moxam and Tice felt there should be a full investigation of the matter but Alderman Argue claimed council had no business interfering. "Council should accept the recommendations of it senior officials," he said.

Alderman Grandame asked if the discharged men had received the right kind of supervision. "Is it possible there may have been lack of direction?" he asked.

"I have every confidence in our senior city officials but it is possible they could have been misinformed," noted Alderman Keegan.

But Alderman Safe said the men had been discharged on the recommendation of City Comptroller Bateman and other city officials. Full consideration had been given.

No action was taken with respect to the letter and it was or-

Move to Introduce By-Law To Set Tax Rate Blocked

City taxpayers will in all probability have to wait another two weeks to learn of the mill rate on which they will pay their 1955 taxes.

As result of a long series of special budget meetings the majority of council have apparently decided this year's mill rate should be 71 mills but Mayor J. Both is convinced the city can be operated on a 70 mill rate the same as for last year.

Last night at city council Alderman Gerald Hyde as chairman of finance was all prepared to introduce the budget by-law calling for a 71-mill rate but a counter move by Mayor Both blocked introduction of the by-law when the necessary two-thirds vote for suspension of the rules was not given. The vote was 9-5 just lacking a two-thirds majority.

In calling for the recorded vote on suspension of the rules to allow introduction of the budget by-law Mayor Both said that in his opinion a 70-mill tax rate for this year was possible.

He pointed to the increased assessment in the city and to the 1.5 mills surplus, which the city enjoyed last year. This he felt would offset the increased budgets for school purposes. "We operated last year on 68 mills and with paring here and there, there is no reason we cannot set the rate at 70 mills this year," he said.

The mayor pointed to the $12,000 voted by the city to pay for special services for indigent patients at Belleville hospital and suggested this could be dropped. "The hospital could not expect to receive outside grants as long as it presented a balanced budget," he said.

SHOULD SHOW DEFICIT CLAIM

To a question from Alderman Argue the mayor replied it was not a question of lack of confidence in the hospital board of governors, only that in his opinion the hospital should show its true deficit instead of "hiding" it behind special services grants.

Alderman Hyde said that the idea of postponing presentation of the budget was ridiculous and would cost the city money by not having the tax bills out in time.

Alderman Graham wanted to know if it was the intention of the mayor to hold a club over the heads of council by trying to prevent introduction of the budget unless it was for 70 mills.

Voting to allow introduction of the budget by-law were: Aldermen David, Argue, Forrester, Graham, Keegan, Grandame, Hyde, Safe and Tice. Opposing were: Aldermen Clarke, Humphreys, McCabe, Moxam and Mayor Both.

Two-thirds majority for introduction of the by-law was required and the motion was thus defeated.

Alderman Hyde, however, gave notice of motion that at the next council meeting he would present the budget by-law calling for a 71-mill tax rate.

"I would like to say that the five members of council voting against suspension of the rules are acting against the best interests of the people by whom they were elected," Alderman Hyde declared. "Council has spent 25 to 30 hours in preparation of the budget and the majority of the council have made up their minds the rate should be 71 mills. Further delay will cost the city money."

MADE OBJECTION

Alderman Humphreys objected strongly to the finance committee chairman's statement. "I don't think the citizens will criticize any alderman for trying to bring down the tax rate," he said.

Mayor Both pointed to the many borderline people on fixed pensions who were striving to carry on under the high cost of living. "Has council thought of these people?" he asked, "has council thought of these borderline people who are living on a nest egg of savings and who might be forced onto relief by higher taxes?"

He noted that the time had come for municipalities to scrutinize expenditures very carefully. Business firms all across the country were scrutinizing their outlay much closer than in previous years, he said.

But Alderman Graham could not see any reason why the budget could not be discussed, noting that the action of the mayor was merely postponing discussion. "If the mayor has some way in which he thinks the tax rate can be reduced then now is the time to discuss it," he asserted.

"I voted for suspension of the rules but there is no reason for the mayor to feel that I would not support a 70-mill tax rate," interjected Alderman Argue. I am for the lowest tax rate possible, 68 mills if it can be done."

Alderman David said he commended the mayor's attitude in seeking to reduce the tax rate. "We are all interested in a lower rate and I for one am willing to pare my budget wherever possible. I don't like the implication of the mayor that only certain aldermen want a lower tax rate."

TAKES SAME ATTITUDE

The same attitude was taken by Alderman Safe, who declared that no alderman was more interested in a lower tax rate than he was.

"But I am not interested in a lower tax rate at the expense of curtailing services, which the people have demanded, and I am not interested in a lower tax rate merely to serve for political expediency.

"I am not interested in a lower tax rate if it means paying part of this year's budget next year. We could cut the budget by $40,000, but would it be sensible or practical?" he asked.

Following adjournment of the council meeting there was some discussion among members as to whether a special meeting should be called to again discuss the budget. Aldermen left the city hall, however, without anything definite being decided.

Talented Picton Girls' Sextette Featured in Big Variety Show

The Bay of Quinte Theatre Managers' Association members are holding their heads high in justifiable pride these days, for they have been notified that their efforts jointly with those of Toronto officials have resulted in one of the best stage attractions to appear here in some time.

The "Big Show" is the colorful stage extravaganza being offered at the Capitol Theatre on Sunday, February 20, starting at 9 p.m., which will be augmented by one of the outstanding motion pictures of the year.

One of the chief attractions will be the well-known Monty Hall, popular master of ceremonies of the radio show "Who Am I", and other aired programs. Mr. Hall is rated one of the best in his profession, and his presence here with topflight vaudeville acts from Toronto will round out a delightful evening's entertainment.

APPEARED ON TV

Apart from these sterling professional acts, a district attraction will be presented that is not only novel in its performance but has attained high status in television circles. It is the "Blue Notes" teen-age sextet, a bevy of talented singers who hail from Picton and seem headed for a place in the entertainment sun.

Included in the "cast" are the Misses Peggy Pickering, Sandra Reynolds, Carol Welsh, Elinor Storms, Merle Barker and Dianne Stonebridge, all students of Picton Collegiate Institute, who perform under the direction of their producer-manager-accompanist, "Bud" Cheyne, teacher of mathematics at PCI.

The "Blue Tones" were the winners of the county talent search conducted by the Picton Rotary Club last fall. Later they appeared on Station WHAM-TV, Rochester, where they made an are pending in Toronto, Napanee and other centres.

Some of the professional vaudeville acts include Peggy Brooks, television star comedienne; Gearry Leader, comedian; Len Moss, recording accordion artist, and many others.

The entire proceeds of the show—all artists and others connected with it are giving their talents and services gratis—will go to the Variety Village, Toronto, an institution maintained for the education in the crafts and professions of crippled children of Ontario in conjunction with the Ontario Crippled Children's Association.

Admission is by "invitation" only and these can be procured from the Capitol, Belle and McCarthy Theatres, in Belleville, the Odeon and Century Theatres, Trenton, and the Granada Theatre, Napanee. All children must have invitations.

Remember the date and time. The Capitol Theatre, Belleville, Sunday, February 20, starting at nine o'clock.

CITY & DISTRICT NEWS

MORE SNOW FALLS ON CITY, DISTRICT

A heavy blanket of snow lay over the Belleville area today, following a (2.5 inches) downfall which lasted through the early hours this morning.

Temperatures rose as the snow fell, the low for last night being a mild 24 degrees above. Close to noon today the mercury registered 29 above.

Forecast for tomorrow predicts cloudiness with occasional light snow in the afternoon.

Vienna Native Is Tabernacle Church Organist

By EUGENE LANG

The musical life of this city has had a decided asset added to it in the person of Mr. Paul Timan, who has accepted the position of organist and choir master of the Tabernacle United Church.

Regardless of the size of any city, be it small or be it a great metropolis, its cultural status can always be bettered by the addition of new citizens, who are of artistic mind and temperament, especially so in the field of music. And Belleville, like any other city of comparable size, will add one more stone to its coronet, when a person who has the qualifications such as Mr. Timan possesses, comes to live among us and to impart his vast musical knowledge to all those who will come to know him and be under his musical wing in the future months and years.

Mr. Timan is a native of Vienna, Austria, (the world's reigning musical capital for nearly two centuries), having been raised there and educated in that city's leading institutions. He is an honor graduate of the renowned Vienna Academy of Music, holding the degree of Bachelor of Music from that Mecca of musical learning. He also holds his M.A. in law from the University of Vienna, from which he won a scholarship in 1952 which entitled him to tuition at Harvard University in the U.S., including all expenses paid to and from Harvard. At Harvard he took courses in philosophy, sociology, economics and cultural history.

RETURNED TO VIENNA

After leaving Harvard he returned to Vienna, where he became attached to the Austrian Broadcasting System and the world famous Vienna State Opera. In the radio line he conducted the orchestras of the Austrian Broadcasting System and was instructor of the station's permanent choir. During his tenure here he also composed various scores for the use over the air in connection with dramatic presentations. With the Vienna State Opera he was attached to the soloist's department as a musical instructor. Here he came into professional contact with such famous operatic personalities as Julius Patzak, Anton Dermota, Irmgard Seefried, Ljuba Welitsch, Gertrude Grob-Prandl, Wilma Lipp and Alois Pernersdorffer. A great deal of his musical education was derived from his association with one of Vienna's leading symphonic conductors, Felix Prohaska.

He has also to his credit the post of conductor and musical instructor at the Opera House (known there as the Provincial Theatre) in Linz, Upper Austria, the second largest city in that country.

His musical background encompasses a full and understanding knowledge of all the standard operas, oratorios, symphonies and keyboard repertoire of the past two centuries. As a teacher he is admirably equipped to instruct in piano, voice diction, conducting, theory and harmony, and the history of music.

IN CANADA SINCE SEPT.

Astonishing as it may seem, Mr. Timan is only 31 years of age, having acquired all this musical education and experience in the past 15 years. He has been in Canada since last September, first settling in Toronto, and of recent date now a most welcome addition to the musical life of Belleville.

Mr. Timan will be opening a studio in the near future for the teaching of piano, theory and harmony. One of his major interests is to delve into the current trends in modern music and make that style of music understandable to all kinds of audiences. He has a special interest in helping the average music lover to comprehend contemporary music, so that it can come to the fore with the result that living composers will see their music being appreciated by the people of their own time - - - not long after they have passed on, as so happens to the great in any field of artistic endeavor.

Art and Craft Exhibit Planned

The monthly business meeting of the Belleville Arts and Crafts Club was held in the KingGeorge School Club Rooms Monday evening, with the President Mrs. Dolly Cain, in the chair.

Representatives were nominated to plan a meeting of members of various organizations for the express purpose of having a Belleville and District Art and Craft exhibit in the fall.

Classes or courses in the various crafts under skilled leadership are planned in the very near future, and for further information, enquiries can be made at the Recreation Director's office, in the City Hall, phone 5019.

Council Rehires Don Kingdon Secty. Industrial Commission

The suggestion that Belleville needed an industrial commissioner instead of a part-time man, was heard Monday night at city council as the matter of rehiring Don Kingdon as secretary to the city industrial committee came up for discussion.

Council, however, voted to rehire Mr. Kingdon as part-time secretary at the same salary as last year, $60 per month.

Earlier in the year Mayor J. Both as chairman of the industrial committee had written to Mr. Kingdon notifying him his services as part-time secretary would not be required. Then at a later committee meeting a majority vote recommendation was passed re-hiring Mr. Kingdon. This recommendation came up for ratification at last night's meeting.

When the recommendation came up Mayor Both said he had written Mr. Kingdon advising him his services would no longer be required and he still thought the same way.

"I have nothing personal against Mr. Kingdon," he went on, "but this is a year of economy and the city would save $700. I do not think the city was getting value for its money."

But Alderman Keegan disagreed. Mr. Keegan noted that when Mr. Kingdon came to Belleville as secretary-manager of the Chamber of Commerce it was with the understanding that he would receive $60 per month as secretary to the industrial commission.

HAS MANY CONTACTS

He noted that Mr. Kingdon had many contacts and the city was in need of additional industry. As secretary of the industrial committee Mr. Kingdon's duty was to meet prospective indu trialists and to entertain them. H contended it would be a bad mov to break entirely with th Chamber.

But Mayor Both replied th no man could serve two master "What Belleville needs is an in dustrial commissioner, not a par time man," he said.

Alderman Safe agreed that full time industrial commissione was needed to get the best re sults but contended that until th city could afford such a man i should continue with the presen man "who was doing the best jo he could under the circum stances."

Mayor Both said the work o the industrial committee secre tary could be very well take care of by city hall staff. Cit Comptroller Harold Bateman not ed his office could look after an correspondence of the industria committee but suggested tha further duties should be under taken by committee members.

Alderman Argue outlined th policy of previous industrial com mittees in keeping contacts wit industrial agents of the variou banks, railways and governmen agents. He stressed the value o continuity of contacts. At th same time, however, he had n wish to force on the committe chairman a secretary he did no wish.

Council voted to rehire M Kingdon, the recommendation re ceiving an 8-5 majority. Approv ing were Aldermen Argue, For rester, Graham, Grandame, Kee gan, Safe and Tice. Opposin were Mayor Both, and Alderme Clarke, Humphreys, McCabe an Moxam.

Special Committee of Council Is Named to Hire M.O.H.

A special committee of council will consider the matter of hiring a medical officer of health to replace Dr. A. M. Breuls who recently resigned to take a position with Scarboro township.

Applications for the position of city M.O.H. from three doctors were read at last night's meeting of council following which there was considerable discussion on the advisability of hiring a full or part time doctor.

Alderman Argue declared that now was the time for the city to take a firm stand in its effort to have Prince Edward County come in with the city in a health unit set-up as with the resignation of Dr. Beuls they too were without the services of an M.O.H. Prince Edward County health unit has been sharing the services of Dr. Breuls but as a unit they must have an M.O.H. to be eligible for a government grant.

On the other hand, the city received no grant from the province for its health department and it could operate without an M.O.H.

Mayor Both said medical men with whom he had been talking were of the opinion that a part time M.O.H. was all that was necessary for Belleville. "The city would save money by hiring a part time man," he said.

Alderman Jane Forrester felt that a full time M.O.H. was needed. A full time man would be better trained especially from the public relations angle which was needed if other municipalities were to be brought in to form a health unit.

MAYOR DISAGREES

But Mayor Both disagreed, pointing out that during the period in which Dr. G. S. Cronk had been M.O.H. there had been no epidemic in the city and as part time medical officer of health Dr. Cronk had been paid $800 per year. He stressed that all doctors had the same medical training.

Referring to sanitary conditions Mayor Both said these could have not been worse than under the full time M.O.H. He referred to conditions found existent only last year which he said had been a "disgrace to the city."

Alderman David approved of the full time man as did Alderman Tice who, however, declared that the city's M.O.H. should not be shared with any other municipality. Under the previous agreement the Prince Edward county unit had half time services from the Belleville M.O.H. and then received a subsidy from the pr ince. "Let Picton look after them selves," he urged.

Alderman Gerald Hyde brou up the question of whether und its agreement the city was bou to provide a medical officer health for the Prince Edw Health unit. He noted that und the agreement six months no was necessary if either party wi ed to withdraw.

Alderman Argue suggested t the agreement referred only to D Breuls and suggested that Pict should be advised the city w no longer interested in sharing i M.O.H. unless it was on a heal unit basis.

On recommendation of Alde man Keegan a special committ was formed to go into the matt and report to council. Named t the committee were Alderme Keegan, Argue, McCabe an Mayor Both.

CHARITY BEGINS AT HOME

The city of Montreal, contending that it is not a ial agency, is cutting off aid to 90 charitable, social d cultural organizations. Grants to the groups last ar totalled $634,635.

Pierre Desmarais, chairman of the city's executive mittee, promised fulfillment of commitments made to anizations on a contract basis. Mr. Desmarais said ntrealers pay taxes for essential services and if they ish to make donations . . . they should do it themves."

Economy is the politician's watchword. It has a hardaded, tight-fisted ring to it. It suggests a miserly nare that taxpayers admire.

Economy of the wrong kind is also dangerous.

Cutting off grants to social and cultural agencies is open question because of the definition of "social" and ultural." Grants to the "Jolly Boys' Poker and Mutual miration Society" or the "League of Art Lovers" could called into question. But museums, art galleries, zoos, enas, parks, rinks, playgrounds, aquaria, botannical rdens and civic centres all can be classed as "social" "cultural" agencies to greater or lesser degree. These tter agencies offer their particular brand of "social" and ultural" influence to all members of the community and ually have been founded and administered with comunity approval. In all cases, however, reappraisal of e worth of these projects is not amiss and where value negligible there is a case for discontinuance of grants.

Charitable organizations, however, are another matr.

In most instances a charitable group performs a rthwhile service for the deserving persons of the comunity. These groups have been organized, for the most rt, to meet a specific need of a segment of the population which is not provided for in any other way.

Recognized charitable organizations have to prove that e services they provide are essential and do not overp similar services provided by other organizations before ey can receive a charter.

Another aspect of organized community charity that overlooked too often is that much of the work of colcting and distributing food, medical supplies, clothing d bedding, is done by volunteers. This volunteer labor duces considerably the cost of charitable work in any mmunity. A city by failing to support necessary charable works now being done by volunteer organizations aves itself open to assumption, ultimately, of the entire st of charitable works, including administration costs hich it is not now obliged to meet.

It is always wise to look at gifts closely. In the case charitable organizations, two or three or more searching praisals are not too many.

AN EXCELLENT STAND

When Gordon F. Lavergne, Progressive-Conservative ember of the Ontario Legislature for Russell, spoke on hursday in favor of a planned study of toll roads for this rovince, he took a stand which should receive the support all, opponents of toll roads as well as advocates.

Mr. Lavergne said that he was impressed by the aruments in favor of toll roads. It might be added that me impressive arguments have been marshalled, too, by hose who oppose such roads. It is these arguments, pro nd con, which need to be carefully considered. Until uch a study is undertaken, many Ontario residents will hare Mr. Lavergne's doubts that "anyone in this province is in a position to make a categorical statement on he subject."

If they are convinced of the soundness of their arguents, opponents and advocates of toll roads should join orces in an effort to assure that the problem is made the ubject of exhaustive investigation.

WOOD PLAYS VITAL ROLE

In spite of the multitude of marvellous new materials hich are being poured out of the beakers of scientific izards, wood remains one of the most important subtances in our lives.

The forestry section of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics provides some interesting figures showing the importance of wood to the economy of this district.

In 1952, the latest year for which figures are available, there were 133 establishments in the counties of astings, Prince Edward, Lennox and Addington and Frontenac which processed lumber. Of these establishments 6 were planing mills, 76 were sawmills and 16 were urniture factories. They employed 1,191 persons, payng them a total of $2,277,106 in wages and salaries. Electricity and fuel cost these firms $139,388 and they paid 5,066,840 for material, while the value of products was 9,521,980.

MODERN MARRIAGE MANNERS

Love may have laughed at locksmiths in those good ld days when young couples got married and moved into heir own homes and lived happily ever after.

But with housing the way it is these days they get arried and move in with mother and dad with the result hat the laughter sometimes becomes a little hollow. (St. atharines Standard.)

BACKWARD LOOK

road of shoulders, six feet tall;
s I watch you I recall the days that used to be hat you sat upon my knee.

ou have grown up, and no more
e may sprawl upon the floor,

You've outgrown those childish charms
When I held you in my arms.
Into life you've stepped so far
That you even drive a car.

I can think of such a lot
That you now remember not.

Moslem Wedding

(By Mrs. R. E. Miller, in Minaret Magazine)

A Moslem friend in India invited us to the wedding of his niece. The date had been arranged quickly because, according to astrologers, the stars would not again be just right for this couple for six months.

We sat with several hundred men in front of the house, in the open courtyard, which was bedecked with plantain trees put in the ground for the occasion and brightly lit with strings of colored bulbs, fluorescent lights and kerosene pressure lanterns. We were served hot tea, and the aroma of wood smoke and cooking food was all around.

There were five women present. Our friend, Noor Mohammed, asked the women if they would like to enter the women's quarters to see the ceremony. (Our men folk got to see neither the bride nor the groom).

We went gladly because there was nothing going on in the courtyard except the noise of an Indian band. We followed Noor up steep steps to the top part of the house. The room was packed with women and children. The air, heavy with the scent of jasmin flower festoons, was stifling.

The bride, completely hidden by her sari, was seated on the decorated bridal bed, which was fitted with a mosquito net. We were given chairs in the middle of the room. Just in front of us, two chairs were placed facing each other. The bride was brought over and seated on one of the chairs, and a garland of roses and jasmin was put around her neck by the bridegroom, who was then seated opposite her.

By now there were a half dozen men present in addition to the bridegroom. A man brought the tali—in this case a beautiful gold necklace with many pen-around the neck of his bride. In India the tali is used in place of the wedding ring and can be simple or ornate.

Now the right hands of the couple were joined and covered with a silk cloth while the men present spoke what may have been prayers. Then two satin covered pillows and a silken bed covering were brought and put on the bed, and the bride was taken back to the bed, while the groom joined the men.

All this time the bride never opened her eyes, the groom seemed very nervous, and neither uttered a word.

That seemed to be the end of the ceremony, and we climbed down the steep stairs.

I asked Noor if the bride and groom knew each other. He said, "How could they? They saw each other for the first time just now."

However, since the bride never opened her eyes, she hadn't seen the groom even though she was married to him! The signing of the wedding contract had been previously done by the relatives of the couple.

Describing Last Job

Shakespeare's Starlings

(Kansas City Star)

The man on the telephone spoke decisively. "It was Shakespeare," he said, pausing long enough to permit us to grasp it.

"It was?" we said, while nonchalantly doodling on the telephone book.

"Yes," the caller responded, speaking crisply. "He's responsible for all these starlings around here. Thought you might like to make a story out of it."

Well, we thought, it is a relief to know who has brought all these starlings that sit on our bridges and our buildings and gather like a dark cloud of midlight in our trees.

"But," we asked our anonymous caller, "just how is Shakespeare responsible?"

"Ha," he chuckled, and there seemed a touch of maliciousness in his tone. "Look in Henry the Fourth."

Then he hung up. We were baffled, but intrigued.

The public library, however, found the answer.

"Say," we said as we called there, "we're trying to find out just where starlings were mentioned by Shakespeare."

"Oh, is that all," a friendly voice responded. Without hesitation, the recited automatically: "Henry the Fourth...Act I...Scene III...Line 224...Hotspur is talking ...He declares:

"I'll have a starling shall be Taught to speak
Nothing but Mortimer, and
Give it to Him
To keep his anger still in motion."

But how did this calm passage from the Avon fellow lead to all the starlings?

Further checking showed that back in 1890 an ecstatic group of Shakespearean devotees decided that all the birds mentioned by the bard should be established in this country.

These Shakespearean folks decided to bring in 100 starlings. They did, and soon there were thousands, then millions and now they are everywhere.

Stalin Spared Only Mediocre

(Montreal Gazette)

Tyranny,—the "monolithic" power structure of which dictators are so proud, always carries within it the seeds of its own destruction. This is particularly evident in Soviet Russia, the most complete police state the world has ever known.

In order to concentrate all power within himself, Stalin had to eliminate all independent strength within the country. As Russia was primarily an agricultural country, his first Five Year Plan, 1928-33, sought to chain the farm population to the central government. The next step was to "liquidate" all rivals for power within the country's leader class. This was done in the great purges of 1936-38. (The purges were also intended to eliminate all "unreliable" elements before the inevitable war with Nazi Germany).

These two major campaigns left Stalin the undeniable master of his vast country. They also left a terrible inheritance of fear, hatred and suspicion which his heirs are now trying to control.

Soviet agriculture has never recovered from the wholesale slaughtering of livestock and the wholesale burning of grain which was the farmers' way of fighting Stalin's collectivization program in the first Five Year Plan. And Soviet leadership has never recovered from the wholesale slaughter of civil and military officials of the great purges.

As long as Stalin lived, this atmosphere of latent anarchy, this constant struggle for power was seldom evident. His was the face of Soviet Russia and few could read what went on behind it.

Stalin, however, was a unique character. To the prestige of an Old Revolutionary, he added an ambition, a singleness of purpose and an utter ruthlessness of operation that few men in history have shown.

If there were others among the Old Revolutionaries who also had these qualities, they were eliminated, by him, long ago. They were not available, when he died, to succeed him. Only smaller, weaker men remained, for Stalin, like other tyrants, would not allow rivals around him.

This is the legacy Stalin has left the world, a sullen, resentful people, a group of second-rate executives snarling over division of the carcass of Stalin's power, like animals whose brutal trainer is no longer present to keep them to heel.

Conveyor Belt Plan Opposed

(Milwaukee Journal)

There's another bitter battle shaping up in the war over Ohio's "rubber railroad" project. Railway and railway brotherhood lobbies are fighting it with the same sort of tenacity and tactics they used to stall the St. Lawrence waterway for 20 years. For the proposed 100 mile belt conveyor lines in Ohio would take away some $100,000,000 a year from the railroads in freight business.

Two lines of conveyor belts would connect East Liverpool, Ohio, on the Ohio river, with a Lake Erie port—possibly Cleveland. The north-bound line would carry coal at a minimum rate of 24,000,000 tons a year. The southland line would carry iron ore at a maximum of 32,000,000 tons a year. Total cost of the rubber railroad is estimated at between $250,000,000 and $300,000,000.

The project is backed by some of the best of business and engineering brains. It has been twice stalled, though, in the Ohio legislature since 1949, when the first bill was introduced to authorize the Riverlake Belt Conveyor Lines to get necessary right of way through court condemnation proceedings, as railroads and public utility lines can.

Such authorization is essential to the "rubber railroad." Whether the railway and union lobbyists can again prevent approval is uncertain, for the conveyor belt backers have rallied stronger forces than ever before.

It is the sort of fight that almost every new type or system of transportation has had to put up at first to get a fair chance to prove its worth. For each seems to threaten established common carriers and the jobs of their employees.

The "rubber railroad" project is backed by private capital and asks no government subsidy. It surely deserves a chance to show whether or not it is a better form of transportation for certain things and in certain places.

Avoids Red Tape

(Winston-Salem, N.C., Journal-Sentinel)

A Winston-Salem woman was riding in a taxi in New York city when the driver slowed up a little to miss a pedestrian. Apparently figuring that such unusual courtesy called for an explanation, he turned to her and said: "If you hit 'em, you've gotta fill out a report."

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Tapping my foot impatiently and drumming with a quarter on the counter, I waited and waited at the ladies' hosiery department while the two clerks, one at either end of the counter, engaged in earnest conversation with a lady customer each.

All I wanted was three pair of nylons, size nine, medium length, the name and label of which my wife had given me.

But could I distract the attention of the two clerks? Neither of them was in the process of selling. The customers to whom they were talking were middle-aged ladies who were in the conversational stance, which is quite distinct from the shopping stance. It was eminently apparent that they were chatting.

The group manager, who wears a white carnation as the badge of his rank, came up behind me and tipped my hat over my nose with his finger. His is a fishing pal of mine.

"Look at those doggone clerks!" I snorted, indicating right and left [illegible] still blithely blathering. "I've been here five solid minutes . . ."

"Make it two and I'll buy," said the group manager. "Minutes are a lot longer than you think, in department stores."

"(Well, anyway . . ." I gruffed.

The manager snapped his fingers. The two clerks, both of whom were old enough to know better than to gossip in the firm's time, came hurrying to wait on me.

"It's about time," I reproved.

"Gert," said the group manager to the first clerk "tell me honestly, what were you talking about to the lady back there?"

"She was telling me about her son's wife," admitted Gert.

"Mamie," said the group manager to the other, "what was your customer discussing with you? Honestly."

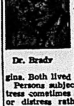
"A trip she's been planning to go to Bermuda."

"The world," said the group manager, "is full of lonely people who come down town for no purpose but to have friendly chats with store clerks. And the world is full of lonely store clerks who just love to have friendly chats with strange, interesting ladies.

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

RELIEF OF BREAST PANG



Dr. Brady

Dr. John Hunter, famous 18th century anatomist and surgeon was subject to angina pectoris. He used to say his life was in the hands of any rascal who chose to annoy and tease him. Hunter's brother William, equally famous anatomist and physician, was ten years older. He was not subject to angina. Both lived 65 years.

Persons subject to anginal distress sometimes endure the pain or distress rather than take a tablet of nitroglycerine which they have in pocket or purse. They labor under the misapprehension that nitroglycerine (or other vasodilator prescribed for the attacks) is not quite safe or that it may induce formation of a drug habit. There is no such risk involved. There is on record no report of any such ill consequence.

Nitroglycerine (glyceryl trinitrate, glonoin) or sodium nitrite or other vasodilator (dilator or relater of blood vessels), prescribed for anginal distress is practically harmless.

Yes, indeed, a person who has not been warned about the rapid action of nitroglycerin, when a tablet is placed under the tongue, may be frightened by the flush, headache, sensation of throbbing or tension in the head, palpitation etc., that occur within a minute.

It is advisable to take the first dose of nitroglycerin lying down, and to remain flat on your belly for five minutes. If no flush, throbbing or headache within five minutes, probably the tablets are inert—nitroglycerin is very volatile and tablets rapidly loose strength if exposed to the air.

But if the first dose doesn't bring relief within five minutes, take a second tablet, and if no relief a third one in another five minutes.

Or double or triple the dose.

Or throw away the old tablets and get a new vial that has not been opened.

If I had anything like angina pectoris or coronary occlusion I'd take nitroglycerin at least four times every day, in sufficient dose to be sure it really kept the arterioles (smallest arterial branches) dilated, relaxed, open, for free circulation and adequate supply of oxygen to my myocardium, working muscle which composes the heart.

I'd begin with tablets containing 1/200th of a grain of nitroglycerin. I'd try such a tablet on the dog and if it failed to make my face flush, my head throb etc., I'd wait five minutes and take two or three tablets. If there was still no noticeable effect I'd throw the tablets away and get some 1/100th grain tablets, try 'em on the dog, etc., until I was sure the medicine was reliable for emergencies.

Now if any prysician of standing questions what I have said here about the use of nitroglycerin by persons with heart and/or artery trouble (CVD) I'll cite recognized medical authorities, just to show that I'm not indulging in pipe dreams.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THAT DIFFERENT WAY

One of the most amazing features in the ethical picture is the great deference we have for numbers and the Lord's complete indifference to the numbers. If we want to get a great movement started, we begin to enlist the support of as many people as we can. When the Lord wants to bring some great enterprise to achievement, He begins cutting down the numbers of adherents until He has a little, solid core of people upon whom he can rely. In defense of many of our actions, we exclaim "Everybody's doing it." The only defense God makes of any action is that it conforms to the perfect law of righteousness.

Into the hearts of every one of us, God has put a voice called conscience. General George L. Carpenter, of the English Salvation Army, has written some very telling words about the ignored conscience:

"The ignored conscience becomes the dulled conscience. The voice of God in the soul can be silenced by habitual disregard.

"One of the greatest of today's snares is hidden beneath the fallacious argument that 'other people do it.' A thing is not right because many approve of it. On the contrary, in an age when there is little regard for God's Word, popular acclaim should be a danger signal."

Don't count noses or follow fads. The Lord goes about things in a different way.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

KINDLY OR NOT AT ALL

It distresses me to meet a person for the first time and have to listen to criticism and talk about some person's defects and faults. I have noted, time and time again, that such people are merely exposing themselves as harboring the same things that they find so objectionable in others.

Why can't we always be kind and considerate toward others? Tolerance is a wonderful virtue. There is nothing old fashioned about The Golden Rule. It's the soundest law ever put into words. Indeed it is more than a moral law. It's the foreword of a universal religion. If it could be put into universal practice it could do away with all wars and tragic differences between men and nations.

If peace and good will were associated with something that was complicated and difficult to understand, then there might be some excuse for people to shy away from them, but peace and good will and The Golden Rule are so simple in statement and meaning that a child is able to understand their import. If we can't speak kindly of people, let us not speak of them at all. A big portion of the human race is starving for words of kindness, cheer and encouragement. We are so far from being spiritually educated.

If the nations of this earth fail to commit suicide then there may be born a new hope. We did away with duels, and human slavery—when are we going to put an end to human slaughter on the battlefield and through methods too terrible even for sane nations ever to plan to use? Modern war is savagery, nothing else.

What a happy world we would have to live in and in which to bring up our children if we could only do away with all personal unkindnesses and all wars. What a waste of money, material possessions and people. There isn't a sane feature to any war.

Report Deals With Mounting Toll in Traffic Accidents

TORONTO (CP) —The Ontario legislature today was to continue the debate on the speech from the throne, delivered a week ago by Lieutenant - Governor Louis O. Breithaupt.

Adoption of the speech, prepared by Premier Frost and his cabinet, has already been moved and seconded, leading to full-scale debate on what the government plans to accomplish during the session.

The legislature Monday received the first of three reports to be submitted at this session by select committees chosen last year.

Provincial Secretary W. M. Nickle, chairman of the committee on highway safety, read his committee's unanimous report which made 77 recommendations aimed at overcoming the mounting toll of traffic accidents in Ontario in which about 1,000 lives are lost a year.

The reports on highways irregularities and central registry of liens are yet to be tabled.

COMMENT ON REPORT

Three other Progressive Conservative members of the 11-man highway safety committee commented on the report. They were A. J. Child, member for Wentworth; W. G. Beech, York South, and John Yaremko, Toronto Bellwoods.

Mr. Child said airplane - type safety belts should be compulsory in motor vehicles. Head and neck injuries accounted for a major part of injuries in traffic accidents because people were thrown to the dashboard and windshield.

He said safety belts were not acceptable to automobile manufacturers as standard equipment in their products because acceptance would be tantamount to admitting the vehicles were unsafe and sales might be affected.

WOULD SAVE LIVES

Hundreds of lives could be saved each year by the use of safety belts. He criticized instructions given with one new-model car which advised the owner not to drive the vehicle over 70 miles an hour during one part of the breaking-in period.

Education Minister Dunlop, commenting on a committee recommendation that driver education should be taught in secondary schools, said the curriculum is filled between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. He couldn't see how it could be taught during the present school day without deleting other courses.

The government might consider advising boards of education in the province to carry out such a course before and after school hours and Saturdays.

TIGHTEN EXAMINATIONS

Mr. Beech said regulations for examination of motor-vehicle operator-permit applicants will have to be "tightened." The committee recommended a more complete examination which all drivers would have to take within 10 years of a date to be set by the government.

Mr. Yaremko suggested examination regulations should be as strict as possible to achieve a high standard of drivers.

Earlier, a number of amendments to acts were introduced by Attorney General Dana Porter, one of which would reduce the number of jurors in a civil action from 12 to six, and in a grand jury from 13 to 7. Most are designed to bring provincial laws in line with the new Canadian Criminal Code.

Without the party's full support, Pflimlin, given 50-50 chance, could not have counted on enough support in the National Assembly. Christian Pineau, a Righ Wing Socialist, has been asked by President Rene Coty to make the next party. (Central Press Canadian).

Three Men Held For Robbing Winnipeg Bank

WINNIPEG (CP) — Three men are being held by Winnipeg police today in connection with the 31,397 robbery Monday of a Toronto-Dominion Bank branch in central Winnipeg.

Police superintendent George Blow said the trio will be charged with armed robbery.

He identified the three, who were booked in jail here overnight, as Samuel Ronald Sedan, 25, Winnipeg; Fred Gordon Bush, 27, Calgary, alias Eugene Austin Hartson; and Mitchel Herman, 32, no fixed address.

AMBUSH CLERKS

Bandits broke into the branch through a small barred side window while the bank was closed and then ambushed employees as they arrived for work.

The unmasked gunmen marched bank manager Neil McNulty and five employees one by one to a basement vault where their hands were taped behind them. A man delivering a ladder to the building also was put in the vault.

The gunmen fled in one of the employee's cars after scooping up the money from an upstairs vault, which they had forced two employees to open.

CAUGHT ON TRAIN

Polic ewere called after the staff smashed out of the basement vault.

Superintendent Blow said Sedan was arrested Monday afternoon by suburban St. Vital police. Sedan had more than $7,000 in cash on his person at the time of his arrest, the police officer said.

RCMP arrested the other two at Sprague, Man., 85 miles southeast of Winnipeg, as they rode in on a CNR passenger train.

Initiative Held By Red Chinese In Far East War

By SPENCER MOOSA

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—Communist China, fortified by a bloodless victory in its acquisition of the Tachen islands, holds the initiativez in its "vest pocket war" with Chiang Kai - shek's Nationalist forces.

Present signs are that the Nationalists on the string of outpost islands running from Nanchishan on the north to Quemoy on the south will confine their operations for the time being mainly to defensive actions.

Red China's Communist chiefs, in broadcast talks Monday hailing the fifth anniversary of their treaty with Russia, gave no clear hint of their next move.

Mao Tze-tung, No. 1 Chinese Communist, and Premier Chou En-lai railed at what they termed aggressive movezs by the United States, and asserted that if "imperialists" wage war, "we, together with the peoples of the whole world, will certainly wipe them out clean from the surface of the globe."

But the Peiping broadcasts of their speeches didn't telezgraph Red China's next move in the civil war.

The remaining Nationalist outpost islands, scateterd along 270 miles of Red China's coast, loom as the next trouble spots.

Apart from Nanchishan and Quemoy, the most important other position the Nationalists hold is Matsu, which dominates the approaches to Foochow, capital of Fukien province.

Invasion attempts by the Reds against either Quemoy or Matsu, or both, might involve the U.S. in defensive action to safeguard Formosa and the nearby Pescadores. Washington is committed under the mutual defence pact with Nationalist China signed at Washington Dec. 2 to protect Formosa and the Pescadores.

And, by a congressional resolution, President Eisenhower is authorized to employ U.S. forces to secure and protect "related positions and territories" held necessary for the defence of Formosa and the Pescadores.

Forced Eviction Of South African Negroes Resumed

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters) — More than 750 armed police swarmed over Sophiatown suburb today to prevent any possible trouble as they started the second forced eviction of Negro families from their homes to make way for a white suburb.

Police have made 33 arrests in the area since Monday night. A spokesman for South Africa's largest native organization, the African National Congress, said 30 persons were nabed when police swooped down on them when they tried to help families served with eviction notices.

Police said 29 men were arrested for not having a night pass, required by non-whites here, and four for trying to steal corrugated roofing from the houses to be evacuated.

Under the government plan, 70,000 Africans will be moved from Sophiatown to Meadowlands, 10 miles farther from the city centre, and the area will be turned into a white suburb.

ARMY TRUCKS USED

The police force ringing the area today was about half the number that turned out last week when the first removal of 150 families started. Army trucks moved in to load the furniture and other possessions of the 150 families evicted today for the trip to Meadowlands.

In Meadowlands, the government says, the families will be settled in duplex homes provided with all necessities except electricity. Public transport will be provided into Johannesburg where most of them work.

Critics of the measure, however, claim that the eviction is an unjust move, based solely on the Nationalist government's desire for rigid racial segregation in South Africa.

Judgment Reserved

STRATFORD (CP) —Judgment was reserved Monday in the case of Eric E. McDonald, 29, Logan township farmer charged with the theft of 45 bags of timmothy seed from Mitchell Co-operative. Decision is to be handed down next Monday.

Perth county judge H. D. Lang said several points of law raised during the hearing make it necessary to give the case considerable study.

McDonald testified earlier that he has never been on the co-operative's premises. He was originally charged with theft Nov. 10 of timothy seed and red clover seed valued at $845.92. The red clover charge was struck out Friday by udge Lang.

ANCIENT URN FOUND

BERLIN (Reuters) — An East German farmer near Berlin has found the 2,400-year-old burial urn of a woman, containing iron and bronze jewelry, the East German news agency ADN reported. The urn, almost undamaged, contained ashes and the iron parts of a belt, numerous iron rings which appeared to have been part of a necklace, and an earring of bronze leaf with a glass "pearl."

Weather Forces Postponement Of Atomic Test

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) —The first explosion of the United States' 1955 atomic test series, which had been set for pre-dawn this morning, was postponed for 24 hours by the atomic energy commission, which cited unfavorable weather conditions.

At a midnight weather conference the AEC decided that winds would carry the atomic cloud from any shot today toward a populated area in east-central Nevada.

The AEC and defence department test officials were to meet later today to decide whether to set off the shot before dawn Wednesday.

TROOPS, PLANES READY

About 1,100 men and 100 planes had been prepared to take the military's part in the first test shot from a 500-foot tower on nearby Yucca flat.

Troops and observers were to take trench positions 4,000 yards from "ground zero." Army motor vehicles, artillery pieces, small arms and uniformed dummies were scattered closer to the tower.

The post-shot manoeuvre plan called for a group of 450 soldiers to move up through the scorched area to inspect the damage and assume defensive positions as they might under an atomic attack.

The planes included 75 air force and roughly 25 navy and marine craft. B-36 and B-47 bombers of the strategic air command were instructed to simulate bomb delivery flights, presumably ddropping dummy bombs to coincide with the nuclear blast set off from the control point.

TEST NO. 32

Other planes had crew indoctrination, cloud tracking and radiation study assignments. Present for the opener, the 32nd test since the AEC began operations here four years ago, were AEC chairman Lewis L. Strauss and members of the congressional atomic energy committee.

The test was slated for half an hour before dawn to get maximum efficiency from the many cameras and instruments that record light, blast, radioactivity and heat intensity.

CCF Leader Critical of Hydro Management

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario CCF leader Donald C. MacDonald said Monday night the people of Ontario no longer get hydro power at cost but get it at cost plus.

"The basic principle upon which Adam Beck built Hydro has long been forsaken and the unstated principle upon which Hydro is operated today is not power at cost but public ownership for the benefit of private business," he said.

Mr. MacDonald spoke over the CBC's Ontario network on provincial affairs. Text of his speech was released to the press before delivery.

Mr. MacDonald referred to the Hydro's connection with Canadian Comstock Co. Ltd.

He said the company had been given the frequency standardization job without tender on a cost-plus graded-fee basis because the Ontario government considered it "the only Canadian company having available the necessary personnel and experience."

"Yet Hydro has supplied Comstock with much of the equipment and about one third of the personne at a cost of $1,000,000."

He said the original estimate for conversion had been $195,000,000. Now the final cost is expected to exceed $500,000,000.

Women's Activities

EGGLETON W.M.S.-W.A.

The February meeting of the Eggleton W.M.S. and W.A., was held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Carl Bridges with 15 adults and five children in attendance.

The president, Mrs. Maurice Clancy, presided over the program, which had been prepared by Mrs. Clarence Fitchett, and opened the meeting with a poem on "Prayer".

The devotional period was conducted by Mrs. Harry Clarke reading the Scripture: Philippians 1:1-11. Mrs. Warren Harlow gave the meditation on the lesson, followed by prayer by Mrs. Carl Bridges.

Mrs. Charles Stapley gave a reading "New Days."

The W.A. president, Mrs. William McMullen then took charge for the business period. Final plans for the crokinole party and box social were arranged.

Mrs. Clancy invited the members to meet at her home on February 24, and to bring patterns for making articles for the bazaar. Several nice aprons were handed in for the bazaar.

Mrs. Russell Stapley extended an invitation to the Eggleton W.M.S. and W.A. to hold its March meeting at her home in Stirling. Mrs. Bruce Stapley was appointed to prepare the program for March.

Mrs. Clancy read an invitation sent to the Eggleton W.M.S. from the W.M.S. of St. Paul's United church, Stirling, to join with them in the observance of the World Day of Prayer on Friday afternoon of February 25.

The Community Friendship secretary, Mrs. Harry Clarke, reported on calls and visits made during the month.

Mrs. Maurice Clancy contributed a solo "The Beautiful Garden of Prayer", with the pianist, Mrs. Bruce Stapley playing the accompaniment.

Mrs. Robert Danford read a paper on "Reading the Bible."

The 2nd chapter from the study book "The Christian Contribution to the New India", was given by Mrs. C. Fitchett.

The president thanked, Mrs. Bridges for opening her home, the program convener, and all who had taken part on the program.

The meeting was dismissed with prayer by Mrs. Clancy.

Mrs. Bridges served refreshments and all enjoyed a social half hour.

Christ Church Contact Club Holds Party

St. Valentine provided the theme for the regular Monday meeting of the Contact Club, when members gathered to enjoy the games and entertainment provided by Doris Stewart's group.

Much merriment was in evidence during the first relay, as contestants were required to "walk" on two large hearts to and from the finishing line.

Isabel Murray was the recipient of the prize for guessing the titles to musical numbers.

The next relay was "hang out the wash", and each housewife displayed her skill in cutting articles of clothing from newspaper, to hang on the clothesline.

Thespian talent was in evidence as groups enacted scenes in pantomime for the next part of the program. A tie-breaker was necessary to determine the prize winners as two groups drew an equal amount of applause.

"Scrambled Words" had to be re-assembled to form names of pies and Dianne Settle was winner of this contest. Florence Lennox formed the largest number of words from the words "head, heart and hand."

Evelyn Wareham guessed closest the number of jelly beans in a jar.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses Margaret MacInnis, Freda Patterson and Terry Burch, the highlight being a large decorated Valentine cake.

Thanks were extended to the group for a most enjoyable evening, after which president, Marguerite Cooke, reminded all members of the rummage sale to be held later in the week.

ITALIANS VISIT BRITAIN

LONDON (AP) — Italian premer Mario Scelba and Foreign Minister Gaetano Martino arrived today by train for a four-day official visit to Britain.

'Child Problems' Talk Heard At H-S Association Meeting

The Queen Mary and Prince Charles Home and School Association held its regular monthly meeting in Prince Charles school last Thursday evening. Mrs. J. E. Pugh, president, opened the meeting and welcomed the parents. Mr. R. Lennox presided at the piano.

Mrs. Pugh reminded everybody of the "Family Fair" to be held in Queen Mary School next month. Mr. F. Beeby and his committee are working hard to make it a success and it is hoped everyone will come and enjoy themselves.

The winners of the banner attendance were Queen Mary Juniors, Miss Walkom; Queen Mary Seniors, Miss Wilson; Prince Charles Junior, Miss Leslie and Miss Johnson; Prince Charles Senior, Mr. Campbell.

Mr. Bateman, principal of Prince Charles school, spoke of the art display by the pupils of P.C.S. which is on show in the lobby of the McCarthy Theatre.

Mrs. Pugh called on Mrs. S. A. Reid, membership convener, who reported that 40 members had perfect attendance for the first half of the year. They were, Mrs. G. Anderson, Miss M. Barber, Mr. J. E. Bateman, Mrs. W. Bateman, Mrs. F. Beeby, Mr. and Mrs. A. Black, Mrs. L. Burfoot, Mrs. E. A. Chappell, Mrs. G. Cherry, Mrs. K. Champagne, Mr. and Mrs. K. Chambers, Mrs. R. Ellis, Mr. and Mrs. C. Doolittle, Mrs. Fuzzen, Mrs. Frink, Mrs. A. Halsey, Mrs. W. Hales, Mrs. N. Hall, Mrs. A. Hume, Mrs. H. Halsey, Mr. W. Ironside, Mr. Locklin, Mrs. Lafferty, Mrs. J. Miles, Mr. R. Munro, Mrs. C. May, Mrs. M. McClelland, Mrs. McGrimmon, Mrs. S. M. McMullen, Mrs. R. Orr, Mrs. R. Poste, Mrs. J. E. Pugh, Mrs. D. Stubbert, Mrs. A. Skinner, Miss C. M. Wilson, Miss M. Walkom, Mrs. R. Woodley. Mrs. Reid also thanked the ladies who helped at the door giving out name tags. They were Mesdames G. Cherry, N. Hall, C. Young, H. Halsey, M. Wiley, L. Bird and G. Bird.

FOUNDER'S DAY

The program this month commemorated "Founder's Day" and also honored the memory of Mrs. Courtice, who started the Home and School idea 39 years ago. In her memory the Courtice Memorial Library was set up to lend books on child raising free of charge.

Convener, Mrs. A. F. Lake, had books on display, and it is hoped everyone will avail themselves of those useful books.

A collection was made to help support this library which amounted to $17.

Nine of the members who took part in the beautiful candlelight and cake cutting ceremony were, Mrs. G. Anderson, Mrs. V. Carrigan; Mrs. C. Fuzzen, Mrs. R. Mills, Mrs. R. Poste, Mr. G. E. Kerr, Mr. M. Lush, Mr. K. Parks, Mr. W. Roblin.

The seven Home and School objectives marked in the ceremony were, Health, Wholesome Home Life, Learning, Citizenship and Brotherhood, Vocational Effectiveness, Wise Use of Leisure Time; Spiritual Vision and Character.

CHILD PROBLEMS

Dr. G. H. Craig then introduced Dr. Edith Peterkin, noted child psychologist. This interesting speaker gave an inspiring talk on "Child Problems" and difficulties often encountered between child and parents and child and teachers and how to deal with them.

Dr. Peterkin received a hearty round of applause and was sincerely thanked by Mrs. Warren Spafford on behalf of the association.

A number of officials from the Children's Aid Society were among those present to hear Dr. Peterkin.

A special thank-you was tendered Miss Linda Lennox for her clever tap dancing which was enjoyed by all. Linda was accompanied by her father, Mr. R. Lennox, at the piano.

A vote of thanks to Mrs. Chappell for the decorating of the cake and congratulations to Mrs. Woodley on having the lucky number.

Refreshments were then served by Mrs. R. Woodley and her committee, who were, Mesdames J. Cavers, K. Chambers, H. Hume and H. Skinner.

Ivanhoe W.I. Enjoys Talk On United Nations

Ivanhoe Women's Institute was entertained by Mrs. George Wood on Wednesday afternoon with 23 ladies present and two children.

The president, Miss Jayne Gay, opened the meeting and Mrs. K. Bray, presided at the piano.

The treasurer's report was given and communications read. It was voted to send a donation to the Hospital for Sick Children also to the "Mental Health Hospital"; also that the Institute would ask for the grant and $6 more be added. This money is to be used for a prize to be awarded to the most efficient pupil regardless of grade in the White Lake, Ivanhoe and West Huntingdon schools. The judge is to be the teacher.

The euchre party sponsored by the W.I., on Friday night, was reported by Mrs. W. French as a success with ten tables playing. The winners were, Miss Carol Canniff, Mrs. Leo Cooney; H. Benson, H. Fitchett. The birthday prize for men went to B. Haggerty and for women to Mrs. Jean O'Coin.

The program was opened with "Smile A-While", and "Auld Lang Syne", after which Miss E. Tanner gave a reading on "The Life Story of Sir Harry Lauder".

Mrs. George Wood contributed several musical numbers on accordion "The Naughty Lady of Shady Lane", "Let Me Go Lover" and "This Old House", which were greatly enjoyed.

GUEST SPEAKER

The president introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Kenneth Nicol, of Madoc, who chose as her subject "International Day", a memoir of her tour through the United Nations headquarters in New York, explaining its location, structure and interior decorations, also by whom they were donated; the use of these headquarters such as the A.A.U.R. guide service, the Public Correspondence Unit; the Public Reception Committee; and the American associations with the United Nations.

Mrs. Nicol emphasized the need of more reading and better listening in on the radio for a greater knowledge of the work being done by the United Nations. She closed her impressive talk with a prayer.

The president voiced the appreciation of all to Mrs. Nicol for her splendid discourse.

Mrs. J. Wright gave an interesting paper on "Scotland", its educational facility, industrial manufacture, historical background and religion. She also told of the work of the Institute that it was organized in 1917; the part played by the S.W.I.R.; the benefits derived from it as the women not only excel in their own homes, but are alive to worthy interests outside by working together with other countries in all their undertakings.

A solo was rendered by Mrs. Nicol, "Your Blessings", with Mrs. Bray at the piano.

A contest—"the best made potholder", — was an eye-catching sight. The prize went to Miss E. Tanner. Mrs. E. McMaster sold them and a nice sum of money was realized from this contest.

Mrs. H. Vinnicombe thanked Mrs. Wood for her hospitality.

The meeting closed by tasty refreshments being served by the hostess and assistant hostesses.

HAS 7TH CAESAREAN

CAMBRIDGE, Oho (AP)—Mrs. Paul Nugent, 36-year-old Cambridge mother who Saturday night gave birth for the seventh time by Caesarean operation, Monday was reported "doing fine." Dr. Paul Huth, chief of staff at St. Francis Hospital, called the birth a "medical phenomenon" and said in most instances women are unable to undergo more than two Caesarean sections.

PRINCIPAL DIES

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — John H. Dolan, principal of Sir Adam Beck Collegiate Institute from 1920 to 1936, died Monday. He was formerly principal of collegiates at Oshawa and Picton.

A BIG MOMENT FOR A LITTLE GIRL!

This is a moment that will be cherished always by this little resident of St. Vincent—one of the Windward islands—as she presents a pretty bouquet to charming Princess Margaret during her visit to Kingstown. The touring Princess appeared to enjoy everyone of the 100 minutes she spent on the island, called the "gem of the Caribbean," and was greatly impressed with the island's tropical splendor. She was also "impressed" with exquisite parasol, of local cottonwood, presented to her by the islanders. (Central Press Canadian).

Novelist's Name in Lights On Street He Knew as Boy

BRANTFORD (CP) — Tom Costain's name flashed in lights on the street he once padded as a barefoot boy and walked a beat as a newspaper reporter.

The film based on his best-selling novel, "The Silver Chalice," had its Canadian premiere Monday night in Hollywood fashion.

Floodlights outside the Capitol theatre brightly bathed the marquee bearing the title of Thomas B. Costain's novel and the movie of the same title. But Mr. Costain wasn't there to see the capacity crowd of 1,200 first-nighters, including civic and district dignitaries.

He has been on vacation and could not be reached at his New York home in time to arrange to attend the event. Mr. Costain sent this telegram to Mayor Reg Cooper: "Conditions will not permit me to attend, but I wish that I could."

EVENT RECORDED

Mayor Cooper spoke from the stage. Newsreel, newspaper men and television cameras recorded the premiere.

"The Silver Chalice," based on one of several successful novels by Mr. Costain, concerns the commissioning of a young Greek artist to make a chalice for the cup used to serve wine at the Last Supper. The film shows the struggles to produce the masterpiece and then to protect it from persons seeking to destroy it.

For 50 years or more the police station and town jail was just around the corner from the Capitol theatre where "The Silver Chalice" opened. The Brantford Expositor, the newspaper where Tom worked, is across the street and up a few doors; not far from where he was born at 138 William St. 69 years ago.

The street in front of the theatre, Dalhousie, was woven into the life of Tom Costain. He put his home-town into a book, "Son of a Hundred Kings."

He called Brantford, Balfour. William street was Wilson street in the book but the house number was the same, 138.

CROWDED THEATRE

Townfolk, some of whom probably could recognize a late relative or somebody they knew in the characters of "Son of a Hundred Kings," crowded the theatre to see "The Silver Chalice" Monday night.

Mr. Costain, a success as magazine editor, novelist and historian, took up novel-writing at 55, years after he was a reporter at The Expositor, editor of Maclean's Magazine and associate editor of the Saturday Evening Post.

He has written such novels as "For My Great Folly," "Ride With Me," "The Black Rose," "The Moneyman," "High Towers" and "The Conquerors."

An attraction at the theatre was Lorne Green, a native of Ottawa and rising Canadian star of stage, screen, radio and television. He takes the part of Peter of the miracles in the film.

Talk on 'Indian Residential Schools' Given at W.A.

The regular monthly business meeting of the Evening Branch of the W.A. of Christ Church was attended by about 30 members on Monday evening in the parish hall.

The president, Mrs. A. Cooper, had charge of the worship service and Scripture portion was read by Mrs. L. Mason. Mrs. W. Edwards, secretary, read minutes of previous meetings as well as much correspondence.

Mrs. H. Hill, Mrs. J. Spencer and Mrs. F. O'Connor, gave their reports.

After the discussion of business, Mrs. Everett Smith introduced Miss Twigg of the O.S.D. staff, who gave a most interesting account of her work in the Indian Residential schools at Alert Bay, B.C., Gleichen, Alta., and Prince Albert, Sask. She also showed snapshots and bead work souvenirs of her stay among them.

Mrs. H. Ingram expressed appreciation of the group to Miss Twigg.

During the social half hour, refreshments were served by Mrs. C. Ling, Mrs. J. Ling and Mrs. J. C. Lang.

PLAN HUGE DOCK

GLASGOW (Reuters)—Plans for a giant graving dock to enable the Glasgow area to accommodate the biggest ocean-going liners were approved here Monday by shipping and harbor experts for submission to the British government. The dock would be some 1,200 feet long, 160 feet wde and 47 feet deep.

Q.E. School Teachers Guests Of Association

On Thursday evening a monthly general meeting of St. Joseph's Parent - Teacher Association was held in the school auditorium.

The teachers of Queen Elizabeth School were guests of the association. The visitors toured the school and attended the general meeting.

Mr. Paul Mercier was appointed chairman of a health committee to be formed in the immediate future. This committee will represent the association in its continuing efforts to procure health services from the city for the school.

A film "Welcome the Queen" was shown to the members by Mr. Fred Maund. This film, presented through the courtesy of the Globe and Mail of Toronto, showed the tour of many parts of the commonwealth by Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip near the end of 1953. It was produced in technicolor and proved most interesting entertainment for all present.

The attendance prize was won by Rev. Sr. Mary Noreen's class.

Delightful refreshments were served by the mothers of Room 5 under the direction of Mrs. F. Rawson.

Miss J. Downey Chosen 1955 Queen of Hearts

Miss Jean Downey is Belleville's Queen of Hearts for 1955.

The pert young lady won the title last night at the annual Queen of Hearts Ball held at Club Commodore under the joint sponsorship of St. Michael's Sodality and St. Michael's subdivision of the Catholic Women's League.

She was presented with a corsage of red roses by Miss Barbara Chapelle, president of the Sodality and received a special prize from the dance committee. Her escort was Jack Pitt.

The winning couple was selected in an elimination dance.

Featured during the dance were six novelty dances, a vocal solo, during intermission by John Berrigen, accompanied at the piano by Michael Rashotte, and three draws for a total of $175.

DANCE WINNERS

Winners of novelty dances were —Lorna Beaufort and Harvey Stoliker; Betty Montgomery and Larry Black; Carolyn Forhan and Jim Cox; Mrs. Murray Robertson and Mac Moffat; Arlie Burris and Jim Polan, and Mr. and Mrs. Pat Barrett.

Winners of the draw sponsored by the Catholic Women's League, were—$100, Mrs. John Forster, 61 Octavia Street; $50, Charles Doran, 127 Station Street; $25, Susanne Davison, Tamworth, Ont.

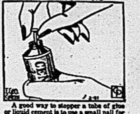
Draws were made by R. E. Barrett, chairman of the Separate School Board.

Patrons and patronesses for the Queen of Hearts Ball were—Mr. and Mrs. E. Logan, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Barrett, Mr. and Mrs. Gerard O'Connor, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Bowers, Miss Barbara Mascaro, Miss Kay Morrell, Miss Helen Hudon and Mr. and Mrs. B. Burley.

Mrs. B. Burley and Mrs. R. E. Barrett were co-conveners of the dance.

Decoration of Club Commodore with special Valentine hearts and streamers was carried out by Don Lee. Dr. Boyd Upper was master of ceremonies.

Wife Preservers



A good way to stopper a tube of glue or liquid cement is to use a small nail for a plug. The adhesive will harden around the nail, but the nail may be removed easily.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

45TH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY GIFTS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Since there is no special gift for a 45th Wedding Anniversary, will you please make a few suggestions for a suitable gift to be taken to an Open House party on this occasion? — M.

Sapphire is the label traditionally given to the 45th Wedding Anniversary . . . and although most people (naturally!) can't indulge in the luxury of giving the jewels assigned to various anniversaries, some imaginative people do give a gift in the color of the symbol. For example, you might give a sappaire-colored (or sapphire-predominating) breakfast or luncheon set; or you may be able to find some item of glassware in this shade; or some paper item you could have monogrammed or initialed in this color; or perhaps one or a pair of cushions in a material with sapphire predominating, or a framed picture. If none of these or similar gifts is obtainable, anything is appropriate to give which is suitable for the use of both, which you think both will welcome, and which is "congenial" to your gift-budget.

NO ONE SHOULD "OFFER" TO BE A MEMBER OF A WEDDING PARTY

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A close friend of mine has asked me if she may be my maid of honor, but I would very much prefer someone else. Is it bad taste to refuse this person? The procession will be upset if she is the maid of honor.— L.

It is completely incorrect and out-of-order for anyone . . .member of the family, relative, friend . . . to ask to be a member of the wedding party. And if anyone persists in being so "pushing," it is of course your prerogative to explain that your wedding party plans have already been made. For this explanation summon all your tact, so that your "I'm sorry, but . . ." will be as gracious as you can possibly make it!

MIDDLE-AGED BRIDE-TO BE SHOULD BE GIVEN FINE SHOWER

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please tell me if it is proper for friends to give a shower for a middle-aged single woman who is to be married next month? Also is this proper in the case of a widow or divorcee who is to remarry? — M.

Yes, it's proper for friends to give a bridal shower for the middle-aged single woman who is to be married. Indeed I think it's even more important, in the spirit of fairness, to give her a bridal shower, for she has probably contributed gifts to so many bridal showers that she should be reaping some reward for her generosity over the years. And I sincerely hope that the brides she has "gifted" will rally 'round to give her particularly nice and thoughtful presents for her new home.

A bridal shower may properly be given too for a widow or divorcee re-marrying . . . but these aren't so important, because doubtless they were given showers before their first marriages. It is really not considered necessary to give presents before a second marriage, either shower presents or wedding presents.

A DOUBLE SHOWER . . . . IN HONOR OF TWO SISTERS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I am going to give a shower in honor of two sisters who are going to have a double wedding. When I write the invitations, do you think that I should write both names on all invitations or only one name for the friends of that particular sister? I had thought that perhaps the latter idea would better give the impression that each guest would be expected to bring only one shower girft.

2. What order would you suggest for the opening of the gifts? Should we perhaps draw lots to decide who should begin the opening? And after the first opening, should the two guests of honor alternate in opening the packages? — T.

1. On the invitations to a double shower it is customary to write the names of both guests of honor . . . in this way everyone invited would know that it is to be a double shower. If a guest knows the two sisters equally well, she will, of course, bring a shower gift for each, perhaps the same or a similar gift, though not necessarily. But if she knows one much better than she does the other, she may properly bring only one gift, or she may bring a more important gift to the one she knows better, and a simple, gesture-gift to the other.

2. I suggest you have the gifts arranged on two separate tables or in two separate containers used as centerpieces, and labelled for each sister. Then have the older sister begin the opening and proceed to open all her presents before the younger sister begins. If they alternate the gift-opening, it may turn out (as I have seen two or three times) that one sister has many more (or at least several more) presents than the other one, and this number-difference may prove embarrassing to the one who has fewer to open.

Bonus Readers' Column

By Mary Moore

QUESTION:

Thanks for all the help. The carrot pudding was tops . . .(1) Could you tell me the number of calories in mustard, mazola, apple juice? (2) In several of your recipes I've come across MSG. Is this Monosodium glutamate? What is it and where can I buy it? (3) We are troubled with tiny and medium spiders. Is there any way to rid our home of them? (4) I made a banana cream pie again. The filling was just right in thickness and I put your meringue over it and spread it right on to the edges of the crust and baked the topping according to directions. But when we cut the pie for supper the filling had gone thin and watery. (5) You wouldn't have a good exercise for ridding the spare tire around the waistline would you. I'm just about down to normal weight but my spare tire is just as big. I've come down to 152 from 192 lbs. and I have only 10 lbs. more to lose and I'd like to lose this from waist and fat pads on hips. . . best of everything to you and also Marianne and Herbie in their coming marriage.— Vicky.

ANSWER:

By a strange coincidence Marianne was home and helping me open the mail and read your letter before I did and said "Isn't she a Pet? Mum you must get a big kick out of your readers?" And I certainly do. Calories: 1 tablespoon corn oil (mazola) 100; 4 oz. (1-2 cup) apple juice 50; I do not have the figures for mustard. I presume you mean French mustard, but I would be very sparing with it— for it contains flour and oil. (2) Yes MSG is monosodium glutamate and is the pure protein of wheat. It is used to accent meat flavors. The Chinese call it white seasoning and use it in much of their cooking. It is commonly sold in our stores under the trade name of ac'cent. (3) Spiders: I quote "owing to their beneficial habits (they eat smaller insects) no poisons are recommended." Sweep away the webs but if more drastic action is desired spray infested places with fly spray.

Try this filling for your next

BANANA CREAM PIE

Have ready 1 baked 9-inch pie shell. In top of double boiler combine 4 tablespoons sugar, 6 tablespoons flour, 1-4 teaspoon salt and when well mixed add 2 cups milk and 3 slightly beaten egg yolks. Stir over boiling water until thick, then for 10 minutes, covered, stirring frequently. Remove from heat and add 1 teaspoon vanilla. In pie shell slice 3 medium ripe bananas and pour warm filling over. Beat 3 egg whites until foamy, then beat in 6 tablespoons sugar until stiff. Spread over hot filling sealing meringue to crust and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. until golden. If this does not turn out perfectly let me know.

To take off spare tire stretch arms as far as possible above head and bend from side to side as far as possible, not too quickly. Do this 25 times, four times per day. When walking upstairs or driving the car or preparing vegetables or hanging out the washing draw in your abdomen. Make it a habit at specified times to draw and hold it in and increase the number of times you do this until it is held in all during one morning. Soon you will be able to do it all day. You have done wonders to shed so many pounds. Good luck.

NOISE AND YOUR NERVES

Members of the medical profession have a good deal to say about the deplorable effects of noise and emotional disturbances. Noise has a bad effect on the nervous system.

A sudden roll of thunder or a tire blow-out can alter breathing and tighten muscles. A worker in a noisy office, where telephones are clanging and fellow employees are loud talkers, will lose more energy than she expends on the job of the noise.

The ill effects of noise, traffic and general confusion are being better understood . . people. This is proved by the fact that many families are moving from large cities to quiet suburbs. It's better for all concerned.

There is scientific evidence that we have to pay a price in health, good looks and fatigue for the greater noise of city environment. Builders of modern homes are taking the subject into consideration. Even electric doorbells are no longer shrill and startling. They've been toned down.

The atmosphere of the home should tranquil for the sake of the health and the good looks of the family. Find a home where music and laughter abound, and you will find a place where nervous systems are not in knots.

Step over the threshold of a home where the family shouts at each other and you will see faces that show strain and tension.

The mother who screams at a child is not only being unkind, but is setting a bad example. The child will shout at his playmates and at her too, if he dares.

EUCHRE PARTY

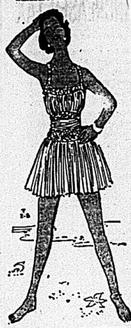
MARMORA—St. Paul's Ladies' Guild held a euchre party in the parish hall on Friday evening, in which 15 tables were in play. Prizes for highest scores went to Edward Hewitt, of Marmora, and Mrs. Kenneth Donaldson, of Deloro. Refreshments were served at the close.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Bailey, of Madic, visited Mr. and Mrs. Ray Frost on Sunday.

Dr. N. D. Harding of the Department of Mines, is holding prospectors' classes in St. Paul's parish hall from Monday to Friday inclusive this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Jones, of Belleville, visited the former's mother, Mrs. Clifford Jones, on Sunday.

SEASHORE SORCERY



By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

Here's a new bathing suit that is fresh and feminine and looking mighty different from the models of yesteryear. It is of permanently pleated white cotton with printed and re-embroidered cotton trim which is used for the shoulder straps, for the band at the top of the camisole bodice and above and below the midriff to mould the hipline. There is a side zipper and there are little pants of the print worn underneath. A bewitching little beach beauty!

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A BRIDE SHOULD HAVE THE PLANNING OF HER WEDDING DAY

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My wedding is to be next month, and I am very confused about the wedding reception. I want to have a small group at, perhaps, a small dinner, but my parents want to have the reception in a hall, with dancing, and serve a buffet with beer.

If this is done, I do not think my husband-to-be will have his people come, as they are very religious and would not go to such an event.

My idea is to ask just a few from each of our families, but my father says he does not want to hurt his friends' feelings by not inviting them.

Please tell me what is right. Do I have anything to say about what I want, and who I ask, or is it up to my parents to plan everything? — P.

Dear P.:

If a girl cannot have things as she wants them on her wedding day, it is a very sad state of affairs indeed. Your wishes should determine what kind of wedding and reception you have, taking into consideration, of course, the wishes of the man you are to marry, as you are doing.

I think it would be quite tragic if your parents insisted on making of your reception an event which your future in-laws would not feel they could attend, and I earnestly hope they will reconsider, and let you and your fiance arrange things as you believe right and best. It would seem that, when you are to be a bride, your parents would want, above all things, to do everything they could to make your wedding day the happiest possible.

THIS TEACHER WAS PROBABLY UNHAPPY IN HER YOUTH

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have a teacher who is very old-fashioned. She not only objects to boys and girls going together, but she thinks it's a sin for a girl to even talk to a boy

At my lunch period today, some boys were talking to a friend and myself. She came over and told the boys to leave, and for us to get with a group of girls. Things like this have happened before, and nearly all the boys and girls hate her. We have never said anything to her about it, because we didn't think should would make things too easy for us the rest of the term, if we did

I don't think I can take much more of this, and others feel the same way. What should we do? — V.U.

Dear V.U.:

It is certainly very unfortunate that this teacher should take such an attitude towards you young people, and, of course, it is some psychological quirk that accounts for it.

My guess would be that, when she was young herself, boys never paid any attention to her and so, all through the years, she has carried in her heart the hurt and bitterness of being ignored, and she can't stand it to see girls and boys enjoying themselves together. I believe that, instead of hating her, you should feel sorry for her.

This may not seem to solve the problem for you, and it certainly must be very irritating to have to put up with such a person, but at the same time, I wonder if you're not letting it get you down too much. After all, you boys and girls must have a great many opportunities to see each other normally when this teacher is not around, and I'm inclined to believe that it would be more sensible to ride along with the situation than to try to fight it. Annoying as it is, I'd just shrug it off, and concentrate on having your fun in the large proportion of time you're out from under the supervision of this teacher.

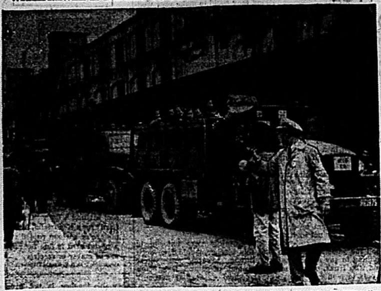
WITHDRAWAL IS DEFEAT TO SOLDIERS ON THE TACHEN ISLANDS



Just in from the Tachen islands where they were evacuated under protection of the U.S. 7th Fleet, a group of Nationalist Chinese soldiers board trucks waiting to transport them to temporary quarters in Keelung, Formosa. The last of the 20,000-man garrison to be evacuated from the scorched soil of the islands 200 miles away showed no joy as they were welcomed to Formosa, for they considered the withdrawal a retreat. Their commander, Lt.-Gen. Lieu Lien-yu promised his people victory on some future battlefield. (Central Press Canadian).

INCREASED TAX

In the absence of Finance Minister Harris, his parliamentary assistant, William Benidickson, stated the government's reasons for opposing the resolution.

He said abolition of the three-per-cent floor would cost the government about $50,000,000 in revenue and deny the possibility of tax cuts elsewhere. It would not help Canadians who do not earn enough to pay income tax.

ADMINISTRATIVE PROBLEM

Mr. Benidickson also referred to the administrative burden of allowing deductions for even the slightest medical expense.

A certain amount of medical costs could be considered normal and, in fact, were considered as part of the basic tax exemption of $1,000 for single persons and $2,000 for married persons.

Mrs. Ellen Fairclough (PC—Hamilton West) and Rev. E. G. Hansell (SC—Macleod) spoke in support of the CCF resolution and their parties voted for it.

Mrs. Fairclough said the floor has been lowered twice in past years, to four per cent then to three per cent from five.

"If it is proper to lower the floor, then why is it not proper to wipe it out entirely?" she asked. "There can really be no proper basis for estimating what is the true amount if the amount can be varied in this way."

She suggested all drug purchases should be deductible. Cost of medicine bought at the drug store was not deductible, but if the medicine came from a hospital or a doctor it was added to the patient's bill and made deductible.

RADAR DEFENCE

(Contnued from Page 1.)

"I added that our part in the establishment of such a system would place a heavy load on the Canadian people; that a large part of the financial burden would be borne by the United States but that Canada must play her part. . .

"PROPER BALANCE"

"I did say that I felt that both the Canadian and American people would wish to feel regarding this essential part of the shield and deterrent against war that there was a proper balance being maintained between what we were doing in Europe and what was being done on our own continent. . . ."

Mr. St. Laurent said he told the conference he felt Canadians would support the burden of a proper share in building these joint defences.

"But I also pointed out that care had to be taken to maintain a proper balance in the manner in which expenditure was made and that I did not think we were in a position where we could take on additional commitments in regard to these defences."

As for defence outside her shores, Canada had more forces stationed abroad, in proportion to population, than any other Commonwealth country except perhaps the United Kingdom.

WASTING ASSET

Elsewhere in his report, Mr. St. Laurent said:

"While the superiority of the Western world in nuclear weapons now is probably our most important single deterrent against war, nevertheless, we must recognize that this is a wasting asset and that peace must ultimately rest on a better and more lasting foundation."

On the Formosa issue, the Commonwealth conference had not tried to draw up a public blueprint for collective action but all members had a common concern to avoid war.

Canada wanted to see fighting in the Formosa straits stopped and to have a political settlement reached by negotiation. That goal required time and patience and would not be helped by ill-advised declarations or by conferences for which there had been no proper diplomatic preparation.

At another point, the prime minister said:

"I notice that disappointment has been expressed in certain quarters at the lack of more positive results from the meeting of prime ministers.

"MISTAKEN CONCEPTION"

"Such disappointment is obviously because of a mistaken conception of what the meetings were intended to accomplish and of how they do produce their beneficial results.

"The Commonwealth is not a political organization under centralized direction or control and I believe we are all agreed that any attempt now to transform the Commonwealth into that kind of union would be unsuccessful and might destroy the free association which has been maintained successfully. . . ."

Hon. Earl Rowe, acting Opposition leader, said he expected a much fuller statement from the prime minister and was "rather surprised" Mr. St. Laurent made "so brief a report on so important a conference." He said he regretted Mr. St. Laurent did not have more to say on how far the conference got on economic problems.

Mr. St. Laurent told CCF Leader Coldwell the government hopes the House will be able to discuss international affairs Friday or early next week.

Bandsmen Resign

GUELPH (CP) — Music and the military have parted company here. It stems from the belief by the 45 bandsmen concerned that you can't serve an art and attend gun drill and lectures, too.

The bandsmen of the 11th Field Regiment felt that enforced attendance at gun drill and lezctures interfered with band practice and prevented the band from maintaining its standard. The men resigned from the reserve regiment.

WINDS SINK SEVEN SHIPS

TOKYO (AP)—Howling 60-mile winds Friday swept away a fisherman, sank seven small ships in the Tokyo-Yokohama area, damaged two others and left nine small craft missing. Widespread reports of damage included two people hurt by flying debris and 14 fires.

General Manager OML Approves Idea Advanced

TORONTO (CP) — Warren B. Hastings, general manager of the Ontario Motor League, said Monday he approves of the idea of granting drivers under 21 only probationary licences.

The suggestion was made in the report, tabled Monday, of the Ontario legislature's highway safety committee.

"This would impress on members of that (under 21) group the fact that we all hold our licences as a privilege only as long as we're good drivers," said Mr. Hastings.

"The record shows that the under 21 drivers have the worst driving habits of any group."

Mr. Hastings said he is "not so sure" about a recommendation that all traffic, both following and approaching, be required to stop when a school bus stops. He said school buses in Ontario are of varying sizes and are not uniformly marked.

Correspondence In Leasing Hotel Not Produced

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons Monday defeated by a vote of 102 to 59 a Progressive Conservative motion that the government produce correspondence from the transport department to the CNR on the leasing of a CNR hotel in Montreal to the Hilton Hotels Corp. of the United States.

The government objected to the production of the correspondence on the ground that it is "privileged" correspondence.

John Diefenbaker (PC—Prince Albert), who asked that the correspondence in connection with the Queen Elizabeth Hotel be tabled in the Commons, argued that it is not privileged.

OPPOSITION SUPPORT

Except for two CCF members who voted with the Liberals, all opposition members; including two Quebec independents, voted with the Progressive Conservative.

The independents supporting the motion were Paul Gagnon, Chicoutimi and Fernand Girard, Lapointe. The CCF members who opposed it were H. W. Herridge, Kootenay West, and A. M. Nicholson, Mackenzie.

In rejecting Mr. Diefenbaker's previous bid for tabling of the correspondence, Mr. Marler said last Monday internal operations of the CNR should be kept private. The CNR management should not be required to make public information which its competitor, the CPR, was not required to produce.

The Canadian, Ontario and Alberta hotel associations have protested the CNR's decision to have the Hilton organization operate the $20,000,000 hotel — which will be Canada's largest—for the railway.

Britain's Teapot Tempest Rises To Boiling Point

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain's long-simmering teapot tempest is near the boiling point.

After steadily rising prices for the Briton's favorite non-alcoholic beverage precipitated a steamy row in the House of Commons, pot-boiling headlines on this domestic crisis have pushed foreign affairs right out of the leading positions in many newspapers.

One of the most popular moves made by Sir Winston Churchill's Conservative government was the abolition of rationing of the long-restricted drink in late 1952. But as thirsts were slaked, consumption quickly exceeded supply. Prices now stand at double the level of two years ago.

AUCTION WATCHED

Reports of a new increase estimated at nearly sixpence a pound, and a remark last week by the visiting Ceylonese premier, Sir John Kotelewala, whose country supplies much of Britain's tea, that the retail price here is "damn ridiculous," lighted new fires under the teapot controversy. They boosted the report of London tea auction sales from the financial pages to the front of this morning's papers.

"Auctions give glimmer of hope," says The Daily Express, a right-wing paper, reporting that the selling price of Indian tea dropped by six cents in the last week.

The Times, independent, belabors Kotelewala for introducing an international note into the controversy, saying there is no evidence of a "fancy profit margin" between Ceylonese sellers and London retailers.

LABOR IN DESPAIR

Charles Hill, parliamentary secretary of the ministry of food, in Monday's rowdy House of Commons session, admitted the tea price is higher than it ought to be, but "to bring back controls is no answer. That will mean subsidies and rationing."

As a storm of Labor criticisms boiled up, another Conservative, J. A. Langford-Holt, suggested that "the best way to bring down the price of tea is to stop drinking it, like I have done." This evoked a despairing retort from left-winger Sydney Silverman: "Shall we stop eating too?"

$85,000 Award Given in Series Of Damage Cases

TORONTO (CP)—Settlement of nearly $85,000 has been reached in a series of damage actions brought against Leonard J. Cline of London, Ont., whose rented car struck a group of persons on their way to a wiener roast near Chatham two years ago.

Final settlements were approved at Osgoode Hall Monday when Kenneth Thompson, 17, was granted $20,000 and Phyllis H. Rich, 17, $7,500 plus $820 for lost wages. Both suffered broken legs in the accident. Thompson was most severely hurt.

In an earlier settlement, Gerry Vink, 27, was awarded $33,500. Two others injured in a group of eight who were standing on the Thames road bridge, 15 miles east of Chatham when hurt, received smaller amounts.

Cline, a London bus driver, said he was blinded by lights of an approaching car and failed to see the group.

Billy Graham's Ways Defended

GLASGOW (Reuters) — Billy Graham's public relations man Monday staunchly defended the American evangelist's high-pressure, advance publicity technique.

Jerry Beavan stood up for his boss at a press conference called to announce plans for Graham's "all-Scotland campaign" along the lines of his three-month crusade in England last year.

Some critics here have claimed that Graham is guilty of "crass commercialism" for alloting a budget of £47,500 for his Scottish campaign.

Beavan replied: "I don't think a charge of crass commercialism is justified at all. . . . Surely once in a generation the church should be allowed to spend around £40,000 to make an impact for Christ.

"You don't do that in an age of television, radio, movies, and automobiles by just quietly having evangelists slipping into the town and addressing one or two people who come to hear them."

EDITOR APPOINTED

OTTAWA (CP)—Appointment of Marshall D. Yarrow as editor of the Ottawa Citizen was announced Saturday by R. W. Southam, publisher. Mr. Yarrow will continue as managing editor, a post he has held since 1952. He succeeds Charles J. Woodsworth, editor since 1948.

RESCUED AFTER JUMP

Lt.-Col. Kenneth G. McGrew, 33 of Riverside, Calif., was picked up by an RCAF rescue team after parachuting from the Stratojet bomber he commanded. The plane exploded at high altitude over northern Saskatchewan. He is resting in hospital at Winnipeg. Two of the four men in the U.S. bomber were reported missing. Another crew member, Capt. L. E. Epton, also was rescued after wandering hours in deep snow and sub-zero weather. (CP Photo).

Pinball Games Teach Gambling Is Quebec View

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Quebec government intends to crack down on pinball machines because they're giving teen-agers too many ideas about gambling.

A bill, amending earlier legislation banning slot machines, was unanimously adopted in the Quebec legislature Monday. It would prohibit possession of all types of mechanical games operated by money or slugs. The bill must be passed by the Upper House before the cabinet can set a date to put it in operation.

The government proposed the measure in the face of several protest campaigns, centred largely in Montreal.

Quebec and Ontario were two of seven provincial legislatures in session in Canada Monday. Nova Scotia and Alberta open their houses later this month while the Newfoundland legislature will be the last of the 10 to convene.

REPORT ON LIQUOR

In Saskatchewan a six-pound report on Liquor Act convictions was tabled listing 4,644 convictions in 1954 compared to 4,132 in the previous year and 1,067 in 1944. Profits from the act amounted to $11,332,015 for 1954.

Larger grants for municipalities and legislation providing a modified form of producer marketing may be approved at the Alberta legislature session opening Thursday.

One of the problems for the government, which holds 51 of the House's 61 seats, is to find room on the legislature floor for its 12 cabinet ministers. Other members of the Alberta House are four Liberals, three Progressive Conservatives, two CCF'ers and one independent Social Crediter.

Canada Spends Eight Billions On New Houses

MONTREAL (CP)—Canada has built almost $8,000,000,000 worth of new homes since the end of the Second World War.

Gordon S. Shipp, president of the National House Builders' Association, Monday told the Canadian lumbermen's Association houses to accommodate nearly 3,000,000 Canadians have gone up during the last 10 years.

Mr. Shipp, addressing the group's annual convention, said 750,000 houses have been completed since the war and the rate of building shows no sign of slackening.

He said home owners, whom he termed "shareholders in the country", have increasingly been resorting to loans under the National Housing Act.

Some 71,000 houses were in course of construction at the end of 1954 and that indicated output would be substantial in the present year. Last year 105,000 units were completed and the figure for 1955 should be as high or higher.

FIREMAN RETIRES

WHITBY (CP)—Fireman James Mowat, 67, will stop running the five blocks from his home to the fire department every time the alarm sounds. He's done it for the last 50 years and retires at the end of the month.

Night-Long Hunt Ends in Capture Of Alleged Thief

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Two Harrow men, captured by provincial police after a night-long chase through snow-covered fields, will face charges of car theft and breaking and entering when they appear today in county magistrate's court.

The men, Adolph and Rudolph Heisl, 18-year-old twin brothers from R. R. 2, Harrow, are to be charged with a break-in at the Gar Wood lodge, near Amherstburg, Sunday and the theft of two cars owned by John Hric, Colchester South, and Roy Brown, Malden township.

According to police, the hunt started Monday night when chief constable Jack Sheppard, Colchester police, saw two men driving a car which had earlier been reported stolen.

Chief Sheppard gave chase over slippery roads until the fugitive car slewed around and ended up on the shoulder of the road.

Chief Sheppard captured Rudolph. Adolph took advantage of his twin's capture to light out across the fields.

A request for aid brought eight patrol cars and 15 men from the Essex detachment. Equipped with walkie talkies and using car radios, the searchers kept in constant touch with each other as they continued the hunt.

HAMPERED BY SNOW

Drifting snow filled in the footprints of the fugitive and made tracking difficult. At one time, Adolph threw off the pursuers by crawling through a culvert.

Shortly before 4 a. m., constable Stan Grabbe picked up the tracks of the fugitive again and trailed him to a barn on the outskirts of town, where he was finally captured.

Drill Sergeant Back to Campus Of Upper Canada

TORONTO (CP) — Maj. F. N. Carpenter, who resigned as drill sergeant at Upper Canada College when he inherited an estate in Wales, Monday night returned to the campus for the first time since 1938.

Maj. Carpenter will be guest of honor at the Founders' Day banquet Friday.

The major drilled cadets at Upper Canada for two years before the First World War. He saw active duty during the war and returned to become one of the college's most-famous figures. He was director of physical education for 20 years.

In 1938, he inherited Carreglwyd Llanfaethlu, a 1,500-acre estate including a 34-room mansion in Anglesey, an honorary position dealing chiefly with supervision of assizes.

STUDENTS MARCHED

When he left Toronto, the entire UCC student body marched with him through Toronto's Union station.

Quebec Also Has Scandal In Roads Dept.

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Duplessis plans to introduce a motion today to recall a legislative assembly order requiring Roads Minister Talbot to produce the names of children irregularly placed on his department's payroll during the 1952 provincial election.

Notice of motion was given Monday night near the close of a wrangling four-hour debate on roads department estimates for 1955-56 totalling $61,715,000.

Order of the assembly for production of the names with amounts received by each child was made last Dec. 14. No documents were produced.

Mr. Talbot said the parents forged the names of their youngsters and cashed the cheques. He would not produce names of the children, saying they fell under provision of legislation banning publication of names of juvenile delinquents.

It was not in the public interest to give their names and "I may be wrong but I do not believe the assembly is above the law," he said.

ANGRY EXCHANGE

During the discussion, Mr. Duplessis expressed amazement at Liberal criticisms. In a $72,000,000 roads budget in 1952, all Liberals could find was a $3,000 irregularity.

Toronto Ballet Opens Its 1955 American Tour

CHICAGO (AP) — The National Ballet Company of Toronto opened its 1955 American tour at the Great Northern theatre Monday night with a full-length production of Tchaikovsky's "Swan Lake."

David Adams and Lois Smith danced the leading roles.

Michigan Fires Claim 5 Lives

DETROIT (AP) — Five persons, four of them children, lost their lives in a rash of fires in Michigan Monday.

In addition, flames destroyed an automobile sales agency in Port Huron, causing an estimated $500,000 damage.

Linda Yager, 2, died and her three-year-old brother, Roy, was burned critically in a fire that swept through a two-storey frame home in Flint.

Mrs. Eleanor Tolowski, 30, died in a vain effort to save her year-old son, Robert, from a flaming farm home near Hesperia, in northwestern Michigan.

MOTHER BURNED

Linda Reed, 3, and her brother, Ronald, 2, died in a fire that swept their Pontiac township home. Their mother, Myrtle, 24, was burned severely trying to rescue them.

Plane Wreckage Seen on Mountain In Central Italy

VITERBO, Italy (AP) — An American plane searching for a missing Belgian Sabena airliner today reported sighting wreckage on a mountain 60 miles northeast of Viterbo. The pilot messaged he saw no sign of life.

Searchers said they were not certain that the remnants were those of the DC-6 airliner which vanished Sunday night with 29 persons aboard.

Patrols were dispatched immediately to climb 6,500-foot Mt. Vettore in the central Appenine highlands.

Expect Britain Will Build Force Of Atom Bombers

By RON EVANS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Britain is expected to move into a new phase of defence this week.

The 1955-56 white paper, called the annual statement on defence, is to be published Thursday, and it is expected to be a document of almost revolutionary significance.

Observers predict the main emphasis will be on building up a powerful strategic bomber force, equipped with nuclear weapons.

SMALLER ARMY

A smaller army will be advocated, including a highly-trained strategic reserve based in Britain. Little chance of reduction of overseas commitments is foreseen, however.

On the naval side, it is predicted there will be restrictions on the building of capital ships and more emphasis on escort vessels and minesweepers.

Civil defence may also be overhauled, with a national system planned to deal with widespread destruction by atomic bombs.

Formosan Issue Appears Critical Says Editor

MONTREAL (CP) — The Formosan situation appears critical but there is hope it can be worked out to a draw, G. V. Ferguson, editor of the Montreal Star, said Monday.

The crisis over the island is the latest in a series since the Second World War, he said in addressing the Montreal Canadian Club. Each was part of a developing pattern that will dictate a division of influence between the Communist and Free worlds.

At any moment a false step might bring about a general war, he said, but past events lend encouragement to the belief that this will not come about in the Formosa straits.

Failure to work out the Formosan situation would mean the use of H-bombs by both the United States and Russia but neither, he said, wants to use them.

Canada's interest was not so much in the future of Formosa as it was in the maintenance of a common policy between the United Kingdom and the United States.

RESCUE FOUR

TRENTON, N.J. (AP)—A power boat ground through hundreds of feet of the frozen Delaware river Sunday night to rescue four teenagers in a rowboat trapped between ice floes, after a helicopter failed to save them. Police said a strong tide had carried the youngsters to the middle of the river.

Mayor Burtt Against Quarrel Of Council With Police Dept.

TRENTON (Special) — Mayor Ross Burtt's advice to council last night was to steer clear of controversy with the police department. Councillor Joe Gould and James MacDonald maintained that Trenton's meter business could provide $25,000 revenue for the town during a discussion listed on the agenda "Police Commission Report and Meter Repair Cost."

Mayor Burtt told council that he was of the opinion there was some personal matter existing between Councillor Gould and Police Chief F. J. Taylor. Councillor Gould, who denied the mayor's report, said: "If Chief Taylor thinks I have anything against him I'd like to go to him and clear the case. I know that people are talking about the meters."

The discussion last night arose out of earlier charges by council members that Trenton parking meters were not being operated in a business-like manner. At that time Mayor Burtt pressed to have all policemen on the beat issue tickets to violators.

The annual police report showed that 217 meters returned to the town a net profit of $12,050 last year. The bill for repairs was almost negligible.

Statistics show that a parking meter in use nine hours daily, excepting holidays has an annual earning power of $90.

Mayor Burtt favoring the police department's continued administration of parking meters recalled that garbage disposal that cost the town $13,000, plus overtime help costs the town just $9,000 annually since a local trucker took it over.

Councillor Gould insisted that better supervision of the meters would provide the town larger revenue.

Town clerk O. W. Larry suggested an inventory of meters and spare parts. Council was assured a complete inventory would be available to them by the next meeting.

Council accepted the resignation of M. W. Andison from the Planning Board. It was agreed to pay Frank Sager $300 a year as a captain with the Trenton fire department.

Will Have to Reduce Price Of Bottled Milk to Compete

OTTAWA (CP) — A Canadian dairy authority today warned that the price of bottled milk must be cut if the industry is to compete with new instant-dissolving milk powders to be placed on the Canadian market shortly.

W. K. St. John, executive secretary of the National Dairy Council of Canada, suggested savings could be made and sales increased by reducing home-delivery schedules and offering discounts to customers buying large quantities of bottled milk at one time.

Mr. St. John, in an address before the annual meeting of the Associated Milk Foundations, said the milk industry has made a lot of economies in the last 15 years. A Montreal worker, he estimated, could earn enough to buy a quart of milk in one-fifth the time it would take an average workers in Moscow.

But even greater economies must be realized, he said, if fresh milk is to compete with the new instant - dissolving milk powders which will be placed on the market in the immediate future.

His statement was contained in the text of his address released to the press in advance of delivery.

"To meet this new and revolutionary development, dairymen should examine the present wide price differential between milk produced for fluid purposes and that entering manufactured products. In some cases the difference amounts to over $2 per 100 pounds or more than five cents per quart of milk.

"Milk driver unions should seriously consider further reduction in home delivery frequency," he said, estimating that "substantial savings can be made only where home deliveries are reduced to an every-other-day or three - day - a-week basis.

"Fluid milk sales last year fell slightly behind population growth but sales of skim milk powder in retail packages had reached 8,000,000 pounds or 300 per cent more than three years ago."

Unidentified Body Found In Plane Wreckage

WINNIPEG (CP)—An unidentified body has been found in the wreckage of the giant U. S. B-47 stratojet bomber which exploded at high altitude Saturday and crashed about 110 miles northwest of The Pas, Man.

The victim would be either Major Robert Dowdy, 31, navigator, or Capt. Thomas L. Pittman, 34, a non-crew member who was aboard to test special survival equipment.

Meanwhile, planes and ground parties continued their search today in the hope of finding the fourth man aboard the plane.

Col. McGrew and Capt. Epton escaped with minor injuries when they were blown out of the plane after the explosion. They blacked out, then regained consciousness as they parachuted to safety.

Pontiacs Down Fliers 10-6

BANCROFT — Friday's exhibition bout between Bancroft Pontiacs and Trenton Fliers in Bancroft Arena proved to be as popular an event as in previous years. The game is an annual affair sponsored by the local branch of the Canadian Legion.

A nice display of teamwork by the visitors, coupled with a dazzling show by the Pontiacs' Brough brothers, delighted the fans. E. Brough pushed home four goals for the Bancroft team, who were the victors by 10-6. Brown was top scorer for the Fliers with 3 goals to his credit.

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York state power authority Monday announced it will receive bids up to March 8 on construction of a bridge and highway approaches near Massena, a part of the St. Lawrence power project.

Chrysler Talks Make Progress

WINDSOR (CP) — Chrysler Corporation of Canada and the United Automobile Workers Union (CIO-CCL) continue their contract negotiations today amid reports that "definite progress" is being made.

Both parties expressed the hope Monday that a satisfactory settlement of the long-standing dispute may be reached soon. A company statement issued before a three-hour meeting said discussions were friendly and progress was being made.

The Chrysler workers have authorized their bargaining committee to call a strike any time. They also turned down a company offer which included a three-cent hourly wage increase.

Detroit Negro Given 16 Years In Penitentiary

SIMCOE (CP)—Joseph Glenn Lotharp, 23, of Detroit Monday was sentenced to 15 years in penitentiary on a charge of robbery with violence.

The charge arose from a robbery last winter during which Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Beatty, both elderly, were fatally beaten with an axe at their service station in this district.

Lotharp and 47-year-old Jerry Simmons of Syracuse, N.Y., originally were convicted of murder in the death of Beatty. On appeal, the conviction against Lotharp was quashed.

Simmons was refused leave to appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada and is sentenced to be hanged March 2.

He was originally scheduled to be hanged Feb. 2 but was granted a reprieve by the Ontario Supreme Court pending his application for leave to appeal.

Missing Montreal Child Is Found Dead in Lot

MONTREAL (CP) — Two-year-old Richard Guibeau, missing from his home since late Monday, was found dead today in a vacant lot.

The child was found shortly after 12:30 p.m. in the snow-covered lot about 1½ miles from his north-end home. Cause of death was not immediately known.

The discovery came while a search party of more than 1,000 policemen and volunteers combed a 12-square mile area for the youngster.

CLOSER 'N CLOSER

The Memos came up with an important victory in Peterborough last night when they snatched a closer-than-your-breath win from the fighting cellar-dwelling Petes by a 6-5 score. The Memos led 4-3 going into the final heat and both clubs scored a brace in a hard-checking third period. The win gives the Memos 48 points, one behind the Kingston Goodyears, and four behind the loop-leading Cornwall Colts.

The victory strengthened the Memos' margin over the fifth-place Brockville Maggies to eight points. The Maggies have an important date tonight—and a toughie—with Cornwall on Brockville ice and this game means something to our side. As of now the Magedomas must win four and tie one of their remaining six games to win the playoff berth, providing the Memos lose all their remaining five games. The Bouchermen tangle with Clinton here Friday night while Kingston journeys to the American city tonight. The top four standing at the moment is Cornwall 52, Whitby 50, Kingston 49 and Belleville 48.

MINOR PLAYDOWNS

Belleville's minor hockey representatives will meet the first acid test of the playdown trail against Kingston here on February 24, Recreation director "Red" Doran announced late yesterday. The Belleville bantam, midget, juvenile squads will tangle with their Limestone city counterparts in Memorial Arena in the first of the two-game triple-headers with the bantams teeing off at six o'clock. The midgets follow at 7.30 and the juveniles take the ice at nine. The second games of the goals-to-count series will be played in Kingtson, Saturday, February 26th.

The series was arranged by OMHA executive member Doug Patterson of Stirling, one of the busiest little puck administrators in the district.

HOT BOXERS!

Topping the week's boxing program are the bouts between middleweight champion "Bobo" Olson and Ralph "Tiger" Jones and Ezzard Charles and Charles Norkus, who joust in the heavyweight division.

There will be plenty of interest in the Olson-Jones bout since the red-hot "Tiger", who clawed away Sugar Robinson's comeback aspirations in January, is fancied by not a few in some quarters. It will be his first fight since persuading Robinson he was a better song-and-dance man than a fighter.

It will be Olson's first ring appearance this year after defending his title three times against Kid Gavilan, Rocky Castellani and Pierre Langlois last year. The fight takes place at Chicago, Wednesday night and will be televised.

The Norkus-Charles scrap will give observers the chance to see how Ezzard has reacted from the two beatings he took from Rocky Marciano, although Norkus is not rated too highly in the heavyweight division, even if he did dispose of Charley Powell and Roland La Starza in his last two starts. Now 33 years of age Ezzard will mark his 100th fight against Norkus. The scrap is slated for Friday at Madison Square Gardens and also will be televised.

THE TALE OF A CAT

We have been tabbed more than once as a teller of tall tales, but there is a chapple down Sussex, N.B. way, that earns the crown. The yarn appeared in the Kings County Record, a right smart weekly, and is a new twist on the old story of the cat hiding under a motor car hood.

The car owner, one Harry Marshall, of Gowland Mountain, had no sooner left a neighbor's house that his car began to act as though it were an obstinate mule. One moment it went, the next it stopped, only to jerkily proceed for another short distance.

Marshall lifted the hood and was nearly swept off his feet. A yowling tomcat catapulted skyward and started off across the fields at jet-speed. The cat, it appears, had climbed up into the warm engine compartment from underneath the car and had become frightened when the vehicle began to more.

Serious engine trouble stopped the car? No sirree! That blamed revolving cat had clawed the wires from the distributor and the car had groaned to a stop.

LOOKS LIKE WAR!

Lieutenant Warpy O'Brien, field scout for the Royal Antedeluvian Order (Belleville Division) of Smoke-Eaters, roared into this department like a yearling bovine gentleman at its first spring outing.

Warpy wore a pair of knuckle-dusters, carried a shillalagh and a telescope. He looked around the news room, a glint in his eye. Seeing nothing to suit his fancy, outside of the copy boy's morning "coke" he roared, "any of those hockey private eyes sneakin' around here."

He lowered his voice to a stage whisper that did not carry any farther than "Red" Doran's bailiwick in the city hall across the street, and stated, "the best danged hockey team that ever represented the Fire-Eaters of Belleville just had a secret practice and I'm told the limbs of the law had their private eyebrows in the vicinity of the arena trying to get inside information."

It can be told now. "Warpy" forgot to look over the roof of the arena. There he might have seen two or three prone figures gazing intently at the ice-surface goings-on. Later three husky gendarmes from the Pinnacle St. coppery chuckled to themselves. What they saw is not available for the public but apparently it satisfied them.

All of which is but part of the pre-game action of the annual hockey joust between teams of the Police and Fire Departments, slated for March 1st in Memorial Arena. It is the third annual clash of the teams and promises to be the best. The entire proceeds go to the Crippled Kiddies' Fund of the Belleville Shrine Club, and President Jack Bush, and Nobles Dave Stephenson, Lionel Crawford and others, along with the police and fire laddies guarantee a grand evening of fun and entertainment.

‘Private Eyes’ in Europe Tab Red Puck-Chasing Gimmicks; Warning Is ‘Watch Czechs’

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Note to the Kremlin: Canada has been spying on Russia!

A Canadian spy ring, its tentacles reaching into continental Europe, has been sending home secret reports—on Soviet Russia's hockey team.

This was disclosed Monday by Richard (Red) Stapleford, formerly of Stratford, Ont., and a Londoner for more than 15 years. He established the spy network at the request of W. B. (Baldy) George, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

The reports, now in the hands of the CAHA, were compiled from the findings of continent-based Canadian players, who were quietly tipped off to keep an eye on Russian exhibition games.

LOOK OUT FOR CZECHS

Stapleford, who condensed the individual findings into one comprehensive report, says the consensus is—watch out for Czechoslovakia.

"The Czechs stack up as a better club, and seemed to ease up when they played against the Russians.

"Every Russian can play 60 minutes. They have some unorthodox tricks, but there are some characteristics that can be exploited."

Stapleford, a stocky, friendly redhead who rates as probably the most hockey-wise Canadian in the United Kingdom and Europe, said the report contains "some of the thousand and one things it helps to know."

And he was at the airport here to pass along some tips to Penticton Vs, who made a brief stopover in London Monday on their way to this year's world championships in Germany starting Feb. 25.

LIKES THE Vs

Canada plays Russia, which won the crown last year, March 6, last day of the tournament. Stapleford called Penticton the "best Canadian team to come to the world championships for years and years—they can't lose, they didn't come over here to lose."

Some more tips from the "spy report:

"The Russians use short, high sticks. They play a short-passing game with the emphasis on position. The wings never stray. The team doesn't forecheck.

"Their goalkeepers tend to come out, and rarely use their hands. They often fall to smother rebounds, letting the puck bounce back."

But reports from countries such as Italy and Switzerland, where the Russians have appeared and Canadian players are plentiful, seemed agreed that the Soviet skaters are ultra-strong on conditioning.

Roth Nudges Kaufman In Senior Race

TORONTO (CP) —Mickey Roth inched closer to first place in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A League scoring race during the past week, official figures showed Monday.

Roth, forward with Stratford Indians, moved to within two points of Ken Laufman of Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen, who has 21 goals and 54 assists for a 75 point total. Roth failed to score during the week but picked up six assists for a total of 73 points made up of 23 goals and 50 assists.

Jim Connelly of Chatham Maroons led the goal scorers with 31 while Laufman is ahead in assists.

Hank Ciesla continues to dominate the OHA junior A scoring race with 48 goals and 39 assists for 87 points. The St. Catharines Tee-Pees' captain leads in goal scoring also.

Guelph Biltmores' Billy McCreary is in second place with 75 points on 42 goals and 33 assists.

Chris Chataway Wil! Attend Celebrity Dinner

TORONTO (CP) — Chris Chataway, who called off an appearance at Ontario's sports celebrity dinner here next Thursday for health reasons, is coming after all.

The red-headed track star sent word to the Ontario Sports Writers and Sportscasters Association that he now feels well enough to fly from London for the $25-a-plate event. He will arrive in Canada Wednesday for the dinner, a sell-out five weeks ago.

Chataway, who last year paced Roger Bannister and John Landy to the world's two first four-minute miles, is one of 20 celebrities on the dinner roster which includes such names as Marilyn Bell, Jim McLarnin, Lou Groza, Al Rosen, Sal Maglie, Robin Roberts, Dazzy Vance, Gene Sarazen, Pat Fletcher, Jesse Owens and Rich Ferguson.

All proceeds of the dinner, about $20,000, go to the Ontario Society for Crippled Children and will also help launch the annual Easter seals campaign. The Ontario Hotel Association is paying actual cost of the meal, roughly $5,000.

BOOK LISTS PLAYERS

CINCINNATI (AP)—The players the eight National League baseball clubs will take to spring training this year represent 39 states and the District of Columbia as well as Canada, Cuba, Panama, Puerto Rico, Scotland, Venezuela and Mexico. That information was gleaned from the National League green book which came off the press Monday.

‘Bill’ Ezinicki Has Three Checks, Calls Them ‘Jolt, Thump, Whomp’

By ED SIMON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK (CP)—In the 11 years since he broke into the National Hockey League, Bill Ezinicki has seldom been quoted as saying much more than that it was a nice day.

But after he made his home debut with New York Rangers Sunday night, the sports writers came away from the Madison Square Garden dressing room with a whole fistful of quotes.

New York newspaper readers learned that the 30-year-old Winnipeg-born right winger has three kinds of checks — the jolt, the thump and the whomp. He used only the jolt and the thump on Montreal Canadiens as the Rangers beat them 4-1 Sunday because he was tired after a long plane trip from Vancouver.

The fifth-place Rangers had just bought him from Vancouver Canucks of the Western League.

Ranger Coach Muzz Patrick termed Ezinicki "only half the player he really is" against the Canadiens and implied that the whomp would be in evidence by the time Boston Bruins hit town Wednesday.

While Ezinicki has never set the league on fire as a scorer, the role of "policeman" on a high-scoring line is not unfamiliar to him.

Toronto fans will recall that he was flattening the opposition for the Maple Leafs in 1948-49 when linemate Harry Watson scored 26 goals, his highest one year total. Ezinicki led the league in penalties with 145 minutes that year while Watson didn't have to serve a minute.

Two years later Ezzie was a Boston right winger while his centre, Milt Schmidt, scored 22 goals, his highest total in five years, and won the NHL's most valuable player award the only time in his illustrious 16-year career.

PLANS TEST

LONDON (AP) — Donald Malcolm Campbell said Monday he plans to give his new hydroplane Bluebird another test on Lake Ullswater Wednesday or Thursday. He hopes later to break the world water speed record of 178.497 miles per hour established by Stanley Sayres of the United States.

Canadian Figure Skaters Up Against Tough Opposition in Championships

VIENNA (CP)—Canada's Norris Bowden and Frances Dafoe put their world figure-skating championship on the line today, and indications are they will have to skate their best to keep the pairs title from going to Hungary.

The Toronto skaters who won the championship at the world figure-skating tournament in Oslo last year, are up against strong competition from Lazlo and Marianna Nagy of Hungary.

The Nagy couple, winners of the European pairs title at Budapest last month, are considered the foremost threat to Bowden's and Miss Dafoe's title.

DREW 15,000

Bowden, 28, and his partner, 25, drew 15,000 people to one of their practice performances last Friday. Masters of the waltz, dance and 10-step routines, they found a receptive audience in the fun-loving Viennese.

Bowden and Miss Dafoe are among nine Canadians entered in the world championships, for which 104 entries have been received, biggest field since the event was inaugurated in 1896.

Among the other Canadian contestants are a second pairs entry. Toronto 'teen-agers Bob Paul and Barbara Wagner, who finished second to Bowden and Miss Dafoe in this year's Canadian championships.

GIVEN GOOD CHANCE

Charles Snelling of Toronto, who finished seventh in the men's singles at Oslo last year, is conceded a good chance of placing among the top six this year. He is the Canadian senior champion for 1954-55.

Among the contenders for the women's singles event, in which former world champion Tenley Albright of Newton, Mass., is favored are Cezch-born Carole Jane Pachl of Montreal, Canadian senior women's champion, and 18-year-old Ann Johnston of Toronto. Miss Johnston finished second to Miss Pachl in this year's Canadian tournament.

A brother-sister team from London, Ont., will represent Canada for the first time in the dance event. They are Jeffery Johnston, 17, and his sister Lindis, 14, who won the dance and 10-step title at Toronto this year.

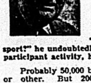
THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN



by Elmer Ferguson

(This is the first of two parts on Canada's popular sport of curling).

Part 1 — How Curling Came to Canada

If you asked the average sports fan: "What is Canada's most popular winter sport?" he undoubtedly would reply: "Hockey". On the basis of participant activity, he would be completely wrong.

Probably 50,000 boys in Canada play hockey in some form or other. But 200,000 men, women and children are curling addicts. It is questionable, indeed, whether any other participant sport in North America attracts so many ardent followers.

It is well over a century ago that the Royal Montreal Curling Club began to issue franchises to members transferred to different parts of Canada. The ancient club was then acting as headquarters of the Royal Caledonia in Canada. Since then other provinces have set up their own curling headquarters although Montreal, the eastern part of Ontario and Quebec generally are still part and parcel of the Scottish organization, which took the "Royal" title in 1842 when Queen Victoria visited Scotland, and attended a curling contest.

Many clubs in Canada can boast of having achieved the ripe old age of 100 years, or more. A popular tradition is that members of a Scottish regiment stationed at Quebec introduced the game to Canada, using cannon balls cut in half to spin along the ice surfaces.

Factually, it is known that the Montreal Curling Club was founded in 1807, and records indicate that the first inter-city curling match was played in 1835, between teams representing Montreal and Quebec City.

In proverbially Scottish eastern Nova Scotia, particularly in Pictou county, curling came into being more than a century ago. Scots who settled at Albion Mines soon after 1827 were first to play the game in that country, and minutes of the Bluenose Club in New Glasgow date back to 1853.

The Hamilton Thistle Club is 101 years old. Before this club was founded, there was some scattered curling in the district. As far back as 1838, Hamilton Curlers were at a loss how to get stones. A woodworker in nearby Fergus made a set of 'stones' from curly maple, and these were used for years.

Memos Improve Playoff Berth Chances With 6-5 Win Over Peterborough

Extend Margin to 8 Points Over Brockville Magedomas; P. Jones, Dugan Pace Attack

PETERBOROUGH — (Special) — The fourth-place Belleville Memos jerked out a 6-5 OHA senior "B" victory over the last-place Petes here last night before a slim crowd. These oldtime rivals dished up a dandy fast fray, generally clean, and quite tight right to the final gong. It was 2-2 in the first frame and 4-3 for the Quinte crew going into the even third chukker. The Petes, icing just 11 players, drew seven of the 12 minor penalties handed out. Gus Leonard was an absentee due to illness, Bob Kennedy was working and Bill Crowley is still out with his injured ankle.

Play was speedy up and down all through, with goalies Barclay and Donlevy both good in every period as they stopped a lot of rubber. A few times, play became a bit chippy and a couple of fights threatened, but generally it was a clean tilt.

Arn Dugan paced the Memos' attack with two smart goals, one each being counted by Vern Goyer, Peter Jones, Keith MacDonald and Erwin Duncan. Leading in assists were Jake Wade and Red Doran with two each, as Erwin and Ed Duncan gained one apiece. Chum Fryia scored a pair for Petes, Ed Redmond, Bill McMaster and Ted Collins getting the others.

An assist apiece was marked to Toodie Greenlaw, Bert Hill, Marcel Huneault, Redmond, Fryia and Don Floyd. The Petes pressed from the start and Collins notched the first one on a close-in play with Greenlaw and Hill. Muckler served a holding penalty and Fryia was back from a high - sticking offence when Dugan evened the count on a speedy combination thrust with Doran and Wade.

The latter two built up another one with Peter Jones finishing it off on a corner passout. Fryia got that back, aided by Huneault and Redmond, on two long forward passes and nifty net finish.

BOTH GET GATE

Goyer and McMaster were gated to start the second stanza for roughing and were off when Redmond took Fryia's passout and blazed a hot one by Barclay. Goyer squared the count shortly on a close-in stab with the Duncan brothers. MacDonald got a breakaway and made no mistake in foiling Donlevy to give Memos the odd marker, their margin of victory, Dugan and Twist went off for high-sticking and Collins followed for holding.

Peter Jones and McMaster roughed it up then and got the finger, too. All were back with no damage done before the frame finished.

Redmond drew an early tripping penalty in the third period. Dugan broke from around his own net to go all the way on a fine solo dash to score from close range. McMaster got the air for elbowing and Wilson went right after for holding. They were still away when Fryia counted near the crease edge on Floyd's pass. Erwin Duncan checked one of the Petes, recovered the disc and dashed in to tally. McMaster got the last marker in close, and then went off for charging near the close.

Will Broadcast Canada-Russ Hockey Game

TORONTO (CP) — Hockey announcer Foster Hewitt of Toronto will broadcast the play-by-play description of the world championship hockey game between Moscow Dynamos and Penticton Vs from Germany next month.

The broadcast, with pre-game warmups and interviews, will be heard only over Hewitt's Toronto radio station, CKFH. The game is scheduled in Krefeld March 6.

Hewitt thus will miss broadcasting his first National Hockey Leagu game in Toronto in 31 years. His son, Bill, will substitute for him March 5 when Boston Bruins meet Toronto Maple Leafs here.

"It was a tough decision to make, breaking the chain like that," Hewitt said.

FIRST TIME

It is believed to be the first time that a Europe-to-North America description of a hockey game will be carried. Hewitt will fly to Amsterdam Feb. 22 and then go to Germany.

Hewitt has leased 2½ hours of air time on the short wave beam for the Russian-Canadian engagement. His voice will go via land lines to Frankfurt, where it will be beamed to New York and then on land lines again to Toronto. It will cost about $6,000 to broadcast the single game.

"So far I don't plan to have it sponsored," Hewitt said. "Right now I have the feeling it's such a big thing that I'd like to keep it to myself."

HORSE MADE FAVORITE

LONDON (AP) — Tudor Line, beaten by a neck by Royal Tan last year, joined Quare Times as 100-8 joint favorite for the Grand National Steeplechase at a betting call-over by Britain's top bookmakers Monday. Quare Times, 10-1 at last Monday's call-over, went up slightly in the betting after his defeat in the 3½-mile National Trial Steeplechase at Haydock Park last Wednesday.

Canuck Champs Win Fights

QUEBEC (CP)—Two Canadian boxing champions Monday night defeated Boston fighters in 10-round non-title fights in Quebec City.

Canadian bantamweight champ Fernando Gagnon of Quebec, weighing 119½ pounds, knocked out Tony Scott, 122, at 1:07 of the fifth round and welterweight champion Tony Percy of Drummondville, Que., 150½, took a unanimous decision over Jim (Rocky) Sullivan, 145.

Gagnon knocked Scott to the floor with an accidental foul blow to the groin in the fourth-round of their clinch-filled fight. It was stopped for three minutes until a doctor declared Scott fit to continue.

The Canadian finished it with a solid left hook to Scott's eye.

Sues Commission For Reversal Of Decision

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Ernie Durando, middleweight boxer from Bayonne, N.J., Monday sued the Wisconsin state athletic commission for reversal of a decision he lost to Germany's Peter Mueller in Milwaukee Dec. 28.

The commission had upheld the decision of a referee and the judges in awarding the professional bout to Mueller.

Durando said he knocked Mueller down in the fourth round. He said Mueller was up at eight but slid along the ropes and to the canvas again before he finally climbed to his feet at another count of eight.

Durando declared that under rules of the commission referee Dauber Jaeger should have carried on the first count from eight, and counted out Mueller, when the latter slipped to the canvas. Mueller subsequently won the bout by knockout.

Many Holdouts In Major Baseball Leagues

NEW YORK (AP)—If the major league baseball clubs go into spring training March 1 with all of their players signed, a lot of ink will have been used within the next two weeks.

A survey by The Associated Press today showed that more than 135 players have not signed their contracts. Many of them are among the sport's stars.

A check of the long list shows such unsigned players as Ted Williams, whom the Boston Red Sox hope will change his mind about retiring; American League batting champion Bobby Avila of Cleveland; Sal Maglie, pitching ace of the world champion New York Giants; hard-hitting Eddie Mathews of the Milwaukee Braves; the Phillies' Granny Hamner, Richie Ashburn and Curt Simmons; the Yankees' Mickey Mantle; Avila's teammates Larry Doby and Early Wynn; Minnie Minoso of the White Sox; Boston's Jim Piersall; Bob Porterfield, Mickey Vernon and Eddie Yost of Washington and Jim Finigan, star third baseman of the Kansas City Athletics.

For the most part, however, the clubs are not worried over the many unsigned players. They are not considered holdouts until March 1. Several have said they have just delayed in signing and will be on hand when the first ball is thrown out.

Wings Within Point of Habs, Should Take Over Top Tonight

MONTREAL (CP)—The Detroit Red Wings last week outdid anything the rest of the National Hockey League clubs could offer.

The Wings not only had a perfect record, winning both of their starts, but moved to within one point of the league-leading Montreal Canadiens and will be favorites to take over the top place tonight when they play host to the tail-end Chicago Black Hawks.

Canadiens suffered a double shellacking, a sorry show for the proud Montrealers. About all the opposition had to do—and did—was to silence Montreal's big guns.

The official statistics, released today, show Montreal's Big Five still leading the point-getting parade, thanks to the backlog. Only the No. 5 man among them, Ken Mosdell, was able to get a goal. Two others picked up one assist each.

RICHARD DREW BLANK

Jean Beliveau, leading the point-getters with 60, had one of the assists. Bert Olmstead, in fourth place, had the other. Rocket Richard drew a blank all round and trails Beliveau by four points. Boom Boom Geoffrion, still trying to bull his way out of a slump, is exactly where he was a week ago with 54 points.

Richard still leads the league on goals, with 32, and Olmstead's 40 assists are tops in that department.

Sid Smith of Toronto Leafs bagged two goals and two assists and now has 46 points, only one behind Mosdell. Danny Lewicki, New York Rangers' sharpshooter, came up with a splurge of seven points—two goals and five assists—and displaced Detroit's Gordie Howe for seventh place.

Fancy Danny and Howe each have 44 points but the Ranger man gets preferred spot because he has 28 goals to Howe's 23. The big Detroit rightwinger produced one goal and one assist last week.

DOWN A NOTCH

Lewicki's leap from 12th to seventh place shoved George (Red) Sullivan of Chicago and Ted Kennedy of Toronto each down a notch and knocked defenceman Doug Harvey from last place in the leading 10 down to 13th. Harvey scored nary a point.
